Family of Thomas Atterberry

First Generation

1. THOMAS' ATTERBERRY, son of William ATTERBURY and Sarah MITCHELL, was born in MARYLAND OR VIRGINIA circa 1755. Thomas first appears as a 16 year old male on the VA Tithables in 1771. Thus his birth is estimated. The location may have been in Maryland before the family moved to the new farm in Virginia. This move was at about the same time as his birth. Thomas died circa 1840 in HOWARD CO., MO. His body was interred circa 1840 in HOWARD CO., MO.

He married LURANEY WIFE OF THOMAS ATTERBERRY in VA OR SC, circa 1787. This date and place are estimated based on birth of eldest child.

Luraney was born in NORTH CAROLINA circa 1775. Luraney died circa 1840 in HOWARD CO., MO. Some confusion exists regarding her name. The only "legal" proof is her son Richard J.'s death record which calls her Luraney. She had at least two granddaughters who used that name. Many researchers call her Bridgett Murry/Murray. I have found no legal document or primary reference to support this choice of name. Irene Adair mentioned in a note she left in the Hart Co. Historical Society family file that Luraney's surname appeared to be Taylor. She did not indicate the source and I have been unable to verify this surname.

Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1790 Census in CHESTER CO., SC. Thomas is listed with a wife and 2 sons under 16.

Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1800 Census in CHESTER CO., SC. Thomas is listed with an additional 3 sons and 2 daughters under 10.

Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1810 Census in HARDIN CO., KY. By 1810 Thomas still has 3 sons, 3 daughters at home.

Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1820 Census in HARDIN CO., KY. Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1830 Census in Hart County, KY. Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1840 Census in HOWARD CO., MO. Thomas was listed as the head of a family on the 1840 Census in HOWARD CO., MO.

Thomas ATTERBERRY and Luraney wife of Thomas ATTERBERRY had the following children:

- i. MICHAEL² was born in CHESTER CO., SC circa 1787. Birth estimated. He was probably between 10 and 16 on the 1800 census. Michael died circa 1830. Ruth Adams sent the following excerpt from Wayne's book: list of children taken from the sale of Michael's estate; William, Wade, Eliza C. (m Clark Brown 17 Dec 1838 Hickman Co, KY), Nelson R., Harvey S. (b c 1818 KY), Justin H., Preston, Thomas, June, Fountain Smith. She believe's the William is her ggg grandfather. Does this mean he backtracked to KY? Linda Carpenter, descendant of Fountain Smith Atteberry also beleives he is son of this Michael. Michael was in Howard Co, MO by 1817. He had acted for his father in connection with the marriages of his sisters in Hardin Co, KY during the 1810s. Ruth Atteberry Adams may be a descendant through his son William. Wayne Atteberry's book suggests that Michael was the fifth son.
- ii. THOMAS JR. was born in CHESTER CO., SC 1789. This date is estimated. He was between 10 and 16 on 1800 census. Thomas died circa 1830. (Wayne Atteberry's new book suggests that this is the Thomas who married Susannah Clemons and that he is the father of Richard J. I disagree, based on what documentation I have and my grandfather's notes. This just doesn't seem likely. Rather, it appears that the Thomas Wayne speaks of may actually be the son of William and Bridgett Atterbury. Census would seem to indicate an older woman in that Thomas' household who could be Bridgett.

- iii. SARAH was born in CHESTER CO., SC circa 1790. Sarah died Jul 1870 in Hart County, KY, at 80 years of age. Death from Sandy Joyner. She married NATHAN JAGGERS in HARDIN CO., KY, 16 Apr 1808. Joyner gives 18 Apr 1808.

Nathan was born in SC circa 1789. Nathan died 1867 in Hart County, KY, at 78 years of age. Information on Nathan from records and collated with Sany Joyner information. He was the son of Daniel Jagers and Hester Hitchcock. The Jagers line was sent by Sandy Joyner in an email of Jan 1998. She lists 16 children for Sarah and Nathan: Burrel B., Thomas J., Daniel L., Elias Lindsey, Nathaniel "Nathan", Letitia, John Bunyan, George M., Jesse A., Augustine K., Lurany, Levi M., Ellen, Michael B., Lorenzo D., Edwin Columbus Jagers.

- iv. ELEANOR "ELLENDER" was born in CHESTER CO., SC circa 1791. Eleanor died Apr 1860 in CLINTON CO., MO, at 68 years of age. She married JAMES ATTERBURY Jr. in HARDIN CO., KY, 24 Oct 1811. They were first cousins.

James was born in CHESTER CO., SC circa 1784. James was the son of James ATTERBURY and Dorcas WILKERSON. James died 1867 in CLINTON CO., MO, at 83 years of age. Their children are listed as Williamson R., Thomas Willis, Shelton, James, John T., Levisa (Legisa), and Elenor.

- 2 v. EDWARD was born 1794.
- vi. LEVISA was born in CHESTER CO., SC 11 Dec 1795. Levisa died circa 1845 in DALLAS CO., TX. She married JESSE ATTERBURY in HARDIN CO., KY, 12 Mar 1814. Jesse was born in CHESTER CO., SC 28 Jan 1792. Jesse was the son of John ATTERBURY and Sarah HILL. Jesse died 1864 in DALLAS CO., TX, at 72 years of age. Jesse married second Elizabeth Bowlin. Voncille Winter and Wilma Mitchell who wrote "The Descendants of William Atterbury: 1733 English Emigrant" are descended from Jesse and Levisa. They list Levisa's and Jesse's children as Nancy, Mary, Elizabeth, Nathan, Churchwell, and Mary Jane.
- vii. JAMES W. was born in SC 1797. James died 1855 in DALLAS CO., TX, at 58 years of age. James is believed to have been a family man with at least 5 sons and 1 daughter. He was in Howard Co, Mo by 1823 and migrated to TX as part of the Peters' Colony. DWA, p 206.
- 3 viii. RICHARD J. was born 13 Jul 1798.

Second Generation

2. EDWARD² ATTERBERRY (Thomas¹) was born in CHESTER CO., SC 1794. Edward died 1850 at 56 years of age.

He married JANE WIFE OF EDWARD ATTERBERRY.

Edward ATTERBERRY and Jane wife of Edward ATTERBERRY had the following child:

- i. EDWARD M.³ was born in HOWARD CO., MO. 1824.

3. RICHARD J.² ATTERBERRY (Thomas¹) was born in NEW BRUNSWICK, SC 13 Jul 1798. His birth date has been figured from the age recorded in his death record as 62 years, 10 months, and 14 days on the day of his death 27 May 1861. The J. may stand for Jefferson as it is name passed on in family. Richard died 27 May 1861 in Hart County, KY, at 62 years of age. Death record says he died of consumption. It also lists his parents' names although it gives North Carolina as their birthplace. We have no record as to where Richard was buried. It is assumed to have been on the family farm on Bacon Creek.

He married ELIZABETH JANE KEYES in Hart County, KY, circa 1820. This marriage date is figured on the following. In 1819 Hart Co became a separate county from Hardin Co. In the 1820 census Richard is still listed as a member of his father's household (figured by count and age). In 1830 he has his own listing with a wife and two sons under the age of ten and two under the age of five. In 1840, the oldest can be assumed to have been born between 1821 and 1824. All records of Hart Co were burned with the courthouse in 1828. Only the first Court Order Book survived.

Elizabeth was born in Hart County, KY 1796. Elizabeth died before 1870 in Hart County, KY.

Richard was listed as the head of a family on the 1830 Census in Hart County, KY. The 1830 census shows Richard with a wife and 2 sons under 10 and 2 sons under 5.

Richard was listed as the head of a family on the 1840 Census in Hart County, KY. Richard was listed as the head of a family on the 1850 Census in Hart County, KY. Richard was listed as the head of a family on the 1860 Census in Hart County, KY.

Richard J. ATTERBERRY and Elizabeth Jane KEYES had the following children:

- i. UNKNOWN MALE⁷ was born in Hart County, KY ca 1821-1824. Appears in the 1830 and 1840 census but no further information. May have died as a child. Possible name could have Thomas in it as it is Richard's father's name and that name is not used again in this family.
- 4 ii. WESTON K. was born ca 1822-1823.
- 5 iii. JEFFERSON L. was born 18 Nov 1824.
- 6 iv. WILLIAM HOWARD was born 1826.
- 7 v. NANCY JANE was born 7 Oct 1832.
- vi. MARY S. was born in Hart County, KY circa 1833. Luraney died between 1885 and 1889 at 52 years of age. She is called "Aunt Lu Robertson" in a letter dated 1885 from W. P. Atterberry to his brother James Robert. She is not mentioned in the affidavit of heirs of the estate of Weston K., nor are any children listed. She married WILLIAM ROBERTSON in Hart County, KY, 10 Sep 1857.

William was born circa 1833.

- 8 vii. GEORGE WASHINGTON was born 1836.
- viii. ELIZABETH A. was born in Hart County, KY 1838. Elizabeth died by 24 Jun 1889 at 50 years of age. She is not mentioned as a survivor in an affidavit listing the heirs of Weston K. Atterberry. No children are listed, either. She married LEWIS W. PHILPOT in Hart County, KY, 29 Aug 1861.

Lewis was born in Hart County, KY 1838. After her marriage, there is no further information on her. As she is not named as a sibling with heirs in 1889, we assume she died without surviving children.

- 9 ix. SARAH MELVINA was born 1840.

Third Generation

4. WESTON K.³ ATTERBERRY (Richard J.², Thomas¹) was born in Hart County, KY ca 1822-1823. Birth estimated from census records. Weston died 24 Jun 1889 in Butler County, NE, at 66 years of age. Estate papers name his siblings, all deceased but one, and the living heirs of those siblings.

He married MARY E. SIDEBOTTOM 12 Aug 1847. Wedding date from Mary E.'s obituary. Place is not given.

Mary was born in GREEN CO., KY 16 Mar 1813. Birthdate from Mary's obituary. Her parents are assumed based on names of nephews in her will. Mary was the daughter of William SIDEBOTTOM and Jane "Jinney" TRUE.

Mary died 10 Feb 1897 in LARUE CO KY, at 83 years of age. Based on her obituary in a Larue Co. paper. Her will was entered in Green Co, KY

She made a will 1889. Mary evidently wrote her will shortly after the death of her husband and perhaps in response to the mess caused by his dying intestate. She lived another 8 years. The will was entered for probate in Green Co, KY in Mar 1897. This placement is tentative. Mary lists several Sidebottom nephews as her heirs in her will dated 1889. These nephews are grandsons of William Sidebottom.

Weston was listed as the head of a family on the 1860 Census in Weller, Henry County, IL. Weston was listed as the head of a family on the 1870 Census in Bone Lick Precinct, Butler Co, NE. Weston was listed as the head of a family on the 1880 Census in Bone Lick Precinct, Butler Co, NE. Weston's will was probated in Butler County, NE, 1890. Information from Gerene Kinney Lord lists the brothers and sisters of Weston and they match with our family. Therefore Weston is one of two previously unidentified sons of Richard J. Atteberberry and Elizabeth Jane Keys. His name may refer to the father or a brother of his mother Jane Keys. His middle name might be Keys. W. K. Atterberry is listed in an index of farmers dated 1890-1891 Octavia, Butler Co, NE on the Butler Co, NE website. He had died by that time according to his widow's obituary.

Weston K. ATTERBERRY and Mary E. SIDEBOTTOM had the following children:

- i. ELLEN J.⁴ was born in Kentucky circa 1848. Ellen's birth is figured from her age as 12 in the 1860 census. She is listed as being born in Kentucky. Ellen died before 1880. Death is assumed as there is no mention of her in the 1880 census. She was definitely dead by 1889. Ellen was dead by 1889 according to her father's estate papers.
- ii. ELIZA was born in Kentucky circa 1851. Eliza died by 1889 in Butler County, NE, at 38 years of age. Neither of Weston's children were still alive at the time of his death. Eliza appears in both the 1860 census as 9 years old, and in the 1870 census as 18. She is supposed to have died by the 1889 death of her father.

5. JEFFERSON L.³ ATTERBERRY (Richard J.², Thomas¹) was born in Hart County, KY 18 Nov 1824. Birthdate from the family Bible. Jefferson died 29 Mar 1886 in Hart County, KY, at 61 years of age. His body was interred after 29 Mar 1886 in Hart County, KY, Old Campground Church Cemetery.

Elizabeth was born in GREEN CO., KY 24 Dec 1813. Elizabeth was the daughter of William SIDEBOTTOM and Jane "Jinney" TRUE. Elizabeth died 17 Aug 1878 in Hart County, KY, at 64 years of age. Her body was interred after 17 Aug 1878 in Hart County, KY, Old Campground Church Cemetery. Elizabeth signed a marriage contract with Jefferson L. ATTERBERRY in GREEN CO., KY, 26 Feb 1848. The marriage bond was posted in Green Co, KY. William Sidebottom on bond, Consent by William Sidebottom, father. Groom over 21. Green Co Marriage Bonds 1842-1853, Book D. Elizabeth was an "old maid schoolmarm" according to my grandfather, who was several years older than her husband. She is described as small boned, dark complected, dark-haired. She was an invalid late in life, and Jefferson would carry her to church wrapped in a quilt. He was devoted to her.

Jefferson signed a marriage contract with Elizabeth Jane SIDEBOTTOM in GREEN CO., KY, 26 Feb 1848. The marriage bond was posted in Green Co, KY. William Sidebottom on bond, Consent by William Sidebottom, father. Groom over 21. Green Co Marriage Bonds 1842-1853, Book D.

Martha was born in VIRGINIA 1826. A William H. Arterberry is listed as enrolling in the army during the Civil War. He died at Lebanon, KY on 1 May 1863. He was a private in Company K, 11th Ky Cavalry enrolling on 13 August, 1862 and mustered in at Owensboro, Ky on 17 Nov 1862. Another William Atterberry is listed on 1850 census in Daviess Co. See Adjutant Generals Report, pps. 322-323 and 352. Information in letter to Wanda Walters in family file at Ky Historical Society.

Information from Gerene Kinney Lord about the heirs of Weston K. Atterberry of Nebraska suggest that William H.'s middle name was Howard. The papers say that he has been dead for some time, that he has heirs, but no one knows their location. Children are from 1850 Hart census.

William Howard ATTERBERRY and Martha E. wife of William H. ATTERBERRY had the following children:

- i. DAVID⁴ was born in Hart County, KY 1847.
- ii. WILLIAM T. was born in Hart County, KY 1848. William died 15 Oct 1926 in JEFFERSON CO., KY, at 78 years of age. This may or not be the same William T. His age is listed as 57.

Her obituary says she died at the home of her son Gaines Chatten but lists no other descendants. It does mention "a brother, W. H. Atteberry... [and] two sisters, Mrs. Dock Caswell and Mrs. Charles Duggins". A half brother, Tom Hodges is also mentioned.

Henry died 30 Dec 1941 in Hart County, KY, at 72 years of age. KYVS gives his name as Henry Chatton. Vol 058, cert#28742. His wife's obituary states he had a store at Bonnieville for thirty years. Until I began researching the family and noted some entries in the Atteberry Family Bible, M. L. E. Atteberry, daughter of James Robert Atteberry and Imogene was unknown to the living members of our family. The Bible includes a note regarding her birthday alongside the children of James Robert Atteberry and second wife Matilda Jane Reynolds, and also a note about her marriage and child. Following up on this, I located Millie Louetta Chatten's death certificate and noted the names of her parents as Samuel Atteberry and Imogene Caswell. While the Samuel is obviously wrong, all other information fits with that in the Bible and in census records. In 1880, Millie E. Atteberry, age 7, appears as stepdaughter to Thomas Skaggs; his wife is listed as Millie A. Skaggs.

Additionally, I found her obituary in a collection of papers which had belonged to my grandparents. I also found an article about their children who served in WWII which also mentioned their nephew, Gaines Chatten.

THE ATTEBERRY LINE OF DESCENT

The following is a partial lineage chart containing all current information about Richard 188 and his descendants that I have been able to prove. My direct lineage is in bold print. If preceded by  that person's descendants are continued on a following page. Sources for this chart include DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM ATTERBURY: 1733 English Emigrant by Voncille Atteberry Winters and Wilma Atteberry Mitchell, Hart Co Vital Statistics (microfilm of selected years 1852-1907), Hart Co Cemetery Records (1980), Hart Co. census records (1850-1910), similar records of surrounding counties, KY Vital Statistics 1911-present, the Atteberry Family BIBLE now in the possession of Marguerite Atteberry Emmons, scrapbooks of letters, receipts, pictures, and obituaries, miscellaneous records in the ATTEBERRY file at the Hart County Historical Society, information from various issues of HART COUNTY QUARTERLY, and a letter from W. H. Atteberry (1944). Information on the Weston K. Atteberry family from Gerene Lord and based on IL census and NE court documents.

188 RICHARD J. ATTEBERRY, b 13 Jul 1798 New Brunswick, Chester Co SC, d 27 May 1861 Hart Co KY. He was s/o THOMAS ATTEBERRY 18 and wife Luraney. (For information on Thomas see Atteberry book)

m ca 1820 Hart Co KY Elizabeth Jane Key(es) (b ca 1796 KY) It is believed that she died after Richard in 1861 and before the 1870 census. There are no records as to where they may be buried.

[NOTE: Richard's birthdate has been figured from his age on his death record and does not completely agree with estimates based on census which place his birth in 1799. This date, however, is entirely compatible with the census. His age at death was given as 62 years, 10 months and 14 days. He was a farmer who died of consumption.]

1881 _____ (male, per 1830 and 1840 census)

1882 WESTON K. ATTEBERRY (male, per 1830 and 1840 census), b c 1822-1823 (age 38 1860, age 47 in 1870 and age 57 in 1880), d 24 Jun 1889 Butler Co, NE. Weston died intestate and without surviving issue so estate papers filed in Butler Co, NE name as his heirs, besides his widow, the children of deceased brothers Jefferson, Howard and George, the children of his deceased sister Nancy Jane Logsdon, and his sister Sarah Melvina Dyer, all of the state of Kentucky.

m 12 Aug 1847 Mary E. Sidebottom (b 16 Mar 1813 Green Co, KY, d 10 Feb 1897 Larue Co, KY) In her will dated 1889 and probated in Mar 1897, Mary lists as her heirs Geo. W. Sidebottom and William Kinney and a third nephew unnamed. George and William seem to be grandsons of William Sidebottom and Jane "Jinny" True.

18821 ELLEN J. ATTEBERRY, b c 1848 Kentucky (age 12 in Henry Co, IL 1860 census), d by 1889 and maybe as early as by 1870 as not listed in 1870 Butler Co, NE census. It is unknown if she married but she died without children.

18822 ELIZA ATTEBERRY, b c 1851 Kentucky (age 9 in 1860, age 18 in 1870), d by 1889. It is unknown if she married but she died without children.

1883 JEFFERSON L. (LAWRENCE?) ATTEBERRY, b 18 Nov 1824 Hart Co KY, d 29 Mar 1886

m 2 Mar 1848 Green Co KY Elizabeth Jane Sidebottom (b 24 Dec 1813 Green Co KY, d 17 Aug 1879 Hart Co KY) Bible says she died 1875. She was a schoolteacher, and d/o William Sidebottom and Jane "Jinney" True. Both are buried in Hart Co at the Old Campground Cemetery. Because she was 11 years older, she is mistakenly identified as the wife of James in cemetery index, but the stones clearly indicate she was Jefferson L.'s wife. No record has been located with Jefferson's middle name, but the preponderance of Lawrence as a family name in succeeding generations suggests that it might be that. Mentioned as a deceased brother in the estate papers of W. K. Atteberry of Butler Co, NE. The papers go on to list his three sons.

m1 Nov 1869 Imogene Caswell (b 1851) The 1870 census gives only her maiden name. Last name from her daughter's death certificate. No proof yet as to her parentage. According to a best guess by researcher, her first/middle name may have been Millie as Millie A. Skaggs is listed as wife of her daughter's stepfather in the 1880 census. A Millie A. Caswell (age 1) has been located in the 1850 census as the d/o Thomas Caswell.

m2 1 Aug 1877 Matilda Jane Reynolds (b 22 Jul 1855 Green Co KY, d 21 Nov 1929 Hart Co, KY), She is the d/o Daniel T. Reynolds and Cassandra Elizabeth "Jane" McCubbin. Bible states marriage as 5 Aug 1877. Their marriage record indicates county of birth. He is buried at Old Campground, she is buried in Munfordville in the ATTEBERRY plot. His stone clearly gives his birthdate although the cemetery index mistakenly gives it as 1818. He is also mistakenly listed as husband of Elizabeth in the index.

 18832 WILLIAM PENN ATTEBERRY, b 1851 Hart Co KY d 9 Jan 1912
m 12 Mar 1874 Hart Co KY Leticia Liza Lively (b 1855 Hart Co KY) He was a schoolteacher at the time of his marriage. He is mentioned in the estate papers of W. K. Atterberry as a surviving son of J. L. Atterberry, brother to W. K. Atterberry.

 18833 JEFFERSON H. (HENRY?) ATTEBERRY, b 1855 Hart Co KY, d by 1889.
m 18 Nov 1875 Hart Co KY Mary Frances Murray (b 1857 Hart Co KY) She is probably d/o Felix G. Murray and Francis. This family is in the 1860 Hart Co Census with Mary as their 2 year old daughter. Jefferson H. is mentioned in the estate papers of W. K. Atterberry as being deceased.

1884 WILLIAM HOWARD ATTEBERRY, b 1826 KY, d by 1889
m Martha (b 1826 VA) This family is in the 1850 Hart Co census but does not appear in the 1860 or later censuses of the county. However, in 1861, the marriages of two of William's sisters occur at his home and he seems to be acting as head of the family in arranging their marriages. William's middle name from estate papers of Weston K. Atterberry. Affidavits attest to his prior death but indicate no knowledge of his children.

18841 DAVID ATTEBERRY, b 1847 KY

18842 WILLIAM T. ATTEBERRY, b 1848 KY, d 13 Oct 1926 Jefferson Co KY)

[NOTE: No further records of this family have been located. One must assume that they moved out of the Hart Co KY area.]

m 9 Nov 1854 Hart Co KY Jordan Logsdon (b 5 Aug 1831 Hart Co KY). He was s/o of Dennis Logsdon and Luvisa Self. Birth dates figured from ages on marriage record. See Self and Logsdon Lines of Descent for more information on Jordan's parentage. In the estate papers she is listed as a deceased sister.

18851 G. W. LOGSDON, b 15 Aug 1856. Not listed as a surviving child in the estate papers of W. K. Atterberry.

18853 HENRY LOGSDON, b ?. Listed in the estate papers of W. K. Atterberry as a surviving child of W. K.'s sister Nancy Jane Logsdon in 1889. It is also mentioned that he moved to Kansas.

1886 MARY S. "LURANEY" ATTEBERRY, b 1833 KY, d after 1885, but before 1889.
m 10 Sep 1857 Hart Co William Robertson (b 1833 Hart Co, KY, d before Jun 1885) Vital Statistics list both Luraney and William as age 23, and natives and residents of Hart Co. No other ATTEBERRY family seems to have been in and remained in Hart Co except Richard 188's during this time frame. Perhaps Luraney was a nickname for Mary S. 1886. As Luraney was Richard's mother's known name, this bears investigation. A letter dated 8 Jun 1885 from W. P. Atterbury to his brother James R. mentions an "Aunt Lu Robertson" whose farm was in Hart Co. She seemed to be widowed and childless and wanting James R. to live on her farm and care for her. W. P. was advising his brother against this arrangement. She is not mentioned in the estate papers of W. K. Atterberry so may have died without children before that time.

1887 GEORGE WASHINGTON ATTEBERRY, b 1836 KY, d after Aug 1870.

m 14 Mar 1859 Munfordville KY America Thornton Richardson (b Jun 1837). She was d/o of William A. Richardson and Sarah "Sally" Abbot.

[NOTE: George apparently deserted his family in 1870 according to letters he sent America. He was on his way to Galveston, TX via a riverboat in TN. He was traveling down the Mississippi River and had reached a point below Cairo. He may have died in the Galveston hurricane in 1900. A descendant says that he is found in the 1870 census of Cairo, IL with brothers and sisters. I have not seen this census. America is listed in the 1870 census in Hart Co as living in the h/h of her father Wm. Richardson. A letter from her daughter Belle in this time frame suggests that she sent the girls to live at the Mason's School in Louisville, KY. This may mean that George W. was a Mason and that the girls, as his "orphans" were eligible to attend the school. On 3 Aug 1877 America married William D. Timberlake. They are in the 1880 census with her son George D. (David) whose last name is also given as Timberlake. By 1900 she is listed as a widow. She also states she'd had 6 children, 4 living at that time. One of the dead children was probably William L. Looking at the birthdates of her known children, and the dates of her marriages, the other child who died may have been born circa 1863 or after her second marriage. Additional information on this line by Ralph and Linda Lennen.]

18871 WILLIAM LAWRENCE ATTEBERRY, b 1860 Hart Co KY, d probably by 1875. As he is not mentioned in a letter by Belle to her mother dated 17 Nov 1875, nor listed in the 1880 census, he had probably died by that time. He was blind according to the 1870 census.

18872 BELLE SHERMAN ATTEBERRY, b 2 Nov 1861 Hart Co KY

m 29 Aug 1861 Lewis W. Philpot (b 1837 Hart Co, KY) Record states permission given by William Atteberry.

[NOTE: The 1880 Hart Co KY census lists an Elizabeth Philpot, age 60. This may be Elizabeth despite the age discrepancy.] Not mentioned in the estate papers of W. K. Atterberry so may have died without children by 1889.

1889 SARAH MELVINA ATTEBERRY, b 5 Nov 1841 Hart Co KY, d 7 Oct 1892 Hart Co KY

m 26 Jun 1861 James J. Dyer (b 1815 buried Dyer family cem. Hart Co KY, but no dates on stone.

Inscription on stone gives his military service and reads Co. I 26th KY Inf.) His second marriage. Record states that marriage took place at home of William Atteberry and that he gave permission. The estate papers of Weston K. Atterberry give her middle name. An affidavit from her on the heirs of the Atteberry brothers and sisters is included in the estate papers.

[NOTE: James J. Dyer's first wife was Malinda I. Sidebottom (b 10 Aug 1809, d 19 Apr 1861. She is also

m J. Henry Chaves (b c 1869, d 16 Dec 1891 Hart Co, KY). He is mentioned in his widow's obituary as having been a Knoxville merchant for over thirty years.

1889111 THOMAS GAINES CHATTERIN, b 20 Sep 1906 Letcher Co KY, d 8 Feb 1970 Letcher Co KY. Thomas enlisted in the Navy in WWI. He is listed along with his Attenberry cousins as an aviator about three months. He is not listed as having any children in his mother's obituary. He seems to have gone by the middle name.

[NOTE: I found mention of M. L. E. Attenberry in the Attenberry family bible on a page listing with my grandfather's brothers and sisters. No one in the family now living knew about him. I traced her death certificate and although it lists Samuel Attenberry as her father, I believe this to be in error. All the probably family knew her father as he had remarried by 1871. Her son may have guessed at his grandfather's name. After all, James died in 1891, while Millie was still a child. In 1900 Hart Co Census she is listed as a stepdaughter of Thomas Stagger and her wife Minnie. Apparently, one 1860s Hart Co census lists a Miller A. Chaves with age 7 born KY, d/o Thomas and Elizabeth E. Chaves. However, she is listed as Marguerite in the 1870 Hart Co census and as her daughter's death record. No further information on this line at this time.]

1889112 J. Ann 1877 Hart Co KY. Middle name reported in 1910 as 1910 Census Co KY, d 21 Nov 1930 Hart Co KY. Birth record says 5 Aug 1877. She is the daughter of David T. Reynolds and Elizabeth Agnes (Henderson) Reynolds. Their own age record indicates the married date was 1877. He is listed in a firm along with all common records. He is buried in Old Cambridge Cemetery in Hart Co KY and although his name is clearly marked with his immediate family in the Cemetery Index given the year as 1912 with given his wife as Elizabeth.  m 2 Mar 1848 Green Co KY Elizabeth Jane Sidebottom (b 24 Dec 1813 Green Co KY, d 17 Aug 1879 Hart Co KY) Bible says 1875. The marriage bond in Green Co, KY says 26 Feb 1848. She was a schoolteacher, and d/o William Sidebottom and Jane Jinney True. Both are buried in Hart Co KY at the Old Campground Cemetery. Because Elizabeth was 11 years older than Jefferson, she is mistakenly listed in the Hart Co Cemetery Index as wife of James, her son, who is buried to her right. The stones are clearly marked, however.

She was the d/o of Felix Grundy Murray and his second wife, Frances Jane Wyatt. Mary appears as a widow in the 1900 Hart Co census. There is no record of Jefferson's middle name, but the preponderance of the name Henry in the family suggests that it might be that name. Some names and dates also from the KYVS database. No death date or place of burial has yet been located for Jefferson and/or Mary.

Stray Data

1. Ancestors of Richard J. Atterberry based on W. H. Atteberry letter, 1944 and The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1984 and later research by John C. Atterberry of Arkansas and others whose work was in Atteberry Family newsletters.

William Atterberry and wife Sarah are listed as parents on the baptismal record of a William Atterberry who was born 21 Jun 1710 and baptised 25 Jun 1710 at St. Giles Cripplegate Parish in London, England. This William, Sr is probably a grandson of the Capt. William Atterbury who had dealings in the new world and was a brother of Bishop Francis Atterberry, and of Richard Atterberry who died without heirs in Virginia. Documents on these early Atteberry connections are in the Atterbury book. Baptism usually took place about three to seven days after birth.

William Atterbury 1: The above child is probably the William, b ca 1710 who was convicted of stealing six yards of linsey-woolsey cloth and sentenced to be deported to the colonies as an indentured servant in 1733. The severity of the punishment and the trivial nature of the offense speaks of desperate times in England. Perhaps William, seeking his fortune, arranged for "free transportation" and a chance at a new life. He left Newgate Prison aboard the Patapscoe Merchant bound for Maryland. The ship arrived and the disembarkment was in Nov 1733 as per documents of Capt. Darby Lux. William must have served his indenture and become a free man as he is by 1744 the husband of a Maryland planter's daughter, a farmer and father. William's wife, Sarah, who appears alone on land documents after William's death in Loudoun Co, VA about 1769, is probably the Sarah Atterberry mentioned as a daughter in the will of John Mitchell of Prince George's Co, MD written 1748 and probated 1752. Several land records of William and Sarah appear in both Prince George's Co MD and then in Loudoun Co VA. At one time, William placed an advertisement announcing he had found a stray gray horse. He seems to have asked its owner for a settlement for the care and feeding of the horse. He appears in the Loudoun Co Tithables until 1769 when Sarah appears alone. William and Sarah had at least nine sons.

Sarah Mitchell: The wife of William Atterbury, Sarah is probably the daughter of John Mitchell and wife Elizabeth of Prince George's Co, MD. Sarah was baptised at St. Annes Parish 31 Aug 1720. In 1735 she married Robert Yackley and had one daughter, Elizabeth, mentioned in John Mitchell's will in 1742. By 1744, Sarah had probably married William Atterberry but had not yet had any children by him. John Mitchell wrote his will in 1748 and died in 1752. John Mitchell was the son of Jn. Mitchell who married Susannah Burgess, daughter of Col. William Burgess born 1620 in Truro Co, Wales and his third wife Ursula Painter, probably daughter of Nicholas Painter. (See Mitchell and Burgess Lines of Descent) Sarah is mentioned as "the widow Atteberry" in some Loudoun Co VA land records of the period. She was probably dead by the time the last of her children settled in Chester Co, SC circa 1790.

Thomas Atterberry 18: Thomas was born according to census records circa 1755 in either Maryland or Loudoun Co, VA, Thomas was probably the eighth of nine sons born to William and Sarah Atterbury. He first appears on the Tithables of Loudoun Co VA in 1771, so was probably sixteen years of age by that time. Thomas appears to have had one wife, known only as Luraney on his youngest son Richard's death record. At least two granddaughters bore the name Luraney in her honor. Thomas and Luraney appear to have had eight children, most probably born in Chester Co, SC where the family moved after his parents' death. Thomas appears in 1803 as a witness in the murder trial of Ezekial Self, a neighbor whose wife was beaten and left for dead on a path near his property. He was one of a group of men who found her. His sister-in-law Bridgett Atterberry, widow of Thomas' brother William was also called as a witness. Bridgett and William also had a son named Thomas who sometimes was called Thomas, Jr. to differentiate him from his uncle, and this seems to have confused early researchers who thought she was Thomas 18's wife and that her son was Thomas' son. Thomas and Luraney moved to Hardin/Hart Co KY by 1810 where he bought 385 acres of land on Bacon Creek. He is frequently mentioned in the First Court Order Book of Hart Co (the only surviving records of the county after a 1928 courthouse fire) in connection with the surveying and laying out of roads in the Bacon Creek area. He was also involved with nominating and supporting a sheriff and, in one odd entry, has his mark or brand read into the court record. There is no explanation for this but perhaps there was some sort of confusion about whose stock were whose and he wanted his mark "on the record." After the 1830 census, Thomas and Luraney moved on to Missouri with several of their grown children. They appear on the 1840 census of Howard Co, MO and died shortly thereafter. Both are buried in Howard Co. Voncille Winter has located the estate records for Thomas. No Revolutionary War service has been proved for Thomas or any of his brothers. Wayne Atteberry of IL has located the name Thomas Alterberry in a roster of VA servicemen. This must be verified. Perhaps their ties to England were too strong, or perhaps they were simply farmers trying to eke out a living from the land. One brother, Michael, is on record as having sold supplies to the Continental Army, but no one has entered DAR from this service.

2. Beatrice Brashear Atteberry's Atteberry Ancesters: My paternal grandmother appears to have had an Atteberry Ancestor who married her mother's great grandfather. While I have not yet proved this individual's connection to the Atteberry family of the immigrant William, I offer the following information.

Michael Atterberry 11: The oldest of William and Sarah's nine children, Michael born circa 1744 Maryland; and whose wife is unknown, had several proven children, among them his son David. Michael also traveled to KY where he died in Grayson Co between 1820 and 1830. Revolutionary War records suggest he sold supplies to the Continental Army during the American Revolution. Michael was probably named for Sarah's brother Michael Mitchell who died about the same time as Michael Atterbury was born.

David Atterberry 116: Born 26 Apr 1781, David lived in Chester Co, SC and on the 1810 census has two daughters born circa 1800-1805 by his wife Frances Joiner. In 1821 David is mentioned as a co-defendant in a lawsuit for non-payment of a debt with George Washington Self. George marries a Miss Atterberry, born circa 1802 in SC at about this same time. Some records suggest her name may have been Mary. If this descent from Michael can be proved, I can enter DAR on his service in the Revolutionary War. George's oldest child is born circa 1821. "Mary" dies between 1842, the birth of their last child, and 1846 the birth of his first child by a second wife, Mary Cottrell. One of his and his first wife's children is his oldest surviving child, Green McClellan(d) Self who would marry Martha Jane Logsdon. Their son, Green Self, Jr. would marry Miriam Belle Wilkerson and this couple's daughter, Elizabeth Davis Self is my paternal great grandmother. (See Self, Logsdon, and Wilkerson Lines of Descent for more on these families.) One of George Washington Self's and Miss Atteberry's sons carried the name William Thomas Atteberry Self. WTA Self served in the Mexican War and died in Los Angeles CA in 1921.

THE ATTEBERRYS OF HART COUNTY, KY

by

Marguerite Atteberry Emmons

Introduction: From as early as 1803 until the present day, members of the Atteberry family have been residents of, or tied to Hart County, Kentucky. This family's early roots have been the source of much speculation and misinformation. One book on the family, put out by Judge J. H. Atteberry of a branch of the Illinois descendants of this family contained so much "misinformation and outright invention" that one of the descendants of the author wrote me recently and warned against using any of the information in that volume unless verified by other documents. Unfortunately, earlier researchers used it and placed their findings based on that book in the Latter Day Saints Ancestral File database without checking the facts. As a result, many modern researchers have used that database as the source of their own research, and the errors continue. The following information is not based on that, but on careful research of the available records in England, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, and Kentucky. Where speculation and the best guess of the author and other researchers is involved, that is noted. Much of the early information on this family before its arrival in Kentucky is based on the research of Voncille Atteberry Winter and Wilma Atteberry Mitchell, whose book The Descendants of William Atteberry: 1733 English Emigrant (copy 1984) contains copies of many of the early documents also located by this author. Additional information on the family can be found in their Atteberry.../Atterbury Family Newsletter or the newsletter edited by John C. Atteberry of Arkansas. Working with these careful researchers, I have spliced together the following information about "the Atteberrys of Hart County."

The Atterburys of Great Houghton, England: All Atteberry (note: there are at least 27 spellings of this name) family members look to trace their English roots to the Atteberry.../Atterbury family whose ancestral home is Great Houghton in England. This family of landed gentry had a family crest which is documented in Burke's General Armory. The most famous Atteberry of this family is Bishop Francis Atterbury who was Dean of Winchester Cathedral in London in 1713. Bishop Francis was known as a powerful preacher whose sermons were among the best of the time. He was under consideration as a candidate for Archbishop of Canterbury when it became known that he was allied with Jacobite sympathizers and had been in touch with James, the Pretender to the Throne. In the anti-Jacobite furor of the day, Francis was exiled to France with his immediate family in 1723. He died there in 1732, but his body was returned to England where it was interred in Westminster Abbey. Tourists, today, may still see his marker on the floor of the abbey near the information desk and across from the tomb of the unknown soldier. Two of Francis' great uncles were Capt William Atterbury and Richard Atterbury, both of whom had early business dealings in the colonies, especially Virginia. Neither of these men appear to have put down permanent roots in America. William appears to have traveled back and forth between London and Virginia, and Richard died without issue in Virginia in 1637 leaving his brother William as his main heir and executor. Of William's wife and children, no records have yet been found. However, it is the best guess of researchers that the William Atteberry who appears as father of the William Atteberry baptised at St. Giles Cripplegate Church in London, England is probably Captain William Atteberry's grandson. One of William's and Richard's brothers inherited the estate of Great Houghton and all titles according to the laws of primogeniture. A descendant of this line, one Lewis Atterbury, also migrated to America about 1801 and settled in the Philadelphia area. Some Atteberry families in America trace their lineage to this line, known as the Job Atterbury line, researched by the DeForrest family. Records of other Atterberrys in early America are infrequent and do not indicate any permanent roots or succeeding generations. Thus we can conclude that the majority of early Atteberry.../Atterbury families, due to close proximity and legal documents are the descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant.

William Atterbury, English Emigrant: The progenitor of most of the Atteberry.../Atterbury families in America and of the ones who were early settlers of Kentucky appears first of all as a felon in London, England in 1732, the same year as Bishop Francis Atterbury's death. This William was born circa 1710, according to the best guess of later researchers based on records in Virginia, and was a young man certainly looking for a better life and a new chance when he was arrested for the minor theft of five yards of linsey-woolsey cloth, a coarsely woven cloth of the day worth about three shillings. As a result of this act, he was deported from Newgate Prison on 17 April 1733 aboard the ship, Patapscoe Merchant, captained by Darby Lux, which was bound for the colonies, probably to Maryland where many of these ships were bound. He was to serve a period of indentured labor; the usual time for indentured service was five to seven years. It must be stated that this was a time of extreme economic depression in England, and anti-Jacobite furor was still high. Perhaps the theft was planned as a means of getting to America and starting anew, or perhaps the relatively minor theft met with such a strong punishment because of his Atteberry name, or because the English government hoped to solve the economic crisis by deporting as many as possible to the colonies. It is believed that this William is the same one whose baptismal record is recorded at St. Giles Cripplegate Church in London on 25 June 1710. Generally baptisms were recorded if an infant survived at least three to seven days.

William Atterbury, Maryland Planter and Virginia Farmer: No records have been found of William's early days in America. It is assumed that he served a period of about seven years indenture with a Maryland planter and it is also assumed that he acquitted himself well. The next appearance of the Atterberry name occurs in the will of John Mitchell, of Prince George's County, Maryland written 1748 and probated 25 Aug 1752. He mentions as one of his heirs "Sarah Atterberry". Later records show that our William was married to a Sarah and it is assumed that this is the same Sarah. A Sarah Mitchell was baptised 21 August 1720 at St. Anne's Parish in Prince George's County, Maryland, the daughter of John Mitchell and his wife Elizabeth. In 1735 she first married Robert Yackley and bore him at least one child, a daughter named Elizabeth who is also mentioned in John Mitchell's will. Thus we can assume that sometime after 1740, the probable end of his indenture, and the 1748 date of the will, William courted and married Sarah Mitchell Yackley. As of the writing of her father's will, they had had no children, or at least none were mentioned. Later records show them with as many as nine sons, the first born about 1744. There are no records of any daughters. In 1746 William received a land grant for 50 acres in Prince George's County, Maryland. In 1754 William sells his Maryland plantation, known as "Prince Spring" and buys land in Loudoun County, Virginia where he first appears on the tithables in 1758. Loudoun County, created in 1758 was just across the Potomac River from Prince George's County. It is there that his youngest son, and possibly also his eighth son Thomas were born. The appearance of each of William's sons on the Virginia tithables as they reach the age of sixteen, coupled with later census records, allows us to guess their approximate year of birth. William continues to appear in Virginia and Loudoun County records through 1765 when he sells some of his Loudoun County land to pay a debt. His widow Sarah appears alone on the tithables in 1769. Thus we assume William died between 1765 and 1769. Sarah continues to appear on land records as "the widow Atterberry" until at least 1772. It is assumed she died there soon after, certainly by 1790. As of 1790, all of Sarah's family had moved from Virginia to Chester County, South Carolina. Some began this exodus as early as 1785, while others remained in Virginia, for a few more years. It is interesting to note that although the Atteberry families spent several years traveling through North Carolina, they left no permanent record there. No North Carolina records mentioning them have been found. The following list of children is based on proximity, legal records, and first appearance on the VA Tithables. Of the nine sons, three died in Chester County, the remaining six came to KY where all but the two youngest died. These two moved on to Missouri where they died. Descendants of all nine brothers spent time in KY. This list of sons is based on proximity and legal records.

Children of William Atterbury and Sarah Mitchell:

1. Michael Atterberry, born circa 1744 Maryland, died circa 1820-1830 Grayson Co, KY. Michael first appears on the VA Tithables in 1760. He received a land grant in South Carolina in 1785. The 1790 census of Orangeburg District, SC lists him with ten children. His wife is unknown. He next appears on the 1810 and 1820 Grayson Co, KY censuses. He is the only Atteberry reported to have given aid and support to the Continental Army during the American Revolution.
2. William Atterberry, Jr., born circa 1746 Maryland, died 1794 Chester County, SC. The 1790 census of Chester County shows him with nine children, who are also listed in his will. His wife was Bridget (possibly Murry/Murray) One of his sons is probably the Thomas Atterberry (b c 1772) who married Susannah Clemons. Another son was Elijah. This family group settled for awhile in Barren Co, KY.
3. Charles Atterberry, b ca 1747 Maryland, d ca 1821-29 Grayson Co, KY. Charles married Sarah Mitchell (same name as his mother) and had as many as 14 children. Only 9 have been identified. Most of his descendants left KY for Illinois. One family, which remained in Grayson Co, KY figures later in Hart Co records.

4. Richard Atterberry, born circa 1748 Maryland, died circa 1808 Hardin County, KY. Richard was married to Rebecca Bennet and the 1790 census of SC shows him with six children. He sold his SC property in 1795 and his will is found in Hardin County dated 4 Oct 1806 and presented for probate 13 Jul 1813. He may have had as many as fourteen children. One of his descendants was Judge J. H. Atteberry who wrote the Illinois Atteberry book mentioned in the introduction.

5. Nathan Atterberry, born circa 1750 Maryland, died 1796 Chester Co, SC. His estate was probated in March 1796. Nathan was married to Patty or Patsy who later married Abraham Miers/Myers in Hardin Co 2 Aug 1805. The 1790 census of SC shows him with 4 children.

6. John Atterberry, born circa 1751 Maryland, died 1806 Chester Co, SC. John's wife was Sarah "Sally" Hill and various records show him to have had eleven children. An estate probate was begun in 1806 but never completed. John's son Jesse would come to KY and marry his cousin Levisa, daughter of Thomas, in Hardin Co in 1814.

7. Edward Atterberry, born circa 1753 Maryland, died 1824 Daviess Co, KY. Edward is first listed on the tithables in 1769 and married twice (Keziah and Mary widow of George Little). Census records show him with six children. By 1810 Edward was in Hardin Co, KY before moving on to Daviess Co. A quiet title suit against the Atteberry heirs was filed 4 Sep 1845 by J. C. Thomas.

8. Thomas Atterberry (See next section)

9. James Atterberry, born circa 1758 Virginia, died circa 1843 in Monroe Co, MO according to his descendants. Married to Dorcas Wilkerson, supposedly of England, but now believed to have been born in Prince George's Co, MD. James had nine children. By 1817 he reportedly migrated to Missouri.

Thomas Atterberry of Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky and Missouri: Thomas makes his first appearance on the Loudoun County, Virginia tithables in 1771, thus it is assumed that he was born circa 1755. He may have been born in Maryland, or after the family made its new home in Loudoun County. He continues to appear on the tithables until 1789 when it is assumed he moved his young family to the Charleston District of Chester County, South Carolina, then a disputed area between North Carolina and South Carolina where he appears on the 1790 census with a wife and two male children under 16 years of age. In 1800, these two males, between 10 and 16 years of age (therefore born c 1784-1790) are joined by three more males under 10 and by 2 (may be a 3) females under 10. He appears on several Chester County court records and juries including being called as a witness in the murder trial in February 1803 of his neighbor Ezekial Self whose wife was found beaten to death. Thomas was with a group of men who had found the body of Elizabeth Self along a trail on property near his farm. Soon after this, Thomas appears on the Hardin County tax list of 1803 as owning 34 acres of land along Bacon Creek. By the 1809 tax list, this land amount has become 385 acres. In 1810, Thomas, his wife and six children, three males and three females, are on the Hardin County census. By 1820, this land has become part of Hart County and Thomas owns two slaves. Thomas makes several appearances in the First Court Order Book of Hart County as being selected to oversee the laying out of roads in the Bacon Creek area. He is acknowledged with others as a security for the bond of George McClain for sheriff, and on 25 Feb 1822 has his mark, "a crop and underbit on each ear" read into the record, the only example of such an entry in the book. Perhaps there was some sort of argument on the ownership of some stock, and Thomas wanted his brand "on the record." He appears on the Hart County census in 1830 for the last time. Sometime during the 1830's he accompanies his daughter Levisa and her husband Jesse Atterbury, son of Thomas' brother John, on the trip west to Missouri. As he and his wife were of an advanced age, one can only wonder at this final westward journey. Thomas' last appearance in records is the 1840 census of Howard County, Missouri where he and his wife appear as under 80 years of age. It is believed that they both died in Howard County and were buried there circa 1840. In 1997, Voncille Winter found the settlement of his estate in Howard County, but I have not yet seen it. As to Thomas' wife, we have only the death record of their youngest son Richard to go by. He lists his mother as Luraney. No maiden name is given. A record by Irene Atteberry Adair, one of Richard's descendants, found in the Hart County Historical Society family files suggests that Luraney's maiden name might be Taylor. I do not know the source of this information. Earlier researchers list Thomas' wife as Bridgett Murry/Murray based on the Illinois book. However, it has been proved that Bridgett Murry/Murray was the widow of Thomas' brother William and his neighbor in Chester County. Furthermore, she is also called as a witness in the Ezekial Self trial in 1803, so she cannot be the mother of any of Thomas' children. The following list of children is based on legal records. Of these eight children, only two are known to have remained in the Hart Co area. Note: some early research also mentions some other children but documents seem to indicate they were not Thomas' children, but his nieces and nephews.

Children of Thomas Atterberry and Luraney:

1. Michael Atterberry, born circa 1787 Chester Co, SC, died circa 1830. He acted as his father's agent in several legal transactions and was in Missouri by 1817.
2. Thomas Atterberry, Jr., born circa 1789 Chester Co, SC, probably died by 1830. No further records.
3. Sarah "Sally" Atterberry, born circa 1790 SC, died after 1880 in Hart County, KY. Sally married Nathan Jaggars in 1808 in Hardin County, KY. Descendants of this family remain in the Hart County, KY area to this day.
4. Eleanor (Ellender or Elenor) Atterberry, born circa 1791 SC, died Apr 1860 Clinton Co, MO. Eleanor was married to her cousin James Atterberry, son of Thomas' brother James on 22 Oct 1811 in Hardin Co, KY. This family migrated to Missouri
5. Edward Atterberry, born circa 1794 Chester County, SC, died circa 1847-1850. Married to Jane, he was in Howard Co, MO by 1823. It is believed he had at least one son.
6. Levisa Atterberry, born circa 1795 Chester Co, SC, died circa 1845 Dallas Co, TX. Levisa married her cousin Jesse, the son of Thomas' brother John in Hardin Co on 12 Mar 1814. She and Jesse migrated to Texas from Missouri with the Peters Colony and the authors of the Atteberry book descend from this union. The author of the Illinois book suggested that Jesse was a son of Thomas; this has been proven false.
7. James W. Atterberry, born circa 1797 SC, died after 1855 Dallas Co, TX. In Howard County, MO by 1823 with his brothers Michael and Edward, he also migrates to Texas with Jesse and Levisa as part of the Peter's Colony. He is supposed to have had six children.
8. Richard J. Atterberry (See next section)

Richard J. Atterberry, Hart County Farmer: The only one of Thomas' sons to remain in Hart County, Richard apparently bought or received as inheritance a portion of Thomas' original 385 acres on Bacon Creek. About 1820, after the census, he married Elizabeth Jane Key(es) there. No record of this marriage exists, but it is supposed as occurring about then as it must have been after Hart County was formed and in enough time for a child to have been born circa 1821 as per later census records. Elizabeth's last name is from family records, but the spelling varies. Her parents are unknown, but a John Key was present at and bought items at the estate sale of Richard Atterberry, uncle to Richard J. This family remained in Hart County. We can figure Richard's birth date from his death record, which besides the census, is the only document mentioning him. Richard died 27 May 1861 of consumption at an age of 62 years, 10 months, 14 days. This puts his birth at 13 Jul 1798 Charleston District, Chester County, SC. His parents are listed as Thomas and Luraney of North Carolina. Richard's occupation was given as farmer on his death record and on the 1830-1860 censuses of Hart Co. It is believed that Elizabeth survived him. They had nine children according to census records. No records have been located as to where Richard and Elizabeth are buried, but it is supposed that they were buried in a family plot on the Atteberry farm, as was the custom of the day.

Children of Richard J. Atterberry and Elizabeth Jane Key(es):

1. Unknown male Atterberry, born circa 1821-1824 as per 1830 and 1840 censuses. May have died as a child. A letter by William Henry Atteberry, one time Hart County clerk and Richard's great grandson, mentions that at least one son died young.
2. Weston K. Atterberry, born circa 1822-1823, d 24 Jun 1889 Butler Co, NE. Weston married Mary E. Sidebottom, possibly a sister of Elizabeth Jane (see below) 12 Aug 1847. They had two daughters, both of whom died without issue before their parents. Weston died intestate and his estate papers list as his heirs, the heirs of his deceased siblings and his wife.
3. Jefferson L. Atterberry (See next section)

4. William Howard Atteberry, born circa 1826 KY, d by 1889. William appears in the 1850 Hart census with a wife, Martha and two sons. This family does not appear in any further census in the area. However, in 1861 William is mentioned in the marriage records of two of his sisters, Elizabeth and Sarah. He gives permission, and the marriages take place at his home. He is mentioned as deceased in the estate papers of Weston K. and the whereabouts of his heirs is unknown. A William H. Arterberry is reported mustered into service in 1862 at Owensboro, KY, and killed in 1863 at Lebanon, KY. It is unknown if this is the same individual.

5. Nancy Jane Atterberry, born 7 Oct 1832 in Hart County, married Jordan Logsdon on 9 Nov 1854. They had at least two children, descendants of whom are still in Hart County in 1900. Jordan was the son of Dennis Logsdon and Louisa/Levisa/Louvica Self. Nancy Jane is listed as deceased by 1889. She had two or three children.

6. Mary S. "Luraney" Atterberry, born circa 1833, d between 1885 and 1889. Luraney married William Robertson, of Hart County on 10 Sep 1857. She is not named as having surviving heirs in the estate papers, but she is mentioned in an 1885 letter from W. P. Atterberry to his brother James Robert. (See below)

7. George Washington Atterberry, born circa 1836. In 1859 George married America Thornton Richardson, daughter of William Richardson and Sarah "Sally" Abbot. They appear on the 1860 Hart Co census, but by 1870, America appears with their five children in her father's household. A descendant of their youngest son George David, Ralph Atterberry Lennen, has sent me copies of some letters George wrote America in 1870. He apparently deserted the family and traveled first to Illinois to visit relatives, and then down the Mississippi River enroute to Galveston, TX. By 1877 America marries second William D. Timberlake. They appear in the 1880 census, but by 1900, America is a widow. Her son George David Atterberry, his wife Marie Fulks, and their son Ralph are buried in the Horse Cave cemetery in Hart County. Besides George David, America had five children; four children still alive in 1900. The estate papers indicate that it is unknown if George W. is living or dead in 1889.

8. Elizabeth A. Atterberry, born circa 1838 married Lewis W. Philpot on 29 Aug 1861. No further records found. She is not mentioned as having surviving heirs in the estate papers.

9. Sarah Melvina Atterberry, born 5 Nov 1841, died 7 Oct 1892 married James J. Dyer, his second wife, on 26 Jun 1861, less than a month after her father's death. She is buried in the Dyer family cemetery in Hart County. She had only one daughter, Nancy who married James S. Thomas. Nancy died in 1881 and is also buried in the Dyer cemetery. Nancy and James had one child, Rosie F. Thomas. James remarried after Nancy's death. Sarah gives an affidavit regarding the Atterberry heirs in the estate papers of Weston K. Atterberry, her brother.

Jefferson L. Atterberry, Hart County Farmer: Much of what we know about Jefferson L. is from the memories of his grandchildren, and the family Bible. From legal records and the census we know that Jefferson was born circa 1824 and that on 26 Feb 1848 he secured a marriage bond in Green County to Elizabeth Sidebottom, daughter of William Sidebottom and his wife Jane True. In 1850, Jefferson and Elizabeth appear in the Hart County census with one child, called James A. by the census taker. Jefferson continues to appear in Hart County as a farmer through the 1880 census. The Hart County Cemetery Index lists them as buried in Old Campground, but lists Elizabeth as the wife of James, born 1818. In April 1995 I located these graves, and the markers clearly state that Elizabeth was the wife of J. L. and that James was born in 1848. After gaining access to the family Bible in 1996, I clarified the above information, and verified the information in my grandfather's 1944 letter to my aunt about his ancestors. According to the Bible, copyright 1859, Jefferson L. was born 18 Nov 1824, married Elizabeth on 2 Mar 1848, and died 29 Mar 1886. Elizabeth was born 24 Dec 1813 and died 17 Aug 1878. Jefferson was some eleven years younger than Elizabeth. My grandfather's letter describes Jefferson as a large, red-haired man who pursued and won the heart of the petite, dark-haired Elizabeth, a schoolteacher from nearby Green County. He was devoted to her, and when she became an invalid, was known to have wrapped her in a quilt and carried her to church. He was at one time the superintendent of the Sunday School at the Old Campground Meeting near Bonnieville. He seems to have inherited a portion of his grandfather Thomas' 385 acres and to have farmed it until his death. In the 1880 census, he is found in the household of his son William P. whose descendants inherit the farm. No records exist which give Jefferson's middle name, but the preponderance of the names Lawrence and Leslie among his descendants suggest that one of these may be a possibility. If one of Jefferson's older brothers was the Weston K. Atterberry who married Elizabeth's sister Mary E., this might explain how Jefferson and Elizabeth met.

Children of Jefferson L. Atterberry and Elizabeth "Jane" Sidebottom:

1. James Robert Atteberry (See next section)

2. William Penn Atteberry, born 20 Dec 1850 in Hart County and died 9 Jan 1912 in Hart County. A schoolteacher when he married Leticia Liza Lively on 12 Mar 1874, he inherited the family farm and was a farmer on the 1880 census. He had three children, among them Lennie Cline Atteberry whose picture is in the 1998 Hart County calendar as custodian of the Bonnieville School. Lennie was also a farmer. The last 65 acres of Thomas' original 385 were sold in 1940 after Lennie's death. Lennie's daughter Irene Adair is a member of the Hart County Historical Society and placed some family records in the files. A Billy Atteberry, schoolteacher, is mentioned in an early edition of the Hart County Quarterly as a teacher at the Bonnieville school.

3. Jefferson H. Atteberry, born 21 Apr 1855, d by 1889. Jefferson H. married Mary Frances Murray on 18 Nov 1875. He may also have inherited some of the farm as he gives his occupation as farmer on the 1880 census. His family is listed twice on this census; perhaps they moved, or were just double-counted. Jefferson's middle name may have been Henry, as one descendant of his daughter Clara suggests. Jefferson H. and Mary had three children, all of whom left the Hart County area. Several Atteberrys located in the directory of Louisville, KY are believed to be among his descendants. Jefferson is listed as deceased in the 1889 estate papers for his uncle Weston K.

James Robert Atteberry, Hart County Farmer: The oldest of Jefferson L.'s and Elizabeth's three sons, James Robert was also a farmer. Both the 1870 and the 1880 census list him as such, yet his heirs do not appear to have inherited any of the family farm. Inexplicably called James A., age 1, in the 1850 census, the Bible gives his birthdate as 17 Dec 1848. The record of his second marriage says he was born in Green County, not Hart County. In 1870, he is listed with his wife Imogene, whom he married in Nov 1869 according to the census. The family Bible does not mention this first marriage, but does contain an entry for M. L. E. Atteberry (probably Millie Louetta) his daughter, and information regarding her marriage to J. Henry Chatten. Millie Atteberry Chatten's death certificate gives her parents as Imogene Caswell and Samuel Atteberry and her birth as occurring in 1873. Other than the obvious error of her father's name, this matches the Bible record. Further, she is mentioned as one of his heirs in the affidavit included in the estate papers of Weston K. Atteberry, her father's uncle. On August 1, 1877, James takes out a license to marry Matilda Jane Reynolds, daughter of Dan'l T. Reynolds and Cassandra McCubbin, a granddaughter of Revolutionary War supporter James P. McCubbin. The Bible gives the date of their marriage as 5 Aug 1877. Matilda and James had six children, the youngest born several months after James' death on 22 Jan 1889. James was buried beside his parents in the Old Campground Cemetery. Matilda took her young family to Munfordville, and worked hard to raise and support them. When she died in 1929, her children put up a large Atteberry marker in the Munfordville Cemetery, and she and several of her descendants are buried around it.

Child of James Robert Atteberry and Imogene Caswell:

1. M. L. E. "Millie Louetta" Atteberry, born 19 Apr 1873, died 6 Jan 1955. Millie was married to J. Henry Chatten and had at least one son, Thomas Gaines Chatten. Henry Chatten was a merchant for over thirty years in Bonnieville, KY. He died in 1941. Gaines served in the U. S. Navy in WWII. As "Etta" she is mentioned in the estate papers of Weston K. Atteberry.

Children of James Robert Atteberry and Matilda Jane Reynolds:

2. Anna Elizabeth Atteberry, born 2 Jun 1878, died 12 Sep 1959. "Annie" was a schoolteacher when she married John Balduff and moved to Upper Sandusky, Ohio. They had one daughter.

3. George Hubbard Atteberry, born 2 Mar 1881, died 28 May 1929. Named for a neighbor, George Hubbard, George married Effie Mears and had one son, William Robert Atteberry who moved to Louisville. George and Effie are buried in Munfordville Cemetery.

4. John Lawrence Atteberry, born 29 Dec 1883, died 7 Sep 1938 in Upton. Lawrence married Ernestine Funk and lived for a while in Hardin County. He was, for thirty years before his death, an employee of the L & N Railroad. He and Ernestine had two children, Tillie Jean, who married Haskell Wells, and James Lawrence Atteberry, who died in WWII when his plane went down over Halmaheira Island in the Phillipines. James' body was never recovered, but a marker was placed in the Munfordville Cemetery beside his father's grave. He was later joined by his mother and sister. James had one daughter born shortly before his death. Tille Jean had two children. This family is buried near the Atteberry family plot.

5. William Henry Atteberry (See next section)

6. James Robert Atteberry, Jr., born 5 Aug 1889, died 18 Nov 1892. Born after his father's death, James Robert died at three years of age from whooping cough. The doctor was summoned, and after he examined the baby sitting in his mother's lap, he turned to pour a spoonful of medicine. When he turned back to administer it, he instead poured it on the floor. James Robert was dead. He is buried near the Atteberry plot in the Munfordville Cemetery. My father was named for him.

William Henry Atteberry, Hart County Clerk and Postmaster: My paternal grandfather was born 3 Sep 1886 in Hart County, a place he spoke of often to us grandchildren gathered around him in his Frankfort, KY home. Henry, as he was known, served as postmaster in Munfordville for eight years, and Hart County clerk for twelve years. During this time, he helped organize the early public water department for Munfordville, according to family records recently found. He witnessed the Jan 1928 burning of the courthouse, and keenly felt the loss of all the county records. During his time as Hart County Clerk, he answered letters from genealogists around the country, especially about the Atteberrys of Hart County. Most of this correspondence was lost in a flood of his home in Frankfort in the 1960's. Among the items saved were the family Bible which contained some letters, a copy of a letter to his daughter Langley, and a leather folder containing the water company information. In Jan 1941 he moved his family to Frankfort, KY where he was to spend the next twenty years in state government. He was at one time the assistant administrator for the state Properties and Building Commission. On 12 Dec 1912 he married Dora Beatrice Brashear of Munfordville, the daughter of Samuel Thomas Brashear and Elizabeth Davis Self. Beatrice, born 16 Mar 1896, was a descendant of Marsham Brashear, Revolutionary War patriot who served with George Rogers Clark and was a founder of the city of Louisville, and of John Self who first appeared on the Hardin County tax lists in 1807. John was a brother of the Ezekial Self who was tried for murder in Chester County, SC. Furthermore, John's son George Washington Green Self married an unidentified Atteberry female of SC. She may have been descended from William the Immigrant ancestor's oldest son, Michael. Marsham Brashear's wife Lucy Phelps was interviewed by Lyman C. Draper, historian, on her memories of the siege of Boonesboro which she had witnessed as a girl, and the famous kidnapping of Jemima Boone and the Calloway girls which preceded the siege. Beatrice, who died 8 Feb 1981 is buried beside Henry, who had died 13 Jul 1971, in the Atteberry plot in the Munfordville Cemetery. They had six children. None of these children currently live in Munfordville, but the two sons, William Henry Atteberry, Jr. and James Samuel Atteberry are members of the Hart County Historical society, as is James' daughter Marguerite Atteberry Emmons, the author of this history. Two of the four daughters, Dora Atteberry and Mildred Atteberry Gardenhire, have died and are buried in the family plot. The remaining two daughters are Jane Atteberry Upchurch and Langley Atteberry Storey.

The Other Atteberry Family of Hart County: In the 1870 census, a second Atteberry family shows up in Hart County. It is supposed that the head of this household, William Atteberry, is the son of the John Atteberry whose family lived in Grayson County. John was a descendant of Thomas Atteberry's brother Charles. William died early, and his wife Nancy remarried. One of their sons was James Logan Atteberry, and several descendants of this family still live in Hart County. The Hart County Cemetery Index lists Nancy, James Logan and wife Delilah as buried in the Weldon Cemetery. I have not seen these markers, but have been in contact with Laura Atteberry Brooks, a member of the Hart Co Historical Society, whose line this is.

Conclusion: The Atteberry families of Hart County were simple folk: farmers, schoolteachers, and public officials. Although few of them would figure in history books, each generation served Hart County in its own way. It is from the common man: the farmer, the tradesman, the teacher, that societies are built.

Sources: (Most, but certainly not all sources) A great deal of what I know of the Atteberry family has come from so many sources, over so many years, that it is hard to trace each fact back to the original document. What follows is a list of major sources which would allow other researchers to follow the paper trail. All documentation is verified by at least two independent sources.

ATTEBERRY FAMILY BIBLE

This bible, now in my possession, contains information on the Jefferson L. Atteberry family of Hart Co, KY. No attempt will be made to correct spelling or dates. At the end of this report, corrections and additional information will be noted. I have endeavoured to present this information exactly as it was when presented to me. I have since entered the information on loose pages onto the bound blank pages of the Bible, and added information regarding additional family member, ie births, marriages, deaths. See NOTES at end of report.

NOTES:

The Bible also contains a number of photographs of family members, letters, a report card, newspaper clippings and a certificate. These will be entered at a later date.

Handwriting: There are four distinct handwriting styles in the above. The earliest entries where the name is spelled Atteberry are probably by Jefferson L. Atteberry. The next set from Jefferson's death in 1886 are by James Robert Atteberry. Three entries regarding the death of Jas. Sr. and the birth and death of Jas. Jr. are by Matilda Jane Reynolds Atteberry. All other information by William Henry Atteberry.

Corrections: Margaret Jane Atteberry should read Marguerite. James S. Atteberry and Joan Timmons Moss married in 1948, not 1947. David Lindsey was born and died in Dec 1957. Matilda Eugene Atteberry should read Matilda Eugenia. James Foster Atteberry should read James Foster Timmons Atteberry.

Additions: M. L. E. Atteberry is probably Millie Louetta E. Atteberry. No one now living in our branch of the family knew who she was. I traced a death certificate of Millie Louetta Chatten of Larue Co, KY which lists her parents as Imogene Caswell and Samuel Atteberry. There was no Samuel Atteberry in Hart Co at that time. Further, the 1870 census shows James R. Atteberry and Imogene as married in Nov 1869 and living in Hart Co, KY. Millie's son Thomas Gaines Chatten's death certificate lists his parents as mentioned in the Bible. It would seem that Imogene and James Robert divorced and she took Millie with her. I found a Millie E. Atteberry in the 1880 Hart census as a stepdaughter of Thomas Skaggs whose wife was Millie A. Skaggs. A Millie A. Caswell was located in the 1860 Hart census. I hope to eventually contact a descendant and straighten out this line.

Jefferson L. may be Jefferson Lawrence. No documentation exists for this, but the prevalence of the Lawrence name makes it a possibility. Jefferson was the third child of nine, and oldest known surviving son of Richard J. Atterbury (sic) and Elizabeth Jane Key(s) of Hart Co, KY. Richard, according to his death record was born in Chester, SC 13 Jul 1798 to Thomas and Luraney Atterbury of North Carolina, and died 27 May 1861. Thomas was actually born in Loudon Co, Va to William Atterbury, an English immigrant, and his wife Sarah Mitchell. William was baptised 21 Jun 1710 at St. Giles Cripplegate, London and deported for the theft of five yards of cloth from Newgate prison on 17 Apr 1733 aboard the Patapscoe Merchant. He probably served his indenture in Maryland. William and Sarah were married by the time her father wrote his will in 1742. Sarah had been previously married to Robert Yackley. For more information on Jefferson's ancestors, see The Descendants of William Atterbury: 1733 English Emigrant by Vonnelle A. Winter and Wilma A. Mitchell. For names and descendants of Jefferson's siblings, see Atteberry Line of Descent.

Jefferson H. may be Jefferson Henry. Again, there are no records, but names in his line suggest this. See the Atteberry Line of Descent for this family.

Wm P. Is William Penn Atteberry. Records by his granddaughter Irene Adair of Louisville fill out this line. See also Atteberry Line of Descent.

James Lawrence Atteberry, son of John Lawrence Atteberry, went missing in action during World War II while on air patrol over Halmahera Island in the Philippines on 13 Aug 1944. His body was never recovered. A bronze plaque was placed in the Munfordville Cemetery as a memorial. This plaque is next to the graves of his parents and sister. Additional information on John Lawrence's descendants also in Atteberry Line of Descent.

William Henry Atteberry died in Frankfort, KY 13 Jul 1971. Beatrice Atteberry died 8 Feb 1981 in Frankfort, Ky. Mildred Atteberry Gardenhire died 12 Feb 1997 in Lexington, KY. All three were buried in Munfordville.

Truman Wade Storey, husband of Langley Atteberry Storey, died 11 Nov 1979. Doris Suddith Atteberry, wife of James S. Atteberry, died 25 Aug 1995 in Lexington, KY and is buried in Frankfort, KY. Her infant son is buried next to her. Dorothy Lou Atteberry, wife of William H. Atteberry, Jr. died 11 Oct 1995 in Indianapolis, IN and is buried next to her parents Harvey Grover Lane and Ada Lou Moss in Pearl Webb cemetery in Hart Co.

Henry Clay Gardenhire, III, son of Mildred Atteberry Gardenhire, had one more son by Patsy VanMeter-- Robert H. Gardenhire, born 21 Oct 1960 in Frankfort. By his second wife Sylvia Hewitt(?) he had two sons: Henry Clay, IV and Christopher Hewitt Gardenhire, both born in Louisiana.

Divorces: Langley Atteberry from Preston McDaniel, Mildred from Henry Clay Gardenhire, Jr., Jane from James L. Upchurch, Jr., James Samuel (Jim) from Joan Timmons Moss, Henry Clay Gardenhire from Patsy VanMeter and Sylvia Hewitt(?)

The next generation: For spouses and children of the listed grandchildren of William Henry Atteberry and Beatrice Brashear, see Atteberry Line of Descent.

For descendant lines of Jefferson L.'s siblings, as well as his sons Jefferson H. and William Penn; as well as the descendants of John Lawrence and George Hubbard, see also Atteberry line of Descent.

General Green's Division of Four Virginia Brigades formed in May 1777:

- 1st Brigade - Gen. Peter Muhlenberg
1st, 5th, 9th, 13th Regiments; 8th Maryland, Gist's Regiment
- 2nd Brigade - Gen. George Weedon
2nd, 6th, 10th, 14th Regiments

3rd, 7th, 11th, 15th Regiments
- 4th Brigade - Gen. Charles Scott
4th, 8th, 12th Regiments; Grayson's Regiment;
Patton's Additional Regiment.

Fourth (Scott's) Virginia Brigade (22 May 1777) History:

12th Regiment authorized 16 Sept 1776; assigned to Main Army 27 Dec 1776. Consolidated with 8th and 4th Regiments 12 May 1779 and redesignated 4th Regiment. 4 Dec. 1779: General Scott's Brigade made up of three regiments for transfer to Southern Division (Charleston): Colonels Richard Parker, Wm. Heth, and Abraham Buford.

Ten Companies of Col. James Wood's 12th Virginia Regiment, fall of 1776: Captains Wagoner, Ashby, M. Bowyer, Arbuckle, McKee, Mitchell, Vause, Langdon, Madison, Thomas Bowyer. Arbuckle and McKee resigned. Wallace promoted to fill one vacancy; Casey promoted and replaced Mitchell Sept. 1, 1777.

From Tyler's Quarterly 3 (1921):

Letter from Robert Gamble, Capt., 8th Va Regiment, to Col. James Wood, 7 Nov. 1782 in attempt to get earlier seniority date for his promotion to Capt.

Chronology of George Washington and his troops, 1777-1779

- Wintered at Morristown 1776-1777 - there on Jan 7 1777
- George Eskridge enlisted Feb. 4, 1777, Col. James Wood's 12th Va. Regt.
- Joseph Wilson enlisted Mar. 6, 1777, Col. William Grayson's Regt. of Foot
- In March - Morristown - only 3000 troops
- Late May - moved from Morristown to Middlebrook
- September 11, 1777 - Battle of Brandywine
- September 16, 1777 - Warren Tavern near White Horse
 - Warwick
- October 4, 1777 - Germantown (Scott's Brigade definitely)
- December 4, 1777 - Whitmarsh
- December 20, 1777 - Valley Forge for winter
- June 19, 1778 - Left Valley Forge, Coryell's Ferry North of Trenton
- June 24, 1778 - Hopewell
- June 25, 1778 - Kingston
- June 28, 1778 - Battle of Monmouth (Scott's Brigade definitely)
 - Englishtown for a few days
 - New Brunswick
 - Paramus, cross Hudson River
 - White Plains
- Winter 1778-1779 - Middlebrook, Elizabeth, Ramapo, West Point (Robinson's Farm), Fishkill, Danbury CT
 - Washington's Headquarters set up at Middlebrook

Robinson's Farm was located just across the river from West Point.

Smith's Cove (Clove) located in mountains at upper end of Ramapo Valley.

Both the 12th Virginia Regiment under Wood and the Special Regiment of Foot under Grayson were a part of Brigadier General Charles Scott's Fourth Virginia Brigade.

Grayson's Regiment of Foot was absorbed into Col. Nathaniel Gist's Ranger Corps on Jan 1, 1779.

Benedict Arnold's defect occurred Sept. 21, 1778, on the West Shore of Hudson River just below Haverstraw, Teller's Point. Returned to his headquarters at the Robinson Farmhouse opposite West Point.

In late 1779, troops were reorganized, and many from former 4th, 8th, and 12th Virginia Regiments were assigned to Scott's Brigade, consisting of three Regiments commanded by Colonels Richard Parker, William Heth, and Abraham Buford, which set out for South Carolina in December 1779. Colonel James Wood also had a command for the Southern Campaign, but I have not found out just how it fit in. It could be that the information I obtained listed the "special" Regiments only, and there were others including the 8th in the Brigade. A Brigade of only three Regiments would have been unusually small, as a Brigade usually consisted of four or five Regiments. The 8th Regiment was captured by British at Charleston on May 12, 1780. Must have been released, as Parker's Brigade participated, with North Carolina Third Regiment, in Battle of Cowpens on Jan. 16, 1781, and Battle of Guilford Court House on Mar. 15, 1781.

Geo. Henry Eskridge the [hole in paper] was born 14th day May 1810

Elija Robinson Eskridge t [hole in paper] n of George Eskridge & Elizabeth his Wife was born 19th of Sept. AD 1813.

Notes on the above record:

The first two children listed were the children of George by his first wife, Frances Kenner Eskridge. The rest were the children of George and his second wife, Elizabeth Robinson Eskridge.

Note that two of the children were given the same second name "Robinson" after their mother's family. The Marriage Bond for the marriage of George Eskridge to Elizabeth Robinson is between George Eskridge and Nathaniel Robertson [Robinson - both spellings are on the same document!], so it is believed Nathaniel Robinson was Elizabeth's father. Two of the children were also given the name "Henry" - one as a first name, and the other as a second name. Both lived to adulthood, so this seems quite strange!

Note the name "Joseph Wilson Eskridge", who was born in 1802. This is almost surely before George left Virginia, and certainly indicates that George not only knew Joseph Wilson, he thought enough of him to name one of his sons after him. It is suspected that George and Joseph may have known each other in the Revolutionary War.

Additional information on children of George Eskridge:

William Kenner Eskridge married Henrietta Marie --. In 1850, they were living in Hamilton County, KY. William Kenner Eskridge received his father's Revolutionary War Land Grant in Ohio, and sold it to a man named Amos Johnson of Loudoun County, VA in 1811. A document dated June 2, 1809, in Fauquier County, VA, states "George Eskridge of Fauquier Co, Virginia, appoints his son Wm. K. Eskridge his attorney.

Molley (Mary) Eskridge married Enoch Foley June 15, 1801, in Fauquier County, VA.

Nancy Nash Eskridge married Travis Herndon in Fauquier County, VA, on May 30, 1808. George Eskridge signed the marriage bond, indicating he was still in Virginia at that time. Nancy later married Elias K. Porter in 1820, probably in Kentucky. She died Nov. 11, 1853, in Grayson County, KY.

Fanny Eskridge married William Fentress.

Nathanial Robinson Eskridge married a first a Meeks, and second a Curd.

Eliza Eskridge married Samuel Wilson on Dec. 8, 1814 at the age of 14, in Grayson County, KY. She died in Wayne County, IL, sometime in 1879. They moved to Wayne County, IL, sometime in the 1830's. Eliza returned to Onio County KY after the death of Samuel in 1843, but went back to Illinois at the outset of the Civil War so that should she die before the war ended, she could be buried next to Samuel.

Joseph Wilson Eskridge married Frances Robinson. He died in 1846. It is likely that Frances Robinson was a cousin, daughter of Elizabeth Robinson Eskridge's brother.

John Eskridge married Sabrina Swader. He died in Grayson Co., KY, Apr. 12, 1857.

Henry Eskridge married his older brother Josepn's widow, Frances Robinson, after Josepn's death in 1846. He was living in Breckinridge County, KY, in 1850.

George Henry Eskridge married Eliza J. Chambliss. They were in Breckinridge Co., KY, in 1850.

Elijah Robinson Eskridge married first Elizabeth M., Taylor, and second, Virginia F. St. Claire. He became a prominent Judge in Hardinsburg, Breckinridge Co., KY.

From KENTUCKY FAMILY RECORDS, VOL. IV (1972-1973)

William Robinson and Mary Pinkstone married Feb. 13, 1798 in Fauquier Co., VA. Mary, the daughter of Henry & Mary Ann (Carroll) Pinkstone.

Children:

Frances Robinson - born 1802 - m. 1st Joseph Eskridge, 2nd Henry Eskridge

Kitty Robinson - born 10-31-1806 died 3-22-1850 - m. Henderson Mason

Elijan Nash Robinson - born 6-19-1809 died 11-10-1871 - m. Letitia Davison

Elizabeth Robinson - born 3-4-1811 died 10-22-1883 - m. William Davison

William H. Robinson - born 1812 - went to Illinois

Mary Ann Robinson - born 7-4-1815 died 4-15-1900 - m. 1st John Brockman, 2nd 12-6-18451 Benj. Fowler, 3rd William Whittinghill.

Note the similarities of some of these names to those in the George Eskridge family, particularly note the Elijah Nash Robinson. There must have been a Nash ancestor in this line - quite likely the mother of both Elizabeth Robinson Eskridge and this William Robinson! Note also that Mary Ann Robinson's third husband was a William Whittinghill. Is this the same William Whittinghill who married two different daughters of Samuel Wilson and Eliza Eskridge?

From TWO CENTURIES IN ELIZABETHTOWN AND HARDIN COUNTY, KENTUCKY 1776-1976 McClure, Daniel E., Jr., (1979), Hardin County Historical Society, Inc., Elizabethtown, KY.

THE BOND FAMILY - . . . Thomas M. Bond, born in Grayson County August 22, 1843, died Feb. 22, 1927 at Louisville; on March 14, 1873 married Amanda Wilson, born July 23, 1853 in Grayson County, died October 1, 1944 in Elizabethtown.

The ancestral background of Amanda Wilson is of interest, tracing back to one George Eskridge, a Revolutionary War soldier, born July 24, 1763 in Loudoun County, Virginia, died August 18, 1827 in Grayson County, Kentucky. He married February 17, 1792 Elizabeth Robinson, born July 20, 1771 in Prince William County, Virginia, died July 21, 1844 at Hardinsburg, Kentucky. A daughter, Nancy Nash Eskridge, born December 15, 1792 in Prince William County, Virginia, died sometime before 1850 in Grayson County. Their daughter, Harriet K. Porter, born August 17, 1823 in Grayson County, died February 2, 1873, on January 10, 1846 married Felix Grundy Wilson, a Grayson County native. He was born July 16, 1813, died March 18, 1879.

In GRAYSON COUNTY section:

HARDIN WILSON is numbered among the active business men of Grayson County. His paternal ancestors were of Scotch-Irish descent and among the early settlers of Virginia, where his grandfather, George Wilson, was born. George Wilson left his native State many years ago; came to Kentucky and settled in the northern part of Grayson County near Rough Creek, where he engaged in farming and teaching. He was a man of fine attainments and for a number of years was one of the most successful instructors in the county. His death occurred in 1855. Felix Wilson, subject's father, was born in Grayson County about 1814 and resided in the county all his life, following farming, in which he was very successful. He died in 1879, aged sixty-five years. Harriet (Porter) Wilson, his wife, was a daughter of Elias Porter [and Nancy Nasn Eskridge], one of the early residents of Grayson. She was born in 1824, and departed this life about 1876. Felix and Harriet Wilson were the parents of the following children: Hardin, Cicero, Amanda C., Artie, Sudie, and W. J. (deceased). Hardin Wilson was born March 25, 1848, in Grayson County, and he lived with his parents until his twentieth year. He obtained a fair education in the common schools of the county, and at the age of eighteen began teaching, which profession he followed for six years in the counties of Grayson, Breckinridge, and Ohio. In 1871 he formed a partnership with his brother, W. J. Wilson, in the mercantile business at Caneyville, under the firm name of Wilson & Bro., which continued for two years, at the end of which time he became of member of the business firm of Porter, Eskridge & Co., General Merchandise, which firm continued for two years. In 1875 he and his brother, J. W. Wilson, again effected a co-partnership in the good business, which they carried on extensively for about seven years, in the meantime building up one of the largest and most successful goods houses in the county. His brother died at the end of seven years; Mr. Wilson succeeded him, and at once took full control of the business which he conducted singly until March 1882, at which time he disposed of his interest and retired for two years. In March 1885, he again engaged in business and the same year effected a co-partnership with C. A. Young and --- Bratcher, which still continues. Mr. Wilson is in every respect a self-made man. He began life with little or no capital, but by untiring energy and diligent attention to business soon succeeded in establishing a house second to none in the county. His stock at Caneyville represents a capital of $12,000, besides which he has branch stores at Fordsville, Ohio County, Philpot's Station and Owensboro, Daviess County, his entire investment aggregating about $30,000. Mr. Wilson married, November 1, 1874, Miss Laura Wilson, daughter of F. M. and Mary Wilson of Ohio County. To this union have been born four children, viz.: Olin, Edna, Bertha, and Wayne. Mr. Wilson is a member of Caneyville Baptist Church, as is also his wife, and in politics acts with the Democratic party.

THOMAS BENTON WILSON, county superintendent of schools, was born in Grayson County, October 22, 1854. He is the thirteenth of fourteen children born to Christophor C. and Ursula (Wilkerson) Wilson. Christophor C. Wilson was born in Grayson County in 1811, was reared on the homestead farm, and educated at the subscription schools of his neighborhood. When quite young he married, and settled on a farm in Ohio County, and after his father's death returned to Grayson County and settled on the old homestead, where he remained several years, and then moved to a farm on Caney Creek, where he at present resides, a successful farmer. His wife was born in Breckinridge County in 1813. Thomas Benton Wilson was reared on the homestead farm on Caney Creek, and received a good education in the schools of his neighborhood. At the age of twenty he entered the Cloverport Academy in Breckinridge County, where he remained about eight months. In the fall of 1875 he was engaged as teacher of the schools of Spring Lick, and taught two terms. In the spring of the following year he attended school at Hartford, Ohio County, and during the ensuing five years taught and attended school, but afterward devoted his time entirely to teaching. Prominent among the places he taught at are Hodgenville, New Haven, Vine Grove, one term in Texas, and one as assistant teacher of the Leitchfield schools. In August 1884, he was elected county superintendent of schools for Grayson County, and is the present incumbent. By his energy and ability he has greatly improved the condition of the schools throughout the county. For several years Mr. Wilson had also been engaged in the study of law, and in February, 1884, was admitted to the bar, and has since coupled the practice of his profession with his duties as county superintendent.

ELLIS KELLY is a native of Breckinridge County, KY., a son of William S. Kelly and Caroline Kelly, his first wife. . . . Mrs. Caroline Kelly, wife of Mr. William S. Kelly, was the daughter of Mr. George Wilson, a native of Virginia, and a lineal descendant of James Wilson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, of Scotch descent. George Wilson came to Kentucky from Stafford County, Va., with his father, William Wilson, in the year 1785, being then but about three years of age. He was born December 30, 1782. The family originally settled in Scott County, Ky., where they remained a few years; they then moved to or near the Falls of Rough, prior to the organization of Grayson County, but now Grayson County, where William Wilson died on April 4, 1821, at the age of seventy-three years, leaving his wife and eight living children: James, William, Hannah, John, Thomas, George, Charles, Elizabeth, Mary, Joseph and Benjamin (twins). Three of these children are dead. George Wilson, after growing to manhood, married Miss Eleanor Collins Crask, daughter of Vincent Crask, of Breckinridge County, Ky., who was born April 4, 1786 [1786], and died November 6, 1805. Eleanor C. Crask was born September 30, 1786, and was married to George Wilson September 1, 1805, by William Anderson, a Baptist preacher near Caneyville, having born to them six sons and two daughters: Caroline, Franklin, Felix Grundy, Eliza, Joseph, Benjamin, Vincent, and William. They lived and reared their family near the Falls of Rough, except Joseph and Benjamin, who died in infancy; there Mrs. Wilson died on July 9, 1849. Mr. George Wilson was a farmer, though he spent much of his time in teaching school. After the death of his wife he spent his time with his children until his death, which occurred about 1855. . . .

She died here in 1879. She was the mother of eighteen children, of whom eight are now living. Her parents were George and Elizabeth (Robison) Esqueridge. He is in the acquisition of property a self-made man in every respect. Mr. Wilson was married three times. His first wife, Nancy J. SAMUEL J. R. WILSON. Few men in Wayne County have been more prominent for many years than Judge Wilson, the son of Thomas M., an old pioneer, and Rachel (Fulkerson) Wilson; he was born in Ohio County, Kentucky [NOTE: Hardin County KY was established in 1792; Ohio County was formed from Hardin County in 1798; and finally, after 1800, Grayson County was formed from parts of Ohio and Hardin Counties.], September 15, 1816; removed with his parents to Wayne County, Illinois, in 1822, and was married to Elvira, daughter of Enoch and Martha (Magaliard) Beach, October 29, 1839, to whom was born Mary J. He came to Illinois a very young man, and had none of the politicians' tricks about him, and yet at the age of twenty-four years he was elected Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and lacked only a few votes of beating Gov. Reynolds for the office of Chief Justice, and in 1825 he was elected over Reynolds to that office by an overwhelming majority. He continued to be Chief Justice of the Supreme Court until he was legislated out of office, in 1848, by the Constitution of that date."

COMMENT: I Think that Alfred, Thomas, and George Wilson, very early in Wayne County, were very likely related in some way to Joseph and Samuel Wilson. It is not unlikely that it was their presence in the Illinois County that attracted "our" Wilsons to the area. Alfred, Thomas, and George, from all accounts, came from the same area of Kentucky as Joseph and Samuel. (Rough River is a tributary of Green River, and the area around Ohio and Grayson Counties is also known as Green River area).

Stephen Wilson of the County of Loudoun, Virginia, son of Samuel Wilson and Sarah, his wife, and Martha Scott of the County and State aforesaid, daughter of Jacob Scott, deceased, and Elizabeth, his wife, married the 13th Day of the 5th Month 1789 at Fairfax.

SOME GENERAL COMMENTS AND OBSERVATIONS ON WILSON FAMILY

Since Joseph Wilson was a preacher and teacher, I thought this fact might be a clue, and that he may have left "tracks" as the minister who performed marriages in Virginia (his name appears on many, many marriage records in the Grayson - Ohio County, Ky, area). But so far I have not been rewarded for my searches. Did run across something that said he (Joseph) may have come from Stafford County, Virginia, where previously I had thought he must be from one of the counties George Eskridge lived in - Westmoreland, Prince William, or Fauquier, and perhaps Loudoun. These are all in the same general area, and Stafford is not far away. The first George Eskridge had lots of land in old Stafford County, which later divided to become some of the other counties mentioned above, so it is quite possible "our" George also lived in Stafford County at some time. Can't really explain why I want so badly to find out more about these lines, unless it possibly has to do with the fact that it would be nice to close the gap to those who were so close to the Fathers of our country. Incidentally, an 1880's biography of one of the Grayson County Wilsons says he was a lineal descendant of the James Wilson who signed the Declaration of Independence. This same person's father, though, was "an early settler of Virginia - of Scotch-Irish descent". James Wilson was a delegate from Pennsylvania and not Virginia. But how about the tradition that Grandma was descended from Betsy Ross who had a daughter who married a Wilson? James Wilson was born in Scotland in 1742. William Wilson (the early settler of Virginia) was supposedly born in 1748, and Joseph Wilson was said to have been born in 1737. Could they perhaps have been brothers? William left eight living children when he died in 1821, and all the Wilsons I have found in Kentucky had large families. Yet the only child of Joseph I know about so far for sure is Samuel! Also, the following names show up in nearly every Wilson family: George, Samuel, Joseph, John, Thomas, Hannah, Elizabeth. These were quite common names, yet it seems odd they show up so frequently. There apparently were three early settler Wilsons in the Grayson County area: Joseph, William, and Jonathan. All were over 45 in 1810. In 1820, there is Joseph Willson Jr. and Joseph Willson Sr., indicating one of Joseph's children was probably named Joseph, Jr. They all lived in the same general area in Grayson and neighboring Ohio counties. Grayson was formed from Ohio County after 1800. Incidentally, I also found another Newton Willson in 1860, Grayson County: age 1 month, son of J. E. M. and Susan Willson (25 and 22, respectively).

THE JOY OF LIFE

Today, Sept. 6, 1943 - Our 58th Wedding Anniversary

Better a word that is kindly spoken
Even "one little word"
Better than wealth untold.
Never forget that a heart near broken
Sighs for affection, not gold.

Find out the ones who are travel-weary
Ones who have failed in the earthly strife.
Reach them a hand, when the road is dreary,
"Then you will find there is joy in life".
--Cordelia Mitchell

Information from Ada Mitchell Burford, obtained August 11 and 18, 1980, by Dorothy Mitchell Couch.

The Wilsons migrated to Missouri sometime before 1885.

Grandmother's parents, Newton and Melissa Wilson, are buried at Two-Mile Cemetery west of Thayer.

Melissa's maiden name was Haines or Haynes. She had been married before she married Newton, to a Boyce. He drowned in the Mississippi, Ada thought. Melissa had one son, Paul Boyce, by her first husband. He came to Springfield, Mo., to a Masonic Convention and disappeared from the face of the earth. When they tore an old building down (the last place he was ever seen alive), they found a skeleton and surmised it was his and that he was murdered and buried there. Paul Boyce had one daughter, Pauline, and six sons: John, Sherman, Perry, Clarence, Albert, and Jim.

The names of Newton's children by his first wife, Eliza George, as best Ada could remember: John, Ed, Olive, and Emaline. She was pretty sure Emaline married a Files.

Ada has no idea why Silas Wilson received a write-up in the 1882 HISTORY OF WAYNE COUNTY, ILLINOIS while Newton is never mentioned.

Mamie Mason is Grandmother's neice, daughter of Elmira Wilson Smith. Elmira married Amos Smith. She died fairly young, and is buried at Shiloh Cemetery near Grand Gulf in Oregon County, Mo.

Mamie and her half-sister took Tommy's (Thomas James Wilson) children and raised them in Paducah, Kentucky. As best she can remember, their names were:

Melba (Mae?)
Helen Edward Thomas
Anna Marie
Lewis
Betty (June?)

Tommy's wife, Lillie, was an orphan and part Indian. She thought the people who raised her lived in West Plains. Lillie died when the youngest child was born. She is buried at the Two-mile Cemetery.

Uncle Ira Wilson lived in Oregon County. His wife was Nora Cunningham from Alton. Their first two children were born in Thayer, then they went to Colorado. He worked in the mines out there for years. Then they moved to Springfield - or out North of Springfield - and made rugs and rug-making machines and sold them. They sold out up there land built out close to Republic and made rugs, bows and arrows, and other things to sell. The family used to have a radio program on station KWTO. The boys were Hubert, Howard, Norman Jack, and Bob; and the girl was Olive.

INFORMATION ABOUT THOMAS J. WILSON'S FAMILY From Dorothy Couch, November 1987

Maureen Stillwagon called Dorothy Couch concerning her former daughter-in-law, Betty Wilson. Betty married, and later divorced, Maureen Stillwagon's son. She took back her maiden name of Wilson after the divorce. Betty was put out for adoption in Kansas City. She was the illegitimate daughter of Helen Wilson - later Helen St. Claire. (Aunt Ada Burford mentioned that Helen had a first husband). Maureen said Betty took her maiden name back because her ex husband wouldn't pay child support. Betty wanted to contact her natural mother, Helen. Dorothy Couch had given Maureen the name of Lewis Wilson, Helen's younger brother, who was living in Paducah, KY, the last she knew. Maureen called back and said Helen was still living in Waynesville, MO, and that her name was now St. Claire. Helen is now 71. Betty was born in 1937. Melba, Thomas, and Edward - other children of Thomas J. and Lillian "Lilly" Wilson - are all dead now. Thought that Betty June was living in Tennessee.

The Eighty-seventh Infantry was organized at Shawneetown, Ill., Aug. 16, 1862, and was mustered into the service of the United States at the same place Sept. 22, 1862. While stationed at Shawneetown the Eighty-seventh made a number of scouts into Kentucky, which State was then infested by guerrilla bands and Adam Johnson's rebel cavalry. Feb. 2, 1863, the regiment moved to Memphis, Tenn., arriving on the 4th, and went into camp three miles southeast of the city, where the regiment performed picket duty. April 22 it moved out with an expedition to Hernando, Miss., returning the 24th. While stationed at Memphis the regiment was engaged in several scouts. May 10 it embarked on board transports for Vicksburg, Miss., and it reached Young's Point on the 11th. On the 21st it crossed the river to Warrenton, Miss., arriving in the rear of Vicksburg on the morning of the 22d, occupying (that day and the next) a position on the left of our line.

On the 24th part of the regiment was ordered back to Warrenton, which post was guarded by them until the 24th of June, when the regiment was assigned to the Third Brigade, Fourth Division, Thirteenth Army Corps. It remained in the rear of Vicksburg until after its surrender. July 5 it moved toward Jackson, Miss., and was engaged in the siege and operations around that city until its surrender, and it returned to Vicksburg July 25, 1863. Aug. 10 it embarked on transports and proceeded to Natchez, Miss., arriving on the 12th, and went into camp below the city. Aug. 13 it marched toward the Big Black River and camped near Kingston. It then returned to Natchez and embarked on transports for New Orleans, and debarked at Carrollton, La. The regiment here remained in camp until the 13th of September, during which time the regiment, together with the whole army stationed at that place, was reviewed by General Grant.

Sept. 13 it crossed the river to Algiers and moved by rail westward to Brashear City, on Berwick Bay, where it remained until the 28th, when it crossed Berwick Bay and moved to Opelousas, arriving Oct. 23. It then countermarched and returned to New Iberia, La., Nov. 1, where it halted, having been detached from the brigade. It was then mounted by order of General Banks and placed under the command of General A. S. Lee, commanding the cavalry of the Department of the Gulf. On the 8th it marched to Vermillion Bayou, and was here assigned for duty in the Third Cavalry Brigade, Department of the Gulf. On the 16th it returned to New Iberia, where the regiment remained until Jan. 2, 1864, when it fell back to Franklin, La. It went into winter quarters and remained until March 13, 1864. It then took part in the Red River expedition under General Banks. April 7, 1864, it was engaged in the battle of Wilson's Plantation. April 8, 1864, it was engaged in the battle of Mansfield, or Sabine Cross Roads. It returned to Grand Ecore, La., on the 10th. During the remainder of the campaign the regiment took part in the battle of Cane River, Chaneyville, Alexandria, Marksville, Yellow Bayou, and the blockade of Red River, and many minor engagements with the enemy. It arrived at Simmsport on the 16th of May. May 20 it crossed the Atchafalaya River and march to the Mississippi, arriving the next day, where the regiment remained during the summer, performing picket and scouting duty, capturing many prisoners and being almost daily engaged with the enemy. Sept. 3, 1864, part of the regiment embarked on transports for the mouth of White River, Ark., the remaining part being left for want of transportation. On the 16th thirty-three of them remaining at Morganzia were killed, wounded, or missing while on a scout near Williamsport, La., after a gallant resistance to a largely superior force of the enemy. Nov. 7 the remainder joined the regiment.

Jan. 4, 1865, the regiment embarked for Helena, Ark., and on the 7th went into camp, where it remained scouting up and down the river until Feb. 7, 1865, when, with three days' rations, it started on a march of 300 miles toward Jacksonport, Ark., thence north and east to Madison, on the St. Francis River, thence down that river and Mississippi to Helena, Ark. It remained on duty at Helena until the 16th of June, when it was mustered out of the service by Captain Newcomb. On the 21st it embarked on trasports. It arrived at Cairo, June 23, thence proceeded by rail to Springfield, Ill., arriving on the 24th, and was finally paid off and discharged July 3, 1865.

EIGHTEENTH ILLINOIS INFANTRY

After December 1863, the regiment was stationed in various parts of Arkansas, commanded by Major General F. Steele, most of the time at Pine Bluf, Duvall's Bluff and Little Rock, at which latter place it was mustered out December 16, 1865. It arrived at Camp Butler for final payment and discharge December 31, 1865.

FIFTY-SIXTH ILLINOIS INFANTRY

There is no information on John Wilson who served in Company H, 56th Illinois Infantry. No regimental history is given - only a list of soldiers, and John is not on that list. Only Wilson listed is James J. Wilson.

Ms. Shirley J. Hannaford
Rt. 2 Box 326
Wolcottville, IN 46795

Dear Ms. Hannaford:

I want to thank you for taking the time to respond to my query in the Helper concerning Samuel Wilson, and for the information you sent.

I already have most of the information you sent, and have extracted a great deal of information from the Wayne County publications you mentioned, History of White County, and Kentucky Genealogy and Biography. Clayton Library here in Houston also has the "Two Centuries in Elizabethtown and Hardin County, Kentucky" by McClure, and I had copied the same article you sent about the Bond family, since it contained information about Wilsons and Eskridges. But I do appreciate your taking the time and effort to assemble this information for me.

I will try to pass on to you whatever I can on the Wilson family. As a starter, I am enclosing some Family Group Sheets, my pedigree chart, and a summary of some of my information and speculation that I prepared last year.

You state in your letter that you have information that Joseph and Sarah M. Wilson who are buried in Tyler Cemetery in Wayne County IL were the parents of Samuel. Those I have corresponded with before have rejected this, and I will try to give the reasons. According to family tradition, Joseph, the father of Samuel, was a preacher and teacher, and a Revolutionary War veteran. It is known that a Joseph Wilson did perform some weddings in the Hardin/Grayson/Ohio County area of Kentucky, and it is believed it is Samuel's father. Joseph also is supposed to have died in 1833 in Wayne County, Illinois, at the ripe old age of 96, and lived with or very near his son Samuel. If he was born about 1737 it would mean he was about 60 when Samuel was born - but it was not at all unusual back then for a man to outlive several wives and continue fathering children into old age. As of a very few years ago, Samuel Wilson's old homestead in the southern part of Wayne County (very near White County) was still standing. It is believed Joseph was buried somewhere near there. Stone for the fireplace was hauled up from Grayson County! Exerpts of a letter written by a Christa Files, granddaughter of Newton Wilson through Emaline Wilson Files (wife of Chesterfield Files) to Nina Files McIntosh, a descendant of Newton's brother, Silas Wilson, through Charles Secratus Wilson, son of Anna Belle Wilson Files (wife of Henry Lorten Files). She states that "My great-great-great grandfather was in the French and Indian War (Wilson). Joseph Wilson, my great-great grandfather, was in the Revolutionary War 7 yrs. and on Washington's staff. George Eskridge, my great-great grandfather, was in the Revolutionary War 7 yrs. and on Washington's staff (I have heard they saw Cornwallis surrender). My great-great grandmother Wilson when eleven years old volunteered to carry a dispatch to Braddock that was thought to be impossible to send on account of the enemy. They put a sack of corn on a horse, put her on and she delivered the message and returned in safety. My great-great grandfather (Joseph Wilson) taught school for 40 yrs. -- built his own school houses and feed stables -- scholars came from far away. He also preached 75 years or more. Died in Ill. in 1833, aged 96 years. The Wilsons and Eskridges lived in Virginia and Ky. until Grandfather Newton Wilson came with his parents to Wayne Co. Ill. early in the 1830's." Some of this same basic information has come from other sources, one of which states that the basis is a family bible. A cousin who lives in Illinois has tried to locate that old bible, but to no avail. It was mentioned in a letter written in 1929, so the people directly mentioned in the letter were long gone by the time he made his search. One problem with Christa Files' story about the girl delivering a message through enemy lines: General Braddock would place the time as the French and Indian Wars, not the Revolutionary War.

I have a letter from my grandmother Cordelia Wilson Mitchell written to me while in the Army in 1951. She retold in that letter some of the old stories she had told us when we lived with her in the late 30's/early 40's. I will quote some of that letter for you: "My Dear Grandson Roscoe Jr., No doubt you will be surprised to get a letter from me but I have been thinking about you and wondering how you are liking Army life. Do hope you are well and being well treated. ... It seems that your kin on my side have so many of them been soldiers. Your Daddy fought in World War I and my Father Newton Wilson your great-grandfather served four years in the Union Army. And my great grandfather Captain Eskridge was with Washington in the Revolutionary War. He was with Washington when they crossed the Delaware on Christmas night and took those Hessians prisoners. The enemy thought they were safe as the water was full of ice floes. But Washington and his men took a chance. While the enemy was drinking, dancing and celebrating having a hilarious time Washington and his men surprised them and marched in on them and took them prisoners. And my great grandmother carried a message to Washington, a Very Very important message. None of the men volunteered to take the message. They placed her on horse back with a sack of corn under pretext of going to mill. Of course the women had to do the men's work while they were fighting. So this little girl carried the message through the enemy lines, and Washington's men won a victory by having gotten this message. And after the war was over, she became the wife of my great grandfather Captain Eskridge who was with General Washington all through the Revolutionary War. I suppose you wonder why I remember about this but my Father's mother was Eliza Eskridge before her marriage to my grandfather Samuel Wilson, and after my grandfather died she made her home with us. She would tell us about her folks in Virginia who were neighbors to the Washingtons. ..." She also told of her folks going to the same mill as Abraham Lincoln in Kentucky - which might be true, as Lincoln's birthplace was not too far from the "Falls of Rough" area where the Wilsons and Eskridges resided.

I know there are several errors in the above stories. For instance, Newton served only 2 years in the Army, not the 4 she claims. And George Eskridge was known to have been a Sergeant from his widow's pension papers and the Revolutionary War records - and may have also been a Lieutenant although this has never been confirmed. But he was probably never a Captain - at least no such claim was made in the claim for a widow's pension. And here is that same story as told by Christa Files, only now it is George Eskridge's future bride, Elizabeth Robinson, instead of a Wilson! This story may have been possible, as Elizabeth Robinson Eskridge was born in July 1771, and therefore would have been a young girl in the late 70's, early 80's. That the Eskridges in Virginia were neighbors of the Washingtons is well documented. In fact, the biographies of George Washington speculate that he was named for the former guardian of his mother, Mary Ball - Captain George Eskridge - a prominent lawyer and large landholder in early Colonial Virginia and possibly a grandfather of "Kentucky George". The Eskridge home was only a short distance from Washington's home. (The parentage of "Kentucky George" has never been conclusively proved, as all of the original George's sons seem to have named one of their sons "George"! It has also been speculated that "Kentucky George" may have been a great-grandson instead of a grandson. He was born in either Westmoreland County or in Loudoun County. A document in the Widow's Pension file indicates he at least lived in Westmoreland County at one time. Westmoreland Co. is the home of both George Washington and the original George Eskridge, and their old homes were only a short distance apart. The lineage that seems to be most probable is: George m Rebecca Bonum / William m Abigail -- / George m Hannah Damonville / "Kentucky George" m (1) Frances Kenner (2) Elizabeth Robinson).

I received another version of the "Washington Crossing the Delaware" story verbally from a Mr. George Morgan, a grandson of my grandmother's brother, Joseph. He claims he had always heard that it was Joseph Wilson who crossed the Delaware with Washington - in fact, that Joseph was Captain of one of the boats! I found a list of all known participants of this famous event, and neither a Joseph Wilson or an Eskridge was on that list. Also, the crossing occurred before the Service Records for George Eskridge begin, and there is no evidence whatsoever that he had served before the time of the records! George Morgan also recited a "sack of grain" story very similar to the ones quoted before, but his version was that a young girl named Betty Zane (whose family provided the name for Zanesville, Ohio, and who also provided the pen-name for Zane Gray) managed to escape from a surrounded fort in Pennsylvania and smuggled some black powder back in her grain bag, which allowed the trapped Americans to resume fighting and to escape. This "Betty Zane" was an ancestor on the Morgan side rather than the Wilson side, though. Seems the old oral traditions got changed as they were passed down!

Another argument against the Joseph and Sarah buried in Tyler Cemetery being the parents of Samuel is the fact that a son of George Eskridge (father of Eliza Eskridge) was named "Joseph Wilson Eskridge". This son was born in Virginia on 2 Feb 1802. The Wilsons seemed to have migrated to Kentucky quite a while before that (probably shortly after the Revolution). The George Eskridge family must have migrated to Kentucky about 1811 - at least a document dated 26 Jun 1809 in Fauquier County, VA, shows George Eskridge, Grantor, to William K. Eskridge, Grantee, "both of this County", in which George assigns to his son Power of Attorney. This Power of Attorney was used in 1815 when William K. Eskridge sold land in Highland County, OH - 200 acres of Military Land granted to George Eskridge for Revolutionary War service. George's will states that his son, William Kenner Eskridge, had already received his inheritance in the form of 200 acres of land "lying in the State of Ohio". An affidavit in George Eskridge's wife, Elizabeth's, pension file by George Matthews says "That he [George Matthews] is now seventy-two years and nine months of age. That he was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, and lived there until about the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-four (1794), when his father removed to the State of Kentucky, and he came out with him; he being at that time in his fourteenth year. That until a short time previous to his removal from Westmoreland county, George Eskridge, deceased, late of the county of Grayson and State of Kentucky, was a resident of the aforesaid county of Westmoreland, Virginia. ... He further declares that the said George Eskridge, deceased, removed from Westmoreland County, Virginia, to Fauquair /sic/ county, and subsequently married Elizabeth Robinson, and removed to the State of Kentucky about the year one thousand eight hundred and eleven (1811) and settled in Grayson county, a neighbor to him [George Matthews]." (11 Apr 1853).

From all evidence, George Eskridge must have known Joseph Wilson prior to the time the Wilsons migrated to Kentucky. It could have been that the Joseph Wilson for whom he named his son was a father to Joseph Wilson, father of Samuel - but those with whom I have corresponded believe that it was the father of Samuel, and that there was some close connection between George Eskridge and Joseph Wilson in Virginia. It has been theorized that the closeness may have developed during the Revolutionary War. It is interesting to me that a Joseph Wilson also received military land very near George Eskridge in Ohio, but it also appears he never used that land and it was sold off in pieces for taxes. I have a Revolutionary War file for both George Eskridge and for a Joseph Wilson that are remarkably parallel, although the two individuals served in different units. A summary of this is in the material I am enclosing. They seemed to have been at the same places at the same time throughout most of their service, and at the same place as George Washington much of the time, giving credance to the stories that they served with George Washington. I would imagine those stores got embellished as time went by, too. Both were at Valley Forge, and a few years ago I visited this national shrine and was a little surprised to find that the location of George Eskridge's 12th Virginia Regiment and Joseph Wilson's Grayson's Regiment of Foot were located very close together, and the area occupied by each was not very large. Having served in the Army in a much larger place than that, and remembering that some of my "buddies" were in other units on the post, it is not unreasonable that friendships formed beyond a given regiment. This particular Joseph Wilson apparantly ended up as a prisoner of war, and there are no records indicating what may have happened after that. Often they were released and rejoined the Army, and sometimes are found in two or more files. I have never been able to find any evidence, though, that "our" Joseph ever filed for a pension. There may even be another connection between the Wilsons and Eskridges that I have not been able to track down. Both families had members (both male and female) with the given name of "Nash". The "Nash" surname was apparantly quite prominent in early Virginia, and perhaps somewhere there is a connection. It has been surmised that perhaps Elizabeth Robinson's mother may have been a Nash. Some of the Robinsons apparantly accompanied the Eskridges to Kentucky.

As I have mentioned, my great grandfather was Newton Wilson. The name "Newton" as a given name is not too common - yet it seems to appear fairly frequently in the Wilson family (in fact, I found another Newton Wilson living in Oregon County, Missouri - supposedly not close kin to my great grandfather Newton!, and a Newton Wilson, age 1/12, son of J. E. M. and Susan Wilson, in the 1860 Grayson County, KY, census.) The "Newton" family is intertwined with the Eskridge and Washington families in early Virginia, and it is possible that it also intertwines in some way with the Wilsons.

This has been a long letter, and possibly boring to you. If you see anything of interest to you, please let me know. I can copy some of the documents that I have, and will be glad to share anything I have. I would really love to trace the Wilsons beyond Samuel with more certainty, and know just which Virginia family of Wilsons they belonged to.

Sincerely,

Roscoe W. Mitchell, Jr.

REUNION 1985 was a great success! 120 signed the register! They came from Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Kansas, New Mexico, California and Maryland. The covered dish dinner was bountiful and good! Another hundred or so could have eaten.

ALFRED N. ATTEBERRY 1315x13x32 from Susanville CA won the prize for having traveled the greatest distance. BOB ATTEBERRY 1654654 from Redwood City CA and KANARDY TAYLOR (descends from David Atterbury 19554) of Silver Springs MD ran him close seconds. This was Alfred's first trip back to Oklahoma for a vacation since leaving during the Dustbowl Days of the '30s for California. His Oklahoma family truly enjoyed having him. His sister's granddaughter, Sue Hudgins 1315x13x615, and her husband James pulled their camper in next to Alfred's without even knowing he was there. They had a great reunion before the reunion even started!

ANNA MAE ATTEBERRY BROOKS 165468 from Shreveport LA received the prize for being the eldest clan member present. You will recall that she is the aunt who inspired our book, and to whom the book is dedicated. The trip was tiring for her this year, but we expect to see her back next year. She reports that she had a great time! Aunt Mae turned 81 on 4 Aug 1904.

ADAM ZACHARIAH GILL 165465623, born 31 Mar 1984, won the prize for being the youngest clan member present.

Our permanent ATTEBERRY REUNION sign made Shelter #2 very easy to locate. Nearly everyone seemed pleased with the site (heard one complaint that the swimming pool was too small), so Wilma has made a reservation for us for next year. In the meantime, the park has changed their rules to a first-come, first-served basis - so our week-end was taken. She was able, however, to reserve the third Saturday in June. Next year's reunion will be held on June 21, 1985, at Red Rock Canyon.

The Association Directors will meet sometime in the Spring to finalize the plans. In the meantime, MARK YOUR CALENDAR for June 21, 1986!

The 16546 line suffered a personal loss in July. OLEY EDRIC ATTEBERRY 1654624, one of your Association Directors during last year and the brother of your editor, passed away on July 9, 1985, with a ruptured aneurism caused by cardiovascular disease. We are grateful that he did not suffer long. We brought him home to be buried in the family plot at Waurika. Oley had flown for American Airlines as a pilot for thirty years, retiring in 1981. He will be missed in our family and at the family reunions.

Other losses include: Emily Victoria Bruton Martin (Aunt Vic), widow of 14237x12, who passed away on April 15, 1985; Wesley Earl Million 142362x10, who passed away on February 4, 1985; and Jessie Virgil Attebery 14462321, who passed away on October 15, 1984.

REUNION 1993 is just around the corner! Actually it is still scheduled for June 26th. Decision time is here, however. We must have a minimum of 30 reservations by May 1 - or cancel the reunion for this year. A reservation form can be found on the last page of this newsletter. Please send it in as soon as possible - in time to reach me by April 29, 1993. We don't want to lose our $100 deposit.

The cost will be: Adults $15 Children 3-11 $11 Children under 3 are free.

Lunch will be catered by the Zoo - all you care to eat of fried chicken or brisket, potato salad and cole slaw, chips, and tea or lemonade. Dessert is not included, but rumor has it that there will probably be a birthday cake or two for Wilma Mitchell. She won't let her age be quoted in the newsletter, but you can look it up in the book if you really want to know.

We will gather at 10 a.m. for visiting, eat at 12, enjoy the dolphin show at 2:00 p.m. and tour the zoo or visit for the rest of the day. If enough are interested, other get-togethers will be planned for Friday and Saturday nights at a local restaurant with a meeting room where we can have time and space for visiting. Let your wishes be known!

FROM THE MAILBAG -

ANN ATTEBERY WILKERSON 16546521 writes in support of the decision for the 1993 Reunion. She wrote "I hope everyone is as thrilled in the choice for the family reunion as I am. I think it is ideal to draw back some of our younger family. When fame and fortune are gone, we will always have our family. Let's make this our biggest and best reunion ever. If you missed our reunion at Arbuckle Wilderness, you missed a lot. This reunion can be as memorable as that was and many others. There's never a dull moment at an Attebery reunion. So, this Association Director looks forward to seeing you there."

Ann also wrote about their grief over the loss of a granddaughter, Nicki Layne Torres 1654652123, who was born February 10, 1992, and died on May 20, 1992. Jack and Ann took their grief to the lake for boating and fishing for a healing process. She reports that it helped. Their daughter, Jenny Lynn Wilkerson, has moved back to Duncan with two other granddaughters, Taniel Hankins 1654652121 and Miranda Hankins 1654652122, who will probably be at the reunion.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: Thanks, Ann, for noticing the Winter in the Comanche Cemetery. That is Bill's Uncle Sam and Aunt Carrie. We usually visit on Memorial Day, as part of our trip to Waurika.

ALVIN ARTERBURY 16x11x3563 sent copies of material he had received from Hyrum Ipson 16x11x1558. Hyrum, of Monroe, Utah, and his sister Verda Lorimer of Casper, Wyoming, have both submitted extensions of their line and have been working with Alvin to gain more information on Elias 16x11, son of John 16. As their fourth cousin, your editor is very excited about their work.

JOHN C. ATTERBURY of the 19441 line writes in support of your editor's opinion that Charles 13 married a cousin with a name identical to his mother's. He promises to check for Mitchells in Loudoun Co Virginia. John is of the opinion that the name "Mitchell" has some Irish background. Can anyone prove or disprove that theory? The family is grateful for your research efforts, John.

SHIRLEY J. HANNAFORD sends a change of address to: 10744 US 27 S #250, Fort Wayne IN 46816-3445. She promises to send a copy of her Wayne County IL records and reports that she has all of Virginia Anderson's records. If anyone needs information in that area, she will be glad to share. (Editor's Note: How nice to know that Virginia's records have been preserved. For those of you who did not know her, she was more knowledgeable than anyone about the Atteberrys of Wayne County IL. We miss her.) Shirley's husband is a descendant of Nathan, s/o Richard Atteberry and Rebecca Bennett.

MARGUERITE HANNA GREGORY 1376373 writes to report that Rebecca Atterbury 1371 was buried in White Mills Christian Church Cemetery in Hardin County KY with her husband, two sons and one daughter-in-law, and 5 or 6 grandchildren. Rebecca was the only child of Michael Atterbury and Elizabeth Kessinger who didn't move to Southern Illinois as the others did. Marguerite plans to visit the Cemetery soon. (Editor's Note: A major regret of the authors of the book is the decision to leave out the location and dates of burials. Space forced the decision, but the information would have been nice.)

VERNON CHARTIER 144441422 sends an article from Sports Illustrated Classic about Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen, great tennis players of the '20s, who had a match on the Riviera in 1926. The interesting part is a comment in the Chicago Tribune, by Althea Thurber, a social editor, "...The Hon. Mr. Stephen H. L. Atterbury, Charge'-d'Affaires of the American Legation in Peru, and Mrs. Atterbury, the former Princess Ti Ling of Tibet, are motoring to Monte Carlo from Aix-en-Provence, where they have been visiting Mr. Atterbury's father, Rear Admiral A. Watson Atterbury, U.S.N., retired. Mr. Stephen Atterbury is the breeder of the famous Schnauzer-Pincher, Champion Adelbert von Weigen-grosse of Tamerlane, said to be valued at $15,000...." The article implies that this quote may have been made up to fill the copy space. Anyone know??

ROBERT HALL BARTON of Norfolk VA writes for information on his lineage, reporting that his gr-gr grandmother was Elizabeth Atterbury, daughter of Greenberry Atterbury and Elizabeth Butler. He reports that his gr-grandmother, Sarah Catherine Means (Wilson), is buried in the Atterbury Family Graveyard somewhere near Clarksdale, Missouri.

DR. ROBERT A. ATTERBURY of Elmwood Park IL sends a copy of an article he wrote for the Miniclinic section of CDS Review, entitled "Hospital admittance, operating room technique and discharge of the dental patient." (Editor's Note: Robert, how can we believe that fancy calling card of yours saying "RETIRED - No business, No money, No appointment and No credit" when you continue to produce such articles? Seriously, it is well written and you are to be commended!)

HAPPY NEW YEAR! May 1992 be a great year for the Atterbury/..../Attebery Clan! May we make many new discoveries to answer at least some of those questions each of us have!

REUNION 1992 will be held on June 20, 1992 someplace in Oklahoma. The Association Directors have not yet met to finalize the plans. You still have time for some input. Call your representative and make your wishes known. Mark your calendar for the 20th of June and plan a short (or long) vacation around that date. Let's keep our family ties strong.

JANUARY 1, 1992 was the beginning of a new phase in the life of your editor. She began her retirement from Rose State College, after 43 years in the work force. Only 20 of those 43 were in education, so in effect she had two careers. Having enjoyed both the career in the business world and the one in education very much, she is looking forward to the next phase of her life. (Note from the editor: I would like to tell you that the newsletters will be better organized and come on schedule, but I know better. My organizational skills are not likely to improve nor will my personal habits change much. I can't even promise that genealogy will have a higher priority in my life, although I hope that it will. My husband is very ill. He is a diabetic with the complications of diabetic retinopathy, uremia (chronic kidney failure), and congestive heart failure. My retirement came a few years early because of his health and he will be my first priority. We are going to do what he wants to do, when & where he wants. I am now the official Supervisor of Bill!)

Did you Oklahoma relatives read the article in The Sunday Oklahoman of January 5, 1992, about York, England? If not, try to locate a paper and read it. It is too long to include in the newsletter. York is an interesting place just East of Northampton where our ancestors lived around 1500. The English language began to mold in York as Latin, Celtic, German, Scandinavian and French blended into the new language in a city that rivaled London for trade. The Vikings named their conquered city "Jorvik" and this name later was anglicized to "York." (Note to the children of Oley Attebery 1654624 - Remember Oley's claim to being a descendant of a Scandinavian Viking? Here is a basis for that claim.)

How about a trip to England designed specially for the Atterbury/..../Attebery Clan in 1993 or 1994? We can put one together if enough people are interested. At the present time, guided tours do not go to Northampton - it is off the beaten path and is primarily a shoe manufacturing area. An Attebery guided tour would provide a few days in Northampton to tour the countryside and the churches where our ancestors worshiped and are recorded, as well as providing a general tour of England including London. Remember Westminster Abbey in London is where Sir Francis Atterbury is buried. If you are interested, please drop a note to your editor. A very rough estimate of time and money is 10-14 days for $1,800-$3,000, depending on the class of accommodations chosen and the value of the dollar at the time.

Association dues for 1991-92 received since Newsletter 91-3 was issued are:

A special thanks to those of you who sent more than $5. All contributions are appreciated. Please do not be offended by the way your newsletter envelope is addressed. They are hand written to conserve time and the wear & tear on the typewriter. Approximately 3-4 hours are needed to address envelopes and a minimum of 12 hours is spent in writing the newsletter. As you can tell, the typewriter is not working at peak performance today!

from the MAILBAG - - - -

VIRGINIA ALBAN writes to ask if the book, The Descendants of William Atterbury 1733 English Emigrant, is in the LDS Library on microfiche. Yes, it is - and it is also in their computer. Voncille & Wilma had great fun playing with their computer in Salt Lake City last year. If you have never visited their library in Salt Lake, it is well worth the trip! However, most of what they have is available at your local LDS Library. Their International section covers most of one floor. Wilma is still not hooked on researching the Mitchell or Martin lines, but they did do some work on the Barnes & Chamberlain lines. Voncille is eager to spend some time on the Booth & Prince lines (her maternal lines), and she still wants that DAR membership. How could she have so many lines traced back so far and not be eligible for the DAR? The Winter line will probably get some attention soon also.

Virginia also asked about the next edition of the book. Press time is s-o-m-e time in the future. At the present time, there are less than 30 names on the list who want a new edition. That is not enough demand to justify writing and printing another edition. Updates are continually being made to the lineage chart and it may be re-written. Be sure you have submitted all of your update information following the guidelines in Newsletter 91-3.

In the meantime, if you want a copy of the first edition - you have two options. A copy on 100% cotton paper unbound can be had for $80. Or, if you want a copy on less expensive paper (bound or unbound), write to Dorthy Ketter, 1311 Candlelight Ave., Duncanville TX 75137. She & her husband have started a new printing company. Dorthy is in the lineage chart, identified as 14236293, and has been very helpful in sending news from the Dallas area. You will enjoy knowing her and her husband.

DALTON ATTEBERY 16555x11 reports that the R.J. Attebery Reunion held last summer was a success and attracted some of Allen Attebery's family. Allen 16553 is R. J.'s older brother.

LUELLA ATTEBERY CRAVENS 1321337 writes to compliment George Wylder on his great find. You will remember that George identified the wife of William # 1 as Sarah Mitchell. Luella is now wondering about the accuracy of a Sarah Mitchell being the wife of Charles 13. Can anyone from the line of Charles 13 identify the source of information which identified Charles' wife?

RON WISER, 1618 Blanda Ct., Belen NM 87002, writes for information on the death of Oscar W. Atterbury 13792. Ron and a cousin are writing a book on the descendants of Peter Akes. If you can help Ron, please write to him.

EDNA WALTERS writes that she has tracket Moses A. Atterbury 1293x11 and his wife Eliza J. (Scates) through 1918 in Pontiac IL, but can find no trace of their death or burial. She is also working on the line of a David Martin b 3 Mar 1824 in Arkansas d 12 Feb 1877 in Freestone Co TX, burial in Oaktsland Cemetery near Cotton Gin TX. David Married Adaline Story on 2 Apr 1863 and had children, Ora Mae, James, Annie, & David. If you can help Edna, please write her at 210 North Ninth St., Fairbury IL 61739.

PATRICIA WALLACE, 3105 N. Carriage Lane, Chandler, AZ 85224, writes regarding research she is doing on her Myers-Atterbury line. Michael Myers was b ca 1779 in SC to the Abraham Myers who married Patsy Atterbury, widow of Nathan Atterbury 15. Michael married a Louisa Atteberry born ca 1779 in SC or KY, and Patricia is trying to identify Louisa. (Editor's comment: If 1779 is an accurate birth date, the place was probably SC, as the migration to Kentucky did not take place until about 1800-1810. Note that William 12 had two daughters, Sary 125, b ca 1777-78 and Anney 127, b ca 1781-82, about whom very little is known.) If you can help Patricia, please write to her.

VERNON CHARTIER 144441422 sent a newspaper clipping about his nephen, Tim Chartier, who was stricken with a neuro-muscular disorder complicated by chronic fatigue syndrome at the age of 11. Now 23, Tim is now a professional mime, performing intricate physical mimicry as well as dance-like jumps, leaps and kicks. He has a 45-minute show "Mime-ation" which includes animal impressions. Tim is a math major at Western Michigan University and plans to teach math at the college level.

WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL 1654653 reports a note in the Baptist Messenger of October 10, 1991, stating that Dwayne Atterbery has been called to Smithville Church, Frisco Association, moving from Texas. Can anyone identify him?

MARJORIE ATTEBERY DuVIVIERS reported a busy year of travel. A week in London in January - a 2-week bus tour to Astoria OR following the Lewis & Clark Trail - and a 16-day trip to Siberia in November. She reported the trip to Siberia as "fascinating" (your editor is green with envy) in which they flew to Moscow via New York and Helsinki. After 2 days in Moscow, they flew 3827 miles to Khabarovsk in the Soviet Far East for a 2 day stay. Then they boarded the Trans-Siberian R.R. for 2½ days moving west to Irkutsk on the Angara River near the southern end of Lake Baikal in Siberia. There, they spent 4 days doing interesting things like cooking lamb shashlyk outside in 1½ feet of snow in the taiga. Then, they flew 2620 miles back to Moscow for 2 more days there and one night in Helsinki before heading home. Marjorie also sent a picture of her immediate family - seven children, six spouses & five grandchildren - at their family reunion in Estes Park CO. That was the first time they had all been together. Treasure those times - they are difficult to arrange.

BARBARA ATTEBERY SCOTT 13213232 also reported a busy year which included plans for a trip to Oregon via Amtrak for Christmas with her daughter & other family members. This was their second trip to Oregon in 1991, having made one during the summer. In March 1991, they made a trip to Puerto Rico to visit son Carl while he was on a six-month assignment for his company. They were able to visit in the homes of two native families, the Estradas and the Gonzalas', while there.

LINDA ATTEBERY CARPENTER, 1 Pintail Place, Safety Harbor FL 34695, is a new subscriber to our newsletter. Yes, Linda, the book on microfiche at the LDS Library is our book. See p 2 about how to get a copy. She also noted another Linda Attebery (Cooper) with the number 16546521. What a small world! Remember that there are only 1200 households in the United States with the name of Atterbury/.../Attebery (any spelling).

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR:

Three hours ago I wrote the last of the Lineage Chart additions and changes above. I intended to wrap up the newsletter and get it down for copying today. I took a last look at the lineage chart - and spent three hours perusing the chart with all the changes. Denise Merritt 198325611 recently sent 18 pages of additional information, all in excellent form. All considered, I estimate that a revised lineage chart would total approximately 350 or 400 pages! I have never seen one that large.

The most logical way to reduce the size is to establish a cut-off for other lines. For example, those descendants who are 3 or 4 generations from the Atterbury (any spelling) would not be listed. The size might be reduced 100+ pages by this method. The disadvantage to this method is that the chart would be incomplete. A descendant is a descendant is a descendant, regardless of the name carried. Of course, we all relate best to the name we carry or have carried.

We'll see how the volunteer helper with computer skills comes out with the recopying project before we make a decision.

Genealogy is fascinating, and once you are hooked, you are hooked! However, as an educator with a PhD, I am really surprised that it has received so little attention as an area of research. My social science colleagues tell me it is because they become more interested in society as a whole, rather than only one family. Maybe so - but I don't buy that story completely. My theory is that it is too darn much work and sometimes the answers are just not there! So much for that!

Please send your news in (this is the shortest newsletter we have had in a long time) and let your representative know your wishes regarding REUNION 1992.

The trip to England was great! Both Voncille 1654626 and Edna 165462x12 thoroughly enjoyed it - and are ready to go again. Why did William ever leave such a lovely country with no insects? As promised, the details are enclosed. In the interest of space, the narrative is condensed. If you want to know more (or want to see the 300+ pictures), we will be happy to share with you.

By request, a list of our members is enclosed. In the interest of brevity, the AFA mailing list was used. The asterisk indicates presence of some of the household at the reunion in June. Two lists seemed excessive.

Membership dues are $5 per household. If you did not pay at the reunion or have not mailed your dues for '85-86, please do so. Funds are maintained in a savings account to avoid paying charges on a checking account. Two of the Association Directors sign on the account.

BOOK ORDERS - a reprint of our book is planned for next summer. The price will be $50 postpaid. Should you wish a copy, please send your order by March 1. This is not a revision!

A revision of our book is not yet scheduled. It will be some years in the future because we are still researching. An ongoing revision to the lineage charts is being made. Should you have any additions or corrections, please send them to your editor - using the numbering system used in the book.

Should you decide to help with the research - try these questions:

- 1) Parents of Nancy Ann Lewis, wife of Nathan 1654, were?
- 2) What happened to Nathan 1654's first wife and two young daughters?
- 3) What happened to the younger children of Jesse 165 after 1862?
- 4) Who was the James W. Atterbury who migrated to Texas with Jesse & sons?

TRIP TO BRITISH ISLES by Voncille Attebery Winter 1654626 & Edna Attebery Ward 165462x12
May 31-June 13, 1985 Narrative by Voncille Winter Sept 1985

After some two years of off-again--on-again planning that originally included more sisters, Voncille and Edna began serious planning about the first of May. "Serious" meaning "put your money where your mouth is" by paying your fees. We both fretted that we were missing something because everything seemed too simple - my passport even came back in six working days!

We met in Dallas on May 31st. Our first concern came when we realized that we were coming into D-FW Airport at different terminals - and leaving from a third one about 90 minutes later! Not to worry, though - I left OC on American Flight 369 at 9:34am and arrived at Terminal 2E D-FW at 10:21am. I took the trolley (after a moment's panic when confronted with a sign that I must deposit two quarters to get on the trolley - having carefully converted all my travel money to British currency) to Terminal 2W. Within fifteen minutes, I was embracing my 'baby sister' Edna at the Pan Am counter in Terminal 2E! She had arrived at Terminal 3E at 10:08am, having left Houston at 9:15am on American Flight 7.

By 10:45am, we had settled into the waiting area of PanAm for Flight 2, scheduled to leave D-FW at 12:05pm. Edna checked her bags at PanAm in D-FW (I was carrying her ticket, so she couldn't do it in Houston), and I had checked mine at curb-side in OC to Heathrow Airport in London.

Our flight to New York was pleasant and uneventful. By 2pm, we realized that we were hungry and wondered why we had not eaten in Dallas (we were too excited and had too much visiting to do). We were fed soon thereafter.

Changing planes and terminals in New York was an experience - accomplished rather easily. The flight from D-FW had been about three and one-half hours and we changed time zones. By 5:30 pm (4:30 CDT), we were settled in the waiting area of PanAm. Realizing that we had almost two hours to wait, we toured the terminal and came back to find the waiting area full-full! We had arrived JFK Airport at Gate 22 and left from Gate 15.

Flight 002 to Heathrow Airport in London, scheduled to leave JFK at 7pm, was delayed 30 minutes because of bad weather to the West. We left JFK at 7:30pm on the East runway (out over the Atlantic Ocean), on a 747. The plane was full! The flight was long and tiring, yet neither of us slept! Some six and one-half hours later, we arrived at Heathrow Airport at 7:10am (30 minutes late because we left 30 minutes late).

One look at customs and we were ready to get on the plane and return home! Again, not to worry! We cleared in about fifteen minutes! Hundreds and hundreds were there! We were somewhat amazed that our bags were there, too! No problems!

The American Express driver was waiting just outside the terminal for us. We waited about 30 minutes for two other passengers, who never showed (they were very irate later, but we never understood how they could have missed the American Express sign that the driver stuck in the face of everyone who left the terminal).

The driver took us to the White House, our hotel, near Regents Park. We arrived at 9:30am and waited until 10:30 for our room. By now, we had both been awake for more than 24 hours, and beginning to feel the stress. Nevertheless, we couldn't waste time sleeping.

Knowing that we wouldn't see Westminster Abbey on our tour (tours are not allowed on Sundays), we freshened up and went sightseeing on our own. We took the "tube" (a super mass-tran system similar to our subways. They call it an underground, and use "tube" as a nickname. A subway in England is a walkway for people) from Great Portland station to Westminster Station. We emerged into bright sunlight (unusual in London) and there was Big Ben! We were disappointed that it was being renovated and we did not get to hear it strike.

May 31-June 12, 1987
Narrative by Jennifer Winter - Sept 1988
T-10 to B-10 by Jennifer Winter 10/25/88 & 10/26/88

After some two years of off-again-on-again planning that originally included more visits, Jennifer and Edna began serious planning about the first of May. "Serious" meaning "not your money where your mouth is" by paying your taxes. We both fretted that we were missing something because everything seemed too simple - my passport even came back in the working stage.

We met in Dallas on May 31st. Our first conference call when we realized that we were coming into B-10 airport at different terminals - and leaving from a third one - about 30 minutes later. And to worry, though - I left DC on American flight 309 at 11:45am and arrived at Terminal 3B at 1:15pm. I took the trolley (after a moment's panic when confronted with a sign that I must deposit two quarters in but on the trolley - having carefully converted all my travel money to British currency in Terminal 3C, Jennifer told me that I was watching my baby sister, Edna, at the counter in Terminal 3B. She had arrived at Terminal 3B at 10:00am, having left Houston at 11:00am on American flight 1.

At 10:15am, we had walked into the waiting area of Terminal 3, scheduled to leave B-10 at 10:30am. Edna checked her bags at 10:15am. I was checking her ticket, as she couldn't go to Houston, and I had checked mine at airport in DC to Heathrow Airport in London.

Our flight to New York was pleasant and uneventful. By 5pm, we realized that we were hungry and wondered why we had not eaten in Dallas (we were too excited and had too much waiting to do). We were too soon together.

Changing planes and terminals in New York was an experience - a complicated rather simple. The flight from B-10 had been about three and one-half hours and we changed planes twice. By 10:30pm (12:30 AM), we were waiting in the waiting area of Terminal 3B. Jennifer told me that we had about two hours to wait. We turned the terminal and came back to find the waiting area full. We had arrived 10:30 AM at Gate 32 and left from Gate 32.

Flight 309 to Washington Airport in London, scheduled to leave 10:30 AM, was delayed 30 minutes because of bad weather on the West. We left 11:30 AM on the last runway (over the Atlantic Ocean), on a 147. The plane was full. The flight was long and bumpy, but neither of us slept. Some six and one-half hours later, we arrived at Heathrow Airport at 10:15am (10 minutes late because we left 30 minutes late).

Our first 30 minutes in London was a very busy - to get on the plane and return home. Again, not to worry. We checked in about 10:15am (minutes). Jennifer and I were there we were somewhat amazed that our bags were there, too. No problem!

The airport's 30th birthday was celebrated that night. The terminal was full. We waited about 30 minutes for our other luggage. The never-ending (there were very many) luggage, but we never understood how they could have missed the American Express sign that the driver stuck in the line of everyone who left the terminal.

The driver took us to the hotel house, our hotel, near Regents Park. We arrived at 11:30pm and waited until 12:30 for our room. By now, we had our own house keys for home that 12 hours, and beginning to feel the stress. Nevertheless, we couldn't wait long sleeping.

Knowing that we would be staying at the Westminister Abbey on our first night and not allowed to smoke, we tried to get up and head right into our own. We took the "tube" (a subway) to the airport. They call it an underground, and use "tube" as a nickname. A subway in London is a railway for people (from Great Westminster station to Heathrow Airport). We swapped into our luggage (luggage in London) and there was the hotel. We were disappointed that it was being renovated and we did not get to sleep at night.

TRIP TO BRITISH ISLES - p 2

Westminster Abbey was breathtakingly beautiful! The main chapel vaults 102 feet high and is finished in gold. As you enter by the West Door, immediately in front of you is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier surrounded by Flanders poppies. To your left is a memorial stone for Sir Winston Churchill. To your right is the Tomb of Sir Francis Atterbury. It reads:

F R A N C I S A T T E R B U R Y
DEAN OF WESTMINSTER and BISHOP OF ROCHESTER
BORN MARCH 6th 1663 DIED AT PARIS
FEBY 22nd. BURIED HERE MAY 12, 1732
ALSO ELIZABETH, HIS DAUGHTER DIED 1716.
HIS WIFE CATHERINE DIED 1722
AND HIS DAUGHTER MARY, WIFE OF WILLIAM MORICE, HIGH BAILIFF OF WESTMINSTER,
DIED AT TOULOUSE NOV^r 8th 1729
BURIED FEBY 21st 1730.

Each line represents a line on the stone. At first, I thought some were indented - then I decided that it was just crude workmanship. The stone reads as if his two daughters and wife are also buried in the same grave. According to our tour guide, burial in an abbey was very expensive and only the wealthy could afford it. The purpose of such burial was to assure that your soul would go to heaven and that your earthly remains would rest in peace.

Westminster Abbey enshrines memories of almost all that the Anglo-Saxon races have achieved, and contains the memorials of many legislators, judges, statesmen, poets, and others, as well as religious leaders. The first monastery was apparently established there about 600 by the Saxons. Westminster Eyot (island) in the River Thames was identified by Edward the Confessor as the site of a great monastery and a palace about 1050. Edward the Confessor was the last of the Anglo-Saxon line and died in 1066 before Westminster Abbey was consecrated. He is buried there.

From the 11th century to the 16th, the palace at Westminster was the reigning king's place of residence. This palace later became the Houses of Parliament. From 1376 to 1547, the House of Commons normally met in the chapter house or the refectory of the Abbey. During this period, eight of the kings and queens of England were buried in the Abbey. Sir Francis is in good company!.

Atterbury Street is 3/4 of a mile south of Westminster Abbey. It is a short street, about two blocks in length, intersecting with Millbank (a 4-lane boulevard running along the Thames River) on the south side of Tate Gallery (British and foreign art). Atterbury Street is in the city of Westminster, although it apparently was not on the original island of Westminster. It appears to have been on the south side of the island, and may have been the location of William Atterbury's mercantile business. The stream around Westminster has been filled in and the River Thames is now very well controlled. When our William was shipping goods to the colonies, however, the water inlet was probably a valuable business location. There is nothing to tie the street to Sir Francis Atterbury, and the location implies a tie to a shipping industry of some type. How I would love to have had a few weeks to pursue that thought.

The name London derives from the Romans. When they invaded Britain in 43AD, they gave their settlement a Celtic name, Llyn-din (river place), later called Londinium. London was the capital of Roman Britain and the sixth-largest city in the Roman Empire. The original city of London was about one mile square.

Having strayed into giving you a history lesson, I'll return to our afternoon in London on our own. Having seen Westminster Abbey and Big Ben and being refreshed with some English ice cream (they do make good ice cream and vendors are everywhere!) we returned to the "tube" and traveled to the London Tower. The Tower of London was built by the Romans as a fortress in 43AD, originally was surrounded by a moat, and was used as a prison for many years.

TRIP TO BRITISH ISLES - p3

Having had no sleep for almost thirty hours, we soon tired of the Tower of London. We returned to the White House, again on the tube (feeling almost like veterans), and slept about 2½ hours before dressing for dinner.

Our tour was taken to the Dolphin Bar for dinner of mutton chops, served with potatoes, spinach, pate & white wine. Espresso & chocolate mousse followed. The thirty-five people on our tour were together for the first time. A short tour of London by bus followed the dinner. By 9:30pm we were back in our hotel room. We were exhausted! Breakfast the following morning was to be served in our room. We chose our menu and requested service for 8:30am - planning to "sleep-in."

By 4:00am, Edna & I were both awake! It was daylight! Although it was Sunday, June 2nd, we heard much traffic noise. Finally, we arose and dressed. At 6:30am, we took a walk in Regents Park - the first of many lovely parks we were to visit. The English value every inch of their soil. Their foliage is lovely - having rain nearly every day.

Our Continental Breakfast of cereal, juice & croussants was delivered at 8:15, and we literally devoured it. Cold milk was provided for our cereal and hot milk for our coffee & tea. The milk could have passed for cream in America. The English have not heard of cholestrol!

By 9:00am, we were on the tube again, headed for Atterbury Street (although I told you about it on p 2, we did not see it until Sunday, June 2nd). Our map was not the best! We got off the tube at Westminster Station and headed for Horseferry Street. Suddenly, we found Buckingham Gate - a short street leading to the palace. So, we decided to see the palace! Buckingham Palace is lovely, overlooking St. James' Park and Green Park.

Leaving the palace area along St. James' Park (the street is called Birdcage Walk), we observed the "changing of the Guard" at Wellington Barracks. Very impressive! An inspection truly takes place. The ceremony takes about 30-45 minutes.

Finally, we found our way to Atterbury Street. The area appears a little "run-down" although the private park (similar to the common area of an American condominium) which adjoins it is lovely. There was a large sign on the Tate Gallery announcing a celebration in August of the birthday of Sir Francis Bacon, who lived 1561-1626. We hurried back to the White House for our afternoon tour of London.

The highlight of our afternoon tour was a visit to the British Museum, the first national museum ever established. St. Paul's Cathedral (built in London proper as a rival of Westminster Abbey, which is in the borough of Westminster) was lovely, but we were not allowed inside. We also made a visit (second for Edna & I) to the Tower of London. By 5:30pm, we were back at the White House.

A River Boat dinner and musical completed our day. We were picked up at 6:15pm and taken on a trip down the Thames River. Dinner was roast lamb with potatoes & peas, pate, and apple pudding & espresso. The music show was excellent, fashioned after the river boat shows of the Civil War times in America. An MC in England is called a Chairman. An excellent end to a beautiful sunny day in a normally foggy city.

Our tour left London at 8:30 on Monday, June 3rd. I had awoken at 4:30am again! We had another Continental Breakfast and packed our bags, for a long day of travel.

Stonehenge was our first stop - about 11am. This is history! Mankind really did some planning for that. To this day, no one has determined the purpose of all the stones nor the significance thereof.

Bath was our lunch stop. The ancient Roman Baths were toured. I was impressed with their sewer system. The water was warm, and more excavations are underway - this place should be more interesting in the future.

TRIP TO BRITISH ISLES - p 4

Our afternoon drive took us north through lovely farming country. The rock wall fences - identified by our guide, Marlene Sullivan (an Irish lass), as honey-colored limestone - were impressive. Hedgerows were of a flowering tree called hawthorne, which looked like our spirea. Spring had come late to England this year, so the shrubs & trees were in full bloom.

Our T&T (tea & toilet) stop was at Stow-on-the-Wold, where we saw a stock in the town square. It was believed to be at least three hundred years old. Another hour's drive through the coxwold hills brought us to Kenilworth, where we were to spend the next two nights at DeVore Hotel.

The ruins of the Kenilworth Castle, destroyed in battle during the 1600s, is the landmark for Kenilworth. Edna & I walked out to see the ruins that evening. Later we walked down the main street of this small town with many small shops, bought some "fish 'n chips" from a small shop, and returned to our hotel room for our dinner. For less than $2 each, we had more than we could eat. The single order of chips, which we purchased for 35 pences, was more than the two of us could eat. We also had a spring roll (which we called an egg roll) of bean sprouts. Potatoe chips are called crisps in England, and we saw very few of those.

We were also learning other strange terms: "biscuit" is a cracker, "sweets" are pastry, "gateau" is cake, "dessert" is fruit, "holiday" is a vacation, "tights" are hose or panty hose, and "knock up" means to call a person.

Our country-style breakfast in the dining room on Tuesday, June 4th, was the first of a week of large breakfasts (eggs, bacon, sausage, prunes, orange juice, toast, butter, jelly, coffee & tea). Always present were orange marmalade, real butter, lots of hot and cold cream - and cold toast! Never any water or ice! I am not a water drinker, by American standards, but I certainly missed ice water on that trip! Water is for cleaning your teeth, I was told - and who would ever dream of putting ice in tea!!!!

Stratford-upon-Avon was the area we visited June 4th. We visited Warwick Castle, which was occupied as late as 1950 by the Warwick family, the home of Anne Hathaway (Shakespeare's wife), and the birthplace of Shakespeare. Stratford is less than forty miles from Northampton. It is in Northamptonshire, the county from which our ancestors came. Lovely countryside - farming and ranching, mostly small crop farming. After two days on those narrow country roads with no shoulders and everyone driving on the wrong side, we had given up on our idea of leaving the tour for a day, renting a car and driving to Northampton.

Stratford is a lovely tourist town. Edna & I had lunch of steak & kidney pie at The Cobweb, which must have been 300 years old, and shopped for a couple of hours. I didn't realize until later that Stratford is the only place I was to have an opportunity for the famous Plowman's Luncheon! It would probably have been better than the steak & kidney pie (once is enough), which is also famous.

Part of the tour went out for dinner, but Edna & I chose to have the fish 'n chips again. A soft gentle rain fell most of the night. The natives thought they had had a storm!

The next morning, we toured Coventry. We took our pictures by the statue of Lady Godiva and attended church services in the new Coventry Cathedral (the original was destroyed during WWII). Then on to Wales.

The Wales' countryside is beautiful - almost moon-like. Mining coal was the primary industry of the area we toured. We drove through Shrewsbury into Wales and stopped at Llangollen for lunch & shopping. Edna & I had two sausage rolls at a "carry-out." They were delicious - but we missed such things as napkins & chairs. Seemed strange to see people standing around on the narrow streets eating from their hands. I never found out how they cleaned their hands after eating.

TRIP TO BRITISH ISLES - p 5

Leaving Llangollen for Chester, England, we drove through mountainous country used primarily for sheepgrazing. There was no shower in our bath at Chester (we never saw a washcloth - explanation was that they are too personal), but we had a lovely dinner served in the dining room. We had chicken with potatoes and carrots. For dessert, we had blackcurrant cheesecake & espresso. We quickly learned to ask for our desserts "plain" - otherwise, they came with pure cream poured over them! Not whipped cream, but pure thick rich cream! Coffee - or espresso - was never served with a meal, only afterwards. If anything is served with a meal, it is wine. Certainly not water!

Thursday, June 6th, we drove north to the Lake Country on M6, where we stopped at the largest truck stop I have ever seen with space designated for tour buses. We toured the east side of Lake Windemere to Grasmere village, where Wordsworth lived. We spent the night at Windemere (Hydro Hotel with a lovely view of the city), a very hilly city. We shopped that afternoon and walked the steep streets. Dinner in the hotel dining room gave us a choice of food - I had trout and Edna chose the cold plate.

Friday, June 7th, we continued North into Scotland, crossing at Gratne. Lovely country! We stopped for lunch at a woollen mill and then drove on to Glasgow, where they rolled up the streets at 5:30pm. We stayed at the Hospitality Inn (room 812), and had the pleasure of evacuating about 10:00pm when a birthday celebration set off the fire alarms. It was ten stories to the ground--as the Ground Floor is below Floor 1 and we were on a hill, so we had a Sub-Ground Floor. We were a weary-looking tour group!

The English people are much more conservative than Americans. After a few days in their country, our wastefulness becomes more apparent. We differ in many other ways, too. Dessert spoons are serving spoon size. At sit-down dinners, everything is elaborate with full place settings. They have started seating eight at a table for six - but have not cut back on the silverware & china used. Bread is not served with a meal. Crackers are non-existent. Biscuits (cracker-like) are served only with cheese, many times as a dessert. Brown sugar is served for coffee, white sugar for tea - in open sugar bowls into which each person dips his/her own spoon. The brown sugar was somewhat different from ours - it did not lump! Cloth napkins were used with sit-down dinners (cost about nine pounds or $12 up). For take-away (to go) service, no napkins are furnished. Food is good and inexpensive at such places - Two pounds will buy more than one can eat. Most businesses are small and family-run, which close by 5-5:30. Sunday is a holy day, with no business or theaters open. Females in England have stopped wearing pants. Most did not wear hose.

We left Glasgow at 8:00am for a long day of travel through the Scottish Highlands. It was a very scenic drive past Loch Lomond, through the gentler Trossachs. Ben Nevis, Britain's highest peak at 4,500 feet, towers above Fort William, where we stopped for lunch. We continued en route along the Great Glen to Lock Ness - then through the resort of Aviemore - in the Scottish Highlands to Kingussie for dinner and overnight. In Kingussie, we stayed at the Duke of Gordon Hotel (built in the 1800s and being renovated to its original condition). Kingussie was a quaint little town.

Our drive on Sunday, June 9th, took us through more lovely country to Edinburgh. Edna & I passed up a trip to a well-known golf course and toured Edinburgh on our own. We took a bus downtown, shopped some, then roamed the Princess Garden where the International Youth Week was commencing. This was a lovely park beneath the Edinburgh Castle, which sits on a high peak. Edinburgh is a lovely city.

On Monday, June 10th, we toured the Edinburgh Castle and watched a 21-gun salute to the Duke of Edinburgh (Prince Philip) in honor of his birthday. We saw the Crown Jewels of Scotland, which are older than England's. Also visited Holyrood House, once the home of Mary, Queen of Scots. That evening we were taken out Leaving Glasgow for Chester, England, we drove through mountainous country west primarily for sheepgrazing. There was no snow in our party as Chester was never a winter town - explanation was that there was too much rain, but we had a lovely dinner served in the dining room. We had chicken with potatoes and carrots. For dessert, we had chocolate cake & custard. We quickly learned to eat for our dessert "fruit" - otherwise, they came with pure cream poured over them. Not whipped cream, but pure milk cream. Coffee - or espresso - was never served with a meal, only afterwards. If anything is served with a meal, it is wine. Certainly not water!

Thursday, June 14th, we drove north to the Lake District on M6, where we stopped at the largest lake I have ever seen with a boat house and a few ducks. We toured the east side of Lake Windermere to Bowness Village, where Windermere Hotel was the night at Windermere (Hydro Hotel) with a lovely view of the city, a very pretty city. We stopped at afternoon and walked through the streets. Dinner at the hotel dining room gave us a choice of food - I had trout and lamb chops the cold glass.

Friday, June 15th, we continued north into Scotland, crossing at Stranraer. We stopped for lunch at a hotel and then drove on to Glasgow. Where they told us the streets at 2:30pm. We stayed at the Westgate Hotel (near 212) and had the pleasure of exchanging about 10:00pm when a friendly celebration set off the fire alarm. It was too close to the ground - the ground floor is below floor level and we were on a hill, so we had a 2nd-floor fire. We were a really looking for people!

The English people are much more conservative than Scots. After a few days in their country, our visitations became more relaxed. We dined in many other ways. The dinner spots are serving good food. At all times dinner, everything is prepared with full black salted. They have a small dining room as a table for 10 - but have not cut back on the kitchenware & china used. Food is not served with a meal. Dishes are non-vegetarian. Breakfast (which I had) was served only with cheese, early lunch in a kitchen. Brown sugar is served for coffee, while sugar for tea - in some cases into which each person has their own spoon. The brown sugar was a chocolate different from ours - it was not light. (I had sugar in my hand with 212-dinner) (I had about 100 pounds on 212 up). For tea (way to go) we had no milk and no sugar. Food is good and inexpensive at each place - two pounds will buy more than one can eat. Most businesses are small and family-run, which close by 5-6:30. Sunday is a holy day, with no business or restaurants. Restaurants in England have stopped serving meat. Most old men have gone.

We left Glasgow at 5:00pm for a day in the Scottish Highlands. It was a very scenic drive past Loch Lomond, through the Glenelg Hotel. We had a very high point at 4,100 feet. There were four hills, where we stopped for lunch. We continued on roads along the coast to Loch Ness - then through the heart of Scotland - in the Scottish Highlands to Inverness and then to Inverness. In Inverness, we stayed at the Lake of Inverness Hotel (just in the lake) and being covered in the original construction. Inverness was a great little town.

We drove on Sunday, June 17th, took a through more lovely country to Edinburgh. The Lake of Inverness was a trip to a well-known golf course and toward Edinburgh on our way. We took a bus through Inverness, then named the Princess Garden where the Inverness Hotel was located. This was a lovely day's holiday. The Edinburgh Hotel, which was on a high hill, Edinburgh is a lovely city.

On Sunday, June 18th, we toured the Edinburgh Castle and walked a 21-gun salute to the name of Edinburgh (Prince Philip) in honor of his birthday. We saw the Tower of London, which was older than England. Also visited the two towers, once the home of Mary, Queen of Scots. Last evening we were taken out for an authentic Scottish Evening, featuring Scottish singers and dancers in native costumes, at the Prescott House (a former stable, which is the place for entertainment in Edinburgh). We spent two nights in Edinburgh, at the Royal Scot Hotel (part of the Swallow Hotel chain, which is prevalent throughout the United Kingdom).

Tuesday, June 11th, was another long travel day. We visited the home of Sir Walter Scott (ca 1771-1832) on the Tweed River. A lovely place, beautifully manicured! At one time he had 1600 acres. Some of his descendants still live in the home, but we did not see them. Scott is buried at Melrose Abbey. We stopped for our lunch break on M1, where we located a truck carrying the name of Booth (our mother's maiden name). In the afternoon, we toured York, an old city built on Roman ruins which date back to about 100AD. The Vikings came to this area about 850AD. We toured the Jorvik Center, which is the site of an excavation. Then, on to Harrogate, where we spent the night at another Hospitality Inn. We had haddock for dinner and retired early.

Wednesday, June 12th, was another long travel day. We drove South on A1, toured Sherwood Forest in Nottinghamshire and Hatfield House (childhome of Elizabeth I), then on to London, where we stayed at the Westmoreland.

On our last night in England, we had dinner out and attended the theatre. We saw Two Into One at the Shaftesbury Theatre, which had been running since 24 Oct 1984. The Westmoreland Hotel is located above some railroad tracks, but we were not bothered by noise. By this time, we could sleep almost anywhere anytime!

Thursday, June 13th, was our day to come home! We had a Continental Breakfast in our hotel room and were taken to Heathrow Airport in a Jaguar limousine. We left Heathrow Airport on PanAm Flight 101 at 11:00am and had a pleasant trip to New York. The plane was not so crowded and we were able to move around some. Nevertheless, 6½ hours in the air is a long time. Clearing customs in NY was not nearly as frightening as London Customs had been - and was eased even more when a nice young man from the sideline pulled us out of a long line and cleared us immediately. I had nothing to declare and Edna declared her cookies. What could someone who declares cookies be smuggling into the US? We must look very honest!

After about four hours in JFK Airport, we boarded PanAm again for a flight to Dallas. We arrived in DFW Airport a little late and rushed to find our departure gates. By now, it was 9:00pm and we were both exhausted. Edna took American Flight 109 to Houston, leaving at 9:54pm and arriving at Houston Intl at 10:45pm. I took American Flight 289 at 9:55pm and arrived in Oklahoma City at 10:39pm. Sure enough, there were my bags! I was sure they had goofed them up when I came through Customs in New York. Not to worry!

Actually, our trip went very, very smoothly! It was nice being able to put your bags outside your door each morning and let someone else worry about getting them to the next location. Our tour included all our hotel accommodations, breakfasts, most dinners, and tour fees. We had a large cross-country tour bus, which was quite comfortable. And, we had a pleasant companion to do special things with and keep each other company. Both of us like to sightsee and shop, and we could always find something to do. Our experience with the "tube" on our first day gave us a great deal of confidence. Their signs amused us somewhat - they do not have "Exit" signs, they have "Way Out" signs, for instance. We found that if one can read and follow instructions, one can go almost anywhere! We are both ready to go again!

Not having time in Northamptonshire was our only disappointment. It is not a tourist area. Stratford was the closest we came to being near Northampton, where our ancestors originated. We drove through Northamptonshire again on our way back into London, but had no opportunity to stop. It is lovely agrarian country, which must be seen!

CORRECTION - the relationship between Sue Hudgins 1315x13x615 and Ned Atteberry 1315x13x32, who camped next to each other at last year's reunion, was erroneously reported in Newsletter 85-3. There is only one generation between them - they are first cousins once-removed. Carelessness on the part of the editor! Such errors stand out if you pay attention to the numbers. Sorry!

FROM THE MAILBAG

1654681 Ken Brooks (Wayne to most of the family) had the honor of being photographed with President Reagan last March. Seems that Ken was one of 500 reporters invited to the White House - and one of 20 who were photographed as they shook hands with the President of the United States! Congratulations, Wayne! Their son, Mike 16546811, will be completing his MBA soon. Thanks, Janet, for the Christmas letter.

aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa

OTHER NEWS - Another MBA will be completed next month. 16546271 Dr. Joe Dunn, a clinical psychologist, will be adding another title after his name. Joe is with Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. He was home (Okla) March 21-23 to visit his parents and sister - and his paternal grandmother, who has just entered the Wood's Nursing Home in Waurika.

Nolan Mitchell, husband of Wilma 1654653, suffered a heart attack last month. After a week of rough going, he began recovering. He is now doing nicely and promises to "hang our sign" at the reunion again this year.

Wanda Chase 1654656 underwent surgery in Woodward on March 20th. Recuperation will take about six weeks - which will be a long time for active Wanda. Send her a card or letter.

Nadine Bass 1654623 retired from Halliburton's on January 3, 1986. She has had some health problems, but still loves to hear from her relatives. Give her a call sometime.

George Stelting, husband of Mary 1315x13x55, has accepted Jesus Christ as his personal savior and will be baptized in the Little Flower Roman Catholic Church in Oklahoma City during this year's Easter Vigil on March 30th.

aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa

BOOK REPRINT - a reprint of the first edition of our family book will be done this summer. An order form is enclosed for your convenience. The price is $50 postpaid. If you have previously requested a copy but have not sent a check, please do so before July 1.

Note that this is not a revision - just an exact copy of the book printed in 1984!

A revision of the book is not scheduled until after 1993 - Voncille's scheduled retirement year. Neither Voncille or Wilma are very eager to undertake a revision. For two years, Voncille spent more hours on the book than she did on a full-time employment position. Although not employed, Wilma spent just as much time. This is not to say that a revision will not be done.

An ongoing revision to the lineage charts is being made - both Wilma & Voncille maintain a working copy. Should you have any additions or corrections, please send them to your editor - using the numbering system used in the book. Newsletter 85-3 listed some questions for research help. Should circumstances of our mortal life prevent us from doing a revision, maybe someone else will take our work copies and do a revision.

NEW INFORMATION - Voncille has found evidence that her father, Claude 165462, was born near Ringgold TX rather than near Bulcher & Saint Jo. Ringgold is about six miles south of Terral OK, just across Red River. This places the family closer to Oklahoma. Claude was born in 1890. By 1892, when his sister Dovie was born, the family had crossed into Oklahoma - then known as Indian Territory.

FROM YOUR EDITOR - a word of caution! Another firm is selling an Attebery Family Album! The card came from American Genealogies Inc of Plainfield NJ and was signed by Elizabeth Ross. It appears to be like the one put out by Halberts Inc of Bath OH (Sharon Taylor), which is basically a directory of the names taken from telephone books around the country. Do not confuse it with a family lineage book.

DIRECTIONS TO THE REUNION SITE -

Exit I-40 at Exit #101 (sign will indicate Hinton and Anadarko).
Turn South on U.S. 281 through Hinton.
Red Rock Canyon State Park is just south of the city limits of Hinton.
Shelter #2 will be our site.

The Cherokee Motor Inn on Spur 281 at Exit 108 is recommended for those planning to stay overnight. Their restaurant is recommended for a good breakfast, also.

REUNION 1986 was a great success, measured in terms of enjoyment, but the attendance was down. Eighty-nine persons signed the register, a copy of which is attached. Your editor is of the opinion that more than 89 persons were there, but is unable to supply names.

The COVERED DISH DINNER at noon on Saturday was a great success as usual. From our matriarch, Mae Attebery Brooks 165468, comes the suggestion that next year we sit with someone we do not know at the dinner. Let's try it and see if we can become better acquainted with our enlarged family!

Association Directors were elected for 1987 and are listed above. Let your wishes be known through this group, which will meet in March to plan next year's reunion. The date has already been set at June 27, 1987, and the same Pavilion has been reserved at Red Rock Canyon.

The prize for the eldest again went to our matriarch, Mae Attebery Brooks 165468. The prize for the one traveling the farthest went to Michelle Renee Jarke 165465322, who came from Germany, where she is serving in the U.S. Air Force.

A pleasant surprise was the attendance of Nadine Atteberry Johansen and her husband, Harold, of Reeds Spring MO. Nadine descends from the line of Richard, as do many of our 16546 line through the Martin family. While the 16546 line descends through Jockey Tom 142, Nadine descends through Jockey Tom's brother, Asa 14x14 b 31 Dec 1805 SC, 14x14x3 William Reason Atteberry b 28 Oct 1834, 14x14x36 Sylvester Kelly Attebery b 21 July 1878, and 14x14x361 William Arthur Atteberry, her father, who is still living. Nadine graciously agreed to be one of our Directors - she even invited us to hold the reunion in Missouri!

If you did not attend the reunion, you missed a great day of visiting and fun. If you did not attend, or did not pay your dues at the reunion, please send your check for $5 for the '86-'87 dues to the editor.

A few weeks later, on Sunday, July 13th, another (more immediate) family reunion was held in Southeast Oklahoma. The family of Rufus Joseph Attebery 16555 held their first family reunion in the White building in Kingston OK. Four members of the original family were in attendance: Amanda Olive Attebery Simmons 165556; Ella Lee Attebery Robertson 165558; Della Jane Attebery 165559; and Dalton Attebery 16555x11.

From the family of Dorothy Attebery Swearingen 165552, were: Daughters, Oleta Hendrix, Mildred Cole and Willie Presley. Willie's husband, Purdom and her son & daughter-in-law, Billy Wayne & Shirley Presley, also attended.

From the family of Joseph Guy Attebery 165555, was his widow, Roxie Attebery.

From the family of James Norris Attebery 165557, were: His widow, Altha Attebery Golightly; sons, Joe Norris and Glen Douglas Attebery. Joe's wife, Peggy Roth, his daughter, Darlene Pittman, son-in-law, Ted Pittman, and grandchildren, Geary & Kimberly Pittman, also attended, as well as Glen's wife, Judith Ann.

From the family of Ella Attebery Robertson 165558, were: Ella, herself; son G.W. McAdoo and wife, Cora Lee; son Cecil Robertson, Jr.; grandson Ron McAdoo, his wife, Carly, & their children Cathryn & Russell (Ella's great-grandchildren).

From the Dalton Attebery 16555x11 family, were: Dalton and his wife, Edith; daughter, Rachel Sue Attebery; son John, his wife Gatha and daughters, Misty and April; and son Terry, his wife, Missy and their son Justin.

Vistors and old friends attending were: Shrader Corder, Prudil Corder, Helen Lasiter, Jane Willis, India Flynt, JoAnn Long, Albert Long, Opal Blakely, Mary Harris, Nadine Goff, Tom Goff, Walter Woods and Virgie White.

A total of 44 attended this new reunion, which they plan to make an annual affair. They had some entertainment: Terry Attebery, Dalton Attebery and Billy Presley sang solos and Misty Attebery played the violin. Afterwards, they had congregational singing.

Congratulations to the 16555 line! Maintain those renewed family ties.

The 16555 line is of particular interest to the 16546 line because they are the closest cousins we have found. Rufus Joseph Attebery 16555 and Robert Watts Attebery 16546 were first cousins - both men brought their families to Oklahoma from Texas. Both men were farmers and they lived less than 100 miles from each other. If they knew each other, none of the descendents are able to verify any communication between the two. They were both grandsons of Jesse Atterbury, who migrated to Texas ca 1843-44, bringing the fathers of the two men, Nathan Attebery 1654 and Churchwell Archibald Carter Attebery 1655. Nathan & Churchwell may have been the ones who changed the spelling to Attebery, since we found no evidence that Jesse ever used such spelling. The 16555 line descends from three of the original nine Atterbury brothers found in South Carolina in 1790. Jesse 165 was the son of John 16, and he married Levisa 186, the daughter of Thomas 18. Jesse & Levisa were the parents of Nathan & Churchwell. Churchwell 1655 married Amanda W. Atteberry 1388, who was his second cousin descending from Charles - a story very similar to the 165465 & 165466 lines, which married into the Martin family with an Attebery grandmother, Mary Ann Atterberry 14237, a descendant of Richard 14.

Thoroughly confused? Refer to your lineage chart in the book for further details. A special word of thanks to Joe Attebery 1655571 and his wife, Peggy, for supplying the details of their line and putting us in touch. When the book was being written, Joe & Peggy hosted a luncheon for the authors and their three aunts. Much was learned there.

Isn't family and genealogy neat?

Happy and sad news comes from the Tommie Martin Whitehead 1654661 line. A grandson, Bobby Dean White 165466131, was married on Friday, June 20, 1986, at the First Baptist Church in Walters to Kim Brown. Tommie reports a very lovely, touching wedding. Both Bobby and Kim are presently attending Cameron University, which is Tommie's alma mater.

The sad news is the loss of an 11-day-old child, Samantha Lea Whitehead, by Jon Whitehead 165466112 (Tommie's grandson) and his wife, Loanna, of Cordell. Our heartfelt sympathy to the entire family.

The widow of 1446239 Major Marion Francis Atteberry, USAF Retired, writes to let us know that he passed away on July 12, 1985, after a long battle with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. Marion was laid to rest with military honors at Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery, San Antonio, Texas. Our sympathy to the widow, Anna Spillman Atteberry. You will not find Marion Francis listed in the book, but you can identify his line from his father, William L. Attebury 144623. Much research has been done on this line, since Richard D. Attebury 1446 died so young leaving ten children.

From Oregon comes information from Vernon Chartier 144441422 that his niece, Dana L. Tucker, daughter of Patricia Jan Chartier Tucker 144441424, has graduated from Hillsboro High School in Portland, Oregon. Congratulations!

Vernon also sent a clipping from The Oregonian, dated April 8, 1986, about the Hillcrest Vineyard celebrating its silver anniversary in the Roseburg area of Oregon. During the March ceremonies, Fred Arterberry (number unidentified), a wine-maker at Arterberry Winery in McMinnville was awarded the Commander's Award by John Bauer, Portland Chapter commander of the Brotherhood of the Knights of the Vine. Bauer said, "We select ones we feel have performed substantial service to the Oregon wine industry. Fred was the first to make sparkling wine. Most of us feel sparkling wine has a great future in Oregon." Can anyone identify Fred?

REUNION 1986 is but a memory now and REUNION 1987 is just around the corner. Be sure your calendar is marked for June 27, 1987! Same location - Red Rock Canyon - same Pavilion and same format. Hopefully, many of the same faces and many new faces. If you missed last year, please try to join us this year. Your Association Directors will be meeting soon to finalize plans for the reunion. Let them know what you like (or do not like) and things you would like to see at the reunion.

A word of apology from your editor: She expresses regret that this newsletter did not get out in January, as she intended. Reason (or excuse): the Winter home was completely redecorated with new paint and new carpeting during December-January, and the typewriter could not be found! Neither could much of anything else, for that matter. Everything in the home was moved at least twice and most was moved four times - out and back for painting and out and back for carpeting. Thankfully, everything is back in place now and the upheaval was survived! Second - and more important - reason is a lack of material!

This year's Christmas cards brought little news and the mailbag has been practically empty since last summer. A newsletter with no news has no reason for existing. Please share your lives with your relatives. What seems dull to you may be very interesting to someone else. Just jot down your news - don't worry about typing or grammar - and send it to the editor. She is very good at reading handwriting of others, and will edit the material for you.

Our family line has come a long ways in achieving a renewal of family ties and solidarity. Let's not loose what we have gained!

aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa

A call came last week from a couple who were doing some research in Salt Lake City and came across our family book. He was a great-grandson of an Atteberry and wanted to know if we were extending the line that far.

The answer is "yes" at the present time. Both authors, Voncille Winter 1654626 and Wilma Mitchell 1654653, maintain a workbook of our lineage chart. Any new information is entered in the workbooks. Periodically, the two get together and update their books together. Plans are to reprint the lineage chart sometime in the future - probably about 1995, after Voncille has retired. A complete revision of the book is not planned - just the lineage chart.

At sometime in the future, a decision may have to be made as to when to cut off listings in the lineage chart - such as four or five generations from the name of Atterbury/Arterbury/Arterberry/Atterberry/Atteberry/Attebery. So far, we are not to that point.

There are no plans to do a third printing of the original book either. A few extras were made of the second printing, and ten are left. If you want a copy that includes the history of the family, you should contact the editor.

Alvin Arterbury 16x11x3563 called to report new information about his gr-gr-Uncle John 16x11x4. Alvin now has information that John's name was John Francis Marion Arterbury and that he served during the Civil War in Mississippi.

Alvin is to be commended for his research on the line of Elias Arterbury 16x11 - so little was known about that line. Elias was the youngest son of John 16, one of the nine brothers found in South Caroline on the 1790 Census. Elias was born in 1800 and John died in 1806. John's older sons migrated to Kentucky with their uncles and cousins, while Elias migrated with his mother's family - the Hills - to Alabama. Later, the descendants of Elias migrated into Mississippi, then Texas, and on into Oklahoma (Alvin was born and reared in Duncan). Elias' brother, Jesse 165, migrated from Kentucky to Missouri and then to Texas in the early 1840s. Two of Jesse's grandsons settled in Oklahoma and produced large families. The descends of those grandsons - Robert Watts Attebery 16546 and Rufus Joseph Attebery 16555 were mentioned in Newsletter 86-2.

Alvin grew up within 25 miles of about 40 fourth-cousins and never knew they existed. Your editor, who grew up at Waurika, well recalls the delight she felt when first she heard from him.

Keep up with the research, Alvin! Maybe we can get more cousins involved.

Ernest Rayburn, who some of you may remember meeting at our 1985 Reunion, is now in Naroibi, Kenya. Ernest descends from the line of Stephen Clement Atteberry 1426, who settled near Lancaster TX after serving in the Mexican War. He has promised the details of his lineage, but your editor has not yet received such. Nevertheless, Ernest is an interesting individual, whom we are all proud to claim as a cousin. He missed last year's reunion because he was in Australia at the time. Maybe he will write an article about Kenya for our newsletter. For those of you who would like to write to him, the address is: Ernest D. Rayburn, Expat - Kenya, P. O. Box 4381, Houston, TX 77210.

From Dorothy Ketter 14236293 of Dallas TX, comes an article from an Irving TX newspaper of last October, about a Darren Arterbury who plays football for the MacArthur Cardinals. From the article, Darren is quite good - can anyone identify his exact lineage?

On October 17, 1987, your editor was in San Diego to receive an award for Rose State College from the American Association of Community-Junio College for a Partnership between Rose State and Tinker Air Force Base. Voncille is the Director of the Management Training Center, which earned the award. While in San Diego, Voncille and her husband Bill were the guests of Barbara (16546232) and Paul Walker, who had been transferred to San Diego from Brookhaven MS in July. Barbara and Paul, with their daughter Mitzi, are treating their new life as an extended vacation. Their son, Sha (formally known as Paul Sharp Walker III), chose to return to Mississippi for his freshman year of college. Mitzi plans to follow next year.

Mitzi Walker 165462322 is a National Merit Semifinalist in the 1987 National Merit Scholarship Competition. Some 15,000 semifinalists were named and they will compete for 6,000 Merit Scholarships worth over $21 million. We fully expect Mitzi to be a winner! At Brookhaven MS, she was a member of the national honor society, a member of the 1986 academic decathlon team, selected as a superintendent's scholar and was a 1986 graduate of the Mississippi Governor's School.

Barbara and Paul are great hosts! As a special tribute to the Winters, who have hosted Thanksgiving reunions for the 165462 (Claude Attebery) line for some 33 years, they gathered in all the California relatives for a "mini-Thanksgiving" reunion in October. Bill & Voncille thoroughly enjoyed their visit! Barbara and her family were sorely missed at the 1986 Thanksgiving reunion of Claude's family.

From Greenbelt, Maryland, comes a letter from James E. Bates, who descends from the line of James H. Atterbury 1313. His letter points up one of the major problems of genealogy - what happens when you miss someone! Apparently, the authors missed his gr-gr-grandmother, Mary Emeline b 9 March 1831. How does he extend that line?

How did this happen? Remember that the lineage chart was taken from an accumulation of family charts prepared by others. It has not been completely "proven." Almost every line had two or more versions of names and birth dates. The line of James 1313 appeared incomplete because of the age difference between Preston 13131 and 13132 Emily. The assumption was made, however, that Emily and Mary Emeline were one and the same. Apparently this was incorrect, as James Bates has a letter dated February 12, 1855, which reports the marriage of "Em". He also has proof of his Mary Emeline being married on December 30, 1845 - at the age of fourteen!

What to do about the lineage chart? As incomplete as 1313 lineage is, the best solution will be to renumber the line to include Mary Emeline. Maybe by the time the lineage chart is reprinted, James will have been able to fill in the rest of the line between Preston and Emily. He is retired and actively doing genealogical research. He lives within ten miles of William's Maryland plantation! Maybe he will provide us with pictures and more details.

From California, Lavern Thrash Winnett 1386125 writes that she is seeking proof of the parentage of Mary and Sarah Ann Atterberry, both married to Russell Albert Maberry/Mabry/Mayberry. Reportedly, they were sisters. Mary was the second wife and she died ca 8 Dec 1852, three days after the birth of her second son, Albert Pickney Mabry.

Sarah Ann Atterberry was the third wife of Russell Albert Maberry. Apparently, she had one daughter, named Mary Ann. Mayberry died ca 1865 in a military camp in Louisiana. Sarah asked for a settlement of the estate in Ellis County TX in 1872. No further action was reported to the courts.

If you can help Lavern, please write her at 229 Parkway, Santa Cruz, CA 95062.

Minnie Richburg 138967 has been doing some research. She sent some pictures from the Lenand Cemetery of Lenand TX and the Hogeeye Cemetery near Celeste TX, both in Hunt County TX.. Some of that line married into the Lewis family. Many of you will recall that one of our great mysteries is the parentage of Nancy Ann Lewis, who was the mother of Robert Watts Attebery 16546.

Louella Cravens 1321337 reports the following news from 1986:

Dr. Thomas Donald Cravens 13213371 has moved from Michigan State University to Loyola College in Baltimore as a Professor of Foreign Language. Tom was born 5 August 1940 (not given in the lineage chart). On May 6, 1982, he was married to Marjut of Turku, Finland.

Deaths during 1986: Dorothy Attebery, widow of Charles Attebery 1321322
Edith Attebery, widow of Homer Attebery 1321323,
Dorcas Rainey Myers, daughter of Marshall Rainey 1321344

Joleen Crowe Steele 16546551 reports a wonderful vacation back to Virginia last summer for a Steele family reunion. They traveled through Oklahoma, to visit Joleen's aunts (missed our reunion, however), and Tennessee, where Joleen saw some of her father's family that she had not seen since she was two years old. They toured Williamsburg and Washington DC, and thoroughly enjoyed it all. Back in California, they joined a living history reenactment group depicting the Civil War. The group meets monthly, usually in a nice park. One event was the Blue and Grey Ball held in Columbia CA, which is a national park. Brent dressed in a Civil War uniform of a private in the First Virginia Volunteers and Joleen was dressed in a taffeta ball gown (which she made) complete with hoops, snood, hat, gloves, etc.. How nice that our younger generations are interested in history!

Two sisters, Voncille Winter 1654626 and Ruth Dunn 1654627, from the plains of Southern Oklahoma made a trip to Gatlinburg TN in late October. As they marveled at the scenic beauty and drove the mountain roads, one said to the other "What do you suppose we would have thought about this country if we had made this trip when we were 7-8 years old?" The other replied, "We wouldn't have seen it - we would have been in the floor of the back seat with our heads covered!" How the lives of the Attebery family have changed over the years!

The REUNION 1987 will be held on JUNE 20, 1987 not on June 27th as reported in Newsletters 86-2 and 87-1!!!!!! Please change the date on your calendar immediately.

Your editor submits her most humble apology for this error. Many explanations could be offered, but none change the fact that you have been misled. We did want the 27th - and tried for it, but did not get that date.

If this error causes anyone a great deal of problems, such as changing vacation dates, etc., let us know. We'll beat the editor with a wet noodle! Better yet, we may fire her!

Another correction of Newsletter 86-2 comes from Louella Cravens 1321337. Her son, Dr. Thomas Donald Cravens 13213371, was born 5 August 1948 (not 1940). He is married to Marjut Salo of Turku, Finland. Apparently, your editor read an 8 as a 0! We really may have to do something about her! Again, she offers apology.

From Nadine Attebery Johansen:

Nadine writes that they will not be able to attend the 1987 Reunion, but are sending a copy of the video they made last year. She and her husband have two new great-grandchildren: a boy NICHOLAS and a girl ALYSSA born in Dec & Jan. Since we do not have her children's lineage, this is all the information we can furnish at this time. She also writes "could have told you about our trip to Norway, the land of my husband's ancestry, where we visited with several of his cousins. And, then on to the Land of Midnite sun and then to Europe, taking ferries and trains, hauling our luggage and a Video camera which weighed 15 pounds when we started and 150 after the first week out. Harold had his pocket picked in a subway in Paris, in spite of all the warnings given to 'beware.' We were aboard a train in Germany during a drug bust, where they discovered a cache in the compartment next to us, which doberman pinchers ferreted out. It was just after the terrorist scares. Fares went way down, so we decided to risk it and go. We were well protected with armed guards most everywhere."

From Lorene Taylor 1522933:

Lorene sent some corrections for the lineage chart and some additions, also. Thank you so very much, Lorene! Lorene is 84 years young, and still very active in genealogy.

From Wilma Attebery Mitchell 1654653:

Emery Lee Martin 142374x14, b 28 Feb 1914 at Temple OK, died 3 Jan 1987 at Duncan OK. He was a grandson of Mary Ann Attebery Martin 14237.

Mitzi has returned to Brookhaven, Mississippi, to finish her Senior year and graduate with her classmates of twelve years. Her parents, Paul and Barbara 16546232 Walker, are still in California trying to wean themselves from their children.

After much visiting and a family dinner, the Directors sat down to make plans for this year's reunion while the spouses found entertainment elsewhere. REUNION 1987 was another success, despite the apprehensiveness most everyone felt during the preceding week of storms. The storm on Friday night seemed to clear the air. The water all ran off and the little stream was not up, the sun came out beautifully, and a cool breeze blew most of the day. Eighty-two persons signed the register, a copy of which is attached. As usual, the group took on its own special personality and was different from the '86 group. Many who attended in 1986 were not there for this year's reunion and many who were not there in 1986 were able to come for 1987. This flexibility may be the best argument for having annual reunions.

Missing this year was the matriarch of the 16546 (Robert Watts Attebery) line, Mae Attebery Brooks 165468. We missed her and trust she will be able to come for REUNION 1988.

Nadine Atteberry Johansen 14x14x3611 was also missing this year, but she sent the video tape that she made at REUNION 1987. The tape was shown throughout the day, courtesy of Jack Wilkerson, husband of Ann 16546521. Jack also shot some video film, so he will probably have some more film to show next year. Thanx your, Jack!

Like all the other spouses of the directors, Jack has assumed many of the duties required to make the reunion a success. Directorship really turns into a family affair. A special note of thanks to Nolan Mitchell for providing tables and chairs and cleaning the area. Nolan also made the "Attebery Reunion" sign we use each year. Jay Chase provides us with a microwave oven each year, a generous supply of ice (although others bring ice too) from his self-made ice machine, and is always there to help with the cleaning, rearranging and loading & unloading. Other smpecial thanks go to Bill Winter, husband of your editor, and Laverne Wood, wife of Arlie 1654634. Spouses like this have helped make the family what it is today. Young Daniel Gill brought the PA system and operated it! Thanks, Daniel.

Association Directors were elected for 1988 and are listed aböve. Let your wishes be known through this group, which will meet in March '88 to plan next year's reunion. The date has already been set at June 18, 1987, and plans are to have the same Pavilion at Red Rock Canyon. Reservation cannot be made until January 1, however, so a necessary change could occure. Watch your newsletter for details.

The prize for the eldest attending this year's reunion went to Wilma Atterbury Wolfe 1446254, who came from Wylie TX. A three-way split occurred in the prize for those traveling the farthest: Opal Atteberry Stewart 1315x13x31 came from San Leandro CA for her first trip to a reunion, Clint Bragg, Jr. came from Castro Valley, CA, and Sarah J. Walters came from the same area, but did not list her hometown. The prize for the youngest attending went to Matthew Grover Crum 1315x13x5431, who joined our tribe on 2 Feb 1987.

If you did not attend the reunion, you missed a great day of visiting and fun. Games and swimming occupied much of the group during the afternoon.

Another family reunion took place on July 18, 1987. The ATTEBERRY REUNION was held at the Granger Park, room 109, Garland Rd. & Ave F, Garland TX from 2:00-7:00 pm on Saturday. A swimming pool and basketball courts were available. The reunion was hosted by Jeannie & Danny Woods, descendants of 144622 George Marshall Atterbury. This has been an annual affair for many, many years according to Wilma Wolfe, who is one of George's nieces and who attends regularly. Hopefully, enough information can be furnished for George's line to be extended in the book.

The family of Rufus Joseph Attebery 16555 have not reported on a reunion this year, but had planned to make their's an annual affair, too. Give us a report from Southeast Oklahoma.

TRIP TO NORTHEAST 5/30/87 - 6/5/87 by Wanda Attebery Chase 1654656

Jay stayed home to work, do his own cooking, and (best of all) play a lot of golf.

These National Women's Bowling trips always start with bowling first and usually we don't do too well. This year, we had placed in the team event as well as the other team that drove to Hartford, Connecticut. Our impression of Hartford and surrounding area was that it was a pretty place, but as a whole the people were not too friendly. A lot of them in the work force overcharged some of the bowlers that didn't have accommodations and cab fees in writing from WIBC, as we did.

We took a bus, after we had flown to Hartford and finished our bowling, to Washington, D.C.. We wanted to see some of the States that we had never seen. Three groups in cars went on their way to separate vacations and the three of us who flew went on the bus. We went to New Jersey, Penn., Maryland, Delaware, New York and, while in Washington, D.C., we went to Virginia and then flew to Chicago and home.

In Washington, D.C., we were fortunate to be staying in Ramada Central, which is within walking distance of downtown and the White House area and The Smithsonian. Our first full day was spent walking through town to the White House. While we waited for our tour to go through the White House, we walked to the Washington Memorial and around the Ellipse where young people were playing baseball in one spot and soccer in another. It is a great place to take young people and ones who don't mind walking. We then bought some lunch to each in the bleachers, while we waited for our tour of the White House, and we were entertained by a group of young musicians. That day we fell into bed at 7:00 pm, but we were too tired to sleep. The next morning we were picked up by a Grayline Bus for a tour, on which our first major stop was Mount Vernon. I had difficulty making it back up hill after the jaunt to the boat dock where George Washington kept his boat. It was a very worthwhile trip. Other than our tour fee, a lot of things were free, so you can see a lot without spending a large amount of money. We went to Alexandria, Virginia, to the fourth oldest city in the United States. We saw the place where Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis lived, the oldest church that was attended by George Washington, which has had regular weekly church services since 1773 and is called "Christ Church."

The architecture was interesting. We saw one house that was totally flat on the back because of strict easement regulations, one house with 2½ sets of windows because the man did not want to pay taxes on a third story (he put part of it below ground and there are two sets of regular-sized windows and one set of half-windows). Another house was built by a man for his daughter, who was 35 and unmarried. Her groom-to-be insisted that she have a house for her dowry, so her father built the house between his house and the one next door. There was only space for an alley, so the house is built straight up and very narrow, but there were many rooms and bathrooms.

We then went to Arlington. After a thorough drive through it in a small trolley-like vehicle, we stopped for a rainy walk to President Kennedy's grave and Robert Kennedy's very plain and restful grave marked only by a small white cross. We then walked to the Vietnam Memorial Wall. The rain caused a glare, making it hard to read and difficult to take pictures. We had been fortunate that it only started to rain that one afternoon about 3:00 pm. We also went to the Lincoln Memorial, which is very moving as he is so life-like. We then toured the city - past all the Embassies, the Senate, the House of Representatives, another pass by the White House, Washington Memorial, Treasury DEpt., Smithsonian, etc.

The next day we had planned a whole day for The Smithsonian, as there are so many different buildings. We only made it through three or four and to the Capital steps, and we decided we had better head back. We did stop downtown at the Marriott to eat, and found several types of eating places and some shops. We also sat across from the Willard Inter-Continental Hotel to see who was being picked up by about a dozen limousines, but we finally gave up because no one famous came out.

The next afternoon was our trip home!

LETTER FROM MICHELLE JARKE 165465322 with the US Air Force in Germany

Dear Grandmother & Granddaddy (Wilma & Nolan Mitchell),

Hi - sorry it's taken me so long to get back to you - but now I've got stories to tell you! And, I'm sorry I didn't get your card to you on time, Grandmother, but I was in Switzerland, and I was thinking of you on your birthday!

How are you both doing? Did the family reunion go well? Who was able to make it this year.

We got a 3-day weekend for the 4th of July, so 2 friends and I drove to Paris. We went to the top of the Eiffel Tower, and the city is so big that we couldn't see the end of it because of smog. But it was perfect weather, and we did a lot of sightseeing on foot. We walked from the Louvre to the Eiffel Tower, which took about 1½ hours!....I was amazed at how big the Louvre was! The building used to be a palace, built in the 1200s (I Think), and the museum only takes up about half of the building. We spent almost two hours in there and didn't see everything. They have Greek, Roman & Egyptian artifacts, as well as paintings and statues.

We also drove in the traffic circle around the Arc of Triumph - That was such a headache.

There were a lot of black people from Barbados there, and Filipinos, and Arabs. And, of course, the college kids from America were everywhere! We went into a Burger King our last day there (we were almost out of money!), and that was the best fast food I've ever had! Gourmet de Burger King!....

Summer has just started here. It rained for 43 days before we saw the sun. Even Noah only got 40!....We've now had one whole week of sun & hope it stays awhile.

Will you please do what you did 2 years ago and mail me your pictures from the family reunion, and I'll mail them back. And, do you have a picture of you both that I can have? I miss you so much.....

I got another letter from the government asking that I tell them when I want to leave Hahn. I'm tempted to tell them that I want to leave this Fall, but I don't think they'd let me - that's kind of short notice. Besides, I'm not anxious to leave my friends and the German families that have "adopted" me. One of my "Moms" told me that she likes having Americans at her house, because she likes to think that an American family would be kind to her kids if they went to the States. She's a sweet lady!

Comments about finances:

Newsletter 87-1 was subsidized by Don Attebery, who provided the copying.
 Newsletter 87-2 was funded by Voncille Winter, as self-imposed punishment for reporting the wrong Reunion '87 date.
 Only $95 was paid in dues at the Reunion, and we can expect next year's Pavilion rent to be more than $30.

If you have not paid your '87-'88 dues, which are only $5 per household, please send them in.

Some clippings from The Dallas Morning News of April 9-10, 1987, were mailed to the Attebery Family Association with no return address. The clipping gave an account of a Carl Ray Atteberry, who murdered his girlfriend, wounded a police officer, and then killed himself.

To whichever line this sick young man belonged, goes our sincere sympathy. Few of us are 100% mentally and emotionally healthy, and there is more emotional illness in our society than many like to think. Our family has had no more than other families of such illness. Unfortunately, the healthy family members must do a lot of suffering, too. If you know Carl's immediate family, please extend the condolences from the entire family.

aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa

Two deaths are noted from the newspapers. A Charles Carlton Attebery, 63, died on May 25, 1987, at the VA Hospital in Oklahoma City, and was buried in the Wanette Cemetery. He was the son of Clyde & Juanita Attebery, and left a wife, Grace, & three sons, Rick, Stanley & Martin.

The other death was that of O. D. Atteberry, 74, of Duncan, OK. He was born in Coalgate, OK. He left a wife and a son, Roger D. Atteberry of Houston TX.

Neither of these men are identified in our lineage chart; however, they are both believed to be from a relatively close line. Can you identify them?

1988 is here and another great year is ahead of us! 1987 is gone - let's forget the bad parts (all the heartaches, disappointments, financial problems, etc.) and take only the good memories forward to 1988!

REUNION 1988 has been set for June 25th. Same place - Red Rock Canyon - but at a different Pavilion. This year we will have Shelter 5, which will be further South than #2 which we have used for several years. Wilma Mitchell 1654653 tried to keep #2, but she was no match for the "good ole brother-in-law" system firmly in place in the state parks organization. Let's take a positive attitude and make the assumption that we will like Shelter #5 even better!

Your Association Directors will meet in March to finalize the plans for this year's reunion. Let them know your wishes! Is there any musical talent out there someone is hiding? We do need to beef up the entertainment protion of our reunion.

aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa aaaa

The 165462 family (descendants of Claude Attebery) gathered again this year at the country home of Bill & Voncille Winter in Atoka County. Only three of the sisters were there - Nell with her husband, O. E. King; Edna with her husband, Arlen Ward, and their daughter, Vonda Ward; and Voncille & Bill Winter. Both of their brother Oliver (1654621)'s children were there with their families: Linda Attebery Cooper, with her husband Eldon, son Craiton, and daughter Carolyn; and Adele Attebery Martin, with her son, Brian. This line has been gathering at Thanksgiving sine 1953! Missing this year were some of the second and third generations AND the eldest of the group - Nadine Attebery Bass 1654623. Nadine had a total hip replacement on November 4, 1987, and carpal tunnel surgery on both hands within the next three weeks. She spent Thanksgiving in the Rehab Institute of Oklahoma. On December 4, Nadine went to Louisiana to live near her son, H. D. "Buster" Bass, and his family. Her present address is: Greenbriar Nursing Home, 505 Robert Road, Slidell, LA 70458. She would love to hear from all of you. She may not respond because writing is difficult for her, but she would appreciate a card or letter. Other than the complications of arthritis, she is doing quite well.

Ernest David Rayburn 14265146 (this number is not in your book - he is a great-grandson of Annie M. Atteberry) has sent an excellent extension of his line. Thanks, Dave. The extension will be included in the revision of the lineage chart. In the meantime, if you need any details, let me know. Dave is still in Kenya and has promised to send some interesting information on East Africa. When he does, it will be included in the newsletter.

LETTER from Janet Bragg re her trip to Germany (slightly edited)

". . . Michelle sent me a Sato ticket, which is a discounted one available only to immediate family members of Armed Forces personnel. I left OKC April 23rd for Chicago and an 8-hr flight to Frankfurt. Michelle met my plane and we drove three hours to Enkirch, the village where she lives. Her apartment building is on the side of a hill overlooking the Masel River. I recovered from jet lag by sitting on her terrace watching boats go up and down stream. The people there are wine-makers and the hills are covered with vinyards. The area is called the Hunsbruck.

Michelle didn't have a car the first 10 days of my visit. But, we managed to borrow one for a few hours each day. We visited Crier several times. There were areas of Roman Ruins there and good shopping. I bought the white lace curtains every good hausfrau has in her front windows, also got tapestry for pillows and hangings. Clothes were much more expensive than Oklahoma. But gold & silver jewelry was reasonable (cheap!).

Michelle & I did a lot of hiking around Enkirch & visited Castle Ruins. We also walked to local wineries and tasted their products. It was hard for me to walk home tho! German wine and beer is much stronger than what I'm used to! I probably put 250 miles on my new Reeboks.

Most every day Michelle & I went to a different ethnic restaurant. I ate a lot of pizza, but my favorite cafes were German. I gained 12 pounds while in Germany.

After Michelle got her car, it broke down so we cancelled our trip to Switzerland. But, I didn't know what I missed, as the area where I was staying is so beautiful. I was happy just being there and being with my daughter!

Michelle and I went to Hahn AFB, where she is stationed, and she explained to me her job and how a E-16 jet plane engine is tested. I was treated like visiting royalty on the Airbase.

My last week there, I applied for a Visa to visit France, but found out it would be issued after I was on my way home. France started this Visa thing to keep the terrorists out, but I believe it keeps out more tourists! So, I didn't make a European tour, but I had the best time of my life.

Michelle and I got stuck in heavy traffic on the Autobahn - and I missed my plane back to Chicago. So, I ended up in J.F.Kennedy Airport, NYC, with no connecting flight. New Yorkers do not speak English! I felt like I was still in a foreign country! Anyway, 14 hours later I had gotten as far as Dallas and felt like I was touring the U.S.A.. Finally, me and my five bags made it home and I can't wait to go back! . . ."

Thanks, Michelle, for sharing your trip with us. To those of you who have recently taken a trip or are planning one, please remember your home-bound relatives and share your memories with us. It will brighten our lives and you will have a written record for yourself. You'll be glad you took the time!

From Alvin Arterbury 16x11x3563, who continues to do research on his line, comes some additional information about John Arterbury 16x11x4, b ca 1829 Dallas Co AL, shown on p 334 of our book. Alvin has found the military records for John, which indicate he enlisted in the Confederate Army on August 1, 1862 under the name of John Francis Marion Arterbury. He was a Private in Co. B., 6 Reg't Mississippi. He was captured in battle at Fort Gibson, Mississippi on May 1, 1863, and was exchanged on June 12, 1863, at Richmond. At the end of October 1863, he was absent from a 3 day pass granted October 7, 1863. At the end of December 1863, he was under arrest and had been court-martialed. The payroll report for July-August 1864 states that he had not been paid since October 31, 1863, and that he deserted in the night of the 17th of July. "Supposed to have gone to the enemy." More likely, he chose to go home to be with his wife and two small children! The Confederate Army (and the Union Army, to some extent) had trouble keeping their troops together when they could no longer pay them or support their families.

Although John entered the Army as Arterbury, his pay records mostly reflect Arterberry or Arterbery! What a time we have had with the spelling of that name! Thanks, Alvin, for the information. This John Francis Marion Arterbury may have been claimed by several other lines. We appreciate your identifying him correctly.

More new research data comes from James E. Bates, 16 Woodland Way, Greenbelt, Maryland 20770:

".... Solomon Mulkey and Mary Emeline Attebery were my great-great-grandparents. Mary Emeline was a daughter of James Attebery, #1313 in your book. You have not listed her as a daughter. I enclose a copy of the marriage certificate of Solomon Mulkey and Emeline Arterberry from Lafayette County, Missouri. I also enclose a letter from James and Mary Attebery to their daughter in Oregon.Comparing the people mentioned in their letter with page 217 of your book, I would believe that "Em" is 13132, Betsy Ann is 13134, Johnathan is 13133, Preston is 13131. Rachel is Preston's wife, and this letter informs Mary Emeline of the birth of their son, William S. 131314. I wonder if Martha Ann might be another daughter. Mary Emeline was born 9 March 1831 in Kentucky. She died 17 June 1896 in Oregon. There seems room for several other children between Preston and Mary Emeline. If one adopts your numbering scheme for Mary Emeline's descendants, what number do we assign to her?...."

Your editor's reply:

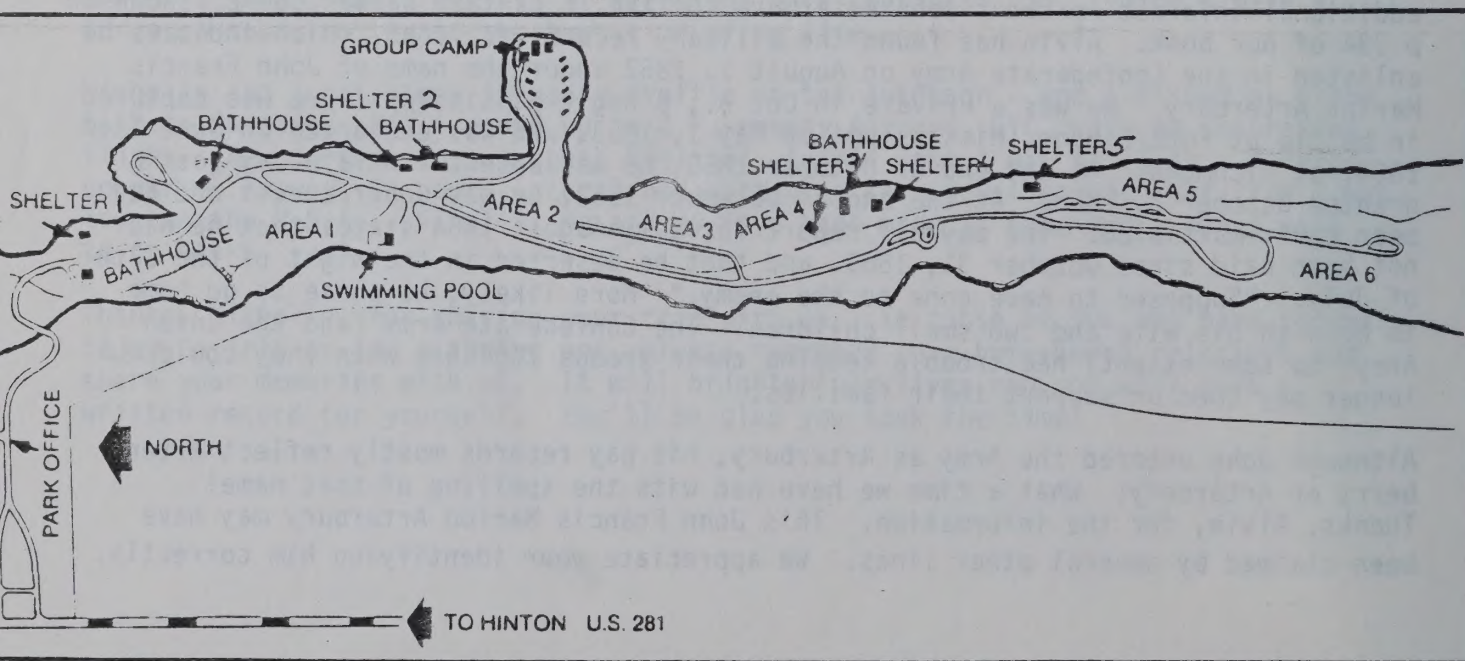

"....I'm sorry that Mary Emeline was not listed as a daughter of James 1313. We assumed she was Emily 13132, listed on the 1850 Census. All of the children listed for James 1313, except Preston, were taken from the 1850 Census records.There was a report that Isaiah had migrated to Texas - never proven. There definitely was a James there in 1848 & 1855. The name of Preston Attebery appears in a small notebook that my grandfather, Robert Watts Attebery 16546 b 1861 carried. Note that Preston H 131318 was born 1861-62. Did they know each other? We have found no other reference to a Preston Attebery in Texas.

If you can help James further verify the children of James 1313, please write to him. He has done a great deal of work on his line and has promised to share it with us.

Another relative working on a stumbling block is Jeanne D. Bussell, 920 E. Sixth Street, Cookeville, TX 38501. Jeanne is trying to prove that Sarah Elizabeth Atterbury Hamilton, b 1793 SC was the daughter of James Atterbury 19. If you can help Jeanne, please write to her.

Voncille Winter 1654626

REUNION 1988 was another great success! All who attended had a great time and we missed those who couldn't make it. Two of our matriarchs were missing this year. Anna Mae Attebery Brooks 165468 sent word that she could not attend and would probably not be able to make any future reunions. We missed you, Aunt Mae, and our thoughts and prayers are with you! Clara Hanson Brock 1315x13x11 was also missing. Clara has since had back surgery. She is in McBride Hospital, recuperating nicely. Give her a call or send a card - she will probably be home by the time you receive this newsletter.

In the absence of Mae and Clara, the prize for the eldest member present went to Minnie Brummett Richburg 138967, who was born 29 December 1911. The gift was a cookbook published in Walters OK during the 1930s. The advertisements therein were as interesting as the recipes. Many old familiar names and phone numbers with only two digits. Some businesses had no phones!

Prizes for the youngest: members of the group went to Alberto Vincent Quesada 1315x13x5621, born in May 1988, and to Matthew Grover Crum 1315x13x5431, born 2 February 1987. Welcome to our family, boys!

The prize for the member traveling the greatest distance to come to the reunion went to Clint Bragg, Jr., who came from Castro Valley, California. A special gift went to Marie Bush, the grandmother of Rollie & Michael Fansler, in recognition of her years of attendance and bringing her grandsons for them to better know their paternal relatives. Their mother, who was Marie's daughter, passed away in 1972 when the boys were only four and eight years of age. See p 319 in the book for this family.

Pavalion # 5 was small and we missed the space of # 2, but it is apparently gone for good to those with more political clout than the Attebery Clan. Pavalion # 5 has been reserved again for 1989 for June 17, 1989. The Park is a popular area and has the advantage of being relatively centrally located for those in Northwest Oklahoma and Central Oklahoma. That doesn't mean that other sites shouldn't be considered. If you have suggestions, please contact your Association Director. They are all listed above.

One thing missing from our reunions is a planned entertainment. Everyone seems to be hiding their talents - surely there is some out there! Please volunteer yourself or some known talent for a program for 1989. Let's make it the best reunion ever!

The above report gives our financial status before any dues were paid at the reunion this year. At the reunion, $90 in dues were paid and we received a $10 refund on the Pavilion rent. Another item of interest is dues collections during the last few years: '85-'86 $195; '86-'87 $230; '87-'88 $175. We are in good shape financially only because we have not been paying for the copying of the newsletters. A four-page newsletter costs 20¢ to copy, or $35 for 175 copies.

If you did not attend the reunion or forgot to pay your dues while you were there, please send your dues in. Dues are $5 per household and are due in June of each year.

On July 10, 1988, Wilma & Nolan Mitchell and Voncille & Bill Winter attended the Southeast Oklahoma Attebery Reunion at Kingston OK. This reunion is primarily the family of Rufus Joseph Attebery 16555, who settled in the Kingston/Madill area in the early 1900s. Less than 100 miles to the West, a first cousin of Rufus Joseph was settling in Jefferson County on a 160 acre homestead. The cousin was Robert Watts Attebery 16546, the grandfather of many of your Association Directors. Your editor was born and reared on the homestead just mentioned.

Four of the children of Rufus Joseph 16555 are still living. Amanda Simmons 165556 was not in attendance. She is in a nursing home and will turn 90 on November 21st. Ella Robertson 165558, b 18 Feb 1903; Della Attebery 165559, b 8 Aug 1905; and Dalton Attebery 16555x11, b 12 Dec 1911, were all in attendance and very much an active part of the group. Dalton is their President. Singing, story-telling and visiting rounded out their day.

While a list of attendees is not available, your editor does remember that the two sons of James Norris Attebery 165557 were there with their families. The sons are: Joe Attebery 1655571 and Glyn Attebery 1655572. A son of John Long 165511 and his wife were also there. How nice to see families keep in touch!

IN MEMORY OF

Bertha M. Ward

Bertha Ward was the lovely mother-in-law of Edna Attebery Ward 165462x12. Your editor had the privilege of knowing Mrs. Ward and having her in her home. She was a classic frontier lady!
Born in Iowa in 1891, she was married at the age of 17 and moved to Minnesota in a covered wagon. She and her husband built three homesteads from raw land. Mrs. Ward was the mother of eleven children, five of whom preceded her in death. She maintained a home of her own until 2½ years before her death at the age of 96.

The following poem was read at her services:

Do not stand at my grave and weep,
I am not there, I do not sleep,
I am a thousand winds that blow,
I am the diamond's glint on the snow
I am the sunlight on the ripened grain,
I am the autumn's rain,
When you awake in the morning's hush,
I am the soft stars that shine at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry,
I am not there. I did not die.

FROM THE MAILBAG

Pauline & Tulsa Keith have moved from their home of many years on SW 11th. Their new address is 2133 S. W. 66th, Oklahoma City, OK 73159. Best wishes for many happy years at the new address. Pauline's number is 1654633.

A note from Hansen Martin 1654662 (known in California as Art, Mort or Arthur) promises to make a reunion one of these days. Let's hope it is 1989.

From Luella Cravens 1321337 comes a note about her new granddaughter (details later) and an inquiry about Don Barry of Denver. Don married Myrna Helen Attebery Gray 1654659 on 30 November 1985. He came into the family too late to be in the book. Luella is researching a Barry line on her mother's side. Myrna, will you or Don please write Luella at 210 Brown St., Brighton, Ill 62012 about Don's lineage. Luella, their address is 9609 Pecos St., Denver CO 80221. Let us know if there is a connection.

From Vernon L. Chartier 144441422 comes an article about his nephew, Kevin Poe, whose number would be 1444414231 if he were listed in the lineage chart. Kevin is the lead dancer in the Broadway production of "CATS" in New York City. Kevin attended the San Francisco School of Arts for three years. After graduation, he joined the Houston Ballet Company. Later he spent a year in Vienna before returning to Texas as the principal dancer for the Dallas Ballet Company. Last summer he performed in CATS in Amsterdam. Kevin's character is Mr. Mistoffellees, who is seen in L'eggs advertisement of pantyhose. His parents made trips to Vienna and Amsterdam to see him perform. Perhaps they will share the experiences of their trips with us.

From Louie W. Attebery 1428854 (improperly shown in the book as 1428613) comes a curriculum vitae on his daughter, Bobby Lou Attebery Heagerty. It is impressive and quite lengthy. She is Administrative Director of Education and Family Support Service, Neurological Sciences Center, Good Samaritan Hospital and Medical Center, Portland, Oregon, and holds a Master of Arts in Special Education from the University of Oregon.

From Mae Attebery Brooks 165468 comes some words of wisdom for all of us. The writing is not original and those of us in education are familiar with it, but it is so good that it bears repeating -

All I Ever Really Needed to Know I learned in Kindergarten by Robert Fulghum

Most of what I really need to know about how to live, and what to do, and how to be, I learned in kindergarten. Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate school mountain but there in the sandbox at nursery school.

These are the things I learned: Share everything. Play fair. Don't hit people. Put things back where you found them. Clean up your own mess. Don't take things that aren't yours. Say you're sorry when you hurt somebody. Wash your hands before you eat. Flush. Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you. Live a balanced life. Learn some and think some and draw and paint and sing and dance and play and work every day some.

Take a nap every afternoon. When you go out into the world, watch for traffic, hold hands and stick together. Be aware of wonder. Remember the little seed in the plastic cup. The roots go down and the plant goes up and nobody really knows how or why, but we are all like that.

Goldfish and hamsters and white mice and even the little seed in the plastic cup - they all die. So do we.

And then remember the book about Dick and Jane and the first word you learned, the biggest word of all: LOOK. Everything you need to know is in there somewhere. The Golden Rule and love and basic sanitation. Ecology and politics and sane living.

Think of what a better world it would be if we all - the whole world - had cookies and milk about 3 o'clock every afternoon and then lay down with our blankets for a nap. Or if we had a basic policy in our nation and other nations to always put things back where we found them and cleaned up our own messes. And it is still true, no matter how old you are, when you go out into the world, it is best to hold hands and stick together.

Thanks, Aunt Mae & Uncle Carlton. We will try to use that wisdom in our own lives.

The Daily Oklahoman of January 14th carried an article entitled "Society Seeks Oklahoma's 'First Families'". The Oklahoma Genealogical Society has established a First Families of the Twin Territories program, open to all those whose Indian or pioneer ancestors predated Statehood anywhere within the present Oklahoma boundaries. To be eligible for membership, a person must prove each generation of lineage back to an ancestor who lived in one of the territories on or before Nov 16, 1907. A lifetime membership fee in the organization is $25. Several of our lines qualify for membership. If you are interested, the address is: Oklahoma Genealogical Society, P. O. Box 12986, Oklahoma City, OK 73157. If you need help in proving your line, let one of your Association Directors help you.

The family of Joleen Crowe Steele 16546551 had an interesting vacation last Fall. Correction - she wrote in the Fall, but their vacation was in June & July. She wrote ".... My husband Brent, our four children (Beth 9, Tim 7, Chris 2 & Sarah Ann 6 mo), and I went by camper from Felton CA to Washington DC & back. Our first stop was Gettysburg PA, where we participated in the 125th Anniversary of Gettysburg Reenactment. There were approximately 12,000 reenactors participating and 50-60,000 spectators.

"We spent 4 days encamped in an authentic-looking Civil War battlefield camp. We participated in some living history demonstrations, such as quilting. Later, when I came to Oklahoma & shared my enthusiasm for learning how to quilt, my Aunt Sis (Wilma Mitchell 1654653) gave me her quilt frame. I was thrilled beyond belief & it was fun to hear about my great-grandmothers and grandmothers who loved to quilt, too. I feel like I'm carrying on a family tradition.

"While at the Gettysburg reenactment, I trudged many miles with my four children around the camps; in long skirts & hoops. It gave me a fresh appreciation for my pioneer ancestors - How did they manage the farms & lots of children in those darn hoops & long skirts, anyway?! And I had the ease of returning to our camper each night. We saw several Civil War battlefields, Fort Frederick in particular (George Washington was there during the Revolutionary War).

"We toured Washington D.C. for two days and experienced the awesome spectacle of seeing the most beautiful fireworks display with the Washington Monument in the foreground... ."

Thanks Joleen for your descriptive narrative of your trip. Can you bring your pictures to the 1989 Reunion?

Mary Atteberry Stelting 1315x13x55 made the news at Christmas time with her acts of charity. The following is part of an article from The Daily Oklahoma of 17 Dec 1988:

Mary Stelting is a member of Little Flower Catholic Church at 1125 S Walker in a poor and primarily Hispanic southside neighborhood.

"I'm very involved in the church, but going to church is not enough. You've got to be involved in your community and know its needs," Mary Stelting said.

Earlier this year, La Familia Unida, a Hispanic-community pilot ministry sponsored by Catholic Social Ministries, was shut down because of a lack of funds, and the group found other programs were addressing the community's needs.

Because of Stelting's community involvement, she knew of 32 families in the neighborhood, most of them Hispanic, who were in dire need -- families who had fallen through the cracks and who were expecting a bleak Christmas season.

But through Stelting's persistence in telling various agencies in Oklahoma City of the plight of her neighbors, all 32 families will have a Christmas Dinner. Through Catholic Social Ministries, OG&E has agreed to provide dinners for 30 families, and General Motors is providing a Christmas for two families.

"It was just me getting the names," Stelting said, "Anyone could have done this. I just know these people and know their needs.

"There's no way Mary Stelting could have done this by herself. There are lots of people out there helping," she said. "They say you can't lick the world, but I guess we can still try. Thank God we do have people who care."

Mary, we are proud of you! Little did 'ole William know in 1733 how he might be able to influence this new land of his! Maybe someone helped him - the new immigrant - as you have helped others who are new to our country!

Please submit articles for the newsletter. You are all doing interesting things, but do not share with others.

REMEMBER THE REUNION ON June 17, 1989

Feb 23, 1995.

Dear Shirley -

We are digesting and trying to put into perspective all of the info. on Maryland and the Mitchell and Burgess, et al, families that you recently sent me. I intend to cite some of the key items in the next Newsletter. Hopefully, I can give an accurate assessment of these "new" facts. As you suggested, though, in your letter of January 11, a marriage record for William Otterbury and Sarah "Gosley" would certainly help solidify the "Mitchell Connection".

I was extremely interested in your January 27 comment about "... back 18 generations, we are all related". For several months (as if I needed a sideline) I've been exploring the literature for any scholarly work on just that point. I'm writing a treatise on "Ancestors....", attempting to analyze our relationship to others. A draft of the introductory portion of this work is enclosed. If you have, or know of, any material at all on this subject, and your comment on "18 generations" I would sincerely appreciate it. Also would appreciate Any comments you might have on the enclosed paper.

Also in your January 27 letter you commented on the possibility of two Sarahs, since John "Gackslay" was born 4 months before Sarah Mitchell married Robert "Gackslay". This would most likely require two Robert Gackslays but the second Sarah could have any surname (this Sarah the mother of John). If Sarah Mitchell is the mother of John G. she would have been but 14 years, 5 months of age. Very young, but not impossible. I would think, if John was born out of wedlock, the subsequent marriage would not have been 4 months later, it would have only ^{been} days later.

Secondly, if Elizabeth "Gayley" was living with her grandparents, one would think John would be also, unless he died young. Such is research - much speculation - little facts, but the actuality often emerges from the "muck".

Thanks again for your helpful material.

Sincerely -
John

Your Ancestors. Who. . . and How Many ?

The average person, when contemplating their forebearers, think of their parents, grandparents, and probably another generation or two. After this, older ancestors tend to be grouped into a hazy assemblage of unknown composition and extent. But at the same time, one recognizes that their line of ancestors must march continually backward, generation by generation, into antiquity. One's very existence depends on this fact. In this article, we will explore the significance and magnitude of this broad and extended group of ancestors.

Usually the first, and certainly the most frequently asked question, when people learn you are researching your family history, is: "How far back are you ?" Those who do genealogical research are continually confronted with this question. The inference, often, is; if you are not back to the Middle Ages, you really haven't accomplished much. Our normal reply is that we can't develop too much interest in trying to establish William the Conqueror as an ancestor, when we are not yet out of Monroe County, Missouri, on three of our eight great-grandparents. Nevertheless, everyone is intrigued by the prospect of establishing a lineage that goes back a thousand years or more, and someday finding a noted ancient personage to be a true ancestor.

So what are the chances that you are related to, or even descended from, one or more historic figures? And what are the odds of you being related to some famous person who is alive today? The chances are quite good in every case, as we will strive to establish in this article. The remarkable Helen Keller very astutely observed in her autobiography, The Story of My Life, "There is no king who has not had a slave for an ancestor, and no slave who has not had a king among his."

Any one person, however, does not have the time or resources to trace all of his or her ancestral lines. The task to determine the identity of each and every ancestor, plus identify other descendants of these ancestors, would be monumental, and is difficult enough on just one or two ancestral lines.

Here's Why.

Each of us have two parents, four grandparents, and hence eight great-grandparents. Continuing on, you have sixteen great-great-grandparents, 32 great-great-great grandparents, and the number continues to double with each generation. But where does this progression lead ?

| Number of Generations Back: | Number of Direct Ancestors: |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 | 2 (parents) |
| 2 | 4 (grandparents) |
| 3 | 8 (great-grandparents) |
| 4 | 16 (gg grandparents) |
| 5 | 32 (ggg grandparents) |
| 6 | 64 (4th g ") |
| 7 | 128 (5th g ") |
| 8 | 256 (6th g ") |
| 9 | 512 (7th g ") |
| 10 | 1024 (8th g ") |

Thus, in just 10 generations, you have amassed over 1000 direct ancestors with a potential like number of different surnames. Each generation represents, on the average, about 26 years. So ten generations back, if you were born in 1950, for example, would place your 1024 8th great-grandparents in the late 1600's or early 1700's. Continuing the progression to even earlier generations:

| Number of Generations Back: | Number of Direct Ancestors: |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 11 | 2048 |
| 12 | 4096 |
| 13 | 8192 |
| 14 | 16,384 |
| 15 | 32,768 |

| Number of Generations Back: | Numbers of Direct Ancestors: |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|

|----|--------------------|
| 16 | 65,536 |
| 17 | 131,072 |
| 18 | 262,144 |
| 19 | 524,288 |
| 20 | 1,048,576 Wow ! |

The number of direct ancestors each of us have has reached "mind-boggling" proportions! But carrying this backward to the 30th generation, doubling the number each generation just as we've done before, we reach the absolutely OUTRAGEOUS number of over ONE BILLION ancestors (to be exact, the number is 1,073,741,824). If you were born in 1950, this 30th generation back would place your ancestors at about the year 1200 A.D. But How Can This Be ? There were only an estimated 400 million people on earth in the year 1200 ! And the majority of those lived in Asia and other areas remote from where most of us have our roots. Where, then, is the fallacy in our calculation ?

There are at least two answers; first, our calculation is based on the assumption that all those great-great-great, great-great-great-great, et al, grandparents were different people. But, in truth, you actually descend from many ancestors by more than one route (i.e., several branches of your family tree can lead to the same ancestor). Compound this effect any number of times back through the generations and it can make a considerable reduction in the huge magnitude of potential ancestors we derived for the 30th generation back. As an example of one ancestor taking the place of several, consider the affect of a marriage of first cousins. This couple will have one set of common grandparents (of a normally expected four sets). As a result, a child of this couple will have 25% fewer ancestors, beginning with the child's great grandparents and continuing through all earlier generations. This results in a reduction of over 265 million direct ancestors for this child at the 30th generation back. But even this huge decrease still conceivably leaves this child with over 800 million ancestors. The impact of the marriage of first cousins becomes less when the union involves earlier generations. If first cousins are grandparents rather than parents, then the reduction in ancestors of the grandchild is one-half of 25%, or 12.5% for all earlier generations. Similarly, if the first cousins are great grandparents, the reduction in ancestors is only 6.25% .

As an actual example, one of our cousins is a descendant of three of the sons of our 4th great grandparents, William and Sarah Atterbury. Children (first cousins) of two of the sons married and are the great grandparents of our cousin's father. Her mother descends from a third son. The net effect of these relationships is to reduce the number of sets of her 4th great grandparents from 32 down to 30, where one set (William and Sarah) has taken the place of three. This is a reduction of 6.25% in the number of our cousin's ancestors for all earlier generations. So it is evident that a large reduction in that one billion ancestors in the 30th generation will require many, many intra-family unions, such as the one described in this example, to lessen the number of ancestors to a reasonable, believable, amount.

Clearly, this large and requisite reduction results in many, if not most, of one's more remote ancestors having several lines of descent from each of them down to ourselves. Furthermore, this incidence of multiple ancestral lines leading from one ancestor will increase as we include older and older generations.

(Another factor to consider is this: a 30th generation ancestor in one line of descent, for example, may only be the 29th generation in a second line, 27th in a third line, and 32nd in a fourth line. Our cousin, in the actual example above, was a 7th generation descendant of William and Sarah on her father's side, and an 8th generation descendant on her mother's side. This means that William and Sarah are her 4th great grandparents on one side, and her 5th great grandparents on the other side !)

A second reason for the wide difference between our calculated number of ancestors and the 1200 A.D. population is that not all of the 30th generation ancestors would have lived at precisely the same time. The average time-span for a generation did place this generation at about the year 1200 A.D. However, the 30th generation for some ancestral lines would have lived prior to the year 1200 while others would have lived later. This means that many of our ancestors did not have to be included in the estimated 400 million population in 1200 A.D., but were part of the population, for example, in the year 1150, or in the year 1250.

What is a realistic number of ancestors an average individual could expect to have ?

We have searched through a considerable amount of literature seeking expert opinions on this subject. Noted writers in the fields of Sociology, Race and Anthropology, and on the history of World Population Growth all acknowledge the fact that we must and do have common ancestors(1). However, as yet, we have not found any attempt to estimate the probable number of ancestors a typical person might expect to find a given number of generations back were he or she able to trace all of their ancestral lines. We are interested in this number only to clarify the main theme of this article; that is, our possible relationship to all the other people who have lived in the past, or who are alive today.

Therefore, one can only make their own guess as to how many actual ancestors they have, for example, at his or her 30th generation back. Considering the theoretical total possible ancestors, the probable population in the 1200 A.D. period, and the affect of intra-family marriages, we offer the following estimate:

A. Estimated population of the European - Mediterranean - Near East area, the territory where most of our ancestors might have lived in 1200 A.D.....120 million

- B. 1). Estimated number in A. who were or would become parents (@ 75%) = 90 million
 2). Estimated number in B.1. whose lines will extend to the present day (@ 50%).....45 million
 3). Estimated number of single generation ancestors in B.2. (population could include grandparents, parents, and children {3 generations} of one line) (@50%).....22.5 million
 Some portion of these 22.5 million people would have been our 30th generation ancestors.

- C. 1). Assume, first, that the number of actual ancestors for the 30th generation is in the range of 1 % to 10 % of the theoretically possible 1,073,741,824:
- | | | | |
|--------|--------------|----------------|-------------|
| 1 % = | 10,737,418; | or approx..... | 11 million |
| 5 % = | 53,687,091; | or approx..... | 54 million |
| 10 % = | 107,374,182; | or approx..... | 107 million |

- 2). Assume, second, that 1/3 of our actual ancestors were alive in 1200 A.D.:
 (recall that not all of our 30th generation ancestors would have lived at precisely the same time; hence, for the moment we assume that 1/3 lived in the years prior to 1200, 1/3 in the 1200 era, and 1/3 in later years)

| | | | |
|---------------|-------|---------------|-------------------|
| @ 1% actual: | 1/3 x | 11 million = |3.7 million |
| @ 5% actual: | 1/3 x | 54 million = |18.0 million |
| @ 10% actual: | 1/3 x | 107 million = |35.7 million |

- 3). At 1%, our ancestors would constitute 3.7 million of 22.5 million, or 16 % of the parents we estimated to be in the 1200 A.D. population.
 At 5%, our ancestors would constitute 18 of the 22.5 million, or 80 % of the parents in the 1200 A.D. population.

Although 16 % to 80 % constitutes a large proportion of the assumed potential ancestors living in 1200 A.D., the number is realistic when compared to the theoretically possible 1,073,741,824. Our intuition (usually wrong ?) tells us that 80% seems too high, so for discussion purposes we will reduce this percentage to 25%. 25% represents about 5.6 million parents in the 1200 A.D. population whose ancestral lines will extend to the present day. Based on our assumptions, these 5.6 million people would be one-third of our 30th generation ancestors. On this same basis, then, our total number of 30th generation ancestors would be three times 5.6, or 16.8 million people. While this last number still seems high and difficult to visualize, it represents only 1.6 % of the theoretical number of ancestors. This would mean an average of 60 of our ancestral lines would have to culminate in each 30th generation ancestor. (Note: Since a person must descend from a union of two people, both the theoretical and the assumed actual number of marriages would be one-half the number of ancestors. However, the percent reduction and the average number of lines from the 30th generation will remain the same.)

Thus, to this point, our estimations have "eliminated" 98.4 % of those possible 30th generation 1,073,741,824 forebearers. The only factor that can create this reduction is that many ancestral lines must originate from almost every ancestor. There can be no other reason for a reduction from the theoretical number. (In the writer's opinion, an average of 60 lines leading to each ancestor seems quite high. However, since this number can only be reduced by increasing the number of ancestors, for discussion purposes we will let it stand.)

To whom are you related ?

Consider the implications of 16.8 million direct ancestors, who are the progenitors of literally millions of descendants, past and present, of which you are only one. Since we previously assumed 25% of the parents whose lines extend to the present day to be our ancestors, it follows that these same people are also, theoretically, the ancestors of 25% of all the other people alive today who have the same basic roots. This 25% represents people, primarily caucasian, who are living all over the world. Since our country was originally populated largely by people from this same area, some measurable proportion of these would be living in the United States. Thus, your next door neighbor, for example, could easily be a distant relation, as could the clerk at your grocery store, and the driver of the car ahead at the corner stop light. Just as easily, the president of IBM, a well-known movie actor, a famous professional athlete, and a respected Army general could also possibly be related to you. But don't get too smug, because a notorious mass murderer and that homeless wino on the street can also be related.

While we could attempt to estimate the odds of being related to any other given individual, we have probably made more than enough assumptions and estimates for one article. The reader may wish to develop his or her own assessment. However, the only way to actually learn who your ancestors are and to whom you are related is through research, and with a large measure of luck needed to bridge the inevitable gaps.

In addition to being related to a great number of people alive today, you are also related to many millions of people who lived in the past. And some of these could likely be well-known, famous (or infamous, as the case may be !) people, who lived almost anywhere in the world. You could be related, albeit distantly, to Abraham Lincoln, King George III, Julius Caesar, or even Blackbeard the Pirate.

As an example of ancestral lines you can discover in the process of doing genealogical research, we learned that the writer's wife, Zelma West Atterbury (through her mother Bonnie Hardwick West), descends from Rolf, The Norseman. Rolf (Rollo) invaded Normandy in the year 910, and was the great-great grandfather of William the Conqueror, who invaded Britain in 1066. Rolf was also the progenitor of the Fitz Randolph line from whom my wife descends, as does George Washington, first president of our country. One Fitz Randolph ancestor married the daughter of Robert de Bruce of Scotland, from whom the Stuart Kings of Scotland and England descend. So from this one line both famous ancestors and, though quite distant, historic relatives were found. In the writer's opinion, most other researchers will find similar connections to one or more historic figures, if they are fortunate (lucky) enough to uncover a documented line. A friend who lives nearby has also independently documented her descent from Rolf, making her and my wife related, although it is a very distant relationship.

Dear Shirley -

Just received your Burgess family package. You definitely have been working hard on this. Edna sent me "John Mitchell of Mitchellville" excerpts about a month ago. I realize, belatedly, I should have waited before putting an article in the January Newsletter which was mailed just 3 hours before your package arrived. In the next issue, I'll give you proper credit plus correct any errors.

The Newsletter reference to Colonel Burgess's wife as Ursula (Puddington?) was found in the Maryland IGI file. However, my first run-through of your material did not reveal Ursula's surname. I have not checked the IGI source, but your material seems quite authoritative. It appears Susannah Burgess's mother may have been Susannah Puddington? (Mrs. Rice Ewan) or possibly Ursula (Painter?). Kind of mind-boggling, so I'll have to study the whole file more. George Puddington's will of 1674 lends credence to the case for Susannah's mother being a Puddington.

I have 7 pages of "John Mitchell of Mitchellville" which Edna indicated was all that pertained to our direct line. However, if you would be so kind to make me a copy of all of the material you cited in the last paragraph of your letter, I will reimburse you. I do have a copy of John Mitchell, Sr. Will, however. (Transcript in Jan '94 newsletter).

Thanks again for all the material and please accept my apology for not giving you credit for all your work on the Burgess line.

More later after I've had a chance to study this more thoroughly.

Sincerely

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

NEWSLETTER

NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

11/23/92

WELCOME TO THE FIRST ISSUE OF A BRAND NEW COMMUNICATION EFFORT !

Let's begin by answering several questions:

FIRST: What is this, anyway ?

For those of you not previously aware of it, we are actively doing genealogical research on our family. The primary purpose being to compile a sufficiently complete and accurate history so that all of our children, grandchildren, and future generations will have some idea of their heritage. We sense a need to communicate this work in some way.

SECOND: Why a NEWSLETTER ?

The intended purpose for issuing a NEWSLETTER is three-fold:

1. Keep family and interested individuals abreast of our family research activity.
2. A means to circulate interesting "new" information quickly, well in advance of an eventual "complete" Family History.
3. Provide a future forum for general family communications.

THIRD: What will the FAMILY HISTORY project cover ?

1. We intend to include not only several branches of the ATTERBURY line (descending from William Atterbury who died c.1766 in Loudoun County, Va.)(*), but many other families related by marriage who are also ancestors of most of us. We will not have time, however, to research all of these in depth.
2. We will concentrate on our ancestors that lived in America. Time will not permit us to add much to what is already published about our European ancestry. You will be apprised, of course, of this material.

FOURTH: How often will the NEWSLETTER be published ?

Hopefully, it will be issued bi-monthly IF there seems to be sufficient interest. It will also depend on the health and well-being of the combination publisher, editor, writer, printer, and two-fingered typist. PLEASE LET ME HAVE YOUR REACTION AND SUGGESTIONS FOR MAKING IT BETTER ! Later, if it proves to be acceptable to the majority of you, I'll probably ask for a small donation to cover the cost of paper and postage.

Enough of the preamble, let's cover a few items of interest. These should give some indication of the type of material we can include in a NEWSLETTER, so here we go.....

HOW DO YOU SPELL "ATTERBURY" ? ? ?

If your surname is Atterbury you've undoubtedly had it spelled many different ways by others. This happens continuously to all of us. But don't think you are alone because our ancestors had the same problem. So far, we've found "Atterbury" spelled 17 different ways in the U.S.A. and at least 3 ways in England! And these were only up to 1860 ! Census Enumerators, Deed Recorders, Probate Clerks, even Cemetery monument makers have contributed to the multiple spelling of the same basic name.

The existance today of a variety of "Atterbury" families with the same phonetic sound but different spellings is due, in part, to the fact that many of our ancestors could read and write very poorly, if at all. The spelling used by a Deed Recorder, for example, might not be recognized by the signer and could eventually become the accepted spelling by their descendants. Certainly, personal preference played a major role in the "selection" of a spelling.

It is generally accepted that most all "Atterburys" in the United States today, regardless of spelling, are related.

Hence the "Attebery" you see in the phone book is very likely a cousin. As is Atterberry, or Attebury, or even Arterberry. (My grand-father, Joseph William Atterbury, Sr., frequently had his name spelled Arterberry by Census takers and others.)

This relationship is recognized by at least one group in this country. The ATTERBURY / ARTERBURY / ARTERBERRY / ATTERBERRY / ATTEBERRY / ATTEBERY FAMILY ASSOCIATION of Midwest City, Oklahoma, is an active group dedicated to preserving our family history. The association is lead by Dr. Voncille Attebery Winter. She and her cousin, Wilma Attebery Mitchell, researched and wrote a very definitive history on the Atterbury family in America, "The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant". We will be referring to their book from time to time (*).

MORE ON SPELLING.....A LEGEND DEBUNKED ? ?

An old family legend passed to me by my father I always considered to be true, said, in effect; "The spelling variations are the result of a dispute between William Atterbury(died c.1766, Va.)(*) and several of his seven (actually nine) sons. Because of the dispute, those sons chose to spell their name different to spite their father ".

After noting the many ways any one particular ancestor's name was spelled over time, we believe now this family "legend" has been greatly exaggerated, if not completely wrong. One example to support this conclusion are the Census Report spellings of my great(x3) grand-father James and his brother John, sons of the above mentioned William, and their descendants:

| CENSUS YEAR | JAMES | JOHN |
|-------------|----------------------|--------------------|
| 1790 | Aturburry | Atterburry |
| 1800 | not found | Arterberry |
| 1810 | Atterberry | Atterberry |
| 1820 | not found | Atterbury |
| 1830 | Arterbury | Atterberry |
| 1840 | Atterberry | Atteberry |
| 1850 | Atterberry/Atterbury | Atterberry |
| 1860 | Arterberry/Artebury | Atteberry/Attebery |
| 1870 | Arterberry | Attebery |
| 1880/1900 | Atterbury | Attebery/Atteberry |
| 1910 | Atterbury | Attebery |

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

NEWSLETTER

NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS V2,#1

1-4-93

HERE IS NEWSLETTER NO. 2.....As stated in newsletter no.1, we will strive to make this a bi-monthly affair. Since we are beginning a brand new year we'll label this issue as Vol.II, No.1 and then proceed from there.

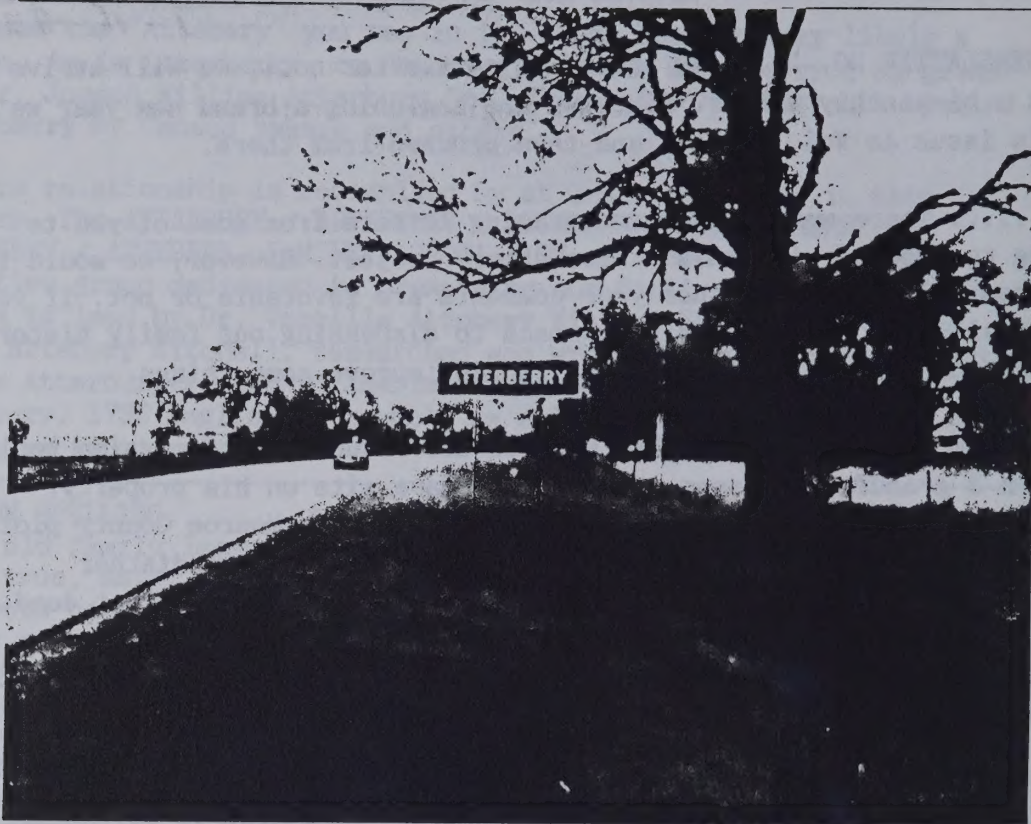

MAIL BOX..... There were enough encouraging letters from some of you to inspire me to proceed with this "newsletter" project. However, we would like to hear from all of you, whether your comments are favorable or not. If you are not at all enamored with this approach to dispensing our family history, let me have your suggestions and maybe we can improve some things.

LETTER FROM LEO SCHMITZ.....We had written Leo requesting permission to look for great x 3 grandfather James Atterbury's grave site on his property. At least we thought Leo to be the present owner of this Monroe County plot. This property is a portion of the land that our great x 2 grandfather William Atterbury purchased in 1831 from the U.S.A. on a Land Patent deed. Leo writes..." Last summer I remember talking to my neighbor on the west and he mentioned an old, old cemetery on his farm. After your letter I asked his permission to look for the site. My son and I found it and it is in a dilapidated, overgrown, state. It consists of a dozen or more field stone markers scattered under the cedars and one footstone marker with "J.A." on it....." Leo included a sketch to locate the Cemetery since we expect to look at the site very carefully later this year. This site was included in a 1960 Cemetery Census of Monroe County in which a stone was found that had "James Atterbury" in a curve across the top.

Locating James grave is just one small step toward one of our goals of this project; namely, to try to verify his participation in the Revolutionary War. As most of you know, there are numerous family "legends" about James fighting with General Francis Marion in the swamps of South Carolina.

The letter and effort by Leo Schmitz is typical of the help we have received from almost everyone we have contacted during the course of this project. This kind of response renews our spirit to carry on.

LETTER FROM BERNICE EHLERS.....Bernice is a cousin, descending from Richard Atterbury (Atterberry), brother of the James cited above. She sent a very informative letter and a stack of material and photographs, most of which we had not seen or read. We'll be referring to much of this later in the "project". How many of you are aware of the existence of the town of Atterberry, Illinois? Bernice, who lives in Watseka, Illinois, sent a picture of the sign at the "city" limits. Atterberry is about 24 miles northwest of Springfield in Menard County. In typical fashion, however, my AAA Road Atlas spells it properly, "Atterberry", while the Rand McNally Atlas spells it "Atterbury". I guess all we can do is blame our ancestors for not rigidly sticking to one spelling of the name. A copy of the picture is attached.

THE MIGRATING ATTERBURYS.....

The saga of our ancestors striving to find a better life is not unique. The Atterburys, as did thousands of other families, relocated time and again apparently looking for that special place. For the most part, our ancestors found only hard work but seemed to succeed in spite of the hardships encountered in adapting to new territories. Their success in meeting the challenge of moving to new and virgin country and establishing a new life is remarkable.

Modern society is said to be a very mobile one, with people continually moving from one place to another. Our ancestors, however, with their means of transportation and the primitive "roads", were truly the mobile ones.

The purpose of this historical sketch is to summarize the "migration" of three generations of our family as they moved across America. Details about their life in the several locations will be left until later. Here we are showing only WHERE they lived at a given time.

1733.....William Atterbury arrives in Maryland, on the English ship "Patapscoe Merchant". (William had just been released from Newgate prison to serve a seven year term under bond working in the Colonies.

1740 - 1754...William serves out his term, marries Sarah Mitchell, and receives a grant for 50 acres in Prince George's County, Maryland. (This tract, called "Prince Spring Plantation", seems to lie within the boundary of present day Washington, D.C.). Seven sons were born to William and Sarah at this location.

1754 - c.1770.William moves the family to Loudoun County, Virginia, where two more sons are born. William dies about 1766, as does Sarah about 1770. All nine sons apparently move en-masse to South Carolina. Their route to the south most likely was the Great Valley Road through the Shenandoah valley or the Carolina Road.

c.1775 - 1800..Eight of the nine sons settle in Chester County, S.C. Great x 3 grandfather James receives a land grant for 657 acres on Shutter Creek (probably in the area of the Sandy River). Several of James brothers also have land grants in the same area. One brother, William, dies in 1794. Another, Nathan, dies in 1796.

1801 - 1817...Six of the seven living sons move about 1800 to 1805 to Grayson and Hardin Counties, Kentucky. (Grayson County formed in 1810 primarily from Hardin County territory). One son, John, remains behind in South Carolina, and dies in 1806. Their route to Kentucky was most likely Daniel Boone's Wilderness Road through the Cumberland Gap. Richard dies about 1808 in Hardin County.

1817 - 1827...Two of the remaining five sons, Thomas and James, move to Missouri. They settle in the Cooper-Howard County area, probably in the Boonville-Franklin area. They most likely came overland via the "Boonslick Trail" pioneered by Daniel Boone, a very popular route to the west in the early 1800s. The three sons who remained in Kentucky die in the period 1820 - 1830.

1827 - 1993...Thomas remains in Howard County, while James and two sons move to Monroe County, Missouri, about 1827. James sons, William and Ashford, purchase substantial acreage from the U.S.A. via Patent Deeds and are among the early settlers of Monroe County. Thomas dies in 1840 and James dies in 1843, the youngest and last of the nine pioneer sons of William Atterbury and Sarah Mitchell.

We realize the foregoing "migration" narrative is quite short and missing many important details about the family. Hopefully, our research into the history of the Atterbury and related families will enable us to verify "facts" that are already known and uncover many additional details about their lives.

ATTERBURY BOOKS.....

So far we know of only two books about "Atterbury" history. These are:

- 1). The Descendants of Job Atterbury; by L.Effingham deForest (1933)
- 2). The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant; by Dr. Voncille Attebery Winter and Wilma Attebery Mitchell (1984)

The first book is quite narrow in scope and does not even acknowledge the existence of most of the Atterburys in the the United States in 1933. However, Mr. deForest did not have the easier access to records we have today. His book does have a detailed history of our early ancestors in England.

The second book, which we referred to in the first news letter, is a much more definitive compilation of our history, and , of course, pertains directly to our branch of the family. Dr. Winter and Mrs. Mitchell deserve the thanks of all of us for their work.

NOW, DOES ANYONE KNOW OF ANY OTHER WRITTEN TREATISE ABOUT OUR HISTORY ?? If so, please let me know. My brother Tom believes he has a copy of another book "somewhere", but so far we have not located it.(Tom did send me his copy of "Job Atterbury").

Also, if anyone knows of a copy available of the WINTER-MITCHELL book, I would like to buy it. I have a microfiche copy (and reader) to which I refer often, but would welcome the chance to purchase a copy.

RELATED FAMILY RESEARCH.....

In addition to the Atterbury line, we are also researching the family names noted below, and expect to add others as we receive the basic information needed to start:

- 1). West, Litzinger, Hardwick, Pryor
- 2). Hickey, Mitchell, Baker, Holliday
- 3). Royer, Elliott, Leebrick, Murray
- 4). McCune, Miller, Wilkerson

We'll soon send a letter to some of you asking for the information needed to get us started.

NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

VOL.2,NO.2

4-16-93

AN APOLOGY.....

This issue of the Newsletter was intended to be mailed in mid-March, but due to the illness and subsequent death of a long time friend, this , our third issue, was delayed. We returned from Florida (two trips since early January) on April 4 after a sad and somewhat hectic three months. Although our family history project is somewhat behind schedule, brief trips to the Largo, Florida, L.D.S.(Mormon Church) Family History Center and the Largo Public Library were very rewarding. We still intend to make this a bi-monthly, six issues per year, publication.

On our way south in January, we stopped and visited with cousin John Aldridge in Estill, Mississippi. This all too short visit proved to be a very rewarding one. More on this later. We also had a very enlightning conversation with another cousin, Linda Attebery Carpenter, of Safety Harbor (St.Petersburg area), Florida. More about Linda later, too.

DESCENDANT IDENTIFICATION SYSTEM.....

With the large families and the repeated use of the same given names by our ancestors, it is necessary to use some method of identifying each individual to avoid confusion and mis-identification. While many coding and numbering schemes have been devised and used in genealogical work, the method that seems to best fit our work is a modification of the Expansible Numbering System. The Expansible System identifies all the descendants of one specific ancestor, and is the method adopted by Voncille Attebery Winter and Wilma Attebery Mitchell for their book "THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM ATTERBURY, 1733 ENGLISH EMIGRANT". Our modification uses this system but adds a method to identify spouses and then to establish a Pedigree Numbering System to identify the ancestors of any spouse. Let me try to explain this modified and combined system:

William Atterbury, the English Emigrant who is the progenitor of our family in America, is identified as "1". The nine sons of William, the second generation, have two-digit numbers in the order of their birth:

- 11 - Michael, first child of William 1
- 12 - William, second child of William 1
- etc.,etc.,
- 19 - James, ninth child of William 1

The children of James 19, the third generation, have three-digit numbers:

- 191 - Nancy, first child of James 19
- etc.,
- 194 - William, fourth child of James 19
- etc.,
- 199 - John ninth child of James 19

The children of William 194, the fourth generation, then are numbered:

1941 - Matilda, first child of William 194

etc.,

1944 - Daniel, fourth child of William 194

etc.,

194x10 - William Henry, tenth child of William 194

194x11 - Thomas, eleventh child of William 194

(Note: If there are more than nine children, an "x" is inserted ahead of the identifying number. This prevents an error in determining the generation to which the descendant belongs.)

The children of Daniel 1944, the fifth generation, are:

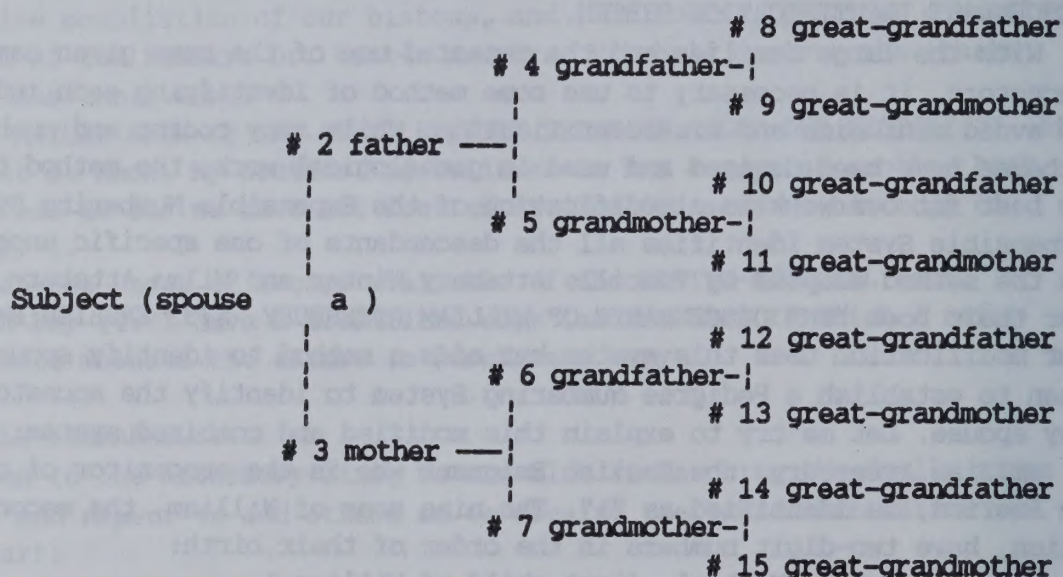

19441 - Joseph William, first child of Daniel 1944

etc.,

19447 - Mary Sloan "Polly", seventh child of Daniel 1944

The spouse of any descendant is identified by an "a" following that descendant. Hence the wife of Daniel 1944, Mary Sloan Holliday, is "1944a". Had Daniel remarried, his second wife would be identified as "1944b".

Parents, grandparents, and all other direct ancestors of a spouse will be identified using the popular "Ahnentafel", or Sosa-Stradonitz system, except the subject (spouse) is identified with a letter rather than the numeral "1". This system is best described with a chart:

The next preceding generation (great-great-grandparents) are numbered 16 through 31, the next 32-63 etc., etc. Features of this method are:

- A. All male ancestors are even numbers; all female ancestors are odd numbers.
- B. Starting with the first generation after the subject (spouse), the number of ancestors in any generation is indicated by the number of the first ancestor shown in the column for that generation (i.e., # 2 father = 2 ancestors; # 4 grandfather = 4 ancestors; # 8 great-grandfather = 8; etc.)

- C. Every person's father has double the person's own number.
- D. There are other mathematical features to this method, but for the sake of simplicity, we will not mention them here.

EXAMPLES OF THE COMPLETE SYSTEM, then, would be as follows:

- A. We have previously identified Mary Sloan Holliday, Daniel Atterbury's wife as 1944a. Mary's father Joseph Holliday will be 1944a2. Her grandfather, William Holliday, will be 1944a4. Her mother, Nancy McCune, will be 1944a3. Nancy's grandfather (Mary Sloan's great-grandfather), William McCune, will be 1944a12.
- B. My grandfather, Joseph William Atterbury, 19441, married Laura Belle Baker. She, then, becomes 19441a. Her father, Elisha Baker, will be 19441a2.

If anyone has a problem with this system of identification, which combines both a Descendant numbering method and a Ancestral (Pedigree) numbering method, please, please, let me know !!

Further, if a person wishes to research a particular ancestor in depth, an entire new series of numbers can be started with that ancestor as "1". Remember, in the same generation with William Atterbury 1, the writer also has thirty-one (31) other sets of great-great-great-great-grandparents ! Time, however, will preclude our tracing the history and lineage of more than one or two other ancestral lines (the Good Lord knows I've got enough genealogy problems now !).

VISIT WITH JOHN ALDRIDGE.....(We believe his identifying no. is 1944714)

John is the grandson of Mary Sloan "Polly" Atterbury 19447 and William Owsley Aldridge. In our short visit John related many stories his grandmother Polly had told him about her parents and grandparents. He alerted me to the existence of an autobiography by Joseph Holliday, Polly's maternal grandfather, and our great-great-grandfather. We were lucky enough to find the file in the Mormon Family History Library and made a copy from the microfilm. This is an invaluable addition to our records and will receive a prominent place in a History of our branch of the Atterbury family.

While searching for the Joseph Holliday autobiography, we located several other family related papers and historical information. Hence, our short visit with John turned out to be a very rewarding one. In genealogical research, you never know when or from where your next "break" is coming. In the short time the writer has been working on the family history, we have learned that if a person keeps "digging", something will surface..... So our thanks to John Aldridge for his help.

FAMILY HISTORY CENTERS.....

These Centers, of which there are hundreds, are located at selected Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon Church), and function as a branch of the huge Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah. The Joseph Holliday material mentioned above was located on microfiche film at the Largo, Florida, Family History Center. This set of microfiche lists ALL material contained in the entire Library! (The listings are also on a computer file). For those of you not familiar with these Centers, a microfilm of an original document can be ordered and sent to a Center for your perusal and study. A copy can be made from the microfilm for your own records. The microfilm remains the property of the Church and will be returned to Salt Lake City.

From microfilm on hand at the Largo Center, we located the original, handwritten, Will of John Mitchell (b.c1700,d.1752), father of Sarah whom we believe to have married William Atterbury 1. This is a interesting document, and was transcribed from the rather poor copy we were able to make from the microfilm. If anyone would like a copy, let me know. Also, a copy of the original Marriage Certificate for my wife's great-grandparents, dated Sept.2, 1849, was found at this Center.

The writer is told that the Church has literally hundreds of teams out all across the country filming historical records of every kind. These are being added to the Library collection continuously.

Suffice to say that there are "tons" of material for genealogical research available at many different sources, including the Morman Library. The problem is locating and identifying those specific segments that pertain to a particular family.

THE MAIL BOX.....

The mail that accumulated while we were away contained a wealth of family history information, much of which we have yet to properly study and digest.

LETTER AND "THE BOOK" FROM VONCILLE WINTER..... We responded to Voncille's offer in the 93-1 issue of the "Atterbury/... /Attebery Family Association Newsletter to purchase a copy of the book we cited on page 1, THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM ATTERBURY, 1733 ENGLISH EMIGRANT. Voncille and Wilma Mitchell acknowledge that since 1984 they have learned of many additions and corrections that need to be made, but even so it is an excellant reference to compare and judge research on Atterbury/.../Attebery family histories. So now, at last, we have our very own copy! Thank you Voncille and Wilma!

LETTERS (2) FROM LINDA CARPENTER.....Linda is working hard on her Attebery family history and has collected a lot of interesting material. Even so she has not yet, at last report, been able to trace her Atterbury ancestry beyond her great-great-grandfather, Fountain Smith Attebery. Since he seems to have a Missouri and Kansas background, we feel certain she will find the "connection" to be to one of "our" lines.

How many of you are aware of an ATTERBURY BROS. CIRCUS ? Yes, there really was one. Linda has compiled a considerable amount of material on the circus activities of Robert Lee Atterbury. Robert was born in Paris, Missouri, in 1866. He lived in Petersburg, Illinois, before leaving home to join his first circus. He traveled with circuses large and small for 28 years before starting his own in 1911. He owned and managed this and numerous other traveling shows for 25 years. Some of the performers were his own sons and daughters doing high wire acts! We have not determined Robert Lee's lineage, but Bonnie Atterberry Messett of Petersburg is probably aware of his heritage. If we have space we'll include some of Linda's Atterbury Circus material in the next Newsletter.

The next issue of the NEWSLETTER should be published about the first of June. If you have some material, information, or a query you would like to include, let me hear from you. We plan to have excerpts from Joseph Holliday's (1944a2) bio. plus info from the treatise WILLIAM McCUNE (1944a12), THE PENNSYLVANIAN.

SPELLING.....continued:

From the foregoing you can easily draw the conclusion that a person's name was probably spelled phonetically by the Census Enumerators. Then as people became somewhat more educated, they "selected", by personal preference, the way they expected their name to be spelled.....Comments.....?

WHERE DID THE NAME "ATTERBURY" COME FROM ? ? ?

To answer this, we'll refer to the April, 1930, issue of the MAGAZINE OF AMERICAN GENEALOGY, Derivation Of Surnames, page 54:

ATTERBURY (or ATTENBOROUGH): A name belonging to Attenborough, a parish in County Nottingham, in England.

(1). The name means "dweller at the stronghold or borough".

(2). In old Middle English, "at then (for ther) burghe".

(3). In old English, "Aet thoere byrig (at the borough)".

(4). Atterbury derives from the older form Attleburgh but Atterbury is etymologically (wow!) more correct.

(5). First known records of the name:

a. 1273, Walter Attebure, County Kent

b. 1273, Richard de Atleborw, County Cambridge

c. 1306, John Atte-bury, Writs of Parliament

d. 1661, Lawrence Atterbury and Elizabeth Poynter marriage allegation, Canterbury

We'll stop here for this issue. By early next year a new printer and a Desk Top Publishing program for the computer should combine to make a more presentable NEWSLETTER.

PLEASE, PLEASE, LET ME HAVE YOUR COMMENTS AND SUGGESTIONS ! !

PLUS, IF YOU HAVE ANY OLD FAMILY PAPERS OR OTHER MATERIAL STASHED AWAY, LET ME KNOW, THEY MAY WELL BE THE MISSING PIECE TO A PUZZLE.

(*) Dr. Winter and Mrs. Mitchell, as covered in their book, determined with little doubt that the William Atterbury who emigrated from England in 1733 and died in c.1766 is the American progenitor of our family, and my great(x4) grandfather.

NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

VOL. II, No. 3

6-15-93

PREVIOUS ISSUE.....

One report (from brother Tom) of a mix-up in collating pages. Tom was sent 2 copies of pages 1 and 2. Hopefully, this was the only one I messed up. Let me know if anyone else had the same problem.

MAIL BAG.....

1. We received a copy of a Land Grant from the South Carolina Department of Archives and History, in Columbia, S.C. The Grant was issued to "James Arterbury", who we are reasonably certain is James Atterbury (19), our great-great-grandfather. The Land Grant, issued Sept. 4, 1786, was for 641 acres in the western part of Chester County, S.C. A copy is included with this Newsletter, and will give you an example of a document now over two hundred years old.

2. Family legend maintains, which we believe to be correct, that James (19) was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. This legend has yet to be proven. However, a few days ago we received the D.A.R. Documents for three other direct ancestors that outline their participation in the Revolutionary War. These ancestors are:

1). William McCune (1944a12). William was the great-grandfather of Mary Sloan Holliday, the wife of Daniel Atterbury (1944). William was one of the defenders of Ruddles Station, Kentucky, was taken prisoner by Indians and held captive for six months (another report says three years!). Additional comments about William McCune's life later in this issue.

2). William Shannon (1944a28). This William was a great-great-grandfather of Mary Sloan Holliday. He was a corporal in the Pennsylvania Militia. William was born in Ireland and was about 60 years old at the time of his service in the war.

3). John Shannon (1944a14). John is the son of the William Shannon noted above. John was also born in Ireland and came with his father to America. He was a Sergeant in the 9th Pennsylvania Regiment, with service in Virginia.

If any of the girls in the family who are direct descendants of the three patriots noted above desire to join the D.A.R., please let me know and we'll help you secure the documentation required to submit an application.

JOSEPH HOLLIDAY AUTOBIOGRAPHY.....

Joseph (1944a2), born Sept. 15, 1789, died Dec. 17, 1870, is my great-great-grandfather and the father of Mary Sloan Holliday. Joseph dictated a brief autobiography in 1861, probably recognizing that some of the events in his lifetime should be recorded. If only all of our ancestors would have done the same !!

We mentioned the discovery of this document in the last issue of the Newsletter. In this issue, we will note some of the things Joseph cited in his life story. (continued on page 2).

Joseph Holliday autobiography excerpts:

1. Joseph's father William (at age 17) and mother (at age 11) both emigrated from Ireland to Pennsylvania. William was born near Londonderry and belonged to a group rebelling against the British. He escaped capture by sailing to America, arriving in 1772, and settling in Cumberland County, Pa. After marrying Martha Patton, they moved to Kentucky.
2. Joseph identified almost the exact location in Bourbon County, Ky. (the area is now in Harrison County) where he was born. It is located just southwest of Cynthiana, County seat of Harrison, County.
3. As a Captain in the Kentucky Militia, Joseph fought in the War of 1812. He and his brother were involved in several battles, notably the Battle of the Thames in Ontario, Canada, northeast of Detroit, Michigan. The great indian chief Tecumseh was killed in a related battle with Joseph's Company.
4. Joseph married Nancy McCune (daughter of John McCune and Mary Shannon, born June 16, 1799) in 1816 and moved to Missouri in 1817. They settled first in Pike County, coming overland from Kentucky by crossing the Ohio River at Louisville and the Mississippi River two miles above Alton, Ill. Six families made the journey, including Nancy's father John McCune and grandfather William McCune, Joseph's brother William, and two other families related to the McCunes.
5. Joseph and Nancy had nine children. The oldest, William, was born in Kentucky and the other eight were born in Pike County, Mo. The youngest died at birth, and Nancy passed away shortly thereafter (the newborn, a son, died I believe on Jan.7, 1834, and Nancy on Jan.9, 1834). The children of Joseph and Nancy were:

|--------------------|--------------------------------------|
| William H. | born Aug.9, 1817 |
| John James | " Jul.23, 1819 |
| Thompson | " Aug.30, 1821 |
| Mary Sloan (1944a) | " Jul.6, 1823 (my great-grandmother) |
| Rebecca Jane | " Aug.17, 1825 |
| Martha | " Jul.20, 1828 |
| Samuel Newton | " Oct.30, 1829 |
| Elizabeth Brewer | " Aug.8, 1831 |
| "Baby" Holliday | " Jan.7, 1834 |

6. In 1837, Joseph moved his family to Monroe County, Mo., where he had already purchased considerable acreage from the U.S.A. on Patent Deeds. In October, 1837 he married Elizabeth East (nee Dickerson), widow of Daniel East. They lived in the vicinity of what is now Holliday, Mo. (pop. 150). (Joseph did not mention in his autobiography that he had ten slaves, as noted in both the 1830 and 1840 Census Reports. He was not an exception, however, since the 1830 Census reported a total of 1200 slaves in Pike County. By 1850, Joseph had sold or freed all of his slaves, none being in that year's Census).
7. Joseph noted that eight of his children lived to maturity, and all were alive in 1861 except his oldest daughter Mary Sloan (Polly) Atterbury, who had married Daniel Atterbury. (Mary Sloan died in 1851 at the age of 28, following the birth of her seventh child who was named Mary Sloan (19447) after her mother. Later the young Mary Sloan was also nicknamed "Polly").

8. Joseph's autobiography answered an important question that we had never been able to resolve. Our great-grandfather Daniel died in March 1857, at the age of 38. The reason for his death was not known until our conversation with cousin John Aldridge and finding Daniel's death documented in Joseph's life story. As reported, Daniel was cutting timber on his land in Macon County, Mo. A limb from a falling tree flew back and killed him. It was not noted if the death was instantaneous. (Joseph also did not mention that he and his two oldest sons raised the youngest five of Daniel's seven children after his untimely death).

KATHRYN HUTCHERSON CAMPBELL.....

Kathryn compiled a history she titled " WILLIAM McCUNE, THE PENNSYLVANIAN, and KINDRED FAMILIES ". Her research for this history uncovered a wealth of material related to our family, and we are very thankful she had the foresight to file it in the Mormon Family History Library. One of the papers filed was Joseph Holliday's autobiography, which she located in 1931. Kathryn wrote her treatise on William McCune (1944a12) in 1974, so her genealogical research must have been a life-long project. At this point, we do not know whether or not she is still living. Hopefully, we'll learn more about Kathryn in the near future. Regardless, we owe her a debt of gratitude for her work.

In the Foreword to "William McCune", Kathryn quoted from two well-known sources a bit of philosophy to keep in mind about genealogical study:

First, from Plutarch; "It is indeed a desirable thing to be well descended, but the glory belongs to our ancestors".

Second, from Daniel Webster; "He who careth not from whence he came, careth little whether he goeth".

WILLIAM McCUNE, THE PENNSYLVANIAN.....

Here are a few items of interest gleaned from this book:

1. Our McCune ancestors are of Scottish descent and Kathryn Campbell pinpointed the location in Scotland from which they hailed. If you have a map of Scotland, look for Loch Fyne, an inlet on the west coast of Scotland. The McCunes occupied the area around the village of Kilfinian and the nearby Kilfinian River.
2. William McCune (1944a12) was born in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania in 1750. It is presumed his father (Robert ?) was born in Scotland, emigrated to eastern Pennsylvania about 1730, and joined the migration to central and western Pa. in 1730-1740. William married Elizabeth McClintock ? about 1770 and moved to Kentucky, then a County of Virginia. Their first child, John McCune (1944a6), was born in 1772 near what is now Paris, Bourbon County, Ky.

John McCune married Mary (Polly) Shannon in 1793, and the marriage produced ten children. The third child, Nancy R. McCune (1944a3), born June 16, 1799, is my great-great grandmother and the first wife of Joseph Holliday.

Mary Shannon's father John Shannon and grandfather William Shannon were cited previously in this NewsLetter for their service in the Revolutionary War.

3. Joseph Holliday referred to William McCune's war service in his autobiography. William was taken prisoner by Indians fighting on the side of the British. He was held captive in the vicinity of Detroit for at least six months. To quote Joseph; "He saw sights, my dear. He was 'ironed' frequently, hand cuffed. His wife never heard from him during that time."

While all of us today fully realize there were many, many, confrontations with the Indians during the settlement of this country, it is - still a revelation to learn that many of our very own ancestors were in the midst of those skirmishes.

4. Kathryn Campbell's research noted that William McCune acquired some 4600 acres of land in Bourbon County, Kentucky, in the period 1782-1789. Much of this acreage seemed to be Grants, probably as result of his Revolutionary War service.
5. William, as mentioned previously, migrated to Pike County, Mo., and was one of the very early settlers of that county. Even at the age of 67, he had the spirit and energy to move and start anew. The McCune families finally settled about six miles northwest of Bowling Green. Their community was known as McCune Station, and an old Family Cemetary is close by. William died in 1830 at the age of 80, and although Kathryn Campbell does not say, he is most likely interred in this family plot. (Later this month I plan to visit Pike County and learn more about this very interesting ancestor, so more on William McCune later).

ATTERBURY BROS. CIRCUS.....

In the last NewsLetter we mentioned the existence of a real Circus showman, Robert Lee Atterbury (19771). Thanks to Linda Carpenter of Safety Harbor, Florida, we have a very complete file on Robert Lee. At the time of the last NewsLetter, we had not determined his lineage. However, thanks to Voncille Winter and Wilma Mitchell, Robert appears to descend from Ashford Atterbury(197), brother of our great-great-grandfather William.

Robert Lee ran away from home at the age of 17 to join the Burr-Robbins Circus in Wisconsin. After 7 years, he then spent the next 21 years traveling with many big shows such as Barnum and Bailey, Buffalo Bill, Sells Brothers and many many others. In 1910, he organized his own circus and titled it "ATTERBURY BROTHERS WAGON SHOWS". Since there is no mention of any brothers, we assume Robert felt adding "brothers" to the name made the show appear larger.

In 1924, he sold this show and, in 1925, bought the "Colonel Hoogawonnie Circus and Animal Show", later changing the name to "Cook Brothers Circus". In 1930, this show was sold and in 1931, joined the "Harrington Circus", managing the acts performed by the "Atterbury Troupe of Aerialists", a group consisting mostly of his own children ! Robert Atterbury, Jr. and his sister Marie were accomplished performers and considered stars of the Big Top.

By 1936 this show, now the "Atterbury Circus", was managed by Robert, Jr. and had enlarged to 23 trucks and employed 165 people. It also included a Side-Show and Menagerie. As yet, we do not know the fate of this Circus.

Robert Lee Atterbury died in 1941 at the age of 75. Reviewing his life, one circus historian said "Though his show was small, Mr. Atterbury was among the Circus Greats" and "the most consistent peripatetic (traveling itinerant) of which we have any record". Certainly, Robert Lee was a very unique person and lived a life far different than most of our ancestors.

NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

Aug.23, 1993

MAIL BAG.....

Since the last NewsLetter we've enjoyed correspondence with and / or meeting many newly found cousins, and reestablished contact with one other cousin. Many of these are also actively engaged in family research. As a result, each issue of this NewsLetter receives wider distribution, and our own "pool" of information gets larger. Most important, through the medium of the NewsLetter, we can help extend the grasp and understanding of our family history.

Among our "new" cousins are: Lois Adams, Raymore, Mo.; Steve Attebery (16546571), Duluth, Ga.; Bill Dunn (descends from Hulda Atterbury Meals [1945]), Beaverton, Oregon ; J.D. McCune, Elizabeth McCune, and Tapley McCune of Pike County, Mo.; Ken Oyler, Aurora, Co.; Wayne West, Anna, Ill.; and George Wylder, Clinton , Ill. (George's wife Carole [144444312] descends from Richard Atterbury 14).

LETTER FROM BILL DUNN.....Bill and I were both born in Moberly, Mo. in 1926 but have never met except by mail and by phone. He had inserted an entry in the "Roots" Cellar of Genealogical Helper looking for information on Mary Miller, Bill's great-great-great grandmother, and wife of William Atterbury 194. Mary is my great-great grandmother. I replied to his query, explaining what I knew about this "problem" ancestor. While we have several leads on Mary's family, to date we have not established who her parents were. She was born in South Carolina August 10, 1794, and married William Atterbury Nov.11, 1811, in Hardin County, Ky. We are presently reviewing the Leonardo Andrea "Miller" files (some 350 pages), and Connie Andrea has given me the names of several other Miller researchers. Before long I hope we can solve this problem. If anyone receiving or reading this Newsletter has any leads on Mary Miller's family, your help would be sincerely appreciated. One clue we have is that the Millers may have immigrated from Germany, hence their surname could have been Mueller, or something similiar.

Bill also furnished me with some good information on the Baker family. My Baker research is on the "back burner" right now until I can solve some other problems.

LETTERS FROM LOIS ADAMS.....Lois is a first cousin to my mother and a person I've known all of my life, but have not seen for years. She has actively been researching her mother's side of the family and has had good success with some of her lines. She has furnished me with a lot of material, including some old family photographs. So genealogical help frequently comes from unexpected sources. More on this later after I've had a chance to study this material.

LETTER FROM KEN OYLER.....

Ken's maternal grandfather was Charles H. Atterberry, born August 24, 1881 in Missouri (possibly Iowa) And died August 22, 1923. Charles father was John E. Atterberry, born January 1848 in Missouri. Charles married Jessie Florence Cooper August 30, 1903. She was born September 30, 1883, in Loveland, Colorado. Ken's great-grandfather, John E. married Rachel A. --?--.

If anyone can help Ken identify his Atterberry ancestors he would be quite appreciative. So far, I've not been able to make a connection for him. His address is 859 S. Norfolk St., Aurora, Colorado, 80017-3165. For you computer buffs, Ken is on the PRODIGY electronic billboard.

MONROE COUNTY APPEAL (a weekly newspaper).....

The "Appeal", published in Paris, Mo. is running a Series entitled "CHRONICLES of the CIVIL WAR in MONROE COUNTY". Lois Adams alerted me to this series, which consists of excerpts from the book of the same name written by B.C. Farthing and T.V. Bodine.

I am still awed by the amount of Civil War action that took place in central Missouri. I am also "peevied" at myself for not learning something of this conflict until late in life. I grew up in the middle of an area rich in that war's history but knew very little about any of the action that took place. The main reason, I suppose, for failing to learn about the war is that my elders were still trying to forget it, since most all of my close relatives were on the side of the Confederacy.

Mistakenly, I had always assumed due to our southern heritage, that all Atterbury / Attebery's in the war were on the Confederate side. Wow, was I ever wrong! A review of the Union Soldiers Pension Index revealed that at least 38 Atterbury / Atterbery's fought on the Union side. To date, I only know of 4 that were on the side of the South.

The only one I know of to die in service was John J.C. Atterbury, a Union soldier and son of my great-great uncle Adin Atterbury. John died on February 8, 1863. He was a member of the 27th Missouri Infantry, but I have yet to find where his death occurred. We all have read how the war between the States pitted "brother against brother", etc. In this case. John J.C. Atterbury was the first cousin of my grandfather Joseph William Atterbury, who, as a Confederate soldier, lost his leg at the Second Battle of Boonville (Mo.), September 13, 1861.

Another good publication about the Civil War in Missouri is the book "WITH PORTER IN NORTH MISSOURI", by Joseph A. Mudd.

We hope to elaborate on the Atterbury / Attebery participation in this war in some future issue of the Newsletter.

A SPECIAL THANKS to Linda Carpenter, Bernice Ehlers, and Wilma Mitchell.....

Linda, Brenice, and Wilma continue to increase our library of information about the Atterbury / Atteberys and related families. In addition, most everyone we correspond with adds some meaningful information to the fund of knowledge about our family genealogy. Plus each of our research trips adds more. So we are at the point of starting a formal system to properly catalogue all of this material for easier retrieval (just like a real library ?). BUT DON'T STOP SENDING ANYTHING UNTIL I YELL "TIME-OUT" !

HELP FOR JEANNE BUSSELL.....

We are way, way overdue in presenting Jeanne's problem and asking for your help. Her great-great-great grandmother was Sarah Elizabeth Atterbury (b.1793 in So. Car., d.1857 in Jackson Co., Tenn.), married Adam C. Hamilton (b.1790 in Virginia, d.1868 in Jackson Co., Tenn.). Jeanne hopes to find an Atterbury researcher who has Sarah Elizabeth listed in their family. Basically, Jeanne is seeking two things:

- 1). She would like to make contact with any descendant of James Atterbury (Arterberry) 151, son of Nathan 15 and grandson of William 1, the emigrant.
- 2). Sarah Elizabeth could be one of possibly three unidentified daughters of James 19 and Dorcas McKinsar (Wilkerson ?). Jeanne (as well as the writer) would like information about their identity and who and where they married (probably in Kentucky).

From other clues, Jeanne believes Sarah Elizabeth's father name was James. But which James ? Contact Jeanne at 920 E. Sixth St., Cookeville, Tenn. 38501

To more fully understand the problem posed by item 2). above, we'll try to explain as follows: Several sources have identified nine children of my great-great-great grandfather James Atterbury 19 and his wife Dorcas. In summary, they are:

- 1). Nancy 191, born c.1782
- 2). James 192, born c.1784
- 3). Agnes (Dorcas ?) 193, born c.1786
- 4). William 194, born Dec. 11, 1789
- 5). Daniel 195, born c.1790
- 6). Naomi 196, born c.1791
- 7). Ashford 197, born 1798
- 8). Greenbury 198, born Feb. 22, 1799
- 9). John 199, born c.1802

All three of the known daughters of James and Dorcas had married and are presumed to have left home by the time of the 1810 Federal Census. Yet this Census notes three young females in the household, ages 0-10 (1), 10-16 (1), and 16-26 (1). Hence, these are probably the three additional daughters referred to above. To complicate the matter, however, Sarah Elizabeth was said to have been married in 1810. One explanation is that Sarah married shortly after the Census occurred. By their ages, two of the unidentified daughters were born in the years between Naomi and Ashford (1791-1798). Sarah Elizabeth, b.1793, could likely be one of the two. The third was born just before or after John.

It is also interesting to note that Sarah Elizabeth could have been named after James 19's mother (Sarah Mitchell Atterbury), and grandmother (Elizabeth Mitchell).

REVIEW OF "MARION'S MEN".....

"Marion's Men" is a compilation of 2500 men who submitted claims for their Revolutionary War service under General Francis Marion. There was no mention of James Atterbury 19, or any other Atterbury for that matter. I intend to review the book at greater length for a reference to other ancestral surnames. This book was compiled by William Willis Bodie.

FGS CONFERENCE IN ST. LOUIS.....

A trip to St. Louis to visit my mother coincided with the annual conference of the Federation of Genealogical Societies. The local high water did not seem to retard the meeting, with some 1300 people attending. The hotel, only two blocks from the river, was high and dry. This was only my second time to attend a formal conference of this type. A wide variety of books and genealogical materials were displayed for sale, and the speakers were quite good. I came away with the impression that probably well over half of the attendees were professional genealogists. With so many people tracing their ancestors now, genealogy has become a multi-billion dollar business.

FIELD TRIPS TO NORTH-EAST MISSOURI.....

TO PIKE COUNTY....The last Newsletter discussed briefly the life and family of William McCune. We wanted to locate the grave site of GGGG grandfather William, his son John, and my great-great grandmother Nancy McCune Holliday. We were fortunate to meet Tapley McCune, who directed us to the old McCune family Cemetary at McCune Station, some six miles north of Bowling Green, Mo. John and his daughter Nancy are buried here, but the grave of William has not been located.

We also visited with Tapley's parents, J.D. and Elizabeth McCune, both of whom descend from William McCune. Elizabeth, through her line of ancestors, is one generation closer to William than her husband J.D. The McCune family has been farming in Pike County continously since 1817. Elizabeth's family name was Reading, and they too have been in Pike County for many generations.

TO MONROE COUNTY....On essentially a one day trip from St. Louis, cut short by rain (which Missouri definitely did not need) and an aching artificial hip, we located the elusive family cemetary where James Atterbury 19 and other family members are buried. This cemetary was noted in the Newsletter Vol.II, No.1 (mailed 1-4-93), and is located on land great-great grandfather William Atterbury 194 obtained from the U.S.A. in 1831.

A 1968 Monroe County Cemetary Census named only two graves at this location, that of James and his grandson Willis Atterbury 1946. This Census is included as page 5 of this Newsletter.

Since William and grandmother Mary Miller Atterbury were not found in the Census of any other cemetary in the area, we have been of the opinion that they also were buried in this old family grave yard. This plot is in heavy brush and difficult to work in, but in the span of three hours we located 18 stones, 17 of which were fieldstone. Some were fairly small and from the pattern were probably foot-stones. Several of the larger stones had "markings" chiseled into their surface, but I did not take time to attempt to decipher them. The one marble stone had the initials "J.A.", and was probably James Atterbury's foot-stone. We did not locate on this trip the stones mentioned on the next page.

It is our intent to do a lot more work and analysis of this site. Our preliminary estimate, based on the pattern of the stones, is that their are at least 10 graves in this old Cemetary.

Harry Dearing of Madison, Mo., the present owner of the property, has given us permission to work on this site and even recommended we drive our car across the field, a priviledge my wife was quick to accept.

NOTE:

The following quoted from a letter written by Phil R. Atterbury.

"I visited the Willis Atterbury graveyard, I believe in 1960. The weather was hot. I believe the old gentleman who directed me there said his name was Dan Atterbury. Well, we walked across a dusty soybean field. He guided me to a grove of real old tall cedar trees. This was what was left of the old cemetery.

Only parts of two stones were found. One had James Atterbury in a curve across the top - but no dates or anything else - because it was broken off. Another similar piece of stone - which did not fit the first one said, died in his 79th year. I saw no evidence of any D A R Revolutionary marker for James Atterbury."

MAIL BAG

The search for information about our family history continues to bring us in contact with newly discovered cousins. Each of these are helping to both increase and improve our knowledge and understanding of the genealogy of the Atterbury /.../ Attebery and many related families. Since the last NewsLetter, we have corresponded with these "new" cousins:

Mary Devenport, Turlock, California
Mike Devenport, Houston, Texas
Vicki Doetsch, Breese, Illinois
Phyllis Kay, Southgate, Michigan
Leota King, Spokane, Washington
Donald G. Smith, Santa Barbara, California

LETTER FROM JOHN PHILLIPS.....

John is a Northern Virginia attorney and genealogist living in Arlington, Virginia. He is the author of a soon to be published history of Loudoun, County, Virginia, covering the period 1757-1766. John writes to say that he has William "Artherbury" on record in August of 1760, identified as "a sawyer", i.e. a wood finisher or carpenter. While this William is quite likely our William (1), more documentation will be required to prove this information. However, this opens the door just a little wider on the lives of our pre-revolutionary ancestors.

If anyone is interested in John's book, you can write to him for details at:

The book's title is "The Historians Guide To Loudoun County, Va., Vol I".

LETTER FROM GEORGE WYLDER.....

While on a trip to Oregon this summer, George and wife Carole made a visit to the GENEALOGICAL FORUM in Portland. He reported that three books of files and notes on the "Atterbury" family were among the Forum's holdings. Since we are quite new to doing family research, and unaware of the many fine Genealogical collections that exist around the country, we wrote BILL DUNN inquiring about the Forum and these files.

LETTER FROM BILL DUNN.....

Bill lives in Beaverton, Oregon, a suburb of Portland. As it turns out, he is very familiar with the FORUM. He reports the files noted by George are quite lengthy and consist of copies of the notes and files of Paris Loucks, Lillian Harmon, and others. Paris and Lillian are familiar to most "Atterbury" researchers as two of the family historians who did considerable research some thirty to sixty years ago. Much of this work was done before the days of micro-film and computers. Both Paris and Lillian have passed away, but their work is still valuable today. Neither published their findings, but Mrs. Harmon did type her notes, with six carbon "onion-skin" copies. Apparently, the file in the FORUM is one of these copies. LEOTA KING reports that Lillian Harmon's papers are also in the Library of Congress. Lillian's work was primarily on the Charles (13) line of descent.

Reseachers living or visiting in the Northwest might consider a trip to the Genealogical Forum to review these papers.

LETTERS FROM LEOTA KING.....

Leota descends from Thomas (18), and has been researching her family history for many years. She sent copies of letters from Lillian Harmon and Paris Loucks that indicate the depth of the research they were doing. Leota made a research trip to Kentucky in September, and we are hopeful we can make a report on her trip in the next Newsletter.

LETTERS FROM VICKI DOETSCH.....

We owe a thank you to Bernice Ehlers for helping to locate Vicki for us. Vicki had written a treatise a number of years ago that was published in the Chester County (South Carolina) Genealogical Society Bulletin. The article was about William Atterbury (12), and at the end asked to hear from anyone interested in this family. We wrote, only to find she had moved. But Bernice obtained her address, and we've had two informative letters from Vicki already. An article on Vicki's work will be in the next issue of the Newsletter.

Both Leota and Vicki have done some very incisive, in-depth, research on their respective family histories.

FIELD TRIPS.....

TO SOUTHEAST KENTUCKY....With so many ancestors that were born or lived in Kentucky, we were way overdue in starting some research there. This trip could better be titled "DUMB LUCK WILL BEAT INTELLIGENCE EVERY TIME". In searching for the parents and birthplace of my great-grandfather, John Thomas Hickey, we had narrowed the probable location down to Knox and Whitley Counties.....

At the Public Library in Williamsburg (County Seat of Whitley County), one other couple were also looking through material in the Genealogy Section of the Library. When my wife mentioned the magic word "Hickey", she got an immediate response from the other woman. Her name is PHYLLIS HICKEY KAY, a native of Whitley County now living in Michigan. Phyllis has been working on her family history for just two years, but has compiled a tremendous amount of information in a short time. While we have not yet identified John Thomas Hickey's parents, with Phyllis's help our backround information on the Hickey family has in creased ten-fold. Our visit to the Williamsburg Library was indeed a lucky break. As Phyllis said in her follow-up letter, our chance meeting must have been arranged by someone higher up. The most likely possibility is that our John Thomas Hickey will prove to be the grandson of an early Kentucky settler, William Hickey, born c.1788 in Greene county, Tennessee.

TO EAST TENNESSEE....Enroute to Kentucky, stops in Knoxville and Rogersville Tennessee yielded a considerable amount of new information on my wife's family. A visit to the McClung Library in Knoxville introduced us to an amazing collection of genealogical material. While the main thrust of this Library is on East Tennessee history, it also contains a broad range of material of national interest. Very likely, some of you have visited this Library and will agree it is an excellent place to include in an itinerary for East Tennessee research.

We found most of the vital statistics on Zelma's great-great grandparents, John Letsinger and Elizabeth Edmonston, as well as their original marriage bond and license. She also learned that John was a private in the War of 1812, serving in the East Tennessee Mounted Gunmen Regiment. From the Cemetary Census for Knox County, we were able to locate the old Hickory Creek Baptist Church Cemetary, and quickly found John and Elizabeth's gravestones (it usually takes hours to find the one we are seeking).

This Cemetary is only one mile north of Interstate 40 about 15 miles east of Knoxville. Over the years we have driven I-40 any number of times on trips to the eastern part of the country, never dreaming that she was so very close to the area where her g-g-grandparents lived and are buried. These are the things you gain from this "hobby" of genealogical research.

MORE ON THE LETSINGERS....I had learned a week before this trip that Joseph H. Letsinger, my wife's great-grandfather and son of John and Elizabeth, had served in the Civil War as a private in an East Tennessee UNION Infantry Battalion. Those of you acquainted with Zelma know her to be a "hard-core" southern Confederate. The revelation that one of her ancestors was a "Yankee" just devastated her. Needless to say, I needle her about this frequently.

In a quick study, I learned that many, many residents in East Tennessee fought on the Union side, while those in Middle and West Tennessee were predominately on the Confederate side. This fact did not mollify my wife.

THE CUMBERLAND GAP.....

While in the area, we spent almost a day viewing and studying the Cumberland Gap and the route of the "Wilderness Road", the trail into mid-Kentucky blazed by Daniel Boone. This is the most likely route our Atterbury ancestors traveled in migrating from South Carolina to Kentucky in c.1800-1805. They probably came north out of South Carolina through the Saluda Gap at the North Carolina border, past Asheville, N.C. and Knoxville, and entered the Wilderness Road east of the Cumberland Gap. Many books have been written about the "Gap", but suffice to note here that it was the principle route to the west until 1820. By 1800, over 300,000 people had crossed the gap going west.

Most of the Wilderness Road today is replaced by U.S. 58 in S.W.Virginia and U.S. 25E in Kentucky. A small section of the original trail exists at the Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park southeast of London, Kentucky. However, I was disappointed they had not done more to restore the road to the condition it was in c.1800. More sections of the original road may exist at other locations. A map showing the Cumberland Gap, Wilderness Road, and Kentucky is on page 6.

FIELD TRIP TO MISSOURI.....

This was primarily a "Cemetary" trip to Macon and Monroe Counties. In Macon County we were finally able to see and photograph the grave site and tombstone of my great grandfather Daniel Atterbury (1944). He is buried in an old Cemetary called the Fox-Jones Cemetary three and one-half miles north of the town of Macon. It is in a grove of trees on a private farm owned by Mr. Jack Davison, who seemed more than pleased to take us to the site and help search among the 25 to 30 grave stones for the one marking Daniel's grave. Daniel was born December 14, 1818 in Howard County, Mo., and was killed by a falling tree while cutting timber on March 19, 1857. His wife, great grandmother Mary Sloan Holliday, is buried in the Bethel Cemetary in Holliday, Mo.

We have not yet decided what restorative work we might do to Daniel's grave site. His stone, as are most others in this old grave yard, has been knocked off it's pedestal. I'm certain Mr. Davison would give us permission to erect a fence around Daniel's grave if we so requested (no other Atterburys or other relatives are buried here). We'll visit the site again before deciding.

In MONROE COUNTY, we continued the investigation of the old "Willis H. Atterbury" Cemetary, as reported on in the last issue of the Newsletter. While I searched for additional grave sites, Zelma proceeded to try to decipher the largest of the fieldstone grave markers. The hand-carved inscription on this stone appears to be:

----- 1831 (or 1839 ?)

— (Wm ?) ATTERBURY

The numbers 1, 8, and 3, and the name "Atterbury" were the most discernable. After almost 160 years of erosion, we were fortunate to find anything. If 1831 is the correct date, the stone possibly marks the grave of Isaac Atterbury (1942 born June 16, 1815, the second child of William Atterbury (194) and Mary Miller my great-great grandparents. We believe Isaac to have died in the 1830's due to the fact he is accounted for in the 1830 Census, but cannot be found after that date.

IF 1839 is correct, this stone is most likely for the grave of William, who died September 28, 1839. While she is not at all certain, Zelma thought she could discern the letters "Wm" preceding Atterbury. If this is the case, then we probably have finally found the grave of William Atterbury.

If ANYONE has a method of "reading" old fieldstone grave markers, please let us know. Zelma has had the best results with Tire Foam. She attempted to make a "rubbing", but fieldstone is usually too rough for any markings to come through.

We have now located 25 grave markers, 24 of which are fieldstone (all of the fieldstone markers are set in the ground upright, and are probably standing just as they were when originally placed on the graves). We placed a white stake by each stone, be it a headstone or footstone. This allowed us to evaluate the pattern more easily. From this, it is fairly obvious that at least 12 or 13 people are buried here. Some of the most likely are:

| | | |
|-----------------|-----------------------|---------------------------------|
| James Atterbury | (19), d. 1843 | (James and Willis were the only |
| Willis | " (1946), d. 1879 | ones in a 1968 Cemetary Census) |
| Mary Chinn | " (1946a), d. 1917 | |
| William | " (194), d. 1839 | |
| Mary Miller | " (194a), d. 1862 | |
| Isaac | " (1942), d. c.1830's | |
| Lucinda | " (1947), d. c.1870 | |

Possible infant children of Willis or his son, Charles H. (19462)

James's headstone, which we believe to be marble, has not yet been found.

LOOKING FOR THE PARENTS of FOUNTAIN SMITH ATTEBERY.....

We noted in a previous issue that Linda Attebery Carpenter has had a road-block in trying to extend her Attebery family lineage beyond her great-great grandfather Fountain Smith Attebery. She has now identified Fountain Smith in the 1860 Census, Leavenworth County, Kansas. In 1870, he was found in Phelps County, Missouri. In 1900, he was located in Crawford County, Mo. All the Censuses note he was born in Kentucky in 1831 or 1832. The 1900 report indicates his parents were also born in Kentucky. His wife was Mary Fort.

The 1860 Kansas report has his first name as "Thornton", so Linda wonders if this is possibly his given name, rather than "Fountain" as interpreted from an old family bible. I am of the opinion that Fountain is probably correct, and the 1860 Census enumerator misunderstood the name.

The purpose of the foregoing is to request help from any of the Atterbury../Attebery researchers who can shed some light on Linda's lineage and who Fountain Smith Attebery's parents were. From the dates, it seems that he could likely be a grandson of one of the six "Atterbury" brothers who came to Kentucky from South Carolina.

If anyone has a clue to help Linda solve this problem, please write her at:

LOOKING FOR THE PARENTS of MARY MILLER.....

Bill Dunn, myself, and others are still searching for the parents and earlier ancestors of Mary Miller, wife of William Atterbury (194). Mary was born in South Carolina on August 10, 1794, and died in Monroe County, Mo. August 12, 1862. She and William were married November 10, 1811, in Hardin County, Kentucky.

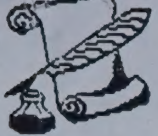

My research to date has concentrated on Hardin County as the place where her parents resided. Of the several Miller families living in Hardin County at that time, she most likely was the daughter of Henry, Adam, or Nicholas Miller. I lean toward Henry because a Henry Miller, probably Mary's brother, lived nearby in Monroe County, Mo., in the 1830's and 1840's (Mary was not named as an heir, but other family members, including Daniel Atterbury (1944), were associated with handling his estate). Also, Mary and William's tenth child was named William HENRY.

We have studied the research files of Leonardo Andrea, a well known South Carolina genealogist. The Miller Files comprise some 350 pages of his findings on South Carolina Millers. To date, these files have not revealed the family of Mary Miller, but Mr. Andrea significantly noted that fully 50% of the Millers in So. Carolina in the late 1700's and early 1800's were of German extraction.

Vicki Doetsch found in the Deed Abstracts of Hardin County, Ky., that a John Miller sold Thomas Atteberry 100 acres for $70 in 1813. This indicates that the Millers probably lived in close proximity to several Atterbury families. Many of the Atterburys lived in Grayson County which was formed primarily out of the western part of Hardin County in 1810.

Hopefully, an in-depth visit to Hardin and Grayson Counties will shed some light on Mary Miller's lineage.

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

NEWSLETTER
NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

Jan. 4, 1994

Vol. 3, No. 1

TIME DOES FLY.....

What was to be the last issue of 1993 has become the first issue of 1994. The Holidays and a house full of grand-kids can wreck the best of plans, not to mention the house itself! But we can all agree that having the youngsters around is more important than a few lost days on a family newsletter.

MAIL BAG.....

In the last few months the writer has received checks and returned them to a number of you who receive the ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY Newsletter. Your thoughtfulness and desire to help is sincerely appreciated, but we want to continue to send the Newsletter free to anyone genuinely interested in the Atterbury/.../Attebery family genealogy. The main reason for this is that the writer has received so much material from so many of you, material we could not possibly have compiled working alone. From all of this, we have gained an insight into the family history, and an understanding of how to do genealogical research, more than we had any right to expect 18 months ago when we started. So the Newsletter is just one small way we can repay you for the help.

IF someday the mailing list does get too large to handle alone, then we may ask for a small subscription fee to offset the cost of printing and postage. For your information, the first issue, dated 11-23-92, was mailed to 17 people. The last issue, mailed 10-27-93, went to 45 people. This issue will probably go to 50 to 52.

LETTERS FROM REVA ABBOTT.....Reva, who had corresponded with Lois Adams some seven or eight years ago, has done considerable research on the Atterbury/.../Attebery family for many years. Reva's first husband, Luin Lewis Attebery, who passed away in 1946 at the age of 44, descends from James (19). Reva has very generously given me a large portion of her Atterbury/.../Attebery files, material she has compiled over a period of almost 40 years. In addition to her own research, the files include information from Lillian Harmon, Phil Atterberry, and Paris Loucks, well known Atterbury family researchers some 25 to 50 years ago. So Reva joins the growing list of cousins to whom I'm deeply indebted.

As with all of the other genealogical material I've been given, Reva's is kept in a separate binder so as not to lose track of "who" sent "what".

PACKAGE FROM BILL DUNN.....The last issue of the Newsletter mentioned the extensive Atterbury/.../Attebery files in the Portland, Oregon, GENEALOGICAL FORUM. Bill has provided the writer a tremendous amount of family history material by meticulously copying over five hundred (yes, 500+ !) pages of information researched and compiled by Lillian Harmon, Phil Atterberry, Paris Loucks, and others. The surprising thing is there is very little duplication of the material mentioned above sent by Reva Abbott. So, again, we are deeply indebted to another cousin, Bill Dunn, for the time and effort required to place this invaluable research in our growing family history library.

As far as we know, Lillian, Phil, or Paris were never able to consolidate their research into book form. Thankfully, much of their work seems to be available for study and evaluation by present and future Atterbury/...Attebery genealogists. While we need to study the material more before writing anything, there are quite a number of items that will make interesting articles for future Newsletters, as well as being solid research information on our family history.

Another letter from Bill Dunn, outlining research he had done in Kentucky in October, indicates that the WESTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY in Bowling Green has a good genealogical section in the University Library.

LETTER FROM JEAN ATTERBURY.....Jean is my sister-in-law. She and my brother Tom are in process of moving from Columbus, Ohio, to Franklin County, Missouri. In sorting for the move she found a letter from Phil Atterberry to Tom written in 1965. He was soliciting family information, but two excerpts from Phil's letter are interesting:

- 1)"My ancestor was "Timber" Thomas Atterberry, born circa 1752 in Virginia (place unknown), married Bridget Murray (or Murry); was in the Revolutionary War (no proof yet). He had 8 brothers who were listed in the 1790 Census for Chester Co., S. Caro. Their father was William Atterberry, allegedly a wealthy plantation owner at one time in Virginia." (* - see below)
- 2)"My ancestors were agriculturists. The family name really is English and with the spelling "Atterbury". Down through the years the spelling has become varied. I was born and raised in Atlanta, Macon Co., Missouri. My great grandfather, Seamon Atterberry, a pioneer, settled the town. I have been pursuing this research for about 30 years, but there seems no end."
(To the last sentence, we can only add, AMEN !)

* William Atterbury may have been "a wealthy plantation owner at one time" as cited above by Phil Atterberry. However, in the settlement of a 1765 Loudoun County, Virginia law suit for indebtedness, William was forced to sell (for 15 pounds) "the Plantation whereon I now Live with the crops thereon growing" to the merchants to whom he was indebted. (Our thanks to Wilma Mitchell for giving us a copy of the original, hand-written, settlement and Bill of Sale.) Also, Phil may have been mistaken about "Timber" Thomas's wife's name.

In 1965, Phil was Assistant Secretary of the Import-Export Bank in Washington, D.C. From the extent of his research, it would appear that he and his wife Genevieve spent all of their free time traveling to areas where Atterburys, regardless of spelling, might have lived at some point in our family's history. In 1960, Phil had visited the old Atterbury Cemetery we are now working on in Monroe County, Mo. His 33 year old description helped us locate the site.

Phil Atterberry passed away in April, 1982, at the age of 74. Our letter to his wife Genevieve at her last known address was returned, so if any reader has information about her, please let us know.

OCCUPATIONS IN AN 1850 KENTUCKY COUNTY.....

The writer has searched through selected Kentucky Counties in the 1850 Census, seeking clues about his great grandfather, John Thomas Hickey, and John's parents. In the process, we stumbled across an unusual statistical analysis by the Census enumerators of Madison County, Kentucky. They analyzed the population of 10,333 people by age, sex, place(state) of birth, and occupation. The raw data came from the standard questions asked as part of the 1850 Census. We found the occupational statistics to be a very interesting commentary on the times:

Some of our observations are:

- 1). The number and diversity of occupations indicates a much more established and sophisticated economy than we expected to find in a rural county in 1850. Certainly more advanced than we are accustomed to seeing in counties west of the Mississippi in 1850.
- 2). The writer attempted to locate a History of early Madison County to give some background on the County, but did not before going to press. Suffice to say that the original route into Kentucky, Daniel Boone's Wilderness Road, ended at Fort Boonesboro in Madison County. So the early settlers would have had a head start in establishing an economy to provide the needs of thousands of pioneers heading further west. The number of blacksmiths, wagon makers, and other trades indicate a capacity well beyond the needs of Madison County alone.
- 3). Madison County did not have a large urban area. Richmond, the county seat, had a population of only 233 in 1850.
- 4). Madison County was established in 1786. The 1850 Census statistics note that 9444 residents, or 91% of the population, were born in Kentucky. Almost 90% of those were born in Madison County, an astonishing number in the generally fluid and expanding American society of the mid 1800's.

BOOK REVIEW.....

In the last issue of the Newsletter, we mentioned the need for suggestions to help read old tombstones. In addition to several hints from readers, we located a book "TOMBSTONES OF YOUR ANCESTORS", by Louis S. Shafer, available from Heritage Books, Inc. The book explains numerous ways to decipher and photograph old stones. If any reader wishes more about this book, let us know.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF JOHN MITCHELL, SR.....

John Mitchell, Sr. (born c. 1700; died 1752) was the father of Sarah, presumably and most likely the same Sarah who married William Atterbury 1. We transcribed the Will from a copy of the original, hand-written, document several months ago. A few readers have seen this, but the majority of you have not. The 1750 vintage language, spelling, and content of the Will is very interesting, so it is included as pages 5 and 6 of this Newsletter.

Our thanks to George Wylder for alerting us to the existence of the Will and for uncovering the following detail on John Mitchell's children. This information was found in the "Index of Church Registers 1626-1885, Queen Annes Parish, Prince George's County, Maryland":

| | | | |
|--------------------|--|----------|------------------|
| David Mitchell | b. 14 February 1722/23 | son | John & Elizabeth |
| Elizabeth Mitchell | b. 10 January 1731 | daughter | " |
| George Mitchell | b. 7 February 1728/1729 | son | " |
| John Mitchell | b. 23 February 1717 | son | " |
| Michael Mitchell | b. 12 August 1726 | son | " |
| SARAH MITCHELL | b. 31 August 1720 | daughter | " |
| SARAH MITCHELL | married Robert "Yockley" (ed., YAXLEY) | | 3 June 1735 |

Comments:

- 1). Note that neither George nor Michael are mentioned in the Will, indicating they probably had passed away prior to June of 1748.
- 2). Daughter Mary Lee, named in the Will, is not in the above list. Hence, she likely was born prior to the family moving to Prince George's County. (Could she have married into THE Lee family of Virginia ?)
- 3). Sarah's marriage to Robert "Yockley" (Yaxley) gave issue to Elizabeth Yaxley, named frequently in her grandfather's Will. In 1748, she probably was 10-12 years old. It is likely that Robert died about 1737-39, and Sarah married William about 1740-1742.
- 4). The puzzling question concerning Sarah's daughter Elizabeth is: Why was she apparently living with her grandparents and not living with her mother and step-father? The two families probably lived in the same area, since William took possession of the 50 acre "Prince Spring Plantation" in 1746.
- 5). Note that John Mitchell, Sr.'s Will specified only a token bequeath to his two married daughters, Mary Lee and Sarah Atterbury. That being "one Shilling Current Money" to each one. This may have been the normal custom of the times.

WE WISH EACH OF YOU A HEALTHY, PROPEROUS, AND H A P P Y N E W Y E A R !

MAIL BAG.....

We continue to receive letters and Atterbury/.. /Attebery research material from a number of you for which we are very grateful. At the same time, we also receive mail from others seeking information. We are are pleased to try to assist anyone with an Atterbury/.. /Attebery problem, although to date our success rate has certainly been less than 100%. But we learn something new every day, so, hopefully, we will improve as we go along. And as most of you know, we answer every letter just as quickly as possible, usually within two or three days. So, as the saying goes, keep those cards and letters coming!

UNUSUAL NAMES DEPARTMENT.....

We've been researching my wife's mother's family (Hardwick) for the last two weeks. This resulted in an extensive review of Clinton County, Ohio. Since this has been a terrible winter for most everybody, you may get a chuckle from the family we stumbled across in Clinton County in 1840 and 1850. The family name was SNOW; the father's name was "Ice And", and one son was "Frost &".

We continually see unusual names in the old Census reports, as all of you who have done genealogical work can attest. We wish we had kept a list of some of the better ones. Most of those we can recall were names given to daughters, such as "Atlantic" and her sister "Pacific". A number were named "Missouri".

In the Atterbury line, perhaps the rarest name is Melchizdek (132), son of Charles Atterbury(13). Melchizdek is a biblical name meaning "King of Justice". Melchizdek,(1780-1853), was born in Chester County, South Carolina, and died in Girard, Macoupin County, Illinois. He and his wife, Mary Peebles, had a large family and one or more of the recipients of this Newsletter may descend from Melchizdek.

HOW DO YOU SPELL ATTERBURY/.. /ATTEBERY.....?

While on the subect of names, Wilma Mitchell called my attention to yet another way to spell our name. An Oklahoma newspaper article referred to a prison guard whose last name was "Attenberry". For this Newsletter, the writer had intended to review all of his files and enumerate the many, many ways that the original family name of Atterbury has been spelled, but lack of time pre-cluded this review. Suffice to say that many of those spellings were actually a misspelling of the intended name, even though a part of an official document (deed, marriage license, will, census report, etc.). Hence, they should not be considered a true surname unless actually used by a particular person or family.

To determine which of the spellings of our family name have stood the test of time, we reviewed the National Pro-phone telephone listing that includes most all of the Atterbury/.. /Atteberys in the United States. Unfortunately, it does not include the Arterbury-Arterberry versions, only those beginning with Att.... (continued on page 2)

Here are the results of the survey, as the surnames were listed in 1992. Keep in mind the Telephone Companies may also occasionally mis-spell a name:

| NAME | Total Listed | % of Total |
|--|--------------|------------|
| Atteberry | 423 | 39.7 |
| Atterberry | 237 | 22.2 |
| Attebery | 152 | 14.3 |
| Atterbury | 146 | 13.7 |
| Attebury | 81 | 7.6 |
| Atterbery | 16 | 1.5 |
| Attleberry | 3 | 0.3 |
| Atterburry | 2 | 0.2 |
| Attabory, Atteburry,
Attelbury, Atterbary,
Atterberrey, Attlebury,
one each | 6 | 0.5 |
| Total | 1066 | 100.0 |

Our thanks to Linda Attebery Carpenter for sending us a copy of the Pro-phone listings. It is a valuable tool since it also includes the address and zip-code of each listing. Now, if Linda could only figure out how to get her computer to print out the listing of every Atterbury/./Attebery descendant, regardless of surname, then we would truly have a gold mine !

SPEAKING OF GOLD MINES.....

The writer has been absolutely amazed at the reaction of people then living in Monroe County, Missouri, after they heard word of the discovery of gold in California in 1848. One would think, given the means of communication and transportation in those days, that such a faraway event would have little affect in a rural Missouri County. Not so! We first read about their extreme interest in the 1884 "History of Monroe County", by the St. Louis National Historical Co. An excerpt from this book reads:

".....the excitement grew daily, feeding on the marvelous reports that came from the Pacific slope....the gravest and most incredulous men were smitten with the contagion and hurriedly left their homes to try the dangers, difficulties, and uncertainties of hunting gold. It was too late in the fall of 1848 to cross the plains, but thousands of people in Missouri began their preparations for starting in the following spring. It is said at one time the majority of the able-bodied men of the County were unsettled in mind, and were contemplating the trip to California."

Two great-great uncles of the writer, brothers Thompson and William Holliday are known to have made the trek to California and back to Monroe County. Many were not so fortunate, some losing their lives on the hazardous overland trip to the gold fields, many more in the tumultuous life in the gold camps. Later, most who could afford the passage would go by ship. First to Panama, then cross the Isthmus and board a second ship to San Francisco. But at least one ship with Missourians aboard was known to have sunk.

On a more humorous note, a brief editorial from the GLASGOW (Howard County, Mo.) BANNER, March, 1850, read; " So many are going to California from this region, that the women are becoming alarmed. What would the male part of creation do if the women were moving off in this way ?"

The 1850 California Census reveals only one Atterbury/../Attebery family member in California. (In the confusion of the gold camps, many people were probably missed.) The one family member was Greenberry Arterberry, in El Dorado County, Oregon Canyon Township, on December 20, 1850. Greenberry was a miner, age 24, born in Missouri, and noted as having been married within the past year. No wife being shown in the census, he had left his new bride to make his fortune in California.

A special feature of the 1850 California Census was the declaration of the "Average Value of Miner's Daily Output". In Oregon Canyon, the amount ranged from $2.00 to $10.00. Greenberry declared his to be $4.00. (Few probably gave the true amount). The Oregon Canyon population totaled 167 people; 164 men, 1 woman, 2 children. An Ira Bidwell from Missouri elected to bring his family along, a decision, no doubt, he soon regretted.

We believe Greenberry Arterberry's home to have been in Boone County, Mo., and was in the Boone County Census taken August 23, 1850. Hence, he was enumerated twice in 1850, and would have had up to 4 months to make the journey to the gold fields in California. The writer has yet to identify Greenberry in any 1860 Census Report, so his success in the gold fields is still unknown. If anyone knows the fate of Greenberry, please let us know.

HOWARD COUNTY, MISSOURI.....

Much of our Atterbury/../Attebery family history west of the Mississippi reflects a migration into and through Howard County, Mo. Whether your forbearers eventually settled in Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Oregon, or other western States, the majority came west over the Boonslick Trail to Howard County. The Trail, blazed by Daniel Boone about 1802, began at St. Charles, Mo., near the confluence of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, and then proceeded west some 125 miles to terminate close to the town of Boonesboro. Howard County is also strategically located on the Missouri River, providing an artery for two-way commerce. Apparently, however, few settlers came by water because of the expense.

When first formed in 1816, Howard was the largest county in what is now Missouri, encompassing all of 29 counties and part of 9 others, plus several counties in Iowa. Though large, the focal point was the towns of Franklin and Boonesboro and the busy salt producing operation of Daniel Boone's sons.

The well known Santa Fe Trail to New Mexico originated at Franklin in 1821. The Santa Fe was primarily a trade route rather than a migration trail. Traders brought Mule-breeding stock back from Mexico in 1823 over the Santa Fe Trail, making the State forever famous as the home of the Missouri Mule.

An excellent book on the history of the Howard County area is the BICENTENNIAL BOONSLICK HISTORY, written by members of the Boonslick Historical Society. This book is 124 pages, soft-back, and can be purchased by writing Jewell Vivian, New Franklin, Mo. 65274. The cost of the book is $12.00, including postage, and is sold by the South Howard County Historical Society.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF DANIEL ATTERBURY.....

This sketch is included as pages 4, 5, and 6 of this Newsletter. Daniel is the great-grandfather of the writer. Any additions or corrections to the narrative would be sincerely appreciated by the author.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH of DANIEL ATTERBURY.....

This sketch is included as pages 4, 5, and 6 of this Newsletter. Daniel is the great-grandfather of the writer. Any additions or corrections to the narrative would be sincerely appreciated by the author.

On July 2, 1840, Daniel married Mary Sloan Holliday. Mary Sloan, born July 5, 1823, was the daughter of Joseph Holliday and Nancy R. McCune. Joseph was an early pioneer in Missouri, having moved to Pike County from Kentucky in 1817. He was one of three men selected to establish Monroe County and determine where to locate the County Seat. In December, 1818, Joseph was among the very first to secure a Patent Deed from the U.S.A. for land in what was to become Monroe County. However, he did not move to Monroe County until 1837, building a home on land just west of present-day Holliday, Missouri.

Mary Sloan's mother, Nancy McCune, was the mother of 9 children. Nancy and her last baby died in childbirth January 9, 1834. Joseph married a second time to Elizabeth East in 1837. He died at the age of 81 in December 1870.

After their marriage, Daniel and Mary built a home on a 160 acre tract owned by her father. In June, 1842, they purchased the land for $640, taking three years to repay the mortgage. (This tract of land is identified as the Southeast Quarter of Section 26, Township 55 North, Range 12 West). In the late 1840's, Daniel deeded one-half acre to the local school board to build a school house. He was, perhaps, motivated by the growing number of his young school-age children. His uncle, Ashford Atterbury, was president of the school board at the time. Undoubtedly, two or three later buildings replaced the original school, but the last one still stands today at the same location. (Note: The author believes his mother, Lillian Hickey Atterbury, likely attended school here in 1906-1907)

Mary Sloan was to bear Daniel seven children and die shortly after giving birth to her last child. The baby, named Mary Sloan, was born October 18, 1851, and her mother succumbed October 27, just 9 days later. The children of Daniel and Mary Sloan and their dates of birth are:

- | | |
|-----------------------|---------------|
| 1. Joseph William | b. 9-10-1841 |
| 2. Isaac Newton | b. -1842 |
| 3. Emily J. | b. -1845 |
| 4. Nancy Elizabeth | b. -1847 |
| 5. John Thompson | b. -1848 |
| 6. Martha Ann | b. -1850 |
| 7. Mary Sloan (Polly) | b. 10-18-1851 |

So Daniel's young wife Mary Sloan, married before her 17th birthday, had 7 children in 10 years, and passed away at the age of 28. With her passing, Daniel was faced with the task of raising 7 young children. The author has but little evidence to support this opinion, but he believes the 3 youngest daughters lived for a time with Joseph and Elizabeth Holliday. Possibly two others lived with their uncles, Thompson and William Holliday. The two oldest boys, Joseph William and Isaac Newton, probably lived with Daniel on their farm.

On September 3, 1854, nearly 3 years after his first wife's death, Daniel married Mrs. Mary Jane Camp of Calloway County, Missouri. Shortly thereafter, in December, 1854, Daniel sold the Monroe County farm and purchased the farm of his brother, Dr. Charles Atterbury, in Macon County, Missouri. Charles and another brother, Adin C. had settled in Macon County in the early 1850's. The location was but 32 miles from the family farm north of Madison.

After settling in the new location, situated about 3 miles north of Macon, Missouri, all of the children except the youngest, Mary Sloan, came to live with Daniel and their step-mother, Mary Jane. Mary Sloan continued to live with her grandfather, Joseph, and his wife Elizabeth Holliday.

While the loss of their mother was tragic enough for the young family, yet another calamity awaited them. On March 19, 1857, Daniel was cutting timber and was killed when struck by a limb of a falling tree. At this time the oldest child was Joseph William, 15, and the youngest, Mary Sloan, was 5. In Daniel's probate papers there was absolutely no mention of his second wife, Mary Jane. Hence, it must be assumed that she had died or that she and Daniel had been divorced. (The author's next trip to Macon County will attempt to clarify this point).

Daniel was buried in a small country cemetery known today as the "Fox-Jones" Cemetery [2]. Family legend notes that Daniel could not be brought back to Monroe County for burial because of impassable roads. In the Holliday, Missouri, Bethel Cemetery, an empty grave site exists today beside the grave of his first wife, Mary Sloan. There is little doubt that this was Daniel's intended place of burial.

Daniel's probate papers reveal a glimpse of farm life in the 1850's. In addition to 200 acres of land and a wide assortment of tools and agricultural equipment, Daniel owned a sizable amount of livestock, as noted below:

- 5 Horses and colts
- 6 Cows and 3 calves
- 25 Head of cattle and steers
- 37 Head of hogs
- 2 Yoke of oxen

Included in his assets were 670 pounds of bacon, indicating that pork and bacon probably produced a sizable portion of the family's income.

With the untimely death of their father and the loss of their step-mother, Daniel's children were again forced to live with relatives. Emily and Nancy joined their youngest sister Mary Sloan to live with Joseph and Elizabeth Holliday. Joseph William and Isaac Newton first lived with their uncle and court appointed guardian, Adin C. Atterbury, at his home in Macon County. But before 1860, desiring to return to Monroe County, they had moved to the home of their aunt Matilda and her husband, Thomas Noel. John Thompson went to live with his uncle, Thompson Holliday, who was later to send John T. to a medical college. Daniel's remaining child, Martha, was probably under the guardianship of William H. Holliday.

Thus, both Daniel and his first wife, Mary Sloan, died young. She first at the age of 28, and he 5 1/2 years later at the age of 38. In spite of this, however, their seven children, with the aid of close relatives and resourcefulness gained from adversity, all grew to adulthood and led successful lives.

NOTES: [1]. Daniel is the author's great-grandfather and based on our genealogical numbering system, is identified as no. 1944. Sources will be annotated and added as page 4 of this biographical sketch.

[2]. The Fox-Jones Cemetery is located on land owned by Mr. Jack Davison 3 1/2 miles north of Macon, Mo. It is about 1/2 mile west of Hwy. U.S. 63. It is in the NW 1/4 of the SE 1/4, Section 29, T58N, R14W. The Cemetery is in very poor condition with most of the estimated 25 grave stones flat on the ground. No other relatives are believed buried here. Adin and Charles, Daniel's brothers, are buried in the Liberty Cemetery, about 1 mile east of Fox-Jones.

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

NEWSLETTER
NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

May 4, 1994
Vol.3, No.3

WELCOME TO NEW READERS.....

With this issue we are pleased to add five new recipients to the mailing list for the Newsletter. These additions have a decided western flavor, for three live in California and one in Arizona. Living in California are NORMA ATTEBERRY MITCHELL, Arcata; ELIZABETH COOKSEY, Palmdale; and RALPH FRAVEL, Kenwood. JANET LEE JENSEN lives in Phoenix. Janet and Ralph both descend from Sarah Atterbury(183), daughter of Thomas Atterbury(18). Sarah was the wife of Nathan (Nathaniel?) Jagers.

Norma Mitchell descends from Martin and Cassandra Atteberry. Martin was born about 1820 in Kentucky, but Norma has not yet found his parents or Cassandra's maiden name. Martin and Cassandra were in Polk County, Arkansas, in the mid 1880's. The 1880 Census for Stoddard County, Missouri, includes a Martin and Cassandra Atteberry, Alexander, age 16, and Melinda, age 14, both born in Illinois. The 1870 Stoddard County Census includes a son, John Albert, born 1855 in Kentucky. This family is very likely the family found in Hancock County, Kentucky, in 1860. John Albert Atteberry is the great-grandfather of Norma. Bill Dunn and others, including the writer, are assisting her in the quest for her ancestors. If anyone can shed light on Norma's ancestry, her address is: 210 Anker Lane, Arcata Ca. 95521. (Please see page 6.)

Elizabeth Cooksey's husband Jim descends from Nathan Atterbury(15), through his grandson, George Washington Arterberry(1523). Oddly enough, many of George W.'s later descendants used the spelling "Atteberry".

SANDI GORIN of Glasgow, Kentucky, is the fifth of our new readers. She is a researcher, especially for the Barren County, Ky., area, and has made a considerable effort to try to identify the family of Mary Miller, our great-great-grandmother and wife of William Atterbury(194). In addition, Sandi has furnished us with a copy of the files of her aunt, Jean Pyle, who descends from Richard Atterbury(14). Her files contain many pages of Kentucky Atterbury/..Attebery information we had not seen before.

MAIL BAG.....

Reva Abbott has graciously sent me yet another package of her material, this one primarily on her research on the Butler-Attebery (Atterbury) relationships in her family. Reva further notes that there is an unbroken male line of ten generations of "Atterburys" through her first husband, Luin Lewis Attebery. Looking through my files and Voncille Winter and Wilma Mitchell's book, the longest unbroken male line we could find was nine. Obviously, our starting point is William(1), the progenitor of our Atterbury/..Attebery family in the United States. If any of our readers know of an equal or longer continuous Atterbury/..Attebery line, please let us know.

Our research almost automatically requires that we correspond with many historical and genealogical societies -State, County, and local- for information and sources of genealogical material. While we have not found all of the information we were hoping for, the people associated with every one of the Societies we have corresponded with in recent weeks have spent considerable time and effort on our behalf. With most everything in the world seemingly going to h..., it renews ones faith in humanity to receive so much help from heretofore complete strangers. Society members in Hardin, Hart, and Barren Counties, Kentucky; Fluvanna County, Virginia; and Highland County, Ohio, have been quite helpful in the search for answers to some of our genealogical problems.

HOW DO YOU SPELL ATTERBURY/../ATTEBERY.....?

The last issue of the Newsletter reviewed the National Pro-phone listing for all Atterbury/../Atteberys in the entire United States. At the time of printing of that issue, unfortunately, we did not have the Arterbury-Arterberry versions. However, Linda Attebery Carpenter's magic computer quickly supplied these missing variations. So here is a recast of all the current family surname spelling variations, as found in the 1992 Telephone listings:

It is the writer's studied opinion that probably 80-85% of the above are descendants of William Atterbury(1) the 1733 English emigrant. Much of the balance, especially those spelled "Atterbury" and living in the northeast (New England, N.Y., N.J., Penn., and some Ohio and Ind.) probably descend from Job Atterbury. Job's family came to America about 1800, but do have the same English roots as our Atterbury/../Attebery family. And certainly there may have been others to emigrate in the past 190 years. IF ANYONE has any information on later Atterbury/../Attebery's that emigrated to the U.S., we would like to hear something about them. Also, if you disagree with the 80-85%, let me have your assessment.

A future Newsletter article will review the "Job" line in more detail.

WILLIAM ATTERBURY (1).....

This William is presumed to be the progenitor of our Atterbury/../Attebery family in America, and has been referred to frequently in past issues of this Newsletter. Since he is the "sire" of most of us, we will endeavor here to outline briefly what is known of the life of William Atterbury.

Few facts are available to accurately define the life, relationships, and activities of a person who lived some 250 years ago. Hence, anyone attempting to do so must make a number of assumptions, sometimes based on little or no evidence. In this case, the account is further complicated by the presence of other Atterburys who preceded William(1) to the American Colonies. This treatise, however, conveys what the writer believes to be the most likely portrayal of our ancestor.

Most of our readers, perhaps 75%, have not seen or read the book "THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM ATTERBURY, 1733 ENGLISH EMIGRANT", written by Voncille Attebery Winter and Wilma Attebery Mitchell. With this book as a reference and considerable Colonial period material furnished by Wilma Mitchell, Bill Dunn, Reva Abbott, Leota King, Vicki Doetsch, and others, we have prepared this historical-biographical account of the life and times of William Atterbury(1).

Without other input, one might assume that the subject of this article was the first Atterbury to come to America. However, prior to our William, at least four Atterbury's are known to have been in the Colonies. Here is a brief recap:

- 1).Richard (1609 - 1638); a London fishmonger who may have lived in Virginia for a time, died unmarried with no children.
- 2).William (1608 - c.1660); London merchant and brother of Richard, traveled frequently to the Colonies but lived in London. Inheirted his brother's land in Virginia. This older William also is surmised to be the great-grandfather of William(1). However, the lack of any direct evidence to bridge the two-generation gap precludes establishing this relationship as fact. This William also was a great uncle to the oft mentioned Sir Francis Atterbury, Bishop of Rochester, and adviser to Queen Anne. Suffice to say that the family legend of kinship to Francis Atterbury is very likely true, so some such relationship for our William(1) has to exist.
- 3).Thomas (c.1660 - 1708); lived in Calvert County, Maryland, Will noted a wife with unborn child and married daughter.
- 4).Thomas Arterbury (c.1700 - 1749); also lived in Calvert County, and may have been the unborn child of the above Thomas. No children cited in his will, so he is assumed to have left no offspring.
- 5).A single reference to at least three other Atterbury's have been noted by family researchers, but no other information on any of them was found.

The first that is known of William(1) was uncovered by English researchers on behalf of Wayne Attebery of Salem, Illinois. This was their report on a crime committed by him:

" William Atterbury was a labourer of the parish of St. James Liberty, Westminster, Middlesex, and was tried on 31st January, 1732. He was a prisoner in Newgate Prison, in the reign of George II. He was committed by Ol. Lambert, esquire, on oath of Frederick Humble for stealing out of the shop of George Cole some stuff, five yards of Linsey Woolsey, worth three shillings."

It was common practice for young, healthy prisoners to be deported under bond to the American Colonies. Some 20,000 were shipped from Newgate Prison alone in the period 1615 - 1775. "Contractors" were paid by the Crown to provide transportation and arrange for the bonded felons to work as indentured laborers. After 7 or 14 years, depending on the severity of their crime, they were then free to pursue their own interests.

Our William(1) was deported to America under this scheme. He was probably 18-20 years old at this time (making his year of birth about 1710-1715). It is speculated that many young but destitute men committed minor crimes for the sole purpose of securing transportation to America. William boarded the ship "Patapscoe Merchant" April 17, 1733, along with 98 other prisoners. This was the fifth of eight such trips by the Patapscoe, all but one commanded by Captain Darby Lux, and with the destination Baltimore, Maryland. (The ship Patapscoe Merchant was most likely named for the Patapscoe River of Maryland that passes through Baltimore to the Chesapeake Bay. Even today, the Patapscoe River forms the major port area of Baltimore.)

William undoubtedly served his "sentence", in all likelihood seven years, as a laborer on a Maryland plantation. He thus was free of his bond in the year 1740, and then probably continued as a paid laborer in the same area, if not the same plantation.

He married Sarah Mitchell Yaxley, daughter of John and Elizabeth Mitchell of Prince George's County, in about 1742. No documentation of their marriage, however, has yet been found. Sarah was born August 31, 1720, and had previously been married to Robert Yaxley. Little is known of this marriage except a daughter, Elizabeth Yaxley, was living with the elder Mitchells in 1748. William and Sarah continued to live in this same area, and on December 9, 1746, received a grant for a 50 acre tract called "Prince Spring" plantation. (From the earliest Colonial times it was the custom in Maryland to assign a name to every tract of land for which a patent or title was given). Prince Spring plantation was located on a "draw" of the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River, long since renamed the Anacostia River. The precise location of the plantation was quite likely within the present day boundary of the District of Columbia. William and Sarah and their family resided here until selling the plantation on August 16, 1754, to John Riddle, Jr. for "three thousand pounds of tobacco".

|------------------|-------------|
| Michael (11)---- | born c.1744 |
| William (12)---- | " c.1746 |
| Charles (13)---- | " c.1747 |
| Richard (14)---- | " c.1748 |
| Nathan (15)----- | " c.1750 |
| John (16)----- | " c.1751 |
| Edward (17)----- | " c.1753 |

William and his family were eventually to reside in Loudoun County, Virginia being found there in 1758. But after selling their Prince Spring plantation in 1754, they very likely settled in Frederick County, Maryland, for possibly three years. The Maryland Gazette of August 26, 1756, carried the following notice:

"William Atterbury has a stray mare at his plantation near Rock Creek Chapel in Frederick County."

(This article is found in the Genealogical and Historical Abstracts of the Maryland Gazette 1727 - 1761 by Karen Mauer Green, The Frontier Press, Galveston, 1989.)

Rock Creek flows into the Potomac River near Georgetown in the District of Columbia. In 1756, Frederick County abutted Prince George's County on the northwest. Hence, William's move from Prince Spring was probably no more than five to fifteen miles, and was on a reasonable route to migrate to Loudoun County, Virginia. Loudoun County, formed in 1757, was directly across the Potomac River from Frederick County. Further research hopefully will reveal the location of the Rock Creek Chapel and William's plantation plus other details about this segment of the Atterbury family's life.

William and Sarah's eighth son, Thomas(18), was born c.1755. Hence, he very likely was born at this Frederick County homestead.

The Atterbury family in all probability moved to Loudoun County, Virginia, in 1757, and William is found on the Tithable list (Personal Tax Roll) in 1758. James(19), the ninth and last son of William and Sarah, was also probably born in 1758.

(This account of the life and times of William Atterbury (1) will be completed in the next issue of the Newsletter.)

A PERSONAL REFLECTION.....

My father, John C. Atterbury, Sr.(194415) (1890-1967), always seemed to have an interest in our family history. However, in retrospect, he actually knew but little of what is known today. He knew about a relationship to Francis Atterbury and would occasionally speak of the family ancestors from South Carolina.

In the 1920's and early 1930's, he was secretary to a Missouri Congressman. As a result, we lived in Washington, D.C. when Congress was in session. John, Sr. would have been absolutely ecstatic had he known that when living in northeast D.C., he was possibly just two or three miles from the site of his great-great-great grandfather's Prince Spring plantation. Had he known this, we are certain it would have spawned considerable interest on his part to learn much more about his ancestors.

WIFE of CHARLES ATTERBURY (13).....

Most references to Charles(13) identifies his wife as a Sarah Mitchell. However, with his father William(1) apparently marrying Sarah Mitchell Yaxley, there has been some speculation that Charles' wife was misidentified. In a letter dated March 19, 1961, from Reva Abbott to Lillian Harmon, Reva notes the following Query found in the D.A.R. Magazine, July 1938:

"Want ancestry & data on Chas. ATTERBURY - wife (traditionally) Sarah JETT - son Michael married in Hardin Co., Ky. in 1816. Chas. possibly from N. or S. Carolina -" (From Mrs. James R. Spraker, Buffalo, N.Y.)

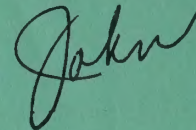

If anyone has any knowledge of research on SARAH JETT, we would be pleased to hear about it. Hazel Atterbury Spraker (Mrs. James R.) is believed to have passed away many years ago.

A look at the original 1880 Census of Stoddard County, Missouri, reveals that Martin Atteberry's FATHER and MOTHER were both clearly noted as being born in FRANCE (yes, FRANCE !). All who have done Census research know that errors were made by the Census Enumerators. However, in this case, IF France is correct, then an entirely new line of investigation is open. (Remember, Martin himself was born in Kentucky about 1820.)

If any of our readers can shed light on what the facts are in this case, we are certain all other Atterbury/../Attebery researchers will be interested. In all of the material that we have received in the past year, there is absolutely no indication of any Atterbury/../Attebery emigrants from France.

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

NEWSLETTER

NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

July 4, 1994

Vol. 3, No.4

WELCOME TO NEW READERS.....

We are pleased to introduce five new readers who have been added to the mailing list for this Newsletter. ROXANNE BARBRE of Constantine, Michigan, and her cousin, KAREN HUGHES of Springfield, Missouri, have an uncommon Atterbury/../Attebery ancestry. Their great grandmother, Sara Ann Atterbury, was born in England about 1850, and came to America as the wife of William Vie in 1870. In the writers opinion, Sara Ann's roots will most likely prove to be the same as other Atterbury's who came to this country at a much earlier date. Karen and Roxanne have traced their Atterbury line back to a Daniel Atterbury, born in 1814 in Darbyshire, England. Hopefully, their English research will shed a little light on the ancestors of our own William Atterbury(1).

EDNA WALTERS and SHIRLEY HANNAFORD are the sister and cousin, respectively, of Bernice Ehlers, a "charter member" recipient of this Newsletter. Edna lives in Fairbury, Illinois, and Shirley resides in Fort Wayne, Indiana. Like Bernice, they descend from Richard Atterbury(14).

KAY MILLION of Paris, Missouri, is actively doing Atterbury/../Attebery research. Her husband descends from Thomas Atterbury(18).

NEXT ISSUE.....

The September edition of this Newsletter will include a roster of all those on the mailing list of the Newsletter. The city or town where they reside and their line of descent, where appropriate, will be included. Several readers have expressed an interest in knowing who the other recipients of the Newsletter are, many of whom will be newly "discovered" cousins.

MAIL BAG.....

BERNICE EHLERS has corresponded with Brigadier General (Retired) ROY L. ATTEBERRY of Meredith, New Hampshire. By his own admission, Roy has done very little research on his family history, but in a letter to Bernice he made a very thought-provoking comment. Apparently during the course of his Army career he was stationed in France for a number of years. Roy Atteberry's comment was; ".....I lived in France for a few years and my French friends insisted the name (Atteberry) was of French origin".

This is the second time in three months we have had a reference to France come to light. Could it be that when Sir Frances Atterbury was exiled from England in 1722 and went to Paris to live, one or more other Atterbury families accompanied him to France, and remained there after his death in 1732 ? This seems a more likely scenario than assuming the surname "Atterbury" (or something similar) actually originated in France, and some members then migrated to England prior to the year 1300 when the surname first appears. Certainly, "Atterbury" has a decided English flavor, more so than French. However, Roy Atteberry's French friends must of had some basis for making the statement. At the very least it would seem to indicate that Atterbury/../Attebery's had been in France for some period of time. Is it possible that the reason Francis Atterbury chose Paris for his place of exile was the existence of Atterbury relations there ? In any event, it would seem that some in-depth French research is in order. Comments ??? (Also, see article on Francis Atterbury, page 5)

The writer has had letters from many of you since the last Newsletter, all with something to add to fill out the gigantic puzzle that is our collective family genealogical history. At the moment, we are somewhat behind in replying due partly to a quick trip to Missouri, and partly to an annual spring bout with asthma. Hopefully, we will be caught up by the time we print this Newsletter. Suffice to say that we welcome and appreciate every single letter we receive, and strive to answer each one as completely and quickly as possible.

ATTERBURY /../ ATTEBERY ANCESTRY.....

With very few exceptions, all of the recipients of this Newsletter (about 60 this issue) are descendants of one of the nine sons of William Atterbury(1). These nine sons, in the probable order of their birth, are; Michael(11), William(12), Charles(13), Richard(14), Nathan(15), John(16), Edward(17), Thomas(18), and James(19).

The vast majority of us, naturally, descend from just one of these nine sons. However, due to the marriage of Jesse(165), son of John, and Levisa(186), daughter of Thomas, several descend from both John and Thomas. But WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL descends from THREE (!) of William's sons. Wilma's father, Robert William Attebery, was the great grandson of Jesse and Levisa. Her mother, Dora Elizabeth Martin, was the great, great, great granddaughter of Richard(14).

Wilma discovered this relationship in her research that culminated in the book "The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant", which she co-authored with her first cousin, Voncille Attebery Winter. Wilma writes that her parents only suspected they may have been somehow related, but never knew their true relationship.

So Wilma, and of course her brothers and sisters, enjoy the very unique distinction of being the MOST Atterbury/../Attebery of all !!

COPING WITH A RESEARCH PROBLEM.....

How do you spell "MITCHELL"....."Mitoken" ? How would you spell "HICKEY"... "Hukery" ? Or "HARDWICK"....."Hardurike" ? These are actual examples of misspelled family surnames found in Census Indexes for Kentucky in 1840 and 1850, and Indiana in 1860. This problem can be very misleading, and combatting it can be time-consuming and frustrating.

Old Census reports are one of the good basic references for genealogical research. An Index to the Census is vital to quickly locate a person or family by county and page number. IF the indexer did not correctly interpret the Census enumerator's hand-written entry, then a researcher may be lead to believe that a person for whom he or she is searching is NOT in the Census.

When first starting out to learn something of our family's history, and not locating the person we were seeking in a Census Index, we erroneously assumed they were missed by the Census enumerator, or did not reside where we thought they did. However, we have learned (the hard way) that a given surname could be badly misspelled by either the original enumerator or the indexer, or the indexer could have failed entirely to include the name in the index. We have found many ancestors whose names were not in an index, but were later discovered in the actual Census.

The moral of this story is: If you are doing census research, and can't find your ancestor, consider first ALL the possible ways the name might be spelled. Study the index carefully for unusual names that may be close alphabetically to the name you are seeking. For example, MIToken for MITchell. If no misspellings prove out, then you must go through the Census, page by page, for the County or Counties in which you believe the person you are seeking resided.

ATTERBERRY, ILLINOIS.....

BONNIE ATTERBERRY MESSETT and her daughter, Melody Grossbaier, have prepared the following historical sketch about the little town of Atterberry, in Menard County, Illinois. Atterberry is 25 miles northwest of Springfield. Bonnie lives in Petersburg, just 5 miles southeast of Atterberry, and is one of the early recipients of this Newsletter. She descends from James Atterbury(19), through his son Daniel(195) and grandson Greenberry(1955).(Daniel, Greenberry, and many of their descendants are buried in the family graveyard mentioned in the article). Our sincere thanks to Bonnie and Melody for sharing this with us.

As has come to be expected with our family surname, the town is properly spelled "Atterberry", but the Rand-McNally Road Atlas spells it "Atterbury".

ATTERBERRY, ILLINOIS

The first Atterberry's arrived in Menard County, Illinois which was then Sangamon County, around 1827, many after 1835. Some of the land was bought for $1.25 an acre and most stayed.

Forty-three years after the first settlers arrived, a great change occurred with the arrival of the railroad. In 1870 work had begun by the Springfield and Northwestern Railroad Company in Havana. Work progressed slowly and the railroad was finished across Mason County and a few miles into Menard County in 1871. By 1872, the train was running between Havana and Petersburg.

On March 16, 1872, forty acres were surveyed into lots for the beginning of a place to be called Atterberry Station located on the line of the Springfield and Northwestern Railroad. The forty acres belonged to Daniel Atterberry, who set aside one acre of ground to be used for a depot and shipping pens. Many car loads of fine livestock were sent to market in the years to come. A Mr. Colburn was depot agent.

In the years to come there was two grocery stores and a little store where Sam Cuncan made and sold liniment. Two churches were built. There was an elevator which later handled grain, lumber and machinery. There was also a blacksmith shop and a doctor.

A post office was established July 1, 1872 with John Atterberry as postmaster. Other Atterberry's who served as postmaster and their date of appointment were: Green B. Atterberry, May 22, 1873; Greenberry Atterberry, June 18, 1883; Goldye B. Atterberry, July 9, 1918. The post office existed until it closed May 2, 1969 -- a total of 97 years.

A school was started August 9, 1856 on land owned by Areste Sampson and wife, Jane and was called Sampson College. This was recorded on April 10, 1858. The first directors were Lewis Watkins, John Norris and George Waring. It was supported by subscription, the charges being $1.50 to $2.50 per pupil for a three month term. School being in session only three months in the winter. The location was one mile west of where Atterberry is now and was used as a school until a new building was built in 1890's in Atterberry which was used until September 30, 1958, then sold and made into a dwelling just 100 years from the beginning.

Two miles southwest of Atterberry was a church known as Hopewell Predestination Baptist. It was used for the needs of the community until others were started and it was finally sold, moved to Atterberry and made into a dwelling. The last funeral service held there was for Elias Kirby (son of Nancy Kirby Atterberry) in 1914.

The first church in Atterberry was a Methodist called McDole Chapel. It was built by popular subscription on land owned by Cyrus McDole.

In 1910 a stirring revival was held by a Frank Day and from this inspiration the Baptist Church was also built by subscription in 1910 and dedicated September 3, 1911. The first funeral held here was for J. C.. "Crit" Atterberry.

A cemetery was set aside on one acre of ground on the Daniel Atterberry farm, one and one-half miles south of Atterberry. The first burial was a seven-month old baby in 1852, son of Christopher Atterberry. The last burial was Maggie H. Atterberry (wife of George W. Atterberry) who died in the 1920's.

The name Atterberry Station was not used very long and on May 15, 1883 the community became known as Atterberry.

Unfortunately, with the closing of the school and a decade later the post office, the little town of Atterberry is now only noted by the sign on Route 97. Many of the original homes still stand along with newer ones. The elevator is still in existence, as well as the Atterberry Baptist Church.

MORE UNUSAL NAMES.....

From the 1850 Census of Hancock County, Kentucky, located on the Ohio River, we can add to our list of unusual names. On page 275 we find ANTIDILUVIAN Neighbors, age 5, the son of John T. and Mary Neighbors. Possibly his parents meant "Antediluvian", which generally refers to the period before the biblical flood. Regardless, there must have been a great flood on the Ohio River just prior to or following the boy's birth, sufficient to make such a profound impression on his parents. When time permits, we will attempt to learn what name he used as he grew older.

Also in this same Census we noted BASHABAY Corley, age 9, daughter of Jabiz and Tobitha Corley. In Hart County, Kentucky, we saw RELIEF Wood, age 15, and ARTIMISIA Short, age 17. So finding unusual names does offset some of the frustration encountered when searching old Census reports.

BOOK REVIEW: PHOTOGRAPHIC HISTORY OF THE CIVIL WAR.....

This 10 volume set was first published in 1911, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the beginning of the Civil War. It was re-published in 1987 in 5 double volumes by The Blue & Grey Press. We were fortunate enough to acquire the full set of this remarkable history. While there is ample prose to tell the story of the war, the thousands of pictures from this first war in history to be extensively photographed make this a very unique record.

FRANCIS ATTERBURY, BISHOP of ROCHESTER.....

The comment on page 1 of this Newsletter about Francis Atterbury probably needs some explanation to a portion of our readers. Hence, the following is a short biographical sketch of his life, the sources of the information being the Encyclopedia Britannica and the book "Descendants of Job Atterbury" by Anne and L. Effingham de Forest. The picture is from the frontispiece of that book.

Francis Atterbury was born on March 6, 1663, at Milton Keynes, Buckinghamshire. He was the son of Lewis Atterbury and Elizabeth Giffard. Francis received his education at Westminster (prep school) and Christ Church, Oxford. He was selected by Queen Anne in 1711 to be her chief adviser in ecclesiastical matters and was named as dean of Christ Church, Oxford. In 1713, Queen Anne appointed Francis the Bishop of Rochester. After Anne's sudden death in 1714, Francis fell out of favor with her successor, George I, because of his efforts to place a Stuart on the English throne. He was arrested in 1721 and charged with treason. In 1722, he was committed to the Tower of London prison. After a few months he was released and banished from England for life. Francis spent most of his time in exile in Paris, where he continued his efforts to place James, the Stuart Pretender, on the throne of England.

Francis died in Paris, France, on February 22, 1732. He is buried in Westminster Abbey, London, where he was brought in great privacy by friends after his death in Paris. His tomb is still there today, among the many kings, queens, and other great men and statesmen of England.

Francis married Katherine Osborn about 1695. Two children were born to this marriage; Mary, in 1698 and Osborn, in 1705.

Osborn had returned to England following his father's death and married Sarah Ashworth in 1732. Osborn and Sarah's children were all born in England, reducing, but not eliminating the possibility that Francis Atterbury's direct descendants could have engendered a line of Atterburys in France. Job Atterbury, who came to America about 1800, possibly descends from Osborn and Sarah.

In the May 4, 1994, issue of this Newsletter we briefly mentioned (page 3) one possible relationship of Francis Atterbury to most of the Atterbury/..-/Attebery descendants living in the United States. And, as stated, the family legend of kinship to Francis is very likely true. Hopefully, someday the precise relationship will be uncovered.

SIR FRANCIS ATTERBURY

(The first part of this brief biographical sketch appeared in the May 4, 1994 issue, Vol. 3, No. 3.)

After a probable stay of two to three years in Frederick County, Maryland, William and Sarah and their eight sons moved to Loudoun County, Virginia. This move was but just a few miles across the Potomac River, most likely in 1757, the year Loudoun County was formed from the northwest segment of Fairfax County. William is found on the Loudoun County List of Tithables (Personal Tax Roll) in 1758. As noted previously, James, the ninth son of William and Sarah, was born in Loudoun County in 1758.

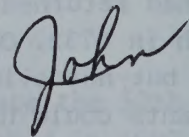

William and Michael, assumed to be his oldest son, appeared on the Tax Lists for 1760 and 1761. The Tax List included all males age 16 and over, indicating that Michael was born about 1744.

The October, 1993, Newsletter reported the work of John Phillips who is preparing a history of Loudoun County, covering the period 1757-1766. John found an August, 1760, record that identified William "Artherbury" as a "sawyer", i.e. a carpenter or wood finisher. While there is no proof yet that this is our William Atterbury, it most likely is William(1). This is the first indication that has surfaced noting William as anything but a farmer. With several able sons to tend the crops and any livestock, possibly William had to do other work to support his large family.

William acquired property in Loudoun County, probably shortly after moving there. However, in September, 1765, he was sued by merchants James and William Carr Lane for his indebtedness to them. To settle this suit, William was forced to convey his plantation "with the crops thereon growing" to them for "15 pounds current money" (Deed book "D", page 706). Had he been able to repay the debt by December 25, 1765, this transfer of his property would have "become void and of no effect". He evidently saw no way of repaying because a Bill of Sale was consummated on October 15, 1765. (We speculate that one possible reason for his frequent moves and sale of his land that William's principal crop was tobacco. Tobacco will quickly deplete the soil of needed minerals, with the quality and yield of successive crops rapidly falling.)

The Tithables list for 1769 shows Sarah Artebery and Edward Arteberry. This indicates William had died, since Sarah would not have been listed otherwise. This, then, tells us that William Atterbury(1), the progenitor of most of the Atterbury/.../Attebery's in America, died in Loudoun County, Virginia, about 1766-1768. Sarah Atterbury was not shown on any later Tax Lists, indicating that she passed away about 1770.

(John Fishback of the Loudoun County Genealogy Club has made a considerable effort to identify pre-revolutionary residents and their date of death. To date, he has found no record of the death of William and Sarah).

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

NEWSLETTER
NEWS AND VIEWS ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

Sept.16, 1994
Vol.3, No.5

WELCOME TO NEW READERS.....

With this issue, we are pleased to make two additions to the Newsletter mailing list. JEAN ADAMS PYLE of Tucson, Arizona, descends from Charles(13), and is the aunt (by marriage) of Sandi Gorin. Jean is actively researching her family history and has furnished several new items(new to the writer) related to our collective family history.

JERRY McDANIEL, who is the nephew of Reva Abbott, lives in Liberal, Kansas. Jerry is a descendant of James(19) and is quite interested in his family history. But as most other working folk, he has little time for research, so hopefully the Newsletter will prove to be of interest to Jerry and his family.

NEWSLETTER MAILING LIST.....

A number of you have expressed interest in knowing the names of the other recipients of the Newsletter. To fulfill this interest, a list of the regular readers is included as pages 5 and 6 of this Newsletter. Each person's place of residence and line of descent, where applicable, is noted. If their Atterbury/..../Attebery relationship is through marriage, the notation " /spouse" follows the ancestral relation.

Seven of the nine sons of our American progenitor, William Atterbury(1), are represented. Michael(11), and Edward(17) are not.

"X" indicates the reader is related to the writer, but not in the Atterbury line. "Y" denotes the line of descent has yet to be established. "Z" designates other interested but unrelated friends, libraries, societies, etc.

Since the writer descends from James (19), it is no surprise that James is the most frequent ancestor among our readers.

THE "ATTERBURY/..../ATTEBERY" NOTATION.....

We frequently use the condensed "Atterbury/..../Attebery" phrase to avoid the tedious and lengthy repetition of all the different ways that our family surname is spelled. For example, the telephone listings summarized in the May, 1994, Newsletter noted 21 different spellings. So when you see this expression, please accept this "shorthand" method of referring to the total family. Credit for this expression goes to Voncille Winter, who first used it when referring to the Atterbury/Arterbury/Arterberry/Atterberry/Atteberry/Attebery Family Association.

UNUSUAL NAMES DEPARTMENT.....

In this issue, we add two more names to our unusual name list. The first is ROYAL WELCOME GEER, born 1882 in Simpson, Minnesota. His reception at birth must have been a gala event! In the Knox County, Kentucky, Census for 1850 we noted ADDALYSSY LATHOM. Perhaps this was the census enumerator's way of spelling a similar sounding first and middle name (i.e., Ada Eliza, etc.)

CORRECTION TO WILLIAM ATTERBURY(1) BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.....

The May and July issues carried a short sketch on the life of William. In the introductory paragraphs in the May issue we noted the known Atterburys who had preceded William to the American Colonies. Included was Thomas Atterbury, c.1660 - 1707 (not 1708). His will notes a son JOHN and daughter WINNIFRED in addition to an unborn child. Our remarks about Thomas, who lived in Calvert County, Maryland, completely overlooked his son John. While, to our knowledge, no offspring of John have been identified, it is conceivable that descendants of John could exist.

The intent in naming other possible Atterbury progenitors is to not lose sight of these potential additional ancestral lines. The following article on page 2 will mention still other Atterbury immigrants.

MORE ATTERBURY IMMIGRANTS.....

The biographical sketch of William Atterbury(1) identifies the known Atterburys that were found in America BEFORE William came to the Colonies in the year 1733. In this article, we will enumerate the Atterburys that we believe to have immigrated to America AFTER our William(1):

A. The PASSENGER AND IMMIGRATION LISTS INDEX includes the following:

- 1). HENRY ATTERBURY ----- landed in Maryland in February, 1742
- 2). LEWIS ATTERBURY ----- landed in Philadelphia in 1801
- 3). BENJAMIN ATTERBURY --- landed in New York in 1824
- 4). W.B. ATTERBURY ----- landed in San Fransico in 1852

Comments:

- 1). Henry, in a manner similar to our William(1), was deported from England as a bonded prisoner on the prison ship "Industry", and probably served a seven-year term. We have seen no further reference to Henry, but possibly he is the Henry S. Atterbury who married Caroline Strong, a direct descendant of James Chilton of the Mayflower. We have not attempted any research on this line. If Henry and Henry S. are not one and the same, then an additional Atterbury can be added to our list.
- 2). This Lewis was probably the oldest son of Job Atterbury (see "B" below). If this is correct, Lewis was 22 years of age in 1801. He married Catherine Boudinot of Newark, N.J. in 1803.
- 3). We did not locate Benjamin in the New York 1830 Census Index. So, if still alive, he probably had moved on to another state. No further search was made.
- 4). A Wm. B. Atterbury, age 33, was found in the 1860 California Census, Sonoma County, p.406, with wife and two children. However, Wm.B.'s place of birth was listed as Kentucky, so he is most likely a descendant of William(1), and not the W.B. Atterbury who immigrated through San Francisco. No further search was made.

B. While JOB ATTERBURY's precise date of immigration into the United States is not known, it was about 1795 - 1798. His family and descendants are well documented in the book "THE DESCENDANTS OF JOB ATTERBURY" by L. Effingham deForest, published in 1933. Many Atterburys in the United States today descend from Job, but, to the writers knowledge, none are included on the mailing list of this Newsletter.

Nine of Job's children were born in England. Only the tenth and youngest was born in America, but all of his living children came to this country.

It bears repeating that when deForest researched and wrote his book, he made absolutely no mention of the majority of the Atterbury/.../Atteberys living in the United States and their long line of ancestors extending back to our William Atterbury(1).

There is little doubt, however, that Job and William(1) are related. Their common ancestor is most likely LEWIS ATTERBURY (1562 - 1631) and his wife, MARY HARVEY. They lived in Great Houghton, Northamptonshire, England.

C. The May, 1994, Newsletter (Vol.3, No.3) noted that the PARENTS of MARTIN ATTEBERRY (born 1820 in Kentucky) were both BORN in FRANCE. The source of this information was the 1880 Census Report of Stoddard County, Missouri. Martin is the great-great grandfather of Norma Atteberry Mitchell, Arcata, California. If the Census Report is correct, and we have no reason to believe a mistake like this was made, then Martin Atteberry's father is the progenitor of yet another line of Atterbury/.../Atteberys in this country.

A review of the I.G.I. file maintained by the Morman Church reveals that a MARY (Maria) ATTERBURY was married in Toulouse, France, on May 21, 1715. (Source film No. 183435, sheet 430). This may have been Mary, the daughter of Sir Francis Atterbury, who is known to have married in 1715. More importantly, it does indicate the presence of Atterburys in France at an early date. When time permits, we expect to do more research on this "French connection".

D. The only other Atterbury immigrant known at this time was SARAH ANN ATTERBURY, born Aug.15,1843, in Derbyshire, England. She came to America in 1870 as the wife of WILLIAM VIE. As reported in the July, 1994 Newsletter, Sarah is the great grandmother of Karen Hughes and Roxanne Barbre.

If any of our readers know of other Atterbury/...Attebery immigrants, or can enlarge on any of the above comments, please let us know, so that this knowledge can be noted in a future issue of the Newsletter.

RESEARCH IN FREDERICK COUNTY, MARYLAND.....

We have started to search the Deed Records of Frederick County, looking for evidence that William Atterbury(1) bought and sold land in this County before moving on to Loudoun County, Virginia. The recent biographical sketch on William noted the reference to a William Atterbury having "a plantation near Rock Creek Chapel in Frederick County". The records in the time period we are searching (1754 - 1758) are not indexed, so considerable time (and eye strain) is necessary to scan each of the several hundred hand-written deeds from this period. No "Atterbury" deed was found during the first hour of the search.

The location of TWO Rock Creek Chapels have been identified for us by Jane C. Sween, Librarian for the Montgomery County, Maryland, Historical Society. She has furnished material noting that a chapel was built in 1719 near where the present St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek, Washington, D.C., now stands. It was called Rock Creek Chapel. In 1739, there was a chapel built near Rock Creek at Rockville, Maryland. This, too, was called Rock Creek Chapel. Though 15 miles apart, both would have been in Frederick County in the 1754 - 1758 time period. This repetition of names creates some historical confusion, but such is genealogical research. You either have conflicting information, or more often, little or none at all.

In the writer's opinion, the first mentioned Rock Creek Chapel is the more likely area for William Atterbury's plantation because of its close proximity to the Potomac River. Hopefully, we can report more information in the next issue of the Newsletter.

ATTERBURY /.../ ATTEBERYS IN THE CIVIL WAR

An early issue of this Newsletter noted the writer's life-long but mistaken assumption, prior to starting genealogical research, that most all Atterbury /.../Attebery family members fought on the side of the Confederacy. Our belief was based on our grandfather Joseph William Atterbury's(19441) service in a Confederate unit, and the family's southern heritage. This error became quite evident after we started to receive family history information from many of our readers. This material sparked our interest to determine just who and how many family members were on each side in that conflict. So far we have learned....

UNION: We have identified at least 55 Atterbury/.../Atteberys who served in various Union Army units. The majority of these were from Illinois and Missouri but with many other states represented. All but possibly three of these Union soldiers appeared to descend from our William(1). Two from New York, including the Atterbury/.../Attebery with the highest rank, Colonel William Atterbury, descend from Job Atterbury.

As we probed deeper into our Civil War information we became aware of a number of human-interest stories, side-lights to the War itself. Leota King of Spokane, Washington, who descends from Thomas(18), has given us the details on one of the best of these stories. Isaac Newton Atterbury (b.1805, d.1886), Leota's great grandfather, had 15 children, including seven sons. Isaac Newton lived in Kirksville, Adair County, Missouri. He and FIVE ! (yes, 5!) of his sons volunteered for service on the Union side during the war. While most of their service seems to have been brief, this was not unusual for many Missouri units. However, the writer is of the opinion that one or more of them probably served additional, but undocumented, time in other units.

Isaac and his sons' official records are as follows:

| NAME | Unit | Enlisted | Age | Discharged |
|--------------------------|--------------------------|-----------|-----|------------|
| -ISAAC NEWTON ATTERBURY | Pvt. Co.B, 11th Cavalry | 2-2-1862 | 56 | 2-18-1862 |

| -ISAAC TAYLOR ATTERBURY | Pvt. Co.H, 7th Cavalry | n/a | 20 | n/a |
| -JOSEPH F. ATTERBURY (*) | Pvt. Co.C, 11th " | 5-10-1862 | 18 | 8-25-1862 |
| -MARTIN V. ATTERBURY | Pvt. Co.H, 42nd Infantry | 8-14-1864 | 16 | 9-10-1864 |

(*) On August 25, 1862, Joseph deserted his Cavalry Regiment, and joined a Confederate Militia unit. No other details are known about his desertion or his Confederate service.

CONFEDERATE: To date, we know of only five Atterbury/./Atteberys who served on the Confederate side during the Civil War. We feel certain, however, that there are others we have not yet identified. The known five are:

- JOSEPH WILLIAM ATTERBURY (19441), Private, Monroe County, Mo. Lost his leg in Second Battle of Booneville (Mo.), September, 1861.
- NORMAN POLK ATTERBURY (1999), Private, Randolph County, Mo. Norman is believed to have enlisted as a drummer boy.
- C.W. ATTERBURY, Arkansas; fought in the battle of Pea Ridge, Arkansas.
- M.R. ATTERBURY, Arkansas;
- BENNETT ARTERBERRY (1521?), Jackson County, Tennessee. As documented in the book "THROUGH THE ORCHARD..." by Nora A. Lemons, Bennett had a most unusual service career. His eventful Civil War saga, fighting first for the South, then later for the North, is briefly summarized below:

Bennett enlisted on Dec. 25, 1861, in Co. C, Tennessee Light Artillery. Defending against Union boats on Island No. 10 in the Mississippi River, the Confederates surrendered on April 7, 1862. Six thousand prisoners, including Bennett Arterberry, were taken to Camp Douglas prison in Chicago, Illinois. In prison, he signed a statement of allegiance to the Union.

Bennett was then "enlisted" in an Illinois Infantry unit for three years. In a battle at Harper's Ferry, Virginia (now West Virginia), September, 1862, he was captured by the Confederates, paroled, and returned to Chicago. He was furloughed by his Commanding Officer to move his family from Tennessee to Illinois, but at the same time, he was mistakenly listed as a deserter on the Muster Roll. While in Tennessee, he was captured by Confederates but after several months managed to escape. Bennett, at the time of his absence, did not know he was listed as a deserter.

Back in Illinois, his family moved and desertion record corrected, Bennett rejoined his Regiment. His Regiment, in turn, became part of General William T. Sherman's Army in its march through the south. Bennett received a head wound in the battle for Atlanta but returned to duty for the balance of the war. He was honorably discharged in June, 1865, and returned to his family in Perry County, Illinois.

So Bennett, then, to be factual, was much more a Union soldier than a Confederate. Undoubtedly, there were a number of men who, for one reason or another, were compelled to serve on both sides in that Conflict. Bennett Arterberry, however, was probably unmatched in what he experienced in three and one-half years of service in the Civil War.

Later, Bennett moved his family to Texas, and then to Chickasaw Nation, Indian Territory, in what is now Marshall County, Oklahoma. He died there in August, 1900.

[The writer would appreciate information on additional Atterbury/./Attebery Civil War soldiers or details about the service of either Union or Confederates. If there is sufficient interest, we'll include the entire list of known Union soldiers in the next Newsletter. Please drop me a line if you wish to see the list.]

ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY

November 9, 1994 Vol. 3, No. 6

New Computer, New Program, New Format; Same Old Writer, Typist, Editor, and Printer. . .

With this issue, we begin another chapter in the evolution of the ATTERBURY FAMILY HISTORY Newsletter. Hopefully, it will gradually become more readable as we learn something about how this Microsoft Publisher "desktop publishing program" is supposed to work. In family circles, the writer is known as a computer illiterate, so you, the readers of this publication, will have to be tolerant of the inevitable miscues that will occur.

The first thing you probably noticed was a different style in the masthead of this front page of the Newsletter. We like the old one better, but, as yet have not found how to incorporate it into this new program, other than "cut and paste". Another program with hundreds of additional fonts has not yet been installed, so maybe the next issue will look more like the old one.

Biographical sketch of William Atterbury (#194).

A recently prepared biographical account of the life of the writer's great-great grandfather is included as pages 4, 5 and 6 of this Newsletter. While details of William's life are scanty, we believe there are sufficient facts to describe a reasonable picture of this Missouri pioneer. As additional information is uncovered, this sketch will be amended and added to to present the most complete account possible.

We welcome and request your help with any corrections, additions, documentation, family legends, or any other information you may have concerning the life of William Atterbury or his family. When significant changes have been made, a revised edition of this sketch will be made available to all interested family members.

As noted in the sketch, we have not yet identified the parents of William's wife, our great-great grandmother, Mary Miller. The best clue we have at the moment is that a Henry A. Miller, probably Mary's brother, lived close by in Monroe County, Mo. Daniel Atterbury(1944), provided the security bond for Henry Miller's Probate in January, 1845.

WELCOME TO NEW READERS.....

We are pleased to introduce these new additions to the Newsletter mailing list:

RICHARD ATTEBERRY of Fairbury, Illinois. While we have not yet learned Dick's exact pedigree, we believe he descends from William (12). Edna Walters, also of Fairbury, introduced us via mail to Dick.

BILL ATTERBERRY of Osage Beach, Missouri. Bill is the featured performer of the "OZARK OPRY", a long-running musical comedy Theatre at Osage Beach on the Lake of the Ozarks. He is an accomplished musician, playing many different instruments, and an excellent comedian. If you are in the area this is must see item to include in your itinerary. Bill descends from Thomas(18), and was raised in the Monroe-Shelby County area of Missouri.

BITS AND PIECES. . .

. . . The writer was too wordy and the editor too lazy, so there was not enough space on pages 2 and 3 to acknowledge all the excellent material the carrier has brought to our mail box. We sincerely apologize to those we missed, and we will try to get caught up in the next issue of the Newsletter. But keep writing, we cherish each and every letter !

. . . All of you who are members of the DAUGHTERS of the AMERICAN REVOLUTION can appreciate the broad smile on my wife's face when she opened her mail last week. Zelma West Atterbury (National No. 0760384) is now a full-fledged member of the DAR (due, in no small part, to her husband's nine-month effort to trace her ancestry !). Zelma's Revolutionary ancestor was her great-great-great grandfather, Colonel Isaac Ferguson, born in 1755 in Brownsville, Pa., about 20 miles south of present-day Pittsburgh. Eighteen months ago, Zelma knew neither the first or last name of her great grandmother, Mary Ferguson, the granddaughter of Isaac. Elizabeth Leedom, Isaac's wife, also participated in the Revolution, carrying messages through the lines to George Washington.

THE MAIL BAG. . . .

This issue will carry a big Mail Bag section because we are very far behind in reporting on the considerable amount of Atterbury/./Attebery material we've received in the past three months. We are grateful to all of you who have helped expand our knowledge of our collective family.

In three letters, LINDA ATTEBERY CARPENTER has included several outstanding pieces of information. Probably the most important is a classic, textbook example of how to do genealogical research. Readers of earlier Newsletters may recall Linda's search for information on her great-great grandfather, Fountain Smith Attebery. He was finally located in Phelps County, Missouri, in 1870, and then later in adjacent Crawford County. Several letters to the Crawford County Courthouse finally produced an Indenture for the sale of land by "Mary A. Attebery and F. S. Attebery, her husband". (Linda knew Fountain Smith's second wife was Mary A. Fort). The concluding statement in the land description in the Indenture was: "Reserving Grave Yard as it is now Walled." To aid in locating this property, a very accommodating lady at the Courthouse sent her maps and even aerial views.

Linda and her husband Charles travelled to Crawford County from their home in Safety Harbor, Florida. Arriving late in the day, they tried to find a private dirt road without success. They located the present owner and received permission to search the area. Early the next morning, they tried again to locate the private road, but again were stymied. As they were leaving the last possible road, Linda spotted a stone wall some 100 yards from the road. They stopped and checked andSUCCESS !! The small, walled graveyard, completely unknown to the local Historical Society, had only six stones. Buried here were:

Mary A. Attebery, b. 14 Feb 1838, d. 12 Jan 1902. (Mary was not Linda's g g grandmother)

F. S. Attebery, b. 4 Aug 1830, d. 1 Dec 1906
As an added, but completely unexpected, bonus were the graves of what are surely Mary's parents:

William Fort, b. New Jersey, 3 Dec 1814, d. 12 May 1881

Sara Fort, b. 10 Jan 1816, d. 16 Mar 1891

The graves of Wilbert and Albert, children of F. S. and M. A. Attebery. There were also graves of two other children, grandsons of the elder Forts.

Linda's discovery is a good example of what single-minded determination can accomplish, whether in genealogical research or any other endeavor. But Linda's success in finding the grave of her great-great grandfather does not end there. When attempting to learn the name of someone in the Crawford County Historical Society, she found a distant cousin who had accumulated considerable family history material and photographs. This material will probably prove to be a "gold mine", and it also includes the indication that Fountain Smith Attebery may have come from Hardin County, Kentucky. All of this will give Linda renewed vigor to identify the parents of Fountain Smith Attebery. Her only clues to date have been the Census notations, born in "Kentucky". The reams of Atterbury/./Attebery material received by the writer so far has not revealed a hint as to the parents of Fountain Smith.

Another item from Linda, which we overlooked in the article in the last issue of the Newsletter, identified Edward K. Atterbury as a Captain and Staff Officer in the Confederate Army. He was assigned to Colonel John B. Clark's Infantry Regiment, a part of General D. M. Frost's Command. This was a Missouri Regiment, so Edward K. was very likely from Missouri, and probably the 29 year-old E. K. Atterbury found in the 1860 Census of Howard County. We have not determined his ancestry, but the 1884 History of Howard County notes that E. K. was a private in the Mexican War (he would have been only 16-17 years old) and among those from the county who went to California during the gold rush in 1849-1851.

With Edward, the known Atterbury/./Attebery's on the Confederate side is now five.

REVA ABBOTT continues to help increase our growing file of information on Atterbury/./Attebery families. Recent documents include the nearly complete Civil War record of Union cavalry private Mathias V. (Matt) Atterbury(Attebery)(19232). Matt was the grandfather of Reva's first husband, Luin Lewis Attebery. Matt served in Company H, 1st Missouri Cavalry Regiment, enlisting at the age of 18, serving from March 1862 until mustered out March 30, 1865. According to the record, Matt furnished his own horse, saddle, and other equipment. (continued on page 3)

On another subject, Reva has strived for years to learn the source from where the name "Greenbury (Greenberry)" derived. Any person who has done even a little Atterbury/..Attebery research has found many Atterbury's with the first name of Greenbury. The original known usage, as a given name, was for Greenbury Atterbury, born in 1799, the eighth son of James (19). Since then, a number of other instances of the name have occurred in several Atterbury/..Attebery lines.

Reva has yet to identify the true source of the name. But one interesting connection she recently noted was this one: A Thomas Atterberry and Charles Greenberry served together on a Grand Jury in Virginia in about 1697. Their names were included with many others in a letter congratulating the King of England (William III, i.e., William of Orange) for the English victory in the War of The League of Augsburg (1689 - 1697). This letter, which seems to have originated in Virginia, is referred to in the book "William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant", by Vonnelle Winter and Wilma Mitchell.

Possibly this is the same Thomas Atterbury who died in Calvert County, Maryland, in 1708. This Thomas was mentioned as one of the early Atterburys in the William Atterbury(1) sketch published in the May issue of this Newsletter.

In any event, IF the family usage of the Greenbury name did originate due to the friendship of Charles Greenberry and Thomas Atterberry c.1697, and a possible later inter-family marriage, then an entirely new avenue of speculation emerges. This would require heretofore undiscovered information linking together Colonial era Atterburys, including our William(1). Since no trace of descendants of Thomas, or any indication of a relationship to our ancestors has ever been uncovered, this possible link to a Greenbury must remain only a very remote possibility. However, since the parents of our William Atterbury(1) have not been identified, no clue can be completely ignored. The writer (and certainly Reva Abbott) would welcome any comments on the source of the Greenbury(Greenberry) name.

JEANNE BUSSELL has sent us an excellent article on Confederate Civil War soldier Colonel Oliver P. Hamilton of Tennessee. Oliver was the son of Jeanne's great-great-great grandmother, Sarah Elizabeth Atterbury. Jeanne was quite interested in the article in the last issue of the Newsletter on the Civil War service of Bennett Arterberry of Jackson County, Tennessee. She reports that Atterbury/Arterberrys lived on the north side of the Cumberland River, just across from the Hamilton's who lived on the south side of the river, in Jackson County. A summary of Colonel Hamilton's Civil War story will be included in a later up-date on the Atterbury/..Attebery's in the Civil War.

In a previous Newsletter (August, 1993), we outlined Jeanne's search for the parents of Sarah Elizabeth Atterbury. She knows Sarah's father's name to be James. But is it James (19), or is it James (151), son of Nathan (15)? James (123), son of William (12), is also a possibility. Sarah's presence in Jackson County, near other sons of Nathan Atterbury (Moses and Elijah Arterberry), would seem to favor James (151). Jeanne welcomes any help our readers can offer.

LEOTA KING has furnished so much good information in the last few months, a review here would require several pages. Included are some of the papers of Judge James H. Atterbury (13772), an early family historian from Litchfield, Ill. These papers were passed on to and maintained by Paris Loucks(1321363), who did a great amount of family research from 1930 - 1970.

Among the items in the Judge's work is this paragraph: "John Atterbury also came to America. He is listed in Cavaliers and Pioneers. He was brought over June 1664 by Col. Edward Scarburgh and is listed as Jno. Atterby." The Judge identifies him as a brother of Richard and William Atterbury, both of whom were in Virginia in the 1630's and '40's. Richard and William are noted as early Atterbury's in America in the May, 1994 issue of this Newsletter.

We had the pleasure to meet Leota in June and show her all of the Atterbury/..Attebery historical sites in Monroe County, Mo. Leota was in the midst of a genealogical research tour of the mid-west from her home in Spokane, Washington. Her lengthy tour began in Iowa, then to Missouri, Indiana, and Wisconsin. In Monroe County, we visited the graves of Leota's great-great grandparents, Elijah and Mary Atterbury. They are buried in an old family farm Cemetery with other family members. In the next issue, we'll discuss the sad condition of this and other old Cemeteries.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

William Atterbury was born September 11, 1789, in Chester County, South Carolina. He was the fourth child of James Atterbury and Dorcas Wilkerson. His father James was the ninth and youngest son of William Atterbury(1) and Sarah Mitchell Yaxley. His mother Dorcas was born in England, but we have yet to discover her parents identity. Her family had probably emigrated to South Carolina, because there is little doubt James and Dorcas were married there. James and all of his brothers had migrated to this area from Loudoun County, Virginia, about 1775 - 1780. Family legend firmly asserts that James fought in the Revolutionary War with General Francis Marion in the swamps of South Carolina, but no official record of his service has been found.

Most likely, young William was born and lived his early boy-hood years on a 641 acre plot of land his father acquired in 1786 via a land grant from the state of South Carolina. This property was on Smiths Creek, a branch of the Brushy Fork of the Sandy River. This land lies near the northern edge of present day Hasellville Township in south-west Chester County, and is approximately ten miles from Chester, the county seat of Chester County. Seven of James brothers had also acquired land grants in this same immediate area during the period 1784 - 1789 following the Revolutionary War. The 1790 Federal Census for South Carolina shows six Atterbury families living in very close proximity to one another, with two additional families not far away.

By the year 1800, William Atterbury, with his parents, brothers and sisters are presumed to have moved from South Carolina, for they are not found in the 1800 Census. It is generally assumed by family historians that they were en-route to Kentucky, where they are found in 1810. William's brother Ashford was born in South Carolina in 1798 and Greenbury, per one source, in Kentucky in 1799. Five of James' nine brothers were also to move to Kentucky at about this same time. Two others, William and Nathan had died in the 1790's, while John remained behind in South Carolina. The primary route to Kentucky was through the Saludo Gap at the North Carolina border, north past Knoxville, Tennessee, through the Cumberland Gap and up the Wilderness Road into Kentucky. From there, they would have proceeded westward to finally settle in the Hardin County area of central Kentucky. With one exception, the Atterbury families are found living in Hardin and Grayson Counties at the time of the 1810 Census. Most of Grayson had been formed from western Hardin County in 1810.

According to family records, William Atterbury married Mary Miller on November 10, 1811, in Hardin County. However, no official record of this marriage has yet been found. It is speculated that William and Mary were actually married in Grayson County, but three Grayson County Court House fires, including a disastrous fire in 1896, destroyed all county records. Mary Miller was born August 10, 1794, in South Carolina. Considerable effort has been made to identify her parents, but to date, we have been able only to narrow the list to three or four possible Miller families. It is quite likely, of course, that Mary's family moved to Kentucky at about the same time as the Atterbury families.

William and Mary were ultimately to have eleven children, with the first three being born in Kentucky:

- 1). Matilda, born August 29, 1812,
- 2). Isaac, born June 16, 1815, (d. c.1831-1839),
- and 3). Adin C., born October 1, 1816, in Barren County (d. Dec. 30, 1893).

The history of Kentucky indicates that a desire for better lands spurred settlers from Virginia and the Carolinas to move there following the Revolutionary War. This continuing quest for better land prompted many of these same, restless, pioneers to move further west, into Missouri. In 1817, William moved his young family to Howard County, Missouri. They were accompanied by several other Atterbury families, including his father James. The Atterburys, as were thousands of others, were attracted to the area by the fertile bottom-land soil of the Missouri River and the good grazing land nearby. They came into this area over the "Boonslick Trail", the route established by Daniel Boone from St. Charles, Missouri, to a large salt spring in Howard County. This trail became the first major artery of westward migration, prompting John Peck, an early Baptist missionary in Missouri, to write:

"Some families came in the spring of 1815, but in the winter, spring, summer, and fall of 1816, they came like an avalanche. It seemed as though Kentucky and Tennessee were breaking up and moving to the "Far West". Caravan after caravan passed over the prairies of Illinois... all bound to Boone's Lick. The stream of immigration had not lessened in 1817."

Hence, this was a very busy area into which the William Atterbury family had moved and were destined to live for the next ten years. After settling in Howard County, Mary was to bear William five more children:

- 4). Daniel, born December 14, 1818, (d. Mar. 19, 1857)
- 5). Hulda, born November 12, 1820, (d. Jan. 19, 1882)
- 6). Willis H., born February 14, 1823, (d. Feb. 18, 1879)
- 7). Lucinda, born April 19, 1825, (d. c.1870)
- and 8). Charles, born June 3, 1827. (d. May 15, 1905).

While his father James apparently first settled south of the Missouri River in what was to become Cooper County in 1818, William and his family settled north of the river in what today is still Howard County. He is found on the Tax Lists for Howard County in 1822, 1823, and 1824. Also on the Tax rolls for these years are his father (who moved north of the river in 1820) and brothers James, Ashford, Greenbury, and John. No deed record of William buying or selling land has been found, but his presence on the Tax List is a good indication that he did have a farm in Howard County.

Whether William was influenced by the relatively heavy and ever changing population of Howard County, the floods of 1826 and 1827, or more likely, the desire for more land, he moved the family to Ralls County, Missouri, in 1827. This move, a distance of about 45 miles to the northeast, was to an area that later would become Monroe County, but was very sparsely settled in 1827. He established a homestead on land for which he would later obtain a Patent Deed from the U.S.A. (The original deed was written on sheepskin and exists today in the possession of Mr. Harry Dearing, the present owner of the land). Including the 120 acres he originally settled, William acquired a total of 440 acres. Reverend John Peyton, in a book recounting his early life, noted that when his family moved into northwest Monroe County in 1832, their nearest neighbor, William Atterbury, lived five miles away. The 1884 "History of Monroe and Macon Counties" names William as one of the very early settlers of Monroe County. The parcel of land where William and his family lived is in the northeast 1/4 of Section 25, Township 55 N., Range 12 W., located about four miles north of Madison. Later, William's father James, his brother Ashford, and several cousins were also to move to the same general area of Monroe County.

After their move to Monroe County, Mary was to have three more children, making William and Mary the parents of a total of eleven:

- 9). Mary Jane (Pollie), born April 30, 1830,
- 10). William Henry, born October 1, 1832,
- and 11). Thomas, born December 10, 1834.

Of the eleven children, Isaac is believed to have passed away sometime in the 1830's. He is accounted for in the 1830 Census, but is not listed as an heir of William in 1839. In 1850, Thomas's occupation was listed as a farmer, while in 1860 the Census noted that he was an invalid, so undoubtedly he had sustained a serious injury during the 1850's. The 1860 census also noted that Lucinda was "insane", but it is not known if this was a life-long affliction. Daniel was to die when struck by a falling tree in 1857. The other seven children, we believe, lived out a more normal life.

William Atterbury, having experienced the rigors of three major moves and the effort necessary to settle virgin territory, died on September 28, 1839, at the age of 49. We are confident he is buried in the family cemetery located on the original family farm north of Madison, but it is uncertain which of the 14 known grave sites is his (this cemetery later became known as the Willis Atterbury Cemetery). William died without leaving a will, indicating he passed away somewhat unexpectedly. His Probate Record reflects the extent of his farming operation, with 7 horses and colts, 15 head of cattle, 1 yoke of oxen, 66 hogs, 34 head of sheep, 26 geese, and an assortment of hand and farm tools. Also included among the many items inventoried were a Bible, an "arithmatick" book, and two other books, "Gunn's Medicine", and "The Life of Washington". The probate papers included an August, 1839, promissory note on a Fanning Mill (also known as a "Wheat Fan", an old-fashioned crop dryer). A copy of this note is reproduced at the end of this sketch. Note the "warranty", and the true, personal, signature of William Atterbury.

Mary was to continue to live on and operate the farm, and at the same time care for her young and growing children. While we have no information on slaves owned by the family prior to 1860, the 1860 Slave Census of Monroe County noted that Mary had three negro women, one man, and a year-old baby, plus one slave house. The farm, plus the care needed for Thomas, now an invalid, and Lucinda, who was "insane", certainly required extra help for the 66 year-old mother. The presence of slaves in 1860 suggests that the family may have had them for a number of years previous to that time.

On August 12, 1862, Mary Atterbury passed away at 68 years of age. She, too, is almost certainly buried in the graveyard on the old family farm. Mary was a true pioneer in her own right, facing with her husband the hardships of settling new territories, bearing and raising eleven children under primitive conditions, and continuing to run the farm for 23 years after William's death in 1839. Her son Willis, who lived at home until his marriage to Mary Chinn in 1855, and then in an adjacent dwelling, acquired the family farm after Mary's death. Through Willis' descendants, this property was to remain in the Atterbury family for almost 150 years.

The preceding narrative, then, summarizes the life story of William Atterbury. The details available are all too few to do justice to a man, though unknown by name to the history books, certainly made his small but measurable contribution toward building a society the world has envied for generations. Hopefully, ours and succeeding generations will not degrade what William, and all the many thousands of pioneers like him, built with their own hands, head, and heart.

WILLIAM ATTERBURY (1).....

This William is presumed to be the progenitor of our Atterbury/../Attebery family in America, and has been referred to frequently in past issues of this Newsletter. Since he is the "sire" of most of us, we will endeavor here to outline briefly what is known of the life of William Atterbury.

Few facts are available to accurately define the life, relationships, and activities of a person who lived some 250 years ago. Hence, anyone attempting to do so must make a number of assumptions, sometimes based on little or no evidence. In this case, the account is further complicated by the presence of other Atterburys who preceded William(1) to the American Colonies. This treatise, however, conveys what the writer believes to be the most likely portrayal of our ancestor.

Most of our readers, perhaps 75%, have not seen or read the book "THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM ATTERBURY, 1733 ENGLISH EMIGRANT", written by Voncille Attebery Winter and Wilma Attebery Mitchell. With this book as a reference and considerable Colonial period material furnished by Wilma Mitchell, Bill Dunn, Reva Abbott, Leota King, Vicki Doetsch, and others, we have prepared this historical-biographical account of the life and times of William Atterbury(1).

Without other input, one might assume that the subject of this article was the first Atterbury to come to America. However, prior to our William, at least four Atterbury's are known to have been in the Colonies. Here is a brief recap:

- 1).Richard (1609 - 1638); a London fishmonger who may have lived in Virginia for a time, died unmarried with no children.
- 2).William (1608 - c.1660); London merchant and brother of Richard, traveled frequently to the Colonies but lived in London. Inheirted his brother's land in Virginia. This older William also is surmised to be the great-grandfather of William(1). However, the lack of any direct evidence to bridge the two-generation gap precludes establishing this relationship as fact.This William also was a great uncle to the oft mentioned Sir Francis Atterbury, Bishop of Rochester, and adviser to Queen Anne. Suffice to say that the family legend of kinship to Francis Atterbury is very likely true, so some such relationship for our William(1) has to exist.
- 3).Thomas (c.1660 - 1708); lived in Calvert County, Maryland, Will noted a wife with unborn child and married daughter.
- 4).Thomas Arterbury (c.1700 - 1749); also lived in Calvert County, and may have been the unborn child of the above Thomas. No children cited in his will, so he is assumed to have left no offspring.
- 5).A single reference to at least three other Atterbury's have been noted by family researchers, but no other information on any of them was found.

The first that is known of William(1) was uncovered by English researchers on behalf of Wayne Attebery of Salem, Illinois. This was their report on a crime committed by him:

" William Atterbury was a labourer of the parish of St. James Liberty, Westminster, Middlesex, and was tried on 31st January, 1732. He was a prisoner in Newgate Prison, in the reign of George II. He was committed by Ol. Lambert, esquire, on oath of Frederick Humble for stealing out of the shop of George Cole some stuff, five yards of Linsey Woolsey, worth three shillings."

It was common practice for young, healthy prisoners to be deported under bond to the American Colonies. Some 20,000 were shipped from Newgate Prison alone in the period 1615 - 1775. "Contractors" were paid by the Crown to provide transportation and arrange for the bonded felons to work as indentured laborers. After 7 or 14 years, depending on the severity of their crime, they were then free to pursue their own interests.

Our William(1) was deported to America under this scheme. He was probably 18-20 years old at this time (making his year of birth about 1710-1715). It is speculated that many young but destitute men committed minor crimes for the sole purpose of securing transportation to America. William boarded the ship "Patapscoe Merchant" April 17, 1733, along with 98 other prisoners. This was the fifth of eight such trips by the Patapscoe, all but one commanded by Captain Darby Lux, and with the destination Baltimore, Maryland. (The ship Patapscoe Merchant was most likely named for the Patapscoe River of Maryland that passes through Baltimore to the Chesapeake Bay. Even today, the Patapscoe River forms the major port area of Baltimore.)

William undoubtedly served his "sentence", in all likelihood seven years, as a laborer on a Maryland plantation. He thus was free of his bond in the year 1740, and then probably continued as a paid laborer in the same area, if not the same plantation.

He married Sarah Mitchell Yaxley, daughter of John and Elizabeth Mitchell of Prince George's County, in about 1742. No documentation of their marriage, however, has yet been found. Sarah was born August 31, 1720, and had previously been married to Robert Yaxley. Little is known of this marriage except a daughter, Elizabeth Yaxley, was living with the elder Mitchells in 1748. William and Sarah continued to live in this same area, and on December 9, 1746, received a grant for a 50 acre tract called "Prince Spring" plantation. (From the earliest Colonial times it was the custom in Maryland to assign a name to every tract of land for which a patent or title was given). Prince Spring plantation was located on a "draw" of the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River, long since renamed the Anacostia River. The precise location of the plantation was quite likely within the present day boundary of the District of Columbia. William and Sarah and their family resided here until selling the plantation on August 16, 1754, to John Riddle, Jr. for "three thousand pounds of tobacco".

|----------------|-------------|
| Michael (11)—— | born c.1744 |
| William (12)—— | " c.1746 |
| Charles (13)—— | " c.1747 |
| Richard (14)—— | " c.1748 |
| Nathan (15)—— | " c.1750 |
| John (16)—— | " c.1751 |
| Edward (17)—— | " c.1753 |

William and his family were eventually to reside in Loudoun County, Virginia being found there in 1758. But after selling their Prince Spring plantation in 1754, they very likely settled in Frederick County, Maryland, for possibly three years. The Maryland Gazette of August 26, 1756, carried the following notice:

It was common practice for young, healthy prisoners to be deported under bond to the American Colonies. Some 20,000 were shipped from Newgate Prison alone in the period 1815-1817. "Contractors" were paid by the Crown to provide transportation and arrange for the bonded felons to work as indentured laborers. William boarded the ship "Patience Merchant" April 17, 1723, along with 88 other prisoners. This was the fifth of eight such trips by the Patience, all but one commanded by Captain Barry Lee, and with the destination Baltimore, Maryland. (The ship Patience Merchant was not likely named for the Patience River of Maryland that passes through Baltimore to the Chesapeake Bay. Even today, the Patience River forms the major port area of Baltimore.)

William undoubtedly served his "sentence" in all likelihood seven years, as a laborer on a Maryland plantation. He then was free of his bond in the year 1730, and then probably continued as a paid laborer in the same area, if not the same plantation.

He married Sarah Mitchell Yaxley, daughter of John and Elizabeth Mitchell of Prince George's County, in about 1745. No documentation of their marriage, however, has yet been found. Sarah was born August 31, 1720, and had previously been married to Robert Yaxley. Little is known of this marriage except a daughter, Elizabeth Yaxley, was living with the elder Mitchell in 1745. William and Sarah continued to live in this same area, and on December 8, 1748, received a grant for a 50 acre tract called "Prince George's" plantation. (From the earliest Colonial times it was the custom in Maryland to assign a name to every tract of land for which a patent or title was given). Prince George's plantation was located on a "branch" of the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River, long since renamed the Annapolis River. The precise location of the plantation was quite likely within the present day boundary of the District of Columbia, and Sarah and their family resided there until selling the plantation about 1754 to John Ritchie, Jr. for three thousand pounds of tobacco.

By the year 1754 the families of William and Sarah had produced seven sons and were named as follows:

- Thomas (1) — born c. 1745
- William (2) — " c. 1745
- Charles (3) — " c. 1747
- Richard (4) — " c. 1748
- Robert (5) — " c. 1750
- John (6) — " c. 1752
- David (7) — " c. 1755

The seven families were eventually to reside in Loudoun County, Virginia in 1785, but after selling their Prince George's plantation in 1754 they resided in Frederick County, Maryland. The family's migration of August 28, 1780, carried the following

"William Atterbury has a stray mare at his plantation near Rock Creek Chapel in Frederick County."

(This article is found in the Genealogical and Historical Abstracts of the Maryland Gazette 1727 - 1761 by Karen Mauer Green, The Frontier Press, Galveston, 1989.)

Rock Creek flows into the Potomac River near Georgetown in the District of Columbia. In 1756, Frederick County abutted Prince George's County on the northwest. Hence, William's move from Prince Spring was probably no more than five to fifteen miles, and was on a reasonable route to migrate to Loudoun County, Virginia. Loudoun County, formed in 1757, was directly across the Potomac River from Frederick County. Further research hopefully will reveal the location of the Rock Creek Chapel and William's plantation plus other details about this segment of the Atterbury family's life.

William and Sarah's eighth son, Thomas(18), was born c.1755. Hence, he very likely was born at this Frederick County homestead.

The Atterbury family in all probability moved to Loudoun County, Virginia, in 1757, and William is found on the Tithable list (Personal Tax Roll) in 1758. James(19), the ninth and last son of William and Sarah, was also probably born in 1758.

(This account of the life and times of William Atterbury (1) will be completed in the next issue of the Newsletter.)

A PERSONAL REFLECTION.....

My father, John C. Atterbury, Sr.(194415) (1890-1967), always seemed to have an interest in our family history. However, in retrospect, he actually knew but little of what is known today. He knew about a relationship to Francis Atterbury and would occasionally speak of the family ancestors from South Carolina.

In the 1920's and early 1930's, he was secretary to a Missouri Congressman. As a result, we lived in Washington, D.C. when Congress was in session. John, Sr. would have been absolutely ecstatic had he known that when living in northeast D.C., he was possibly just two or three miles from the site of his great-great-grandfather's Prince Spring plantation. Had he known this, we are certain it would have spawned considerable interest on his part to learn much more about his ancestors.

WIFE of CHARLES ATTERBURY (13).....

Most references to Charles(13) identifies his wife as a Sarah Mitchell. However, with his father William(1) apparently marrying Sarah Mitchell Yaxley, there has been some speculation that Charles' wife was misidentified. In a letter dated March 19, 1961, from Reva Abbott to Lillian Harmon, Reva notes the following Query found in the D.A.R. Magazine, July 1938:

"Want ancestry & data on Chas. ATTERBURY - wife (traditionally) Sarah JETT - son Michael married in Hardin Co., Ky. in 1816. Chas. possibly from N. or S. Carolina -" (From Mrs. James R. Spraker, Buffalo, N.Y.)

If anyone has any knowledge of research on SARAH JETT, we would be pleased to hear about it. Hazel Atterbury Spraker (Mrs. James R.) is believed to have passed away many years ago.

...the Atterbury family has a strong presence at his plantation near Rock Creek ...in Frederick County."
(This article is found in the Genealogical and Historical Abstracts of the Maryland Gazette 1757 - 1761 by Karen Maur Green, The Frontier Press, Galveston, 1989.)

WIFE OF CHARLES ATTERBURY (18).....

Most references to Charles (18) identify his wife as Sarah Mitchell.
However, with his father William's apparently marrying Sarah Mitchell Venable, there has been some speculation that Charles' wife was unidentified. In a letter dated March 19, 1961, from Rev. Abbott to Lillian Hanson, Rev. notes the following entry found in the D.A.R. Magazine, May 1906:

"I have recently a date on Chas. Atterbury - wife (traditionally) Sarah Mitchell - son William married in Hurdin Co., Ky. in 1846. Chas. possibly from N.C. or
S. Carolina." (From Mrs. James R. Gorker, Buffalo, N.Y.)

It seems that my knowledge of Charles and Sarah's life, we would be pleased to hear about it. Hence, Atterbury family (Mrs. James R.) is believed to have passed away many years ago.

HOT OFF THE WIRE. . . .

A few weeks ago we engaged the services of a London genealogist to search for information on William Atterbury(1). He has found a William Atterberry, baptized on June 25, 1710, on the parish register of St. Giles Church, Cripplegate, in the city of London. He was the son of William and Sarah Atterberry. Since this location and date of birth seem to agree with what we know of our William(1), we are hopeful this will prove to be our family, and, in turn, provide the thread to our earlier English ancestors. More information should be available for the next Newsletter.

WELCOME TO A NEW READER. . . .

We are pleased to introduce Duane F. Atteberry of Manchester, Iowa, as a new recipient of this Newsletter. Duane, a Doctor of Optometry in Manchester, is the son of Richard Atteberry of Fairbury, Illinois. Duane has become quite interested in researching his family history, and much of what he has learned has been entered into his computer. His records define the ancestry of his father, Richard, which we were not sure of in the last issue when we introduced Richard. Richard descends from William(12), second son of William (1), the emigrant.

FREDERICK CO., MD., RESEARCH. . . .

In an article on William Atterbury(1) in the May, 1994 issue of this Newsletter, we made reference to a notice that appeared in the Maryland Gazette, August 26, 1756. The notice stated; "William Atterbury has a stray mare at his plantation near Rock Creek Chapel in Frederick County". With this as a starting point, we wanted to determine three things; 1), was this our William(1)?, 2), had he acquired land in Frederick County?, and, if so, (see FREDERICK COUNTY, page 3.....)

"NEW" ANCESTORS. . . .

From EDNA WALTERS comes information identifying the parents and maternal grandparents of John Mitchell, Sr.. John is the father of Sarah Mitchell (Yaxley) Atterbury, wife of William Atterbury(1). While some of our readers possibly have known of John's ancestors, we are certain this will be news to most everyone, as it was to the writer. John Mitchell, Sr. is the fifth great grandfather of the writer. Our readers will recall we published a transcript of John's Will, probated in August, 1752, in the January, 1994, issue of this Newsletter.

Edna sent us the pertinent pages from a Treatise entitled "John Mitchell of Mitchellville, Prince George('s) County, Maryland", compiled in 1965 by George Mitchell Phipps. Some additional information was found in the Maryland I.G.I. file. In summary, the "new" ancestors of John Mitchell, Sr. are believed to be:

Maternal grandparents:

Colonel William Burgess, born 1622 in Truro, Wales. William married Ursula (Puddington ?) about 1667 in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. Ursula was born about 1642 in South River, Anne Arundel County. William and Ursula were married about 1667 and had three known children:

Benjamin Burgess

Charles Burgess

Susannah Burgess, born abt. 1678

William at one time was Deputy Governor of Maryland. He died in 1686, and is buried in Londontown, Anne Arundel County. (see "NEW", page 2.....)

"NEW". . . (continued from page 1).
Ursula died in 1702, after marrying Mordecia Moore following William's death.

John's parents:

Susannah Burgess, daughter of William and Ursula Burgess, married John Mitchell July 14, 1700. Their first child, who is our John Mitchell, Sr., was born about 1701. In her Will of 1702, Ursula bequeathed a 300 acre tract of land to Susannah. This land, called Greenwood, was on the Patuxent River in eastern Prince George's County, and probably close to the town of Mitchellville (Mitchellville is about two miles south of Bowie, Md.).

We would be pleased to hear of any additional information on the Mitchell or Burgess families, and report it in a future issue of the Newsletter. We thank Edna Walters for bringing this to our attention.

MORE CIVIL WAR CONFEDERATES. . .

When we published the first article (Sept., 1994 issue) about Atterbury/..Atteberys who fought in the Civil War, we did not include the names of eight known Confederate soldiers. With a red face, we admit we had these in our file but overlooked them.

With these additions, we now know of 13 family members (14, if we include Bennett Arterberry who served on both sides) who fought for the South. Seven of these additional soldiers are reported on page 114 of "William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant", by Voncille Winter and Wilma Mitchell. All seven were from Texas:

Note that the first four were brothers, the sons of Charles's(13) son, Nathan/Nathaniel Atterbury.

The eighth addition is a J.W. Atterberry, found in a microfilm of Confederate Archives, Chapter 6, File 655, page 197. The file stated: "Admitted to Way Hospital, Meridian, Mississippi, March 18, 1865. Returned to duty. This was not the writers grandfather, Joseph William, whose foot was amputated after the second battle of Boonville(Mo.), in September, 1861. If one of our readers can identify this J. W., please let us know. In some later issue, we will publish a complete list of both Union and Confederate Atterbury/..Atteberys who were engaged in the Civil War.

MONROE COUNTY, MO., CEMETERYS. . .

A map and directions to locate several Monroe County Cemeteries and other places of historical interest to family members is included on pages 4, 5, and 6 of this issue. All of the known Atterbury/..Attebery grave sites are in three Cemeteries. However, we have not yet seen the graves of a number of others that most likely are buried in Monroe County. A discussion of the three Cemeteries follows.

SUNSET HILLS, Madison; This is a municipal Cemetery, maintained and kept in good condition by the city of Madison. Buried here in three separate locations are: (identifying number noted, if appropriate)

ELIJAH ATTERBURY FAMILY CEMETERY. . .

This old Cemetery is located about 5 miles northeast of Madison. It is in deplorable condition and appears to have had no maintenance or upkeep for many, many years. In this respect, it is little different than many other old "farm" cemeteries. While only one headstone is known to be broken, all stones are flat on the ground, reflecting years of cattle grazing through the area. All of the grave markers seem to have originally been very high quality stones.

Zephaniah Murray Atterberry, son of Elijah, was probably the last Atterberry resident of this property. Zephaniah's Will specifically mentioned this Cemetery, stating: ".....I do hereby will that the family graveyardbe set apart....and to locate same definitely, I have planted ..(stones).. on the south side of the public road.....and reserve one half acre due west of said stones....as a burial ground for my family." When this will was written (1897), Elijah had been buried in this plot for 47 years.

The writer has not checked to determine if this Cemetery was referred to in subsequent deeds and ownership changes, nor if there is any Missouri law that specifically applies to the protection of a family graveyard such as this.

BURIED IN THIS CEMETERY ARE:

WILLIAM ATTERBURY FAMILY CEMETERY. . .

This old Cemetery, also referred to as the Willis Atterbury Cemetery, is located about 4 miles north of Madison. It is on William's(194) original farm property in Monroe County. As reported in previous Newsletters, we have done exploratory work here, attempting to determine the extent of the plot and identity of those buried in the Cemetery. While formal gravestones for James Atterbury(19) and Willis Atterbury(1946) were seen in 1960, the writer has not yet found them. This old graveyard is heavily overgrown with brush and trees and likely has had no attention for 75 years or more.

There are at least 16 grave sites in this plot, all but the above two marked with fieldstone head and foot stones. We believe the two largest stones mark the graves of William(194) (1789 - 1839), and his wife Mary Miller (1794 - 1862). We also believe, in addition to James and Willis, that three of William's children, Isaac, Lucinda, and Thomas, are buried here. Ashford (197), William's brother, may also be buried here. The presence of slaves in the 1860 Census indicates that some of the stones may denote their place of burial.

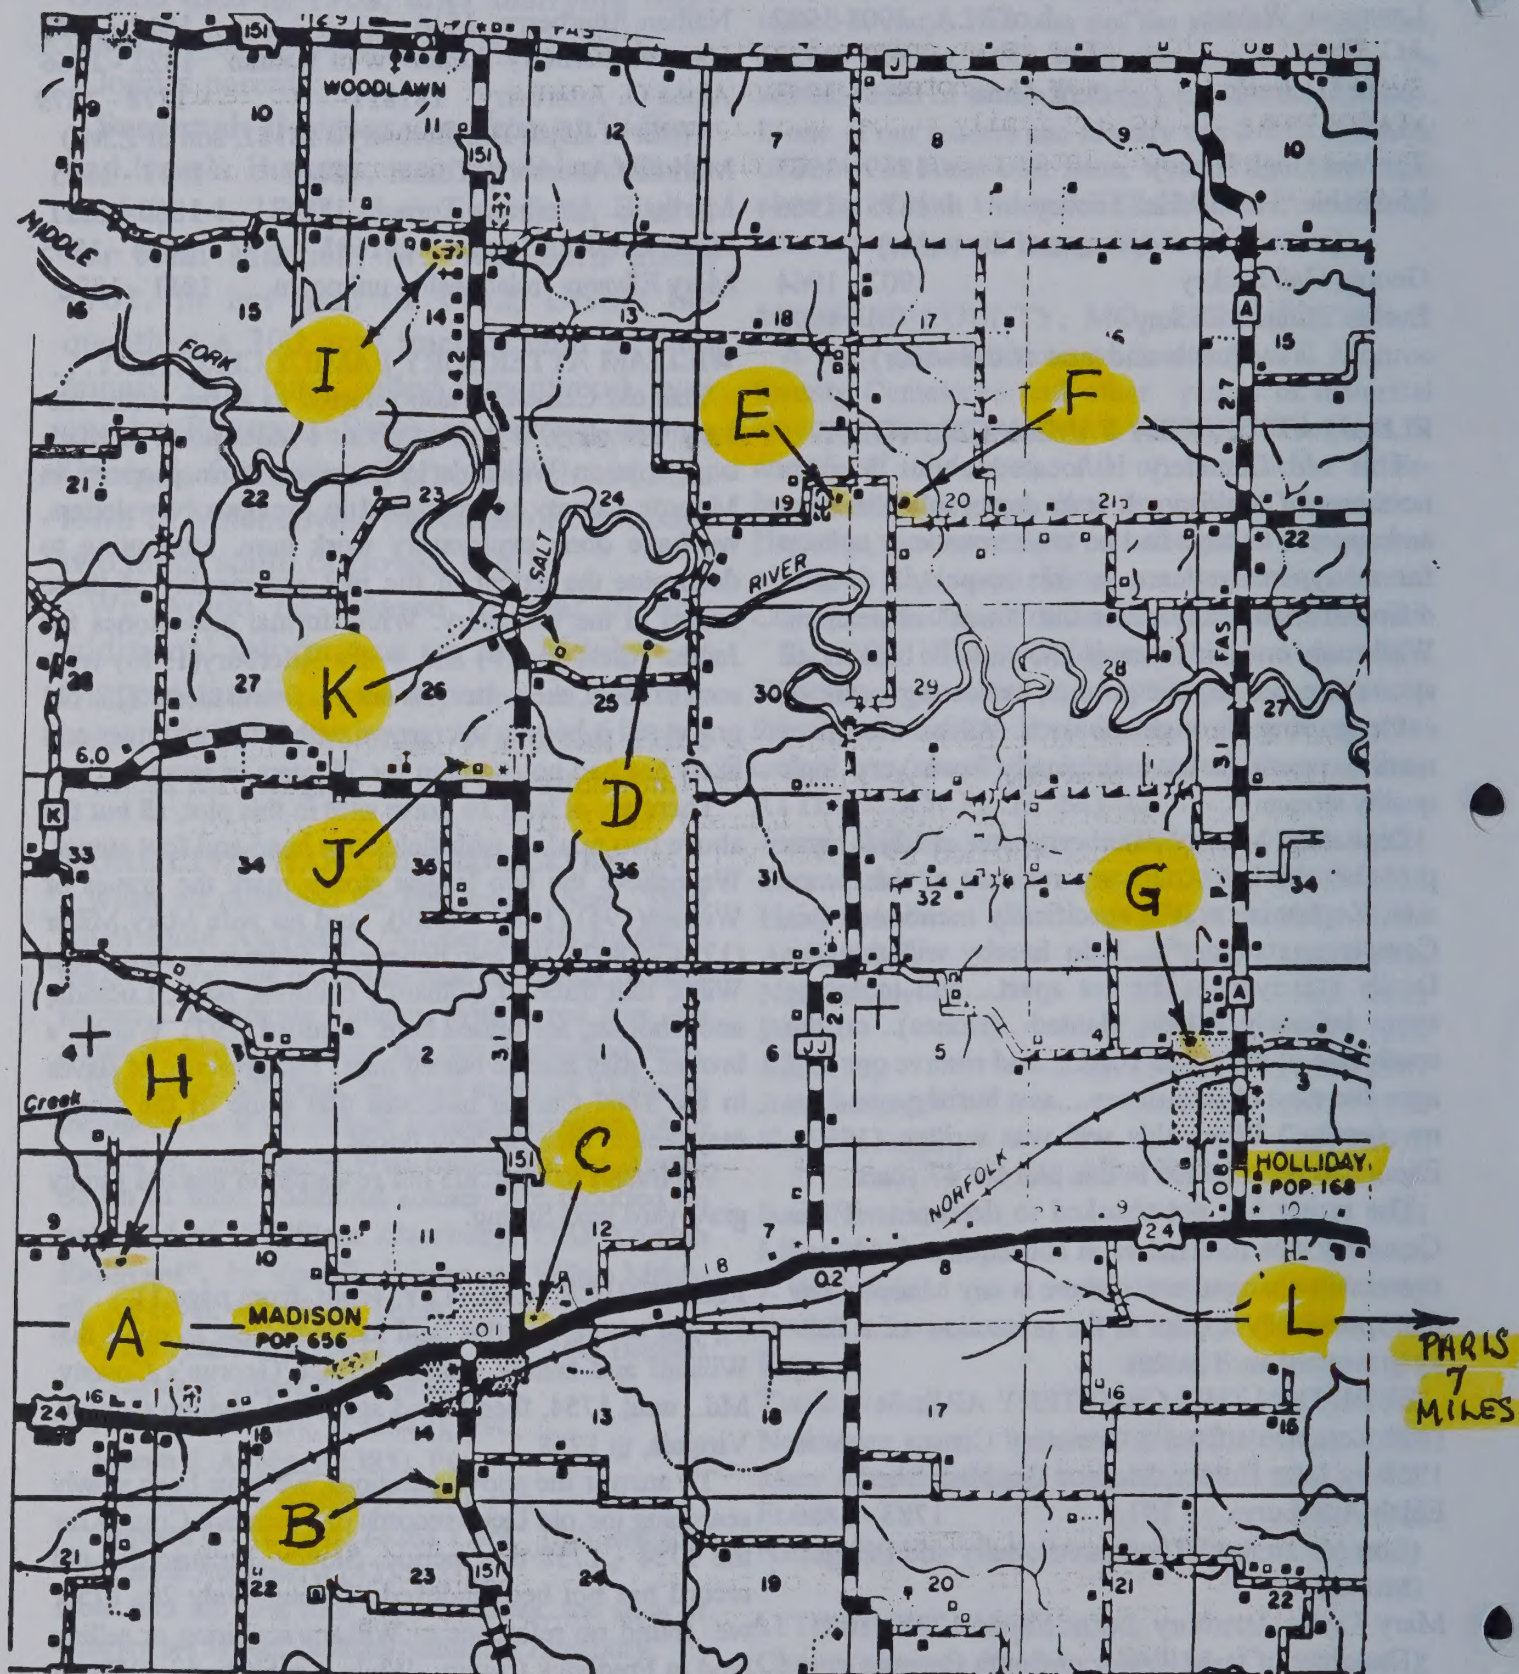

We intend to continue our research on this old family graveyard next Spring.

3), just where was this land located? Bear in mind that William and family were in Prince George's County, Md., until 1754, then found again in Loudoun County, Virginia, in 1758.

To answer the above questions, we have been slowly searching the old Deed records of Frederick County for the 1754 - 1758 time period. Slowly, because this old record has not been indexed. Through July 20, 1758, we found no reference to William acquiring or selling land in Frederick County. While it is likely this William Atterbury is our William (1), we wish to establish some reasonable proof.. However, we will continue to seek evidence of William's presence in Frederick County.

ATTERBURY CEMETERY AND HISTORICAL SITES IN WEST-CENTRAL MONROE COUNTY, MISSOURI

ATTERBURY FAMILY CEMETERY AND HISTORICAL SITES IN MONROE COUNTY, MISSOURI

Page 4 of this issue is an enlarged portion of the current Monroe County Highway Map. On the map are noted some significant points of interest to family historians, and to any family member who might visit Monroe County in the future. Highlighted letters are keyed to the following brief descriptions of each site:

- A. Madison SUNSET HILLS CEMETERY; several family related burial plots are in this Cemetery, located on U.S. Highway 24 just west of Madison. One such site is the large plot on the east side of the cemetery where Joseph William Atterbury(19441), his brother Isaac Newton(19442), and many of their family members are buried (see SUNSET HILLS, page 2).
- B. Old JOSEPH WILLIAM ATTERBURY home and farm; on State highway 151, about 1/2 mile south of Madison. Old white, two-story home, built in 1882 and is still occupied, lies about 300 yards west of highway.(The writer lived here as a child from 1926 to 1933). The farm originally encompassed 300 acres of the surrounding farm land.
- C. ATTERBURY MEMORIAL LIBRARY; on Highway 24 in Madison. Funds to build this library were provided by the Will of Beulah Briscoe Atterbury, wife of J.W."Jody" Atterbury,Jr.(194421). Library has limited genealogical info. The Madison Bank, founded by Joseph William and Isaac Newton Atterbury in 1888, is 1/2 block west of the Library.
- D. WILLIAM ATTERBURY FARM AND FAMILY CEMETERY (sometimes referred to as the Willis Atterbury Cemetery); located in the NE 1/4 of Section 25, T55n, R12w. Farm also included the adjoining SE 1/4 of Section 25.The old graveyard lies about 100 yards across the field north of the gravel road that bisects Section 25, and about 25 feet inside a tree line bordering the field. The site is commanded by two large Cedar trees. There is little evidence of an old home site located southeast of the graveyard, near the gravel road. The property is now owned by Harry Dearing of Madison.(See page 3).
- E. ELIJAH ATTERBURY (Atterberry) FAMILY CEMETERY; located in the SE 1/4 of the NE 1/4, Section 19, T55n, R11w. On property owned by William Crain, this old Cemetery lies about 200 yards west of the Crain home, adjacent to the gravel road.(See article on page 3).
- F. FOREST GROVE CHURCH CEMETERY; located about 1/3 miles east of the Elijah Atterbury Cemetery, in the SE 1/4 of the NW 1/4 of Section 20, T55n,R11w. Approx. 30 grave sites including a large stone for the writers great-great grandparents, Charles P. and Rebecca White Mitchell. The church building disappeared many years ago.

G. BETHEL CEMETERY, Holliday, Mo.; located on the northwest edge of Holliday. The grave sites of Joseph Holliday, great-great grandfather of the writer, and Mary Sloan Holliday Atterbury, Joseph's daughter and our great grandmother, are located in the approx. center of this large cemetery, about 50 yards from the road. The town of Holliday is named for Joseph, who acquired 480 acres in this section from the U.S.A. in 1831. His property included the land where the cemetery is located. We believe Joseph's home to have been about 1/4 mile west of Bethel Cemetery.

H. ANDREW BAKER FAMILY CEMETERY (Site); this old family cemetery was destroyed 40-50 years ago but was located in the NE 1/4 of the SE 1/4, Section 9, T54n, R12w. The Cemetery's gravestones were reportedly deposited in a nearby ditch. Elisha Baker, great grandfather of the writer, was most likely buried at this location.

I. OAK GROVE BAPTIST CHURCH CEMETERY; located on State Highway 151 about 6 miles north of Madison. George and Cornelia Smith Hall, great grandparents of the writer are buried near the highway in this very neat country church graveyard.

J. DANIEL ATTERBURY FARM; the farm comprised the SE 1/4 of Section 26, T55n, R12w. Daniel (1944) acquired the 160 acres from his father-in-law, Joseph Holliday, in 1842, but likely lived here following his marriage in 1840. The writer's grandfather, Joseph William, who was most likely born here, reacquired this property in 1873, but resold it later. Daniel gave 1/2 acre for a school, later called Pleasant Green. The writer's mother, Lillian Hickey Atterbury, attended school here in 1906-1907. A school building, now used as a church, still stands at this location.

K. GEORGE HALL FARM AND HOME SITE; 360 acres, located in Sections 24 and 25, T55n, R12w, acquired in 1869. Land is adjacent to William Atterbury farm noted in "D" above, and entered from same gravel road. Birthplace of the writer's grandmother, Hettie Hall Hickey, and mother, Lillian Hickey Atterbury.

L. WALNUT GROVE CEMETERY, Paris, Mo. Paris, the County Seat of Monroe County, is 7 miles east of Holliday and not on this map. Walnut Grove Cemetery is on Main Street north of the Salt River bridge. Buried in this cemetery are the writer's great grandparents, John Thomas Hickey and Mary J. Mitchell Hickey. John Thomas was a Captain in the Confederate Army in the Civil War and his gravestone reflects that service, being inscribed "Capt. John T. Hickey 1835 - 1894". A Directory at the entrance will aid in locating the grave sites.

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

March 6, 1995

Vol. 4, No. 2

WELCOME TO A NEW READER.....

We are pleased to introduce Wanda Atteberry Thorne of Odell, Illinois, as a new reader of this Newsletter. Wanda is a sister of Richard (Dick) Atteberry who became a new reader and contributor to the Newsletter last year.

Richard's wife, Vivian, has sent the writer the details of a very heart-warming story involving Wanda, Richard, and their brothers and sisters. As many such stories do, it begins on a tragic note. Wanda and Richard's father, Clifford Atteberry, died unexpectedly in 1929, leaving their mother with seven children under eleven years of age to raise. In 1932, the hardship and the depression forced her to place the children in foster homes. Three, Betty, Margaret, and Thomas, were ultimately adopted by Reverend Irwin Yeaworth who moved to Pennsylvania. The other four, LeRoy, Hettie Ordella, Wanda and Richard, were each placed in a different foster home. The Atteberry children were to remain separated for more than half a century.

LeRoy was killed in action in 1944 during World War II and Hettie Ordella passed away in 1988. Her death prompted Wanda's daughter, Paula Boase, to seek the whereabouts of the rest of the family. With the able help of several people, all were finally located, and the five remaining brothers and sisters, living from California to Ohio, were reunited after over 55 years of separation. Indeed, it must have been a happy reunion!

NEWS FROM LONDON.....

In the last issue of the Newsletter, we reported the initial effort of a search for information about William Atterbury(1). The London genealogist we have engaged has sent copies of the original Baptismal and Burial Registers from the parish church of St. Giles Cripplegate in the City of London. The pertinent entries on each Register reads as follows:

1. Christenings - June 1708 -
Jane, daughter of William Atterbury, butcher, & Sarah, born 15 June, christn. 27 June.
2. Christenings - June 1709 -
William, son of William Atterberry, butcher, & Sarah, born & chr. 16 June.
3. Christenings - June 1710 -
William, son of William Atterberry, butcher, & Sarah, born 21 June, chr. 25 June.
4. Christenings - December 1711-
Charles, son of William Atterbury, butcher, & Sarah, born 7 Dec., chr.— (not legible)
5. Christenings - February 1712 (13) -
Sarah, daughter of William Atterbury, butcher, & Sarah, born 1 Feb., chr. Feb. 8, 1712 (13)
6. Burials in April, 1710 -
William, son of William Atterbury, butcher, (died from) teeth, 16 April 1710.

We believe it is quite likely William Atterberry, born June 21, 1710, is our progenitor William(1). Note, however, that he was the second William born into this family. The first William lived for only ten months, and died just two months before his brother was born. One or more infected teeth seemed to be the cause of death, an ailment of several others listed on the April, 1710, Burial Register.

Almost every entry on these Registers gave the occupation of the father. Hence, the "butcher" reference to William was normal, and helps to solidify the assumption that the father is the same William Atterbury (Atteberry) in every Register.

Assuming the William born June 21, 1710 is our

YOUR ANCESTORS.....

Included with this issue of the Newsletter is the first four pages of a treatise on the general subject of a person's ancestors and their relationship to others, past and present. The concluding pages will be sent with the May or July issue.

We are still in the process of developing the points outlined in this paper. However, we are including it for the express purpose of requesting any information our readers might have on this subject. If you have any material on this general theme, or comments about our assumptions, please let us know.

William(1), he was 21 years old when convicted of stealing "five yards of linsey woolsey" from the shop of George Cole, and sent to Newgate Prison. He was 22 years old, then, when sent to Maryland aboard the prison ship Patapscoe Merchant in April of 1733. William is assumed to have died in Loudoun County, Virginia about 1766 - 1768, at which time he would have been 56 - 58 years of age.

Our London researcher is continuing to seek further information on this family. He has not found, as yet, a record of the marriage of William and Sarah. He has noted, however, the birth of a William Atterbury, son of Thomas Atterbury & Ann, baptised at St. Stephen, Coleman Street, City of London, on March 21, 1685. Hopefully, this William will prove to be the William who married Sarah, making Thomas and Ann the grandparents of our assumed William(1).

The Christening Register states that Sarah was born in February, 1712, seemingly just two months after the birth of Charles in December, 1711. By the old Julian Calendar, the new year began on March 25. Hence, the length of time between the birth of Charles and Sarah was actually 14 months. England and the Colonies adopted the present Gregorian Calendar in 1752.

SIR FRANCIS ATTERBURY.....

The July, 1994, issue of this Newsletter included a brief biography of Sir Francis Atterbury (1663-1732), Bishop of Rochester. Linda Carpenter has just sent a copy of the WESTMINSTER ABBEY OFFICIAL GUIDE. Numerous references to Francis throughout this Guide indicate he was very much in charge of Westminster Abbey while the Dean of Westminster. To supplement the July, 1994, biography, we here cite the "bio" printed in the Official Guide:

Francis Atterbury, D. D., b. 1663 d. 1732; Dean of Westminster; Kings Scholar, Westminster School, under Dr. Busby, and Scholar and Fellow of Christ Church, Oxford; the famous Jacobite Bishop of Rochester, noted as a brilliant orator and controversial writer. Under Atterbury the School Dormitory was rebuilt, and he also left his mark on the structure of the Abbey. He chose the subjects for the Rose window in the North Transept, and himself superintended the repairing the North Front by Wren, then Surveyor of the Abbey. A High Churchman and a Tory, he lost favour under the Hanoverian dynasty, although he officiated at the Coronation of George I. He was sent to the Tower charged with conspiracy to place the Pretender on the throne, deprived of his offices, and condemned to perpetual exile in 1723. Nine years later he died in Paris, and was buried here (Westminster Abbey) by his own desire, expressed in a letter to Pope, "as far from Kings and Caesars as the space will admit of". Also buried under the stone are his wife Catherine(Osborn), d. 1722, his daughters Elizabeth, d. 1716, and Mary, wife of William Morice. Mary Morice died at Toulouse in 1729 and was buried here on 21 February 1730. (end of bio).

Our July, 1994, biography noted that Francis had but two children, Mary and Osborn. The above sketch cites a third child, Elizabeth. Osborn (b. 1705, d. 1752) married Sarah Ashworth who bore him nine children. Osborn is buried at Great Houghton in County Northampton.

The writer's wife has just reminded him of our visit to Westminster Abbey in 1978. After a short search for the tomb of Francis Atterbury, it was found inside the west door, on the south wall of the Nave opposite the Memorial and Tomb of the Unknown Warrior. Fortunately, my wife's memory is much better than our own.

Many thanks to Linda Carpenter for the Guide.

WILLIAM ATTERBURY (194).....

In an earlier issue of the Newsletter we reported on our effort to determine the identity of all those buried in the old Atterbury cemetery (site "D" on the map in the January 1995 issue). As a start, we have been attempting to decipher the largest fieldstone marker, which we believe to be the headstone for our gg grandfather, William Atterbury(194). The stone has eroded severely in the 155 years since his death, but we are 90% convinced this to be his headstone. Several methods have been used to make the inscription more readable, but no one method has revealed the entire inscription. Presently, we believe the stone to read: "183—

W— Atterbury"

We are continuing our effort to accurately identify this particular grave site.

MARYLAND RESEARCH.....

Shirley Hannaford and Leota King are continuing to furnish us with a wealth of material about our ancestors (and possible ancestors) in Maryland. In the last three months, Shirley and Leota have each sent several batches of detailed information, and we sincerely appreciate their effort to keep us up-to-date on their on-going research.

Shirley has supplemented considerably the information we have on the Mitchell and Burgess families of Colonial Maryland. Readers will recall we discussed the Burgess-Mitchell ancestors of John Mitchell, Sr., in the last issue of the Newsletter. (John is the father of Sarah, who is presumed to be the wife of our William [1]). A recap of the new material from Shirley is covered later in this article.

Leota's Maryland research is an effort to clarify any possible relationship that may exist between the several Atterbury/Atteberys mentioned in early Wills, land grants, and other records. A review of one of the documents sent to us by Leota is also covered later.

While there has been very little duplication in Leota and Shirley's work, a common goal for both is to uncover a marriage record for William and Sarah. Those who have researched William and Sarah know that a small cloud of doubt will persist until some proof of that union is found. And since it is generally believed that seven, and probably eight, of the sons of William and Sarah were born in Maryland, finding a record of their birth would certainly be a major break-through in Atterbury/Attebery genealogical research.

More on the Burgess-Mitchell families. . .

In the January, 1995, issue of the Newsletter, we published a brief summary of Colonel William Burgess and his relationship to Atterbury/Attebery descendants. The 182 pages of copies of Maryland documents and papers furnished by Shirley Hannaford include two excellent biographies of Colonel Burgess. With this additional background, we wish to correct and supplement the information in the January issue:

William Burgess came to America in 1650 at the age of 28. He settled and received a grant for land on the south side of the South River in the vicinity of Londontown, in Anne Arundel County. He eventually owned over 2800 acres in this area, including 800 acres containing the "Town of London", as cited in his Will.

William was married three times; first, to Elizabeth Robbins, who bore him two sons; second, to Sophia Ewen (widow of Major Richard Ewen), who bore him one daughter; and third, to Ursula (maiden name believed to be Puddington, but may have been Painter, or ?). William and Ursula had eight children, including Susannah who married John Mitchell. Susannah and John were the grandparents of Sarah Mitchell (Yaxley) Atterbury.

From 1660 on, William Burgess was active in the Militia, serving as a Lieutenant, Captain, Major, and, finally, Colonel. He was High Sheriff of Anne Arundel County in 1663. In 1665, he was ordered by Lord Calvert to raise and train forces, and capture or kill all hostile Indians. Indians had murdered a number of settlers in Anne Arundel and other Maryland Counties, and William was to continue to lead forces against them for another 15 years.

William served in the Lower House of the Maryland General Assembly from 1669 - 1682, and in the Upper House from 1682 until his death in 1686.

The foregoing does not begin to describe what must have been a very interesting life for this ancestor, a 7th great grandfather of the writer.

In another document from Shirley, the "Church Registers of Queen Anne's Parish" of Prince George's County, we note some perplexing information. The Parish Church, St. Barnabas, in the village of Leeland, was the church home of John and Elizabeth Mitchell, parents of Sarah Mitchell Atterbury. Leeland is located just 2 miles south of Mitchellville, Maryland, indicating the family lived in the area settled by earlier Mitchells.

The Church Register Index included the following entries:

- Mitchell, Sarah, born August 31, 1720, dau.
John & Elizab. (birth, p. 16)
- Mitchell, Sarah, married Robert Yackley, June 3, 1735 (marriage, page 6)
- Yacksley, John, born January 23, 1735, son
Robt. & Sarah (birth, p. 34)

Yacksley, Robert, married Sarah Mitchel June 3, 1735 (marriage, page 6) (this is an index cross-reference of the 2nd item, but "Yackley" spelled with an added "s").

Additionally, the births of John and Elizabeth's other children were entered in the Register. Researcher George Wylder had noted the Mitchell entries and the will of John Mitchell, Sr. almost four years ago, leading to the presumption that Sarah's second marriage was to William Atterbury (1).

In the Will of John Mitchell, Sr. (see Newsletter of January 4, 1994), readers may recall the reference to "my granddaughter Elizabeth Yaxley". Because of Sarah Mitchell's marriage to Robert Yackley (Yacksley, Yaxley) and the reference in John, Sr.'s Will, "my daughter Sarah Atterbury", it is naturally assumed that Elizabeth Yaxley was Sarah's daughter by her first marriage. However, there is no reference to the birth of an Elizabeth Yaxley (or Yackley, Yacksley) in the Church Register. This is puzzling in view of the other entries noted above, but the answer is probably, simply, that Robert and Sarah lived in another Parish when Elizabeth was born.

Again, as on page one, there is a calendar "problem" to recognize. John Yacksley's birth is entered in January, 1735, yet his parents marriage is shown in June of 1735. Actually, John's birth came 8 months after the marriage, not four months before, due the structure of the old Julian Calendar.

Another question, assuming that Robert Yacksley died after the birth of Elizabeth, is this; since Elizabeth was living with her grandparents when John Mitchell, Sr. prepared his will, where was her brother John? Did he die young? Living with his other grandparents?

Yet another question is why did not Sarah have her daughter Elizabeth (and son John if he was alive) with her after her marriage to William Atterbury? Did John Mitchell disapprove of his daughter Sarah's marriage to a former convict and indentured laborer, since he was from an apparently well-to-do family himself? (More on this in May).

Here, as in most genealogical work, the more one learns about their ancestors, the more questions arise to puzzle the researchers. Our thanks to Shirley for sharing her work with us.

More From Maryland. . . .

Among the copies of documents sent by Leota King are Probate Papers listing the debts due the estate of Lawrence Owen of Frederick County, Maryland. The list is dated March, 1762. Among the almost 375 debtors was William Atterbury.

We naturally assume this to be our William (1), and his appearance on this list lends credence that he and his family did, at one time, live in Frederick County. However, since the Atterbury family was in Loudoun County, Virginia, by 1758, it would appear this was a debt of long standing. The great number of debtors probably indicates many old debts were due the estate of Mr. Owen.

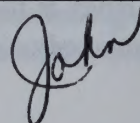

In the May issue, a number of other interesting references to several Colonial period Atterbury/.. Atterburys will be discussed. Our sincere thanks to Leota for keeping us informed on her research.

WELCOME TO ANOTHER NEW READER. . .

Although too late to make the first page of this Newsletter, we are pleased to introduce Pat Wallace of Chandler, Arizona. Pat descends from Louisa Atterbury, who was the wife of Michael Myers. Pat has been researching her family history for almost 28 years, and has had good success on many of her ancestral lines. To date, however, she has not identified the parents of Louisa Atterbury. Louisa was born about 1790 in South Carolina, so Pat is reasonably certain that Louisa is a daughter of one of the nine sons of William (1). But which son?

Presently, Pat is concentrating her research effort on Macon and Christian County, Illinois, where Louisa (found in some documents as "Lavina") and Michael lived most of their married life. Michael died in Macon County (Decatur) in 1850, and Louisa died in Christian County in 1862. As a significant point, Pat notes the continuous close relationship of the Myers (Meyers) and Atterbury/..Attebery families, beginning in South Carolina and continuing in Kentucky, Illinois, and Missouri.

Pat is looking forward to exchanging information with any of our readers who possibly can shed some light on her Atterbury line, especially those who have researched the Atterbury/..Atteberys in Illinois. Her address is: 3105 North Carriage Lane

Your Ancestors.....Who.....and How Many ?

The average person, when contemplating their forebearers, think of their parents, grandparents, and probably another generation or two. After this, older ancestors tend to be grouped into a hazy assemblage of unknown composition and extent. But at the same time, one recognizes that their line of ancestors must march continually backward, generation by generation, into antiquity. One's very existence depends on this fact. In this treatise, we will explore the significance and magnitude of this broad and extended group of ancestors.

Usually the first, and certainly the most frequently asked question, when people learn you are re-searching your family history, is: "How far back are you ?" Those who do genealogical research are continually confronted with this question. The inference, often, is; if you are not back to the Middle Ages, you really haven't accomplished much. Our normal reply is that we can't develop too much interest in trying to establish William the Conqueror as an ancestor, when we are not yet out of Monroe County, Missouri, on three of our eight great-grandparents. Nevertheless, everyone is intrigued by the prospect of establishing a lineage that goes back a thousand years or more, and someday finding a noted ancient personage to be a true ancestor.

So what are the chances that you are related to, or even descended from, one or more historic figures? And what are the odds of you being related to some famous person who is alive today? The chances are quite good in every case, as we will strive to establish in this article. The remarkable Helen Keller very astutely observed in her autobiography, The Story of My Life, "There is no king who has not had a slave for an ancestor, and no slave who has not had a king among his."

Any one person, however, does not have the time or resources to trace all of his or her ancestral lines. The task to determine the identity of each and every ancestor, plus identify other descendants of these ancestors, would be monumental, and is difficult enough on just one or two ancestral lines.

Here's Why.....

Each of us have two parents, four grandparents, and hence eight great-grandparents. Continuing on, you have sixteen great-great-grandparents, 32 great-great-great grandparents, and the number continues to double with each generation. But where does this progression lead ?

| Number of Generations Back: | Number of Direct Ancestors: |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 | 2 (parents) |
| 2 | 4 (grandparents) |
| 3 | 8 (great-grandparents) |
| 4 | 16 (gg grandparents) |
| 5 | 32 (ggg grandparents) |
| 6 | 64 (4th g ") |
| 7 | 128 (5th g ") |
| 8 | 256 (6th g ") |
| 9 | 512 (7th g ") |
| 10 | 1024 (8th g ") |

Thus, in just 10 generations, you have amassed over 1000 direct ancestors with a potential like number of different surnames. Each generation represents, on the average, about 26 years. So ten generations back, if you were born in 1950, for example, would place your 1024 8th great-grandparents in the late 1600's or early 1700's. Continuing the progression to even earlier generations:

| Number of Generations Back: | Number of Direct Ancestors: |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 11 | 2048 |
| 12 | 4096 |
| 13 | 8192 |
| 14 | 16,384 |
| 15 | 32,768 |

| Number of Generations Back: | Numbers of Direct Ancestors: |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 16 | 65,536 |
| 17 | 131,072 |
| 18 | 262,144 |
| 19 | 524,288 |
| 20 | 1,048,576 Wow ! |

The number of direct ancestors each of us have has reached "mind-boggling" proportions! But carrying this backward to the 30th generation, doubling the number each generation just as we've done before, we reach the absolutely OUTRAGEOUS number of over ONE BILLION ancestors (to be exact, the number is 1,073,741,824). If you were born in 1950, this 30th generation back would place your ancestors at about the year 1200 A.D. But How Can This Be ? There were only an estimated 400 million people on earth in the year 1200 ! And the majority of those lived in Asia and other areas remote from where most of us have our roots. Where, then, is the fallacy in our calculation ?

There are at least two answers; first, our calculation is based on the assumption that all those great-great-great, great-great-great-great, et al, grandparents were different people. But, in truth, you actually descend from many ancestors by more than one route (i.e., several branches of your family tree will lead to the same ancestor). Compound this effect any number of times back through the generations and it can make a considerable reduction in that huge theoretical number ancestors we derived for the 30th generation back. As an example of one ancestor taking the place of several, consider the affect of a marriage of first cousins. This couple will have one set of common grandparents (of a normally expected four sets). As a result, a child of this couple will have 25% fewer ancestors, beginning with the child's great grand-parents and continuing through all earlier generations. This results in a reduction of over 265 million direct ancestors for this child at the 30th generation back. But even this huge decrease still conceivably leaves this child with over 800 million ancestors. The impact of the marriage of first cousins becomes less when the union involves earlier generations. If the first cousins are grandparents rather than parents, then the reduction in ancestors of the grandchild is one-half of 25%, or 12.5% for all earlier generations. Similarly, if the first cousins are great grandparents, the reduction in ancestors is only 6.25% .

As an actual example, one of our cousins is a descendant of three of the sons of our 4th great grandparents, William and Sarah Atterbury. Children (first cousins) of two of the sons married and are the great grandparents of our cousin's father. Her mother descends from a third son. The net effect of these relationships is to reduce the number of sets of her 4th great grandparents from 32 down to 30, where one set (William and Sarah) has taken the place of three. This is a reduction of 6.25% in the number of our cousin's ancestors for all earlier generations. So it is evident that a large reduction in that one billion ancestors in the 30th generation will require many, many intra-family unions, such as the one described in this example, to lessen the number of ancestors to a reasonable, believable, amount.

Clearly, this large and requisite reduction results in many, if not most, of one's more remote ancestors having several lines of descent from each of them down to ourselves. Furthermore, this incidence of multiple ancestral lines leading from one ancestor will increase as we include older and older generations.

(Another factor to consider is this: a 30th generation ancestor in one line of descent, for example, may only be the 29th generation in a second line, 27th in a third line, and 32nd in a fourth line. Our cousin, in the actual example above, was a 7th generation descendant of William and Sarah on her father's side, and an 8th generation descendant on her mother's side. This means that William and Sarah are her 4th great grandparents on one side, and her 5th great grandparents on the other side !)

A second reason for the wide difference between our calculated number of ancestors and the 1200 A.D. population is that not all of the 30th generation ancestors would have lived at precisely the same time. The average time-span for a generation did place this generation at about the year 1200 A.D. However, the 30th generation for some ancestral lines would have lived prior to the year 1200 while others would have lived later. This means that many of these ancestors did not have to be included in the estimated 400 million population in 1200 A.D., but were part of the population, for example, in the year 1150, or in the year 1250.

What is a realistic number of ancestors an average individual could expect to have ?

We have searched through a considerable amount of literature seeking expert opinions on this subject. Noted writers in the fields of Sociology, Race and Anthropology, and on the history of World Population Growth (1) all acknowledge the fact that we must and do have ancestors from whom we descend by more than one route. However, as yet, we have not found any attempt to estimate the probable number of ancestors an average person might expect to have were he or she able to trace all of their ancestral lines. We are interested in this number to help clarify the main theme of this article; that is, our possible relationship to all the other people who have lived in the past, or who are alive today.

Therefore, one can only make their own guess as to how many actual ancestors they have, for example, at his or her 30th generation back. Considering the theoretical total possible ancestors, the estimated population in 1200 A.D., and the affect of intra-family marriages, we offer the following estimate:

- A. Estimated population of the European - Mediterranean - Near East area, the territory where most of our ancestors might have lived in 1200 A.D.....120 million
- B. 1). Estimated number in A. who were or would become parents (@ 75%) =90 million
- 2). Estimated number of single generation ancestors in B.1 (population could include grandparents, parents, and children {3 generations} of one line) (@50%) =45 million
- 3). Estimated number in B.2 whose lines will extend to the present day (@ 50%) =22.5 million (Many lines terminated and produced no further descendants because of wars, purges, plagues[i.e., the Black Death of the 14th century] and other epidemics, as well as the failure of some unions to produce children.) Some portion of these 22.5 million people would be our 30th generation ancestors.
- C. 1). Assume, first, that the number of actual ancestors for the 30th generation is in the range of 1 % to 5 % of the theoretically possible 1,073,741,824:

| | | | |
|-------|-------------|----------------|------------|
| 1 % = | 10,737,418; | or approx..... | 11 million |
| 5 % = | 53,687,091; | or approx..... | 54 million |
- 2). Assume, second, that 1/3 of our actual ancestors were alive in 1200 A.D.:
(recall that not all of our 30th generation ancestors would have lived at precisely the same time; hence, for the moment we assume that 1/3 lived in the years prior to 1200, 1/3 in the 1200 era, and 1/3 in later years)

| | | |
|--------------|--------------------|-------------------|
| @ 1% actual: | 1/3 x 11 million = |3.7 million |
| @ 5% actual: | 1/3 x 54 million = |18.0 million |
- 3). At 1%, our ancestors would constitute 3.7 million of 22.5 million , or 16 % of the parents we estimated to be in the 1200 A.D. population.
At 5%, our ancestors would constitute 18 million of 22.5 million, or 80 % of the parents we estimated to be in the 1200 A.D. population.

Although 16 % to 80 % constitutes a large proportion of the 22.5 million potential ancestors living in 1200 A.D., the number is realistic when compared to the theoretically possible 1,073,741,824. Our intuition (usually wrong ?) tells us that 80% seems too high, so for discussion purposes we will reduce this percentage to 25%. 25% represents about 5.6 million parents in the 1200 A.D. population whose ancestral lines will extend to the present day. Based on our assumptions, these 5.6 million people would be one-third of our 30th generation ancestors. On this same basis, then, our total number of 30th generation ancestors would be three times 5.6, or 16.8 million people. While this last number still seems high and difficult to visualize, it represents only 1.6 % of the theoretical number of ancestors. This would mean an average of 60 of our ancestral lines would have to culminate in each 30th generation ancestor. (Note: Since a person must descend from a union of two people, both the theoretical and the assumed actual number of marriages would be one-half the number of ancestors. However, the percent reduction and the average number of lines from the 30th generation will remain the same.)

Thus, to this point, our estimations have "eliminated" 98.4 % of those possible 30th generation 1,073,741,824 forebearers. The only factor that can create this reduction is that many ancestral lines must originate from almost every ancestor. There can be no other reason for a reduction from the theoretical number. (In the writer's opinion, an average of 60 lines leading to each ancestor seems quite high. However, since this number can only be reduced by increasing the number of ancestors, for discussion purposes we will let it stand.)

To whom are you related ?

Consider the implications of 16.8 million direct ancestors, who are the progenitors of literally millions of descendants, past and present, of which you are only one. Since we previously assumed 25% of the parents whose lines extend to the present day to be our ancestors, it follows that these same people are also, theoretically, the ancestors of 25% of all the other people alive today who have the same basic roots. This 25% represents people, primarily caucasian, who are living all over the world. Since our country was originally populated largely by people from this same area, some measurable proportion of these would be living in the United States. Thus, for example, your next door neighbor could easily be a distant relation, as could the clerk at your grocery store, and the driver of the car ahead at the corner stop light. Just as easily, the president of IBM, a well-known movie actor, a famous professional athlete, and a respected Army general could also possibly be related to you. But don't get too smug, because a notorious mass murderer and that homeless wino on the street can also be related to you.

In addition to being related to a great number of people alive today, you are also related to many millions of people who lived in the past. And some of these could likely be well-known, famous (or infamous, as the case may be !) people, who lived almost anywhere in the world. You could be related, albeit distantly, to Abraham Lincoln, King George III, Julius Caesar, or even Blackbeard the Pirate.

As an example of ancestral lines you can discover in the process of doing genealogical research, we learned that the writer's wife, Zelma West Atterbury (through her mother Bonnie Hardwick West), descends from Rolf, The Norseman. Rolf (Rollo) invaded Normandy in the year 910, and was the great-great grandfather of William the Conqueror, who invaded Britain in 1066. Rolf was also the progenitor of the Fitz Randolph line from whom my wife descends, as does George Washington, first president of our country. One Fitz Randolph ancestor married the daughter of Robert de Bruce of Scotland, from whom the Stuart Kings of Scotland and England descend. So from this one line both famous ancestors and, though quite distant, historic and royal relatives were found. In the writer's opinion, most other researchers will find similiar connections to one or more historic figures, if they are fortunate (lucky) enough to uncover a documented line. A friend who lives nearby has also independently documented her descent from Rolf, making her and my wife related, although it is certainly a very distant relationship.

(This treatise will be concluded in the May or July issue of the Newsletter. We solicit your comments.)

Atterbury Family History

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

May 10, 1995

Vol. 4, No. 3

WELCOME TO TWO NEW READERS....

This issue of the Newsletter is pleased to introduce Corrine Wiggins to the recipients of this publication. Corrine's husband Ernie descends from Charles Atterbury(13), through his great grandmother Emily Jane Atterbury(13168). Emily Jane was the wife of James Monroe Wiggins.

Corrine and Ernie's address is: 1505 Madison, Sp. 61, Klamath Falls, Oregon, 97603-4072. She is investigating the Atterbury/..Attebery line in Illinois and has corresponded with Bernice Ehlers, a charter member on the mailing list of this Newsletter. Corrine also wishes to correspond with anyone who may know something of James and Emily Jane Wiggins' life in Oklahoma. James and Emily are buried in the Crinerville Cemetery in Ardmore, Oklahoma. James was born September 30, 1828. Emily was born February 24, 1850, in Chesterfield, Macoupin County, Illinois. They were married Feb. 25, 1871 in Chesterfield. At least one of their children, Ernest O. Wiggins, was born in Oklahoma, in Indian Territory, February 5, 1886. Corrine would sincerely appreciate any information or assistance on this family. After this Newsletter goes in the mail, we will search through our records for clues on James and Emily.

An item of potential significance included with the family material furnished by Corrine was the exact birth date of Charles Atterbury(13). The date noted for his date of birth is November 28, 1747. This is the first precise date we have seen for any of William(1)'s nine sons. Corrine found the date in the L.D.S. records through her local Mormon Church, but the source was not clear. If any reader knows more about this, please let us hear from you.

We are also pleased to add to the Newsletter mailing list Mae Frances Arterbury Pinkston of Greenville, Mississippi. Mae descends from John Atterbury(16), through his son Elias and grandson John Francis Marion Arterbury(16x11x4), whose Confederate Civil War service is cited in the MAIL BAG section of this Newsletter.

Mae has recently started to research her family history (see NEW READER, page 4)

MORE NEWS FROM LONDON....

As you will recall from previous reports, a search of London records is being made in an effort to identify William Atterbury(1), the progenitor of most of the Atterbury/..Atteberys in the United States. But in genealogical research, finding your ancestors and learning something of their life seldom seems to come easy.

In addition to the William Atterberry(Atterbury), born June 21, 1710, in London, and christened in St. Giles Cripplegate Church (see March '95 issue), several other Williams have now been found. The above William will likely prove to be our progenitor, but all the others must be investigated.

Below are identified all the other known William Atterburys born in England in the time frame of 1695 - 1717, noting the christening date, parents names, Parish or County name, and town;

1. April 30, 1695; John - Jane; St. Giles Cripplegate; London.
2. December 25, 1700; Robert - ? ; Buckingham; Newport-Pagnell.
3. About 1702; Francis - Catherine; Chelsea; London. (Christening register not located, possibly died within a few days of birth. Francis is Sir Francis Atterbury, Bishop of Rochester, who married Catherine Osborn).
4. December 3, 1702; William - Elizabeth; Warwick; Berkswell.
5. May 12, 1706; Richard - Elizabeth; St. Ann Blackfriars; London.
6. July 15, 1711; Edward - Elizabeth; St. Andrew By-the-Wardrobe; London.
7. July 21, 1717; John - Rachel; Stepney, St. Dunstan; London.

The first and last of these can probably be set aside because of their ages, but may require consideration later. Interestingly, the William christened May 12, 1706 seems to have a twin brother, Richard. The Christening Register of St. Ann Blackfriars for May 12, 1706, carried their entry thusly: "Richard and William, sons of Richard and Elizabeth Atterbury".

Hence, the William born in 1710, as well as the (see page 2, column 1)

NEWS FROM LONDON. . . (Cont. from pg.1) two Williams born in 1706 and 1711, all seem to be good candidates to be our William(1). At the moment, we are evaluating the next step to take in this research effort. If any of our readers have a clue as to which may be the "correct" William, we would appreciate your help.

Meanwhile, we have received from London the Christening Register of St. Stephen, Coleman Street (this Parish is adjacent to St. Giles Cripplegate), for March 21, 1685 (1686). Christened on this date was William, son of Thomas and Anne Atterbury. This is possibly the same William, a butcher and husband of Sarah, who was the father of the William born June 21, 1710. Details on William and Sarah's family were in the March, 1995, issue of the Newsletter. (We, too, get confused trying to keep all these WILLIAMS straight !)

BUT, there is still another William, born in 1685, who could also be the father of our William(1). This William was also born in the Parish of St. Giles Cripplegate, the "son of William Atterberry, Smith, and Jane born 29th March, Christened April 5, 1685. (The term "Smith" is clarified by the entry for his brother: Thomas son of William "Atterrbery", Blacksmith, and Jane born January 18, Christened January 30, 1686/87)

AND NOW, MORE CONFUSION. . .

In the May, 1994, issue of this Newsletter, in the short biographical sketch on William Atterbury(1), we identified several Atterburys who preceded him in the American Colonies. One, William Atterbury (born 1608, died c. 1660) was the great uncle of Sir Francis Atterbury, and possibly the great(or great-great) grandfather of William(1). In an investigation concurrent with the search for William(1) and his parents, we have gone back to the older William(b. 1608), and are attempting to research his descendants forward. Hence, we are conducting a search for William(1)'s ancestry from both directions.

Here is a summary of what we have learned to date about the William born in 1608:

From the book The Descendants of Job Atterbury, by L. Effingham de Forest, published in 1933, William Atterbury was born June 7, 1608, in Great Houghton, County of Northampton. He was the son of Lewis Atterbury and his wife Mary Harvey. As a young man, William moved to London and became a merchant. His brother Richard also went to London, and became a fishmonger.

The Marriage Register of St. Andrew Undershaft (another Parish in the city of London, about 0.6 mile from St. Giles Cripplegate) records the marriage of William Atterburie and Joyce Gombelton(Gumbleton?) on May 28, 1633. His age and location make this William a good candidate to be the one born in Great Houghton. From the Christening Register of this same Church, we find the following children of "William Atterbury and Joyce, his wife":

| | | |
|--------------------|------------|-------------------|
| William Atterbury, | Christened | August 3, 1634 |
| Thomas Atterbury, | " | October 28, 1635 |
| Cicily Atterbury, | " | December 26, 1636 |
| Susanna Atterbury, | " | May 14, 1638 |
| Richard Atterbury, | " | June 9, 1640 |
| Jeane Atterbury, | " | September 1, 1643 |

So we have yet another William to include in this confusing line of possible ancestors. But we must consider that both William and Richard are potentially a grandparent or great grandparent of our William(1). Their brother Thomas, according to the Burial Register of this Church, died at the age of five months and was buried on April 2, 1636. We traced the Burial Register checking for other deaths in this family, and found but one: "Joyce Atterbury Widdow Dyed in the Parish of St. Peter (Le Poor) & was buried here on the 19th day of November, 1678". Being brought back to St. Andrews for burial indicates that her husband, William, was likely buried there also, but no record for him was found. (An I.G.I. entry indicates Joyce was born March 26, 1606, the daughter of Roger Gumbleton.)

Two important factors affect London research in the mid - to - late 1600's. One was the return of the Plague in 1664 - 65, during which 75,000 Londoners died, about 30% of the population. No doubt some Atterburys were affected. A second factor was the Great Fire of 1666 which consumed four-fifths of the City. We have not learned what records might have been destroyed during this disaster.

We will continue to report our progress in the search for the family line of William Atterbury(1) in future issues of the Newsletter. The writer would appreciate any clues readers have that might assist and help evaluate this research.

THE MAIL BAG....

Since the last Newsletter, we have received many interesting letters from our readers. Beginning with this Newsletter, we will strive to do a better job of sharing this information with all of you. We sincerely appreciate all of the letters and genealogical material about our Atterbury/..Atteberys and other related families, so keep writing. The more people we can make aware of a bit of knowledge about our family history, the better the chance all of us have to fill in the many gaps in that history.

From Hy Ipson(16x11x1558) of Monroe, Utah, we have received the Service Record of Confederate soldier JOHN FRANCIS MARION ARTERBURY(16x11x4). John was born about 1830 in Dallas County, Alabama. He was the son of Elias Arterbury and Matilda Wallace.

John enlisted August 1, 1862, as a Private in Company B, 6th Regiment, Mississippi Volunteers. He was captured during the battle of Port Gibson, Mississippi, on May 1, 1863. This battle was the first engagement in General U.S. Grant's Campaign against Vicksburg. Port Gibson was strategically located between Natchez and Vicksburg on the Natchez Trace Highway. Both Union and Confederate Armies sustained heavy losses at Port Gibson and subsequent battles for Vicksburg.

John Francis Marion Arterbury was sent to the Union Military Prison at Alton, Illinois, arriving May 18, 1863. He was included in a prisoner exchange on June 12, just 25 days later. The records show he drew clothing on June 28, and returned to his original Company and Regiment. He was court martialed, apparently for 3 days absence, in November, 1863. John served his sentence and was returned to duty, but then it appears he deserted during the night of July 17th, 1864. The Muster Rolls indicate he had not been paid since October 31, 1863, this perhaps being the source of his discontent.

As signified by his identifying number, 16x11x4, John Francis Marion Arterbury descends from John Atterbury(16), the 6th son of William(1). With John, we now know of 15 Atterbury/..Atteberys who served on the Confederate side in the Civil War, and 55 who served in the Union forces.

Frances Pinkston, of Greenville, Mississippi, whose introduction begins on page one. If any reader has information on John F. M. Arterbury, Mae Frances would like to hear from you.

"YOU WON'T BELIEVE THIS, BUT...!"

So reported Harry C. Baker, of Paris, Monroe County, Missouri. Cousin Harry has been searching for the site of the old Baker Family Cemetery on a farm west of Madison. Our mutual great grandfather, Elisha Baker, is believed buried in this Cemetery which was reportedly "plowed up" some 40-50 years ago. Hence, the exact site has never been found, even though a long-time resident of the area told Harry the approximate location of the Cemetery. Elisha's mother, Phebe, step-father Andrew Baker, and other family members are also believed buried here. (see Monroe Co. map, site "H", in Jan., 1995 issue)

To locate this old graveyard, Harry sought the aid of a expert who does general archeological work, including finding old graveyards. We assumed (from 350 miles away) that this person used an assortment of modern electronic detection equipment. NOT SO! This expert, a woman, uses the ancient art of "DOWSING" to find sub-surface objects and artifacts. Skeptics abound when this subject arises, but the practice of dowsing has given valid results often enough that its usage must be given some credence. This lady terms what she does as "archeology without a shovel", not dowsing. As necessary, she uses probes and a metal detector to confirm the existence of "something" underground. She is currently completing a book on this subject.

To any reader not familiar with the present-day practice of this "art", a "dowser", using two pieces of wire, each bent at a right-angle and held properly with the hands, walks over the ground seeking sub-surface abnormalities. The wires turn when "something" underground is located. The writer's brother Tom, a retired engineering executive and pipeline expert, has seen this "art" give factual results in several instances.

So Harry's report, beginning with "You won't believe this, but..." was followed by "we found it(the Cemetery) by dowsing!" The lady dowser located the site of the old graveyard about 150 feet north of where we had guessed it to be. By continually walking across the site, she determined the size(32 x 37 feet), the number, location, and type of graves(18 graves; 11 adult, 6 child, 1 baby), and that the Cemetery had a fence with a gate!

Harry and the writer are still pondering our good fortune, but have absolutely no reason not to accept the dowser's findings. Comments?

(The next issue of this Newsletter will detail the results and our comments about this same expert's examination and assessment of the old Atterbury Cemetery. [Site "D", Jan., 1995 issue]).

MORE ON COLONIAL MARYLAND. . .

Several letters and accompanying material from Leota (Lee) King of Spokane, Washington, have added to our growing Atterbury/..Attebery files. Most recently, Lee has furnished a number of new references(new to the writer) to Atterburys in colonial Maryland. Her intent in searching out these early "family-name" references is the desire to accurate place all of these early Atterbury/..Atteberys in their proper relationship to one another.

Included in this material are the following items, excerpts from "Abstracts of the Inventories of the Perogative Court of Maryland"

- 1). May 1730, St. Mary's County; Inventory of John Booth; Next of kin: Thomas Atterbury (Thomas was the brother-in-law of John Booth)
- 2). March 1734, Calvert County; Inventory of William Cook; Administrator: Thomas Atterbury
- 3). April 1734, Calvert County; Inventory of Williams Eadmans; Next of kin: Thomas Atterbury
- 4). June 1734, Calvert County, Inventory of John Arnold; Next of kin: Thomas Atterbury

This Thomas Atterbury, whose estate was probated June 10, 1749, is quite possibly the unborn child cited in the Will of an older Thomas Atterbury written January 30, 1708/1709 (see article on William Atterbury(1) in the May, 1994, issue of the Newsletter).

Their were no children named as heirs of the younger Thomas in the 1749 papers. Only his wife, Mary, and three cousins. So we are forced to conclude that there are no descendants of this Thomas Atterbury. This, of course, reduces the possibility that one or more of the nine sons of William(1) were actually the offspring of another Atterbury progenitor.

. . . AND VIRGINIA. . .

Leota has also sent a new reference to William Atterbury, probably the London merchant born in 1608 (page 2, col. 2, this issue). This William was also thought to be a Ships Captain and traveled to Virginia frequently, where he had inherited land from his brother Richard. The book, The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant, by Voncille Winter and Wilma Mitchell, cites several references to the older William in Virginia in the years of 1641 through 1654.

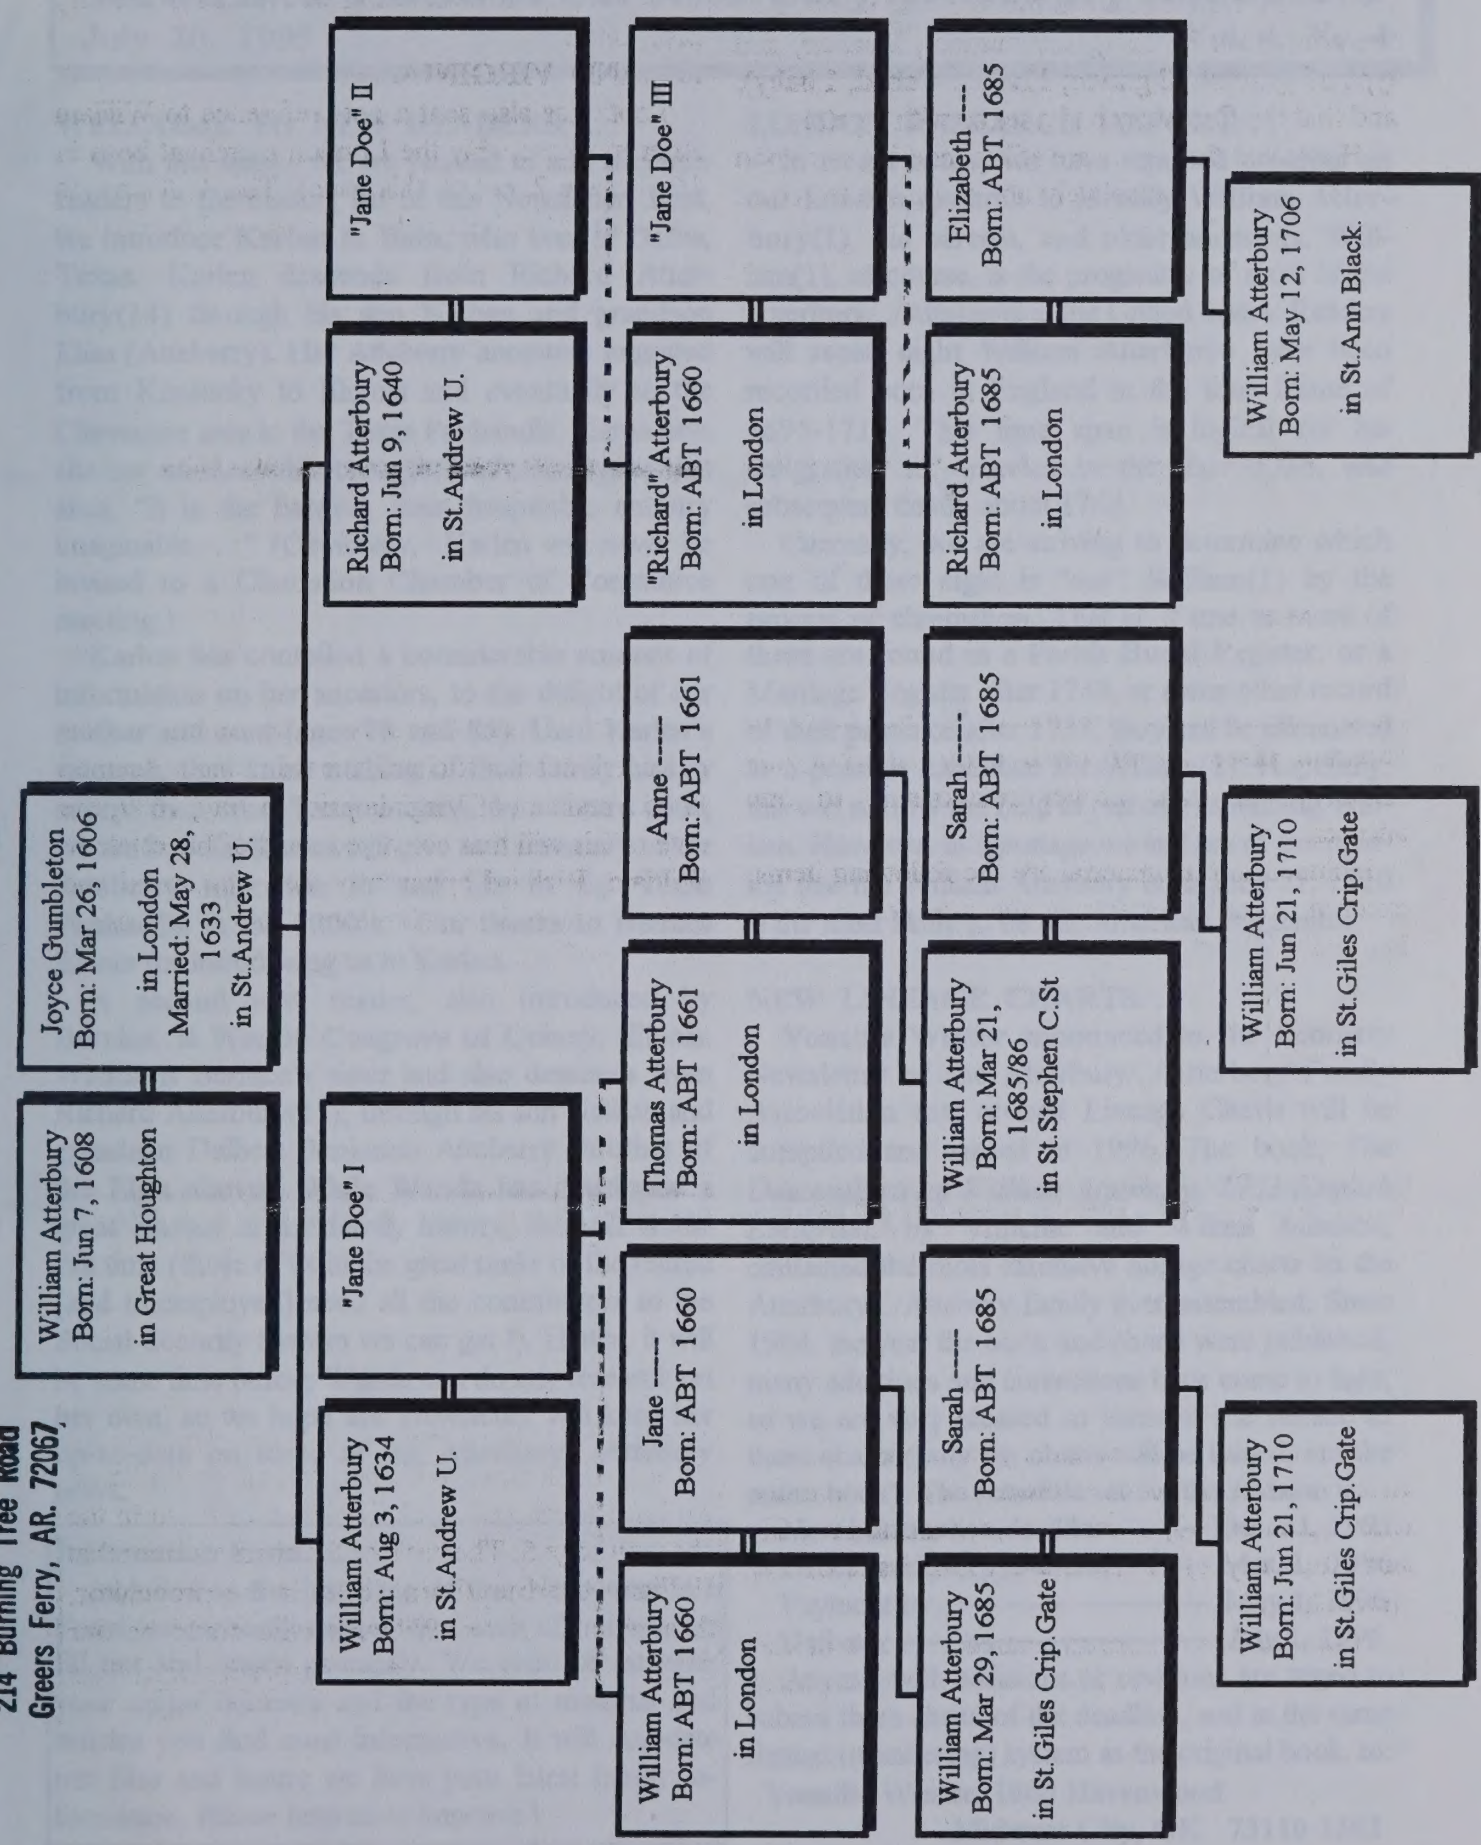

Leota uncovered, in the Virginia Colonial Abstracts of Accomack County, 1637-1640, a "Power of Attorney" dated December 23, 1638. Cornelius Loyd appointed a William Jones to "settle accounts". This instrument was witnessed by William Atterbury, and is the earliest known reference to William Atterbury in the American Colonies. His brother Richard, the fishmonger, seemed to be a resident of Virginia prior to July, 1637, the date of his will that conveyed most of his estate to William. Richard apparently died unmarried and without descendants, eliminating him as a possible ancestor of American Atterbury/..Atteberys.

and seems to be off to a good start with help from close cousin Hy Ipson. Even though she has located the Civil War record of her great grandfather, John Frances Marion Arterbury, Mae is quite interested in learning more about him. AN AFTERTHOUGHT. . . .

After proof-reading the article on our Atterbury research in London, and trying to mentally sort out all of the Williams, Williams, and more Williams, we have attempted to clarify some of these in the chart on page 5. The basis of the chart assumes that William Atterbury(born 1608) is the progenitor, through one of the Williams who could be our William(1), and outlines three hypothetical lines of descent as derived from our London research. The William born June 21, 1710 is shown in two of those hypothetical lines. Note the many unknowns.

News and Views of our Atterbury/...Attebery Ancestors

Vol. 4, No. 4

WELCOME TO NEW READERS. . .

With this issue, we are pleased to add two new readers to the mailing list of this Newsletter. First, we introduce Karlen B. Bain, who lives in Dallas, Texas. Karlen descends from Richard Atterbury(14) through his son Nathan and grandson Elias (Atteberry). Her Atteberry ancestors migrated from Kentucky to Illinois and eventually to the Clarendon area in the Texas Panhandle. Karen says she has no idea what brought the Atteberrys to that area, "It is the hardest, least hospitable country imaginable. . ." (Obviously, Karlen will never be invited to a Clarendon Chamber of Commerce meeting.)

Karlen has compiled a considerable amount of information on her ancestors, to the delight of her mother and aunt (ages 78 and 85). Until Karlen's research, they knew nothing of their family history except their west Texas cousins. In a future issue, we are hopeful Karlen will give us a summary of the Atteberry migration to and life in the Texas Panhandle in the 1800's. Our thanks to Bernice Ehlers for introducing us to Karlen.

A second new reader, also introduced by Bernice, is Wanda Cosgrove of Quincy, Illinois. Wanda is Bernice's sister and also descends from Richard Atterbury(14), through his son Nathan and grandson Delbert Benjamin Atteberry (brother of the Elias above). While Wanda has developed a great interest in her family history, she still works full time (those of us in the great ranks of the retired [and unemployed] need all the contributors to the Social Security System we can get!). Hence, it will be some time before Wanda can do any research on her own, so we hope this Newsletter will keep her up-to-date on some of the Atterbury/...Attebery news.

Information Form. . .

Included as the last page of this Newsletter is a Form we earnestly request that each of our readers fill out and return promptly. We want to establish your major interests and the type of material and articles you find most informative. It will up-date our files and insure we have your latest family information. Please help us to improve!

LONDON RESEARCH REPORT. . .

In recent issues, we have reported progress on our London research to identify William Atterbury(1), his parents, and older ancestors. William(1), of course, is the progenitor of most of the Atterbury/...Atteberys in the United States. Readers will recall eight William Atterburys have been recorded born in England in the time frame of 1695-1717. This time span is logical for his emigration to America in the year 1733, and subsequent death about 1768.

Currently, we are striving to determine which one of these eight is "our" William(1) by the process of elimination. That is, if one or more of these are found in a Parish Burial Register, or a Marriage Register after 1733, or some other record of their presence after 1733, they can be eliminated as a possible candidate for William(1). Hopefully, this will narrow the field to just one remaining William. However, at this stage we still are of the opinion that the William Atterbury born June 21, 1710 is the most likely to be our American Progenitor.

NEW LINEAGE CHARTS. . .

Voncille Winter announced in the February Newsletter of the Atterbury/...Attebery Family Association that revised Lineage Charts will be compiled and issued in 1996. The book, The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant, by Voncille and Wilma Mitchell, contained the most extensive lineage charts on the Atterbury/...Attebery family ever assembled. Since 1984, the year the book and charts were published, many additions and corrections have come to light, so we are very pleased to learn of the reissue of these charts (only the charts will be issued, not the entire book). The schedule set for the revision is:

New information deadline ——— Dec. 31, 1995

Order deadline(@$40-50) ——— Mar. 1, 1996

Payment by ——— May 1, 1996

Delivery ——— July 1, 1996

Anyone with additions or revisions are urged to submit them ahead of the deadline, and in the same format (numbering) system as the original book, to:

ANOTHER MARYLAND DISCOVERY....?

In recent issues of this Newsletter, we have reported some of the information uncovered by Shirley Hannaford and Leota King in their search of old Maryland records. One goal of this research is to locate the marriage record of our William Atterbury(1) and Sarah Mitchell; another goal would be to find a record of the birth of their sons born in Maryland.

The writer, while carefully scanning the Birth Register of Prince George's Parish, Rock Creek Church, stumbled across this entry: Wilkerson, Dorcas, born May 8, 1763, daughter of John & Elizabeth Wilkerson (page 258). This could logically be the Dorcas Wilkerson who married James Atterbury(19), and hence, the writer's ggg grandmother, and a direct ancestor of many of the readers of this Newsletter as well.

Family legend conveys that Dorcas was born in England, a reflection that Atterbury/..Attebery researchers have always accepted as probably true. However, it seems reasonable that the Dorcas born in Maryland could be "our" Dorcas because her date and place of birth are both quite logical. Consider these points: 1). James was born in 1758, Dorcas in 1763; 2). Their first child, Nancy, was born about 1782, when this Dorcas was 19; 3). the Prince George's Parish church was at Rock Creek, where William Atterbury was noted as having a plantation in 1756; and 4). both William Atterbury and John Wilkerson are named in a March, 1762 Frederick County, Maryland, probate document (the estate of Lawrence Owen).

Without documentation, it has been our assumption that Dorcas and James were married in South Carolina. For this to be true, John Wilkerson would have probably moved his family to South Carolina, and, possibly, at about the same time as the Atterburys moved south from Virginia. However, to our knowledge, no information on the Wilkerson family has been uncovered in South Carolina. Also, some Atterbury family listings note Dorcas' name as Dorcas Wilkerson McKinsar or Dorcas McKinsar Wilkerson, indicating a possible prior marriage.

If any of our readers have additional information about this Dorcas, born 1763 in Maryland, we would be very pleased to know about it. We will send anyone interested in researching this "new" Dorcas what information we have available.

MORE CEMETERY WORK....

The writer and his brother, Tom Atterbury, spent two days in mid-May working on the old William Atterbury Family Cemetery in Monroe County, Missouri. We were extremely pleased to have Tom's help and interest in both restoring and trying to decipher this old, long abandoned, family graveyard. The first day, more heavy brush was removed, and in the process one additional stone grave marker was found. At this point, there seemed to be at least 17 known grave sites.

In our effort to try to better understand this cemetery, we invited the "archeologist without a shovel" to evaluate the area. Readers will recall the report in the May, '95 issue on the old Baker Cemetery west of Madison, Missouri. The Baker site was located and outlined in some detail by a woman specialist in this type of work, and who uses the ancient art of "dowsing" as one of her tools. (She has done work for the Missouri State Highway Department, and assisted the Corps of Engineers in locating almost 3000 graves before the huge Mark Twain Lake was constructed. These were moved to higher ground prior to the completion of the lake.)

Her Atterbury Cemetery findings were :

- 1). The Cemetery was approximately 75 feet wide by 90 feet deep, was probably fenced originally, and with two gates.
- 2). In addition to the grave sites marked with fieldstone, she noted at least 20 other possible grave sites without markers, which, if correct, the Cemetery would then total at least 36 or 37 graves.
- 3). One grave site, outside the "fenced" area, was likely that of a slave, she noted.
- 4). A marker flag was placed at each corner of every suspected grave site.

While brother Tom has had some previous experience with the art and practice of "dowsing" (see May '95 issue), both he and the writer are still puzzling over whether to accept these results. Only further, detailed, research will determine the validity of this "archeology without a shovel". Suffice to say, if over 30 people are buried in this Cemetery, considerable investigation would be necessary to determine their identity. Heavy rains and hot weather have delayed recent work at this site, but we intend to continue our effort in the near future.

THE MAIL BAG. . .

A "new" Atterbury/./Attebery line. . . ?

We have reported from time to time the progress of Linda Attebery Carpenter's research effort to identify the parents and family line of her great-great grandfather, Fountain Smith Attebery. We are extremely pleased to report she has finally located Fountain Smith's parents. In doing so, she seems to have uncovered an entirely "new" line of Atterbury/./Atteberys for which the writer can find NO record or reference. Fountain Smith, born August 4, 1830, was the son of Michael Atterberry (Atteberry, Attebery), the family living in Hickman County, Kentucky.

Two factors seem to account for the absence of Michael and his family in any of the many records we have of early Kentucky Atterbury/./Atteberys. First, Hickman County is located in the extreme western part of Kentucky on the Mississippi River, in the Jackson Purchase section of the state. This area is somewhat remote from where most of the other Atterbury/./Attebery families lived. Second, Michael may have been overlooked by earlier research because he was entered in the 1830 Census Index of Hickman County as "Michael Allebery".

The 1822 Hickman County Tax List included a "Michael Arterberry" with five children in the 4-14 age range, indicating a marriage about 1805-1810. Hence, Michael would have been born about 1785, and therefore probably a son of one of the nine sons of William(1). The more likely possible fathers of Michael are John(16) and Edward (17), but these names are only speculation on the part of the writer.

Michael died in Hickman County in 1833. At the time of his death, his wife was Ruth —?—. She was likely his second wife, since Linda has another record noting Fountain Smith's parents to be Michael Attebery and Elizabeth Kiplinger. The children of Michael "Atterberry", as found in various Probate Records, seem to be: Harvey S., Milton, Waide Justin, Preston, Margaret, Mary Anne, Thomas, and Fountain Smith. Also, Michael apparently had at least one brother in Hickman County, Nelson R. Atterberry.

If anyone can provide Linda Carpenter with additional information about her great-great-great grandfather, Michael Attebery, she would be very pleased to hear from you. Her address is:

More from Reva Abbott. . . .

Reva continues to share with us her voluminous records on Atterbury/./Atteberys and related families that she has collected over many years. Included with a recent package of material was "new" information on South Carolina, and John Atterbury (16) - Sally Hill and their family. Also we noted additional background material on several James Atterbury/./Atteberys. We have mentioned before that one of our projects is to try to sort out the many James found in early Atterbury/./Attebery families. Considerable confusion seems to exist because there were at least 17 James in the first three generations born in America. A summary of this research will be included in a future Newsletter.

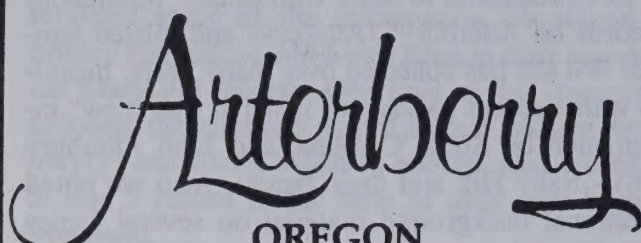

A short note to Reva from Rosie Atterbery Ford was included in Reva's last letter. We have at least two references that indicate that Rosie descends from Charles Atterbury(13), third son of William(1). However, Rosie's note to Reva states that her great grandfather, Nathaniel Atterbury, was born in England in 1806. While Reva and the writer question the credibility of this "statement", the slight possibility that Nathaniel was born in England should not be completely rejected. If true, a new line of ancestors would exist for Nathaniel and his descendants. Any reader with comments on this is encouraged to write.

We thank Reva for her many contributions to our Atterbury/./Attebery files.

THE ARTERBERRY WINERY. . .

Recent references to the Arterberry Winery of McMinnville, Oregon, prompted us to include a copy of one of the Winery's labels, shown on page 4. Bernice Ehlers, of Watseka, Illinois, and Corrine Wiggins, of Klamath Falls, Oregon, have corresponded about the Winery. Bernice reports, that the company was sold about two years ago to another Winery, Duck Pond Cellars. At the moment, we have no history of the Arterberry Winery, but we feel certain the firm was started by one of the many family members who have migrated to Oregon since the 1850's.

We would be pleased to learn the history of the Winery and any information on the Arterberry who founded the business. The label copy following on the next page was furnished by Linda Carpenter.

THE PLIGHT OF OLD CEMETERIES. . .

Almost everyone who has attempted even modest family research has been confronted, sooner or later, with an abandoned cemetery. These old Cemeteries, of which there must be thousands across the country, are most often small, private "family graveyards". They are usually unmarked, and frequently unknown even to people living in the immediate area. Their condition will range from being heavily overgrown with brush and trees, to completely trampled from cattle, and in some cases, destroyed by vandals.

When finding one of these old Cemeteries (often after days, weeks, or even months of searching), a person is first elated to have finally located the burial place of a long sought ancestor. But quickly the neglected and usually deplorable condition of the scene becomes evident. And you wonder why the old graveyard was allowed to degenerate to its current condition.

The great majority of these abandoned Cemeteries are in rural areas, and were likely on or very near land owned by the those buried there. As long as descendants lived nearby, the family graveyard was undoubtedly maintained. But as younger generations moved away, many of these plots were ignored and forgotten. More recent, and unrelated, landowners generally had no interest in their upkeep and in more than a few cases have "plowed-up" old Cemeteries, ostensibly needing the land for other

We understand that many states have laws to protect Cemeteries from disfigurement or destruction. But no doubt they are difficult to enforce. While the best insurance is nearby, caring, descendants, some groups have been formed to protect old, abandoned Cemeteries. The best example we are aware of is in Livingston County, Missouri. There, the "Abandoned Cemetery Care Association" of Livingston County participates in restoring known graveyards, searches for "lost" grave sites, and encourages individuals to protect and improve old Cemeteries on their property. If only all Counties had such an organization! But only the effort of family members can insure that the grave site of their ancestors is preserved. Bonnie Atterberry Messett of Petersburg, Illinois, and her family worked many days to restore the old Atterberry Cemetery in Atterberry, Illinois. We hope to do the same at the grave site of Bonnie's ggg grandfather, James Atterbury(19).

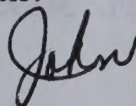

The only true legacy we can leave our grandchildren and succeeding generations is, hopefully, a little better understanding of who their ancestors were, where and how they lived, and where they died. We would like to go to our own reward knowing our descendants could always visit the grave site of their ancestors. Hence our desire to discuss the condition and generate interest in locating and improving old family Cemeteries.

More Unusual Names. . . .

In the course of our research, we occasionally come across unusual names, a number of which have been noted in previous issues. Recently, in the 1840 Census of Clark County, Kentucky, we found Original Williams. Original, about 45, was the father of seven daughters and one son. But we doubt that he was the very first "Williams" ever born.

In the St. Giles Cripplegate Parish of London, the Burial Register of May, 1685, noted the passing of "Elizabeth Shippbottom, Spinster". It is not the writer's intent to "make fun" of anyone's name, but we find creativeness in selecting both given and surnames to be a very interesting commentary on the human race. One must wonder in this case if Elizabeth's name was the reason she was a spinster?

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

February 15, 1996

Vol. 5, No. 1

WELCOME TO NEW READERS.

We are pleased to add three "new" cousins to the Newsletter mailing list, all of whom have an active interest in their respective family histories:

First, Anita Atteberry Thomas (Mrs. Maurice A.) of Cuba, Illinois. Anita descends from Richard Atterbury(14) and his wife Rebecca Bennett, through Richard and Rebecca's son Reuben, an early settler in Wayne County, Illinois.

Next, Jania Marie Evans, of Vero Beach, Florida. Jania descends from Charles Atterbury(13) and his wife Sarah (Mitchell), through Charles and Sarah's son Isaiah. Jania's gg grandmother was Nancy Evaline Atteberry.

Third, Mrs. Ralph W. (Mary) Atterberry, of Montgomery City, Missouri. In this instance, Mary's husband Ralph is actually the cousin, and he descends from Michael Mitchell Atterberry. Michael was born April 25, 1811, in Hart County, Kentucky. With his parents, he migrated to Howard County, Missouri, about 1818. As yet, however, Mary has not identified Michael's parents. We speculate that his father may be the Michael who was the son of Thomas Atterbury(18).

Mary would appreciate any information or ideas that might help identify Michael Mitchell Atteberry's parents.

Newsletter Schedule.

This issue of the Newsletter was planned to be mailed on January 10, 1996. We sincerely apologize to our readers for the delay in the completion of this first issue of 1996. We assure you we are still very interested in our family history and in this Newsletter. During the last 90 days, we have been fully occupied making some specialized equipment for my daughter Laura and her husband Tom Reynolds' business. So my brain has been in "engineering mode" rather than "family research mode".

It is our intent to publish at least four issues in 1996. If sufficient material of general interest is available, a fifth issue is a likely possibility.

READER RESPONSE.

Following our comments in the October, 1995 issue of the Newsletter, many more of our readers returned the Form sent with the July '95 issue. We sincerely appreciate all of the comments and we will strive to incorporate many of your suggestions in this and future issues. The final response was more than 50% of the total readership, which, the "experts" say, is the normal expected return for this type of survey.

NEW ATTERBURY BOOK.

Wayne Atteberry, of Salem, Illinois, is assembling material for a new book on WILLIAM ATTERBURY and SARAH MITCHELL. We were delighted to find Wayne's advertisement in the January - February, 1996, issue of Genealogical Helper, offering to include information from anyone interested in William and Sarah and their descendants. To my knowledge, Wayne has been doing Atterbury/..Attebery research for many years. His correspondence with a London, England, genealogist is cited elsewhere in this issue in the status report on our own London research.

We are pleased that Wayne is planning a book, and hope that any of the readers of this Newsletter with information on their family lineage will contact him. His address is:

"Three Centuries of Atterburys.

Many of you have undoubtedly received an advertisement in the mail for the above titled booklet. It is compiled under the name of "Atterbury Family Roots Center", and published by a firm known as "Three Centuries". Some of you may have purchased a copy, as we did. From past experience with this type of publication, we did not expect too much. Alas, we were right. This book touts itself as The definitive and thorough History of American Atterburys documented and indexed.

A thorough history of our family it is NOT. While the information contained seems to be accurate, it is merely a listing of marriage and census data from indexes, and 47 of the 65 pages were current resident listings from telephone books, garnered, most likely, from currently available CD-Rom disks. And, most evident, all spellings of the name were ignored except 'Atterbury' and 'Atteberry'. No reasonable history of our Atterbury/./Atteberry family can ignore the many ways the family name was spelled down through the years, or the 70% of the family who today spell their name Atteberry, Attebery, Attebury, Arterberry, et al.

The title also implies there is information included from the 1700's, but nothing from that century was found.

This firm is probably offering this same type of booklet under many different surnames as a purely commercial venture (i.e., Three Centuries of Jones or even Three Centuries of Atteberys). As such, they likely have no more interest in the Atterbury family than in the number of booklets they can sell.

Moreover, just today (Feb. 9th), we received a flyer in the mail requesting that we subscribe to a new publication, The Atterbury Family News. This publication has the same address as "Three Centuries.....". In fact, we note this firm seems to have at least six names for their venture:

- Three Centuries
- Atterbury Family Roots Center
- The Atterbury Family News
- Family Information Center
- The Family News
- Family Name Center

Their telephone is listed under Family Name Center, but answered as "Family News" when, out of curiosity, we called. The purpose for calling was to secure the answer to three questions; 1), How often will the Atterbury Family News be published? Answer: Quarterly; 2), Where does the information for your articles come from? Answer: From our files and individual contributors; and 3), How many different "Family News" do you publish? Answer: Hundreds and hundreds!

With no real expectation of finding any new facts on our family, we probably will subscribe, primarily to be in a position to keep our readers abreast of anything new about Atterbury/./Atteberry family history. We are intrigued by the subtitle of The Atterbury Family News ("The Voice of 60 American Households"), and a list of some of the articles to be published, such as:

- A jillion Atterbury ancestors
- Kissin Atterbury cousins
- Atterbury migration patterns
- The oldest 20 Atterburys, etc.

We would like to support this organization if it can help us, but fear it is strictly a commercial operation. Only time will tell. If any of our readers can shed light on these publications, please write us. Hopefully, we can make a further report in the next issue of this Newsletter. ONE LAST REMINDER.

Updated or new lineage charts for the book, The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant, should be in the hands of Voncille Winter by March 31, 1966. All of the charts received will be used to revise the master chart originally published in the book in 1984. Voncille requests that the information be in the same format as the original; that is, an outline descendant tree with the identifying numbers added for all direct descendants of William Atterbury (1), the 1733 Emigrant.

The above book, written by Voncille and Wilma Atteberry Mitchell, is a good reference for anyone doing Atterbury/./Atteberry research. Hence, it is important that the information in the book be as complete and accurate as possible. So if you have information that will supplement the original, please submit it before the deadline of March 31. Mail to:

THE CONTINUING SEARCH FOR THE ANCESTORS OF WILLIAM ATTERBURY, THE 1733 ENGLISH EMIGRANT. . .

Our research into London, England, records of the 1600's and 1700's seeking to uncover the lineage of our American progenitor, William Atterbury, is continuing. While the effort was slowed in recent weeks, we have made considerable progress overall. The May, 1995, issue of the Newsletter identified eight (8) William Atterburys born in the time frame of 1695 - 1717, any one of whom could possibly have been our ancestor. This list has been reduced to just two likely candidates:

1), the William born June 21, 1710, the son of William Atterbury, a butcher, and his wife, Sarah Rogers; and,

2), the William christened July 15, 1711, the son of Edward Atterbury and his wife, Elizabeth.

Although we still are of the opinion that the William born in 1710 is most likely the one we seek, we are actively continuing research to determine which is the actual, true, ancestor. The other six Williams listed in the May issue have been set aside for these reasons:

- the William born in 1695 - age
- " " " 1700 - location
- " " " c.1702 - no factual record found
- " " " 1702 - location
- " " " 1706 - married in 1725
- " " " 1717 - died in 1742

In our search for the ancestors of our William Atterbury (1), we use a computer matrix chart, which has grown to 3' x 4' when printed out, to display each new fact uncovered. This allows us to more easily judge the possible relationship of the many Atterbury families living in London in the period 1600 - 1750. A short summary of some of the things we have learned to date follows.

Starting this search, the only fact we knew was that contained in a letter dated January 13, 1977, to Wayne Atteberry of Salem, Illinois. Wayne had engaged a London genealogist to search for information on William, the 1733 emigrant. This letter stated: "William Atterbury was a Labourer of the parish of St. James Liberty, Westminster, Middlesex, and was tried on 31st January, 1732. He was a prisoner in Newgate prison, in the reign of George II. He was committed by OI Lambert esquire, on oath of Frederick Humble for stealing out of the shop of George Cole some stuff, five yards of Linsey Woolsey, worth 3 shillings".

Very likely, Wayne has obtained more information since 1977, but only recently did we learn his address (see the article about Wayne's book on page one of this issue). Hopefully, Wayne can supplement or verify some of our research.

Recently, we found the following in a microfilm of the Kings Commission of the Peace (London) 1716 - 1733, entitled The Proceedings at the Sessions of the Peace, and Oyer and Terminer, for the CITY of LONDON; and on The Kings Commission of Gaol Delivery of Newgate, held at Justice Hall in the Old Bailey; for the CITY of London, and COUNTY of Middlesex; On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, being the 21st, 22d, 23d, and 24th of February 1733, in the Sixth Year of His MAJESTY's Reign. (This transcript, although very old, was probably printed after 1752. Hence, there is no conflict between the 1733 in this document and the 1732 in the letter to Wayne Atteberry).

On page 70 of the above we note this entry:

William Harris, was a second time indicted, and William Atterbury for stealing five yards of Linsey Woolsey, the Property of George Cole, Jan. 30.

The entry preceding the above had detailed the indictment of the named William Harris and Leonard Budley (alias Butler) for the assault and robbery of a John Hands on January 1. The Jury found Harris and Budley guilty and they were sentenced to death.

William Atterbury was one of 43 people sentenced to 'Transportation' in this session of the Court. This meant they were to be sent to the Colonies to work out their sentence, nominally a seven-year term.

The writer and others have speculated that our William committed this crime for the sole purpose of gaining passage to America. However, since William was in the company of a more hardened criminal who was sentenced to death for a previous crime, it seems less likely that passage to America was his reason for stealing.

William's Ancestors. . .

Assuming that the William Atterbury born June 21, 1710, is our American progenitor, we will summarize here some additional details about his family.

William's parents, as noted previously, were William Atterbury and Sarah Rogers. William and Sarah were married in the London Parish of St. Botolph Without Aldersgate in 1707. The original Marriage Register, as viewed on microfilm, is all but unreadable so we do not yet know the actual month and day. All of their children were christened in the Parish of St. Giles Without Cripplegate. (The term "Without" signifies that these Parishes are outside the old London Wall. They are adjacent to one another at the northwest corner of the old wall.) William and Sarah's children were:

Jane, born June 15, 1708

William, born June 16, 1709, buried April 16, 1710

William, born June 21, 1710

Charles, born December 7, 1711

Sarah, born February 1, 1712 (actually 1713 by our modern calendar)

Other than the William born in 1709, we have, as yet, found no other Atterbury burials in the St. Giles Burial Registers.

Most of the entries in these Parish Registers show the father's occupation. In this case, the father in this family was a butcher. We studied the Butcher Company records for information on the elder William. (The Butcher "Company" is the tradecraft Guild for butchers; all London Guilds were called companys). In these records, we noted William's name many times. Our interpretation is that he completed his apprenticeship in April, 1706; became "Livery" (free to pursue the trade) in May, 1708; and became a Yeoman (master?) before 1736. The midsummer 1741 "dues" list states his abode is in Shoreditch, an area north of the London Wall. This list shows William paid his dues, but at the end is the notation "Dead". Hence, we assume he died soon after mid-summer, 1741. We have searched, but yet have found no burial record.

This William (the butcher) was christened April 5, 1685, in St. Giles Cripplegate. He was, with little doubt, the son of William Atterbury, a blacksmith, and his wife Jane. As yet, we do not know the date or location of William and Jane's marriage, nor Jane's maiden name. Their son William was the oldest of eleven (11) children, which we will not enumerate here. (Note that William [the butcher] named his first child Jane, his mother's name.)

In the March '95 issue, we suggested that another William Atterbury, born March 21, 1686, was a good prospect to be the father of our William, the Emigrant. We quickly learned, however, that this William died as an infant, being buried at St. Stephen Coleman Street Parish on January 4, 1688.

At this point, we have not done a lot of research seeking the parents of William the blacksmith, since we must determine which of the two Williams mentioned at the beginning of this article is actually our ancestor.

Now, back to William the butcher and Sarah, the parents of the William we believe to be our emigrant ancestor.

Sarah Rogers, most likely the daughter of Jasper Rogers and Ann Marlow, was born January 2, 1686, as noted in the Christening Register of the Parish of St. Giles Cripplegate. Jasper and Ann were married in 1683 in St. Mildred Poultry Parish.

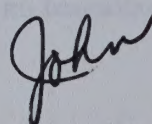

There were, however, other Sarah Rogers' born in the London area in this same time period. Hence, more research will be necessary to be certain the above Sarah is the correct one.

Sarah died, probably in the early-to-mid 1730's, because we found that William the butcher remarried in 1736. He and Sarah Walker were married at St. Botolph Aldersgate Parish on August 4, 1736. They were described as a widow and widower from the Parish of St. Leonard Shoreditch. As we noted previously, this William was to die about five years later.

It is interesting to note that Sarah (Rogers), William the emigrant's mother, died at about the same time William was convicted of a crime and transported to America. We can only speculate, but did the stress of this family problem contribute to her demise?

There are literally thousands of London documents that include the time period we are researching. Hence, we have by no means completed our search. In addition to general, area-wide documents, in the year 1700 there were over 100 Parishes in the immediate London area. Almost every one had there own Marriage, Christening/Birth, and Burial Registers. So, more on this subject in the next issue.

We would sincerely appreciate comments or information you may have on this subject

READER SURVEY.

The writer (and publisher) of this Newsletter was disappointed by the extremely low response to the Survey request in the July, '95 issue. Less than 15% of those on the July mailing list returned the information form or called to offer their comments. We sincerely appreciate the comments and suggestions given by those who did respond to our request for help.

Perhaps we expected too much, given the interest level we thought existed among the Atterbury/..Attebery descendants receiving the Newsletter. We acknowledge that those of you who are not descendants probably felt your comments were not necessary. However, we encourage any and all of our readers to assist us to make this a better Family publication with your comments on the form included with the July issue. If the form has been misplaced, a letter with your comments would be perfectly satisfactory. If you have no further interest in the Newsletter, let us know.

As a result of the poor response, we belatedly recognize several shortcomings in this effort to make family history information available to all interested family members. Foremost, our intent to issue the Newsletter bi-monthly likely stretches the available material too far to capture and retain your interest. Also, the writer's "style" has probably been erratic and, frequently, too wordy.

Hence, beginning with this issue, we will reduce the number of Newsletters to 3 or 4 per year, and will report only items of major import. The positive side of this reduction, however, will allow us much more time for meaningful research (i.e., see the article on "South Carolina" in this issue).

If you have not already done so, please return the Reader Information Form at your earliest convenience to:

NEW LINEAGE CHARTS.

The July, 1995 issue of this Newsletter noted the tentative schedule for the publication of revised Lineage Charts for the book, The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant. Voncille Winter has elected to give all those interested in submitting new or revised family charts three (3) additional months to complete their work. The new deadline is March 31, 1996.

The delivery date for the Revised Lineage Charts will probably be late 1996. Voncille specifically requests that no money be sent at this time, because the printing cost will not be known until all the revisions are completed and submitted to the publisher. All new and revised charts must be sent to Voncille in the SAME FORMAT as the original book. Her address is:

SOUTH CAROLINA RESEARCH.

A recent trip to Charleston, South Carolina was our first return to this area since we were bitten by the Genealogy "bug". Naturally, ample time was set aside for research on our Atterbury ancestors. Readers will, of course, recall that all nine sons of our American progenitor, William Atterbury(1), moved from Virginia to South Carolina about 1770 - 1780.

The primary focus of our research was on James Atterbury(19), our ggg grandfather, and the direct ancestor of the majority of the recipients of this Newsletter. In the search for information, we made two visits to the Library of the South Carolina Historical Society in Charleston, and almost two days at the South Carolina Department of Archives and History in Columbia. In addition, we toured the back roads of southwest Chester County, the area where James and most of his brothers lived. In this article, we will attempt to summarize what we have learned from our first exposure to the South Carolina Archives. A second trip to Columbia and Chester will be made in the near future.

From the book, Chester County, Minutes of the County Court, 1785 - 1799; (Books A and B, transcribed by Holcomb and Parker):

The name, James Atterbury (Arterbury, Arterberry, Arteberry, Atterberry, Atteberry), appears in 21 separate entries in the period 1788 - 1799. In most of the entries, James was named as a member of the County Court's Petit Jury. Interestingly, the last entry, Feb. 1, 1799, James was excused from the Jury because of a suit against Charles Atterberry. In another instance, he was approved as administrator of the estate of Nathan Attebury (Jan. 26, 1796). We believe all 21 entries are for the same James. In addition, there are numerous entries for seven of his brothers; Charles, Edward, John, Michael, Nathan, Thomas and William. No mention of Richard was noted.

The Newsletter of June, 1993, included a copy of the Land Grant made to James "Arterbury", Sept. 4, 1786 (641 acres on Smiths Creek, a branch of Brushy Fork, Chester County). In the South Carolina Archives, we reviewed this grant and all of the other land transactions made by James Atterbury. In 1794, he purchased an additional 152 acres nearby, on Brushy Fork. James sold most of this land in five separate tracts in the period 1794 - 1804. We are in the process of transcribing these deeds, but we can relay the significant facts from some of them. Among the most revealing are:

1). A deed to Moses Grisham for 230 acres, dated August 2, 1800, includes the following statment: ".....containing 230 acres.....including the Plantations whereon the said James Atteberry & Elizabeth Wilkinson now live." Elizabeth is most likely the mother of Dorcas Wilkerson (Wilkinson), wife of James. Readers will recall the July, 1995, issue of the Newsletter noted the May 8, 1763, birth of a Dorcas Wilkerson to John and Elizabeth Wilkerson, Prince George's Parish, Maryland. (We also noted that a John Wilkinson was granted 148 acres in Chester County in 1786, but we have not yet made a connection between this John and the Elizabeth living on James' property.) With this information, we are one step closer to verifying that the Maryland Dorcas is the wife of James Atterbury. Note that "Wilkerson" and "Wilkinson" seem to be used interchangeably in these old records.

The date of this deed helps pinpoint when James relocated to Kentucky. Even though James was not enumerated in the 1800 Federal Census for South Carolina, this deed indicates he was there in August of 1800.

Attached to this deed is a statement by Dorcas relinquishing her Dower rights to this property, proving this to be "our" James Atterbury. The deed was witnessed by Michael Myers.

2). A second deed, dated November 6, 1804, covered the sale of 100 acres to Moses Atterbury. Significantly, the deed stated "..... that I James Atterbury of Hardin County in the State of Kentucky.....". We believe another tract, for which we erred in not making a copy from the microfilm, was sold in 1810. Hence, two were sold after James moved to Kentucky.

3). Other land sales were to David Mitchell, 150 acres, 3-25-1794; Abraham Myers, 63 acres, 11-27-1797; and Belitha Adair, 100 acres, 11-16-1798. The deeds to Mitchell and Myers were witnessed by James Wilkinson, possibly the brother of Dorcas. If any one would like a copy of the transcription of one of these deeds, please let me know.

In the Grant and Deed Indexes we noted many transactions by all of James Atterbury's brothers, but we had time to do little more than scratch the surface on the huge amount of records in the Archives.

James Atterbury, as cited above, is not found in the 1800 Census. However, we note in the Chester Co. Census that his brother Charles had 22 people enumerated in his household. The age ranges indicate two families in the household. It seems possible that the James Atterbury family could be living temporarily with Charles, before moving on to Kentucky. We would appreciate any comments on this point.

LONDON RESEARCH REPORT. . .

Recent trips to Missouri and South Carolina have temporarily suspended our research to identify William Atterbury(1), his parents, and older ancestors in London. This effort will be resumed shortly, however. We have been concentrating on the records of the Parish of St. Giles Cripplegate, the Parish where the birth of the William Atterbury born June 21, 1710, was recorded. We also hope to have a further report from our London researcher prior to the next Newsletter. A Matrix chart combining records found to date has been prepared. If you would like a copy, please let me know.

News and Views of our Atterbury../Attebery Ancestors

April 15, 1996

Vol. 5, No. 2

Welcome to New Readers.

We are pleased to add three new Atterbury../Attebery researchers to the mailing list of this Newsletter:

First, we are quite pleased to have Wayne Atteberry of Salem, Illinois, among our correspondents. Wayne, of course, is no stranger to many of you. Knowing of his research, we made a poor attempt to contact Wayne three years ago. As noted in the last issue of this Newsletter, our reply to Wayne's recent ad in Genealogical Helper was quickly answered, and he has since written several very informative letters. He has continued to search London records, seeking to identify William Atterbury(1). Hopefully, we can supplement what Wayne has learned and, together, determine William's English ancestral lineage.

Wayne descends from Richard Atterbury(14) and his wife Rebecca Bennett, through their son Richard, Jr.

We wish Wayne well on his new book (see last Newsletter for details).

We are also pleased to welcome a second "new" cousin to the growing list of readers and contributors, Jane E. Rybolt, of Silver Spring, Maryland. We have not yet received Jane's pedigree and Atterbury ancestors, but do know she is actively researching her family history. She was introduced to us by Anita Thomas.

Naturally, we are hopeful that Jane's unique location in Silver Spring could be helpful to uncovering more about the early Maryland history of the Atterbury family.

THE MAIL BAG.....

Leota King of Spokane, Washington, a regular contributor to our growing files of Atterbury../Attebery information, has helped add an important element to our London, England research. Leota corresponds periodically with a Mr. Ivan Irwin of Kansas. Recently, she sent a copy of a letter Ivan had received from Mr. Leslie Townsend of Harlow, England. The letter noted that he (Mr. Townsend) descends from Bishop Francis Atterbury. His letterhead indicated he specializes in Atterbury research, so we immediately wrote to him, describing our quest to identify the ancestors of William Atterbury, our 1733 English emigrant.

Les immediately replied, and sent quite a bit of good related Atterbury information. Also, he has kindly offered to help us identify our William, and has enlisted the aid of his cousin, Harry Atterbury, who lives in London. Harry, too, has researched

Joseph William Atterbury, Sr. (19441)

Included with this issue of the Newsletter is a biographical sketch of the writer's grandfather, Joe Atterbury. Some of our readers may have a copy of the original sketch written about three years ago, although it was not part of a Newsletter. This last version has been up-dated and condensed, reflecting the latest information we have available.

We would be very pleased to hear of any new information, anecdotes, or corrections related to the life of Joe Atterbury, his ancestors, his siblings, or his descendants.

his Atterbury line. Hence, we are quite optimistic that Les and Harry can help us with a breakthrough to identify our English ancestors. Les is of the opinion that the William Atterbury born June 21, 1710, and Christened at St. Giles Cripplegate is most likely our William, the 1733 emigrant.

Included with Leslie's material was one of the original versions of our family name from the year 1290. We're not certain how it should be pronounced, but the spelling is "Eadburgebyrig". Les says it later progressed to "Adderbury", and then eventually to "Atterbury".

So to Leota King (and Ivan Irwin), our thanks to you for helping to make contact with Leslie Townsend. This is another good example of how more can be accomplished by pooling our resources.

Bernice Ehlers of Watseka, Illinois, reacted quickly to the article in the last Newsletter about "Three Centuries of Atterburys" and "The Atterbury Family News". She confirms our suspicions about the doubtful value of these publications. Bernice sent several copies of The Atteberry Family News, printed in 1992-94, which are very similiar in content to our first copy (not dated) received in March '96. From a research standpoint, they have little redeeming value, with only a page or two of names from standard data bases (i.e., telephone books, Census indexes, etc.) So if you want to gamble, save your money for the Casino ! (see page 3, 'World Book...')

The most interesting item noted in the "Atterbury" version was this caption below the masthead: Atterbury: One who came from Attenborough (the Fort of Eada's people; or of Edda), in Nottinghamshire; or from Adderbury (Eadburg's fortified place), in Oxfor. (Note the similarity to "Eadburgebyrig" sent by Les Townsend).

Bernice also called to our attention that a book to be published by John T. Phillips, The Historians Guide to Loudoun County, Virginia, has not yet materialized. Bernice, yours truly, and probably many others, sent a $20.00 deposit in late 1993 for the forthcoming book. Recently, we wrote to Mary Fishback of the Loudoun County Genealogy Club inquiring about the status of this book, but have not yet received a reply.

Mr. Glen Steiner, Brownsville, Tennessee, has asked for assistance to help identify his ancestor, Sally Atterbury. Sally was born about 1794, and married Peter O'Neal (b. in North Carolina) about 1832 in White County, Illinois. Peter died in 1848 in Tampico, Mexico, during the War with Mexico. One known child was Hezekiah E., born Jan. 15, 1833. Peter's parents were Hezekiah O'Neal and Silvia Moore.

Sally's birth date indicates she was probably born in South Carolina, and as one possibility, one of the unnamed females in James'(19) household in the 1810 Ky. census. On the other hand, her age in 1832 suggests she may have been previously married. Hence, 'Atterbury' could have been her married name. Her proper given name could have been Sarah, since 'Sally' was a common nickname for Sarah.

Glen would sincerely appreciate any clues to Sally's identity. His address is:

The World Book of Atterburys. . .

The ink wasn't dry on the February Newsletter when, lo and behold, came an offer for yet another Atterbury book, The World Book of Atterburys. We certainly are getting popular, but based on the stated contents, we will forego the $49.50 price. From the description, the publisher has used the IGI file of the Morman Library and a telephone data base to assemble "664 Atterbury households".

As with the book Three Centuries of Atterbury discussed in the last issue, there is probably little of value in this publication. However, it would look nice on your bookshelf, it being an "Heirloom Edition handsomely bound in a pewter leather-grained cover imprinted in silver and gold", with a "Certificate of Registration". Wow!

The publisher is Halbert's, Bath, Ohio. To their credit, the order blank includes this statement in bold print: No direct genealogical connection to your family or to your ancestry is implied or intended. 'Nuff said.

The Kentucky Explorer. . .

Lest you think we are negative about every publication, here's one we like very much. The Kentucky Explorer is published 10 times a year, 110 - 120 pages per issue with no advertising. The magazine is entirely devoted to Kentucky history and genealogy, with many of the articles reprints of material originally written 50 to 150 years ago. Since so many of our Atterbury/Attebery and related lines lived in Kentucky, we find articles of interest in every issue. The cost: $17.00 a year, including postage. The address:

London Research. . .

Our search of London records is continuing, but we have little to report this month. Since our William Atterbury(1) was last known to be "a labourer of the Parish of St. James Liberty", we have been reviewing various records from this Parish for evidence connecting him to his parents. St. James' "Poor Rate" Tax Books for the months before and after William(1)'s arrest and sentence were reviewed in detail. These books are an excellent genealogical record, in a way a "head of Household" Census. However, no Atterbury reference was found.

Interestingly, the Tax was authorized and mandated by O.L. Lambart, "His Majesty's Justice of the Peace for the City and Liberty of Westminster". This, undoubtedly, is the same official, O.L. Lambert, who indicted William(1) for his alleged crime.

We have also looked at the 1710-1718 Poor Rate Tax Books for St. Giles Cripple-gate Parish. We were certain we would find William Atterbury, the butcher(b.1685), but he was not in these records. Though his children were christened in this Parish, it is evident the family must have lived elsewhere. So, our search for William, the 1733 Emigrant, continues.

The third new addition to the Newsletter mailing list is Fran Orsborn, 36893 Orsborn Way SE, Albany, Oregon 97321. Fran was introduced to us by Elizabeth Cooksey. As does Elizabeth's husband Jim, Fran descends from George Washington Atterberry (Arterberry)(1523), grandson of Nathan Atterbury(15). The family is striving to learn more about Joanna Olive, the wife of George W. If anyone has information about Joanna, please let Fran know.

Biographical Sketch
Joseph William (Joe) Atterbury
(1841 - 1921)

Joseph William Atterbury (1841) was born September 10, 1841, on his parents farm three miles north of Madison, in Monroe County, Missouri. He was the son, and the first of seven children, of Daniel Atterbury and Mary Sloan Holliday. Joseph's grandfathers, William Atterbury and Joseph Holliday, for whom he was named, were among the early settlers of Monroe County. Both had come to Missouri from Kentucky before 1820.

The population of western Monroe County, the region in which Joseph William was born, was growing rapidly in 1841. What began as a trickle of settlers in 1820 prior to Missouri's admission to statehood in 1821, had accelerated in the late 1820's and 1830's and was continuing to grow in the 1840's. Settlers from Kentucky and Virginia formed the majority of the population with families from Tennessee, Pennsylvania and Ohio adding to the growth. Not surprisingly, the southern heritage of most of the settlers gave Monroe County a distinct southern flavor. As a result, Monroe County and several adjacent counties are still known today as "Little Dixie".

Joseph William's parents lived on and later purchased from Joseph Holliday a 160 acre tract three miles north of Madison (the S.E. 1/4 of section 26, Township 55 N., Range 12 W.). This was the farm where Joseph would live his early boyhood years and do the many chores expected of a young boy on a pioneer farm. However, in August, 1850, the family is found to be living temporarily with Joseph Holliday in his large home near the present village of Holliday, four miles east of Madison (see bio sketch on Joseph Holliday). Whether this move was due to a fire, storm, health, or some other reason is not known. The local school teacher, Edward Ragland, also lived in the Holliday household. His presence likely influenced young Joseph's interest in books and desire to learn.

The first of several traumatic events in the life of Joseph William Atterbury occurred in 1851. Joseph's mother, Mary, was to give birth to her seventh child on October 18th, and then pass away October 27, 1851, at the age of 28. At the time of her death, the ages of the children were:

|------------------------------|--------|
| Joseph William | 10 |
| Isaac Newton | 8 |
| Emily J. (Emma) | 6 |
| Nancy Elizabeth (Nannie) ... | 4 |
| John Thompson | 3 |
| Martha Ann (Mattie) | 1 |
| Mary Sloan (Pollie) | 9 days |

Back on their own farm, Joseph's father Daniel very likely had the help of one of his unmarried sisters, but young Joseph is known to have had an active part in caring for his brothers and sisters. For this, he earned the admiration of his siblings, and together they would prove to be a very close-knit family for the rest of their lives. Another big event in Joseph's life occurred on September 3, 1854, when his father remarried, to a widow, Mrs. Mary Jane Camp. Continuing to change the family's life, Daniel sold his farm in Monroe County in December, 1854, and moved some 32 miles to a farm in Macon County. Land was purchased from Joseph's uncle, Dr. Charles Atterbury, where Daniel concentrated on raising cattle and hogs.

Yet another tragic event awaited Joseph and his siblings. On March 19, 1857, his father Daniel was killed by a falling tree while cutting timber. Daniel's death was traumatic enough, but it also forced his children to be divided among volunteer, court approved, family guardians. Joseph's step-mother, Mary Jane, was not mentioned in Daniel's will, so she is assumed to have died or been divorced. No record of her status has been found. As for the children, Joseph and Isaac Newton lived first with their uncle, Adin Atterbury, in Macon County. Before 1860, however, they were to return to Monroe County and live with their aunt, Matilda (Atterbury) Noel and her husband Thomas. Sisters Emily, Nancy, and Mary Sloan were raised by their grandfather, Joseph Holliday, and his second wife Elizabeth (East). John Thompson went to live with his uncle, Thompson Holliday, and his wife Mary Ann (Gwyn). We have not yet discovered where the remaining child, Martha Ann, was living, but feel certain she was with a nearby relative.

Joseph read and studied every book that was available to him, and became a school teacher. It is reported at one time he commanded the second highest teacher's salary in Monroe County. He was to be an avid reader for the rest of his life. In the last photograph we have of him, taken in 1916, Joseph is reading a newspaper.

The controversy over slavery was a major topic in Missouri, as it was in much of the country. The clouds of war were on the horizon and the prevailing mood in Monroe County sided with the South. The War began, with many early battles and skirmishes being fought in central Missouri. Men in Monroe County quickly joined one or another of the several Confederate units being formed and went off to fight with little or no tactical training. On August 31, 1861, Joseph himself left Madison with a company of men captained by Frank Davis to join a Confederate Militia group. Just two weeks later, on September 13, 1861, during the Second Battle of Boonville, he was badly wounded in his left ankle. Joseph returned home, where his injury proved to be so severe that the local doctor had to amputate his lower left leg. His youngest sister, Mary Sloan, then about ten years old, recalled being one of those helping to hold her brother down during the amputation.

So Joseph, now barely twenty years old, again had to adjust to this latest tragedy in his life. Determined to succeed despite his handicap, Joe (as he was now called) was fitted with a wooden "peg-leg" that could be strapped to his leg. He was to wear the "peg-leg" and use a cane for the rest of his life. During recuperation, he obtained books on Law and diligently studied the subject. He is believed to have returned to teaching after recovery, but continued the study of Law. Later he passed an examination and was admitted to the Bar. But in late 1865, just as Joe was set to begin his law practice, the new Missouri "Drake Constitution" went into effect. Specifically, it denied former southern sympathizers the right to vote, to hold office, or to practice law. (This was repealed in 1870). Again, Joe had suffered a major setback in his life.

In 1867, Joe and his brother and close companion Isaac Newton (or just 'Newton' as he was now called) formed a business partnership, J.W. Atterbury & Bro., for merchandising, farming, and raising live stock. This partnership and close association was to continue the rest of their lives. They began by opening a small general store in Madison and then purchased a farm one-half mile east of Madison. Very likely, they had financial assistance from the Holliday family to help them get started.

In 1870, Joe was living with Newton and his wife Mary Catherine(Baker) on the farm east of Madison. Newton and Mary were married in February, 1868. Their first child was named Joseph William, Jr., a fact that still creates confusion even today, many people naturally assuming Newton's child to be the son of his brother. Also living with Joe and Newton were their brother and sister, John Thompson and Martha Ann "Mattie". John had graduated from a medical college and was now a practicing physician. Mattie, following in her brother's footsteps, was now a schoolteacher.

Joe and Newton's partnership prospered. and they began to buy and sell both farm land as well as residential and business property in the town of Madison. In 1873, they repurchased the property their father Daniel had sold in 1854, the same farm on which they were born and raised. Expanding their business interests, Joe and Newton, in partnership with J. R. Chowning, opened a Dry Goods store in Madison in the early 1870's. This business was to be a fixture in Madison for almost 100 years.

Joe married Laura Belle Baker, daughter of Elisha and Nancy Baker, on November 22, 1877. Laura was born October 3, 1855, the sister of Mary, Newton's wife. So, brothers had married sisters and continued to share the same home until 1880, when Joe and Laura moved into Madison. That same year, the brothers purchased 300 acres one-half mile south of Madison. Here, Joe proceeded to build a permanent home into which he and Laura moved in 1882. (This home, though having changed owners several times, is still occupied today.) Their first child, Harry Baker, had been born September 3, 1878. A second child, Nannie May, was born February 22, 1881, but died on September 8 of that same year. A second son, Chester Newton, was born June 24, 1882. Another daughter, Birdie, born January 4, 1887, was to live only 18 months, passing away July 15, 1888. Regrettably, neither of their two daughters were to live past infancy. A third son, John Clay, was born October 14, 1890. Joe and Laura were active, charter members of the Madison Presbyterian Church.

In 1884, Joe was elected to the Missouri House of Representatives, serving in the 33rd General Assembly. Newton, later active behind the scenes in Missouri politics, played an important role in his brothers's campaign. It is reported that Joe "wielded a very potent influence" in the Legislature, and vindicated his adverse position 20 years previously that denied him the right to practice law. Because of his bad leg, the distance to Jefferson City, and absence from family and business interests, he did not run for a second term.

Joe and Newton, with others, established the first bank in Madison in 1888. In 1890, it was renamed the Madison Bank with Joe as President, a position he was to retain until his death in 1921. His nephew and namesake, Joseph William Atterbury, Jr. (Jody), succeeded Joe and served as President until early 1955. Though conservative by nature, Joe and Newton assisted hundreds of neighbors with farm, home, business, and personal loans and advice. It was said of Joe at his death that "the Golden Rule was his only standard in his relations with others".

While Joe had many business interests over the years, he considered himself primarily a farmer. In addition to crops, at various times he raised cattle, sheep, hogs, horses, and mules. Joe and Newton's Madison Breeding Stables became a recognized breeder of draft horses, saddle horses, jacks, jennets, and mules. Much of the farm labor was provided by two black families he employed and who lived in homes built for them on the farm south of Madison. (Concerned about educating the children of his black employees, as well as many others in the area, Joe and Newton built a brick school house in Madison, replacing a one room log cabin two miles south of town.)

In the early 1900's, Joe assisted his three sons to start their business careers; Harry Baker in a Dry Goods store, Chester Newton in the Hardware business, and John C. entered the University of Missouri where he earned a law degree in 1913.

As Joe and Laura found themselves in increasingly poor health, they periodically made trips to Randolph Springs, near Huntsville, Missouri, and to Hot Springs, Arkansas. We know that his amputated leg was a frequent source of pain, so Joe must of sought the "healing" waters for relief. His youngest son, John Clay, in the Army Air Service during World War I, was discharged in December, 1918, and remained at home to care for his aging parents. However, time and infirmities finally prevailed. Joe and Laura passed away within six weeks of each other; she on April 5, 1921, and Joe on May 16, 1921. To be as close in death as they were in life, His brother, Isaac Newton, had passed away just eleven days earlier, on May 5, 1921.

In recognition of the community's respect for Joseph William Atterbury, all businesses in Madison closed their doors the day of his funeral.

As this biographical sketch has attempted to show, brothers Joe and Newton Atterbury were close friends, companions, and partners all of their lives. To illustrate their trust in one another, for many years they handled all of their business and personal expenses out of one bank checking account. While they shared equally in all of their ventures, the partnership was known as J. W. Atterbury & Bro. Apparently, Newton wanted it that way.

Joe and Newton, Laura and Mary, four of their five sons, two infant daughters, and four grandchildren are buried in the same family plot in Sunset Hills Cemetery, Madison Missouri. Nancy Baker, mother of Laura and Mary, is also buried there.

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

Vol. 5, No. 3

Welcome to a New Reader. . . .

We are pleased to add Robert D. Davis of Falls Church, Virginia, to the list of readers and contributors to this Newsletter. Robert's grandmother was Effie Odell Atteberry, who descends from Richard Atterbury (14).

Robert reports that one of his primary projects on his Atteberry line is to locate the grave site of William Atterbury (1). What a find this would be for Atterbury/..Attebery genealogical research ! Since he lives in Falls Church, Robert is but a short distance to Loudoun County, the likely area where William died about 1768, and is buried. We all wish him great success in this search.

Kentucky Search and Research. . . .

In May, we made a long overdue visit to Hardin, Grayson, and Hart Counties in Kentucky. This trip was prompted by the Spring '96 Newsletter of the Hardin County Historical Society. Recent issues of this publication have included a transcription of Hardin County Court Order Book "A". On page 333 of Book "A", a directive dated Feb. 22, 1802, states, in part, as follows:

....And that James Atterbery be and he is hereby appointed Survey(or)of the said road from Round Stone (Creek) to the head branch of Dog Creek, and that all the hands from Round Stone, within eight miles from said road as far as the head branch of Dog Creek do assist said James Atterbery in keeping the same in repair.

The above described area is in present day western Hart County, this section of Hart County having originally been part of Hardin County. Most of you will recall that James and several of his brothers moved to this area of Kentucky about 1800. This James, of course, is the ancestor of many of the readers of this Newsletter, and the ggg grandfather of the writer.

James quite likely lived on or near Bacon Creek, which lies about midway between Round Stone Creek and Little Dog Creek (probably the "head branch of Dog Creek" in the Court Order). James eldest daughter, Nancy, is noted in several references as having married John Kessinger about 1800 at Bacon Creek, Hardin Co., Ky. Also, the 1805 Hardin Co. Tax List shows James with 300 acres on Bacon Creek (more detail on page 3).

The purpose of our trip to Kentucky was to tour this area in which James lived, and to do more research on James and other Atterbury/..Atteberys. Also, we were seeking information on the parents of our gg grandmother, Mary Miller, wife of William Atterbury.

The three creeks cited above all flow generally east to west, each flowing into the Nolin River which forms the boundary between Hart and Grayson Counties. Round Stone on the north, Bacon about 4 miles south in the middle, and Little Dog about 4 more miles south of Bacon Creek. The road James Atteberry was assigned to supervise probably was close to the route followed by Highway 728 today. Rte. 728 runs north and south paralleling the Nolin River about one mile east of the river. The location of James' property was likely near the point where Highway 728 crosses Bacon Creek.

Tobacco is, and probably always has been, a major crop in this part of Kentucky and grows well in the soil found here. Almost every farm in this rolling countryside has a tobacco drying barn, and many small fields with the newly planted crop dot the area. Since tobacco was emerging as a important cash crop by the year 1800, this could be one factor that drew the Atterbury brothers from South Carolina to this particular area of Kentucky.

Based on the records, James seems to have lived on or near Bacon Creek from about 1801 until 1808. On March 14, 1808, he purchased 285 acres on the west side of the Nolin River, about six miles north of Bacon Creek, and in present day Grayson County. The Tax Lists from 1808 through 1811 show this land to be on the Nolin River. The 1812 list notes the 285 acres on Sinking Creek, a tributary of the Nolin River. This combination, then, locates James property very close to the village of Millerstown, in Grayson County. Though it has few inhabitants today, Millerstown is the oldest incorporated city in the county. We believe our gg grandmother, Mary Miller (b. 8-10-1794 in So.Carolina), was a member of one of the several Miller families who lived in this area.

This land is quite similar to that on the east side of the Nolin River, with tobacco barns and crops in evidence on every farm.

The article on page 3 summarizing the details on Hardin and Grayson Tax Lists from 1801 through 1818 discloses that Michael Atterbury acquired 357 acres in 1809. James seems to have assumed ownership of this 357 acre tract in 1811. It is located per the 1812 Tax List on Barton's Run, a creek on the west side of, and flowing into, the Nolin River. This land lies about six miles south of Millerstown. Hence, James had at least three different pieces of land during his approximately 17 years in Kentucky, before moving to Missouri in 1817.

All of the Atterbury/..Atteberys in early Hardin, Grayson, and (later) Hart Counties seemed to have had land on or very near the Nolin River or one of its tributary creeks. (Today, some of this land may be covered by the waters of Nolin Lake, formed when the river was dammed in the 1960's.) The archaic and error-prone surveying methods of that day make it difficult to determine the exact location of their individual farm sites. The property description in the 1808 Deed papers transcribed on page 6 is a good example. Additional research, however, should closer pinpoint where our ancestors lived.

Comments and Observations. . .

We realize we are retracing ground and research that many others have covered since our ancestors came to Kentucky. But even the limited amount of information found as a result of a short visit to this area has increased our personal knowledge of our collective family. So here are what we hope are a few meaningful comments.

1). It is obvious that most all of the Atterburys initially lived in a very concentrated area of Hardin County after moving from South Carolina. They are found on both sides of the Nolin River, all probably within a six mile long area. This closeness is confirmed in the 1810 Grayson and Hardin County Censuses, which enumerated the Atterbury/..Atteberys in four clusters in close proximity. In this same area is evidence of a number of families that, through marriage, are also ancestors of many readers. Kessinger Road, Logsdon Lane, Wilkerson Temple, Charles Jaggers Road, H. Miller Road, Kesserling Road, and probably others we missed are examples of surnames that have survived to the present day.

2). James Atterbury, Sr., seems to be the first of the family to locate in Hardin County, since he is the only one found on the Tax Lists of 1801 and 1802. The 1803-4-5 Tax Lists are a good indicator of when James' brothers Thomas, Michael, Richard, and Charles settled here. Edward seems to be the last, being first found on the Tax List for 1809. The three remaining of the original nine sons of William (1), died in South Carolina; William (d.1794), Nathan (d.1796), and John (d.1806).

3). The Deed to James Atterbury ("Atterberry") reproduced on page 6 notes the location to be "in the barrens". We spoke to several old-timers in the Millerstown area, but not one even recognized the term. "Barrens" referred to grassy plains with few, if any, trees, and likely provided good ground for growing tobacco.

4). Within just a few years after settling in this area of Kentucky, most of the Atterbury brothers and their offspring were moving again, some to other Kentucky Counties, many to Illinois and Missouri. The prospect of even better farm land was probably the major reason. Our ggg grandfather, James, Sr., moved to Howard County, Mo. in 1817.

We will discuss our ancestors in Kentucky more next issue. Please let us have your comments and observations in the meantime.

News and Views of our Atterbury/.../ Attebery Ancestors

September 28, 1996

Vol. 5, No. 4

Welcome to New Readers. . . .

We are pleased to add Ruth Atteberry Adams of Raytown, Mo. to the Newsletter mailing list. Ruth's great grandfather was William Atteberry, a step-brother of Martin Atteberry, but she has not yet determined the name of William and Martin's father. We have searched our files for a clue to just which Atterbury/.../Attebery line William and Martin's father descends, but, so far, we have found no connection. The most confusing bit of information about this Atteberry line is the 1880 Census of Stoddard County, Mo., which states that Martin Atteberry's parents were born in France. Since Martin was born in 1818 in Kentucky, we feel he is most likely a great grandson of our William (1). On the other hand, though many mistakes are found in Census reports, it is hard to believe that an error this drastic was made. Of the many genealogical "problems" we have encountered since starting our family history research, the names and actual place of birth of Martin and William's parents is one of the most perplexing. Hopefully, one of our readers can help Ruth and others(see page 2) determine their Atteberry ancestry. Her address is:

6125 Kentucky
Raytown, Mo. 64133

Ruth can be reached by E-mail at:

<adamssec@qni.com>

The second new addition to our list of readers is Beverly Skoff of Camanche, Iowa. Beverly descends from Moses Arterberry, son of Nathan Atterbury(15).

THE MAIL BAG. . . .

Much of our time and effort for the last three months has been to assist our youngest daughter Laura and her husband, Tom Reynolds, prepare a larger facility for their Screen Printing business. As a result, most of our family research has been on hold. We are embarrassed to admit a huge stack of mail has accumulated and is being slowly answered. Most of you with whom we correspond know we normally answer your letters quickly. We hope to clear this backlog in a few days, but please accept our apology for the delay.

Jean Adams Pyle of Tucson, Arizona, has shared with us some of the recent research of Sandi Gorin. Sandi, Jean's niece, is also one of the recipients of this Newsletter and lives in Glasgow, Barren County, Kentucky.

Our personal knowledge of early Atterbury/.../Atteberys in Barren County was very limited, but Sandi's research and documentation of Tax, Land, Census, Marriage, Wills, and Court Records has broadened our knowledge of Kentucky family members considerably. So our thanks to Jean and Sandi.

Jean's E-mail address is:

njpyle@azstarnet.com

Jan Wiggins of Wichita Falls, Texas, has asked for assistance in locating the grave site of five of her mother's siblings. Jan's mother's maiden name was Oza Lillian Atterberry, daughter of Joseph Nathaniel Atterberry and Lydia Ann Storey. (See "Mail Bag", page 2)

New Readers (continued from page 1). . . Beverly's grandmother was Cora Bell Atterberry, granddaughter of Bennett Atterberry (born 1830), but she does not know if Bennett was the son or grandson of Moses. Beverly would sincerely appreciate hearing from any of our readers with some knowledge of this family. Her address is:

722 14th Place
Camanche, Iowa 52730-1202

We are also quite pleased to include Leslie A. Townsend of Harlow, County Essex, England, as our third new addition to the list of Newsletter readers. Leslie is a direct descendant of Sir Francis Atterbury, Bishop of Rochester, and is assisting us in our search for the English parents of our William Atterbury(1). Leslie has supplied us with literally pounds of English Atterbury genealogical material. When someone finally makes the connection between William(1) and earlier English Atterburys, we will have a considerable amount of historical information already available. An in-depth review of some of Leslie's material will be included in the next Newsletter.

We thank a good friend and long-time contributor to our files, Leota King, of Spokane, Washington, for assisting us to make contact with Leslie.

The fourth new addition to the mailing list is Bobbie Dungan Phillips, of Roodhouse, Illinois. Bobbie is a cousin of Ruth Atteberry Adams, a new reader introduced on page one of this issue. Bobbie's mother was Lela Vea Atteberry, whose grandfathers, William M. Atteberry and Martin Atteberry, were step-brothers (William's son Thomas married Martin's daughter Malinda). Bobbie, too, is very interested in establishing the Atteberry ancestors of Martin Atteberry and his step-brother William.

If any of our readers can help Bobbie and Ruth with their Atteberry lineage, they will be most appreciative. Bobbie's address is:

Two of Oza Lillian Atterberry's siblings, Carlton and Lovie, died in infancy. Grover C. was 15, William 14, and Leony 9. All passed away in the period 1900 - 1915. Since their parents were married in Sevier, County, Arkansas (June 3, 1892), the writer intends to review the extensive Cemetery Census records in the Arkansas archives.

We also wish to determine the ancestral line of Jan's grandfather, Joseph Nathaniel Atterberry. We believe Joseph's father to be the C.S. Atterberry in the Scott County, Arkansas, Census of 1880.

Anyone with information for Jan can write her at:

P.O. Box 3881
Wichita Falls, Texas 76301-0881

Ms. Marty Hiatt, of the Loudoun Co., Virginia, Genealogy Club, acknowledged our letter requesting information about the Loudoun County History book supposedly being written by John T. Phillips. Several of our readers, as well as the writer, made a deposit on Phillips' book after we wrote about it in the October, 1993, Newsletter. Ms. Hiatt was among many others who also made the twenty dollar deposit. She states; "Mr. Phillips is currently claiming that the book will be ready 'any day now', however he has been saying that for at least two years". Hopefully, we will all live long enough to see this book published.

London, England, Research. . .

As has most of our genealogical effort the last few weeks, our search for the ancestors of William Atterbury (1), the 1733 English Emigrant who was our American progenitor, was also curtailed. Recently, however, we did uncover one interesting document.

Readers will recall that, most likely, the above William was the one born in London June 21, 1710, to William Atterbury, a butcher, and Sarah Rogers. His birth and christening is recorded in the Register of St. Giles Cripplegate Parish Church.

In searching through the microfilm of the original Apprenticeship Bindings, Vol. 2, 1695-1717, for the Butcher Company (Guild), we found the following entry, which was quite difficult to read:

6th April 1699

Will(ia)m Atterberry (father) Willi(am) Atterberry ——— St. Giles Cripplegate County Midd(lese)x Blacksmith ——— Apprenticed (to) John

Wigley (et law London) 7 anno (years)
(From LDS microfilm No. 1067890, item 2)

We feel this document proves that William, the butcher, is the son of William, the blacksmith. The younger William was the first child of William, the blacksmith, and his wife Jane, and was christened April 5, 1685, in St. Giles Cripplegate. Thus he was just 14 years of age when he began his apprenticeship. Another Butcher Company record notes he completed his apprenticeship on April 10, 1706.

We have yet to establish proof that the William, born June 21, 1710, is our American progenitor. However, a possible line of descent for this William from the William Atterbury, born in 1608 in Great Houghton (County Northampton) is beginning to emerge. An ancestral chart depicting this possible lineage is included as page 5 of this Newsletter. Note the comments and that one necessary link is shown by a dotted line.

The May, 1995, Newsletter included a hypothetical chart attempting to outline several possibilities for the London ancestors of the William born June 21, 1710. This chart was probably more confusing than the information it was trying to clarify, and more up-to-date facts correct some of what was stated. So please ignore, better yet destroy, the May, 1995, chart.

If the lineage depicted on the page 5 chart proves to be correct, and the William born in June, 1710, is our American progenitor, an obvious question arises. That is, for the four generations following the William Atterbury born in 1608, the first born sons were also named William. (We are assuming William, the blacksmith, to be a first son.) Why, then, did our William (1) name his first son Michael?

It is our belief that Michael was named for Michael Mitchell, brother of Michael Atterbury's mother, Sarah Mitchell Yaxley. Michael (Mitchell) was born August 12, 1726, yet was not mentioned in his father John Mitchell's Will of June 4, 1748. We presume he probably died about the time of the birth of William (1) and Sarah's first child, which event occurred about 1744. This child, a son, was christened "Michael".

William (1) and Sarah's second child, born about 1746, was named William, becoming the William (12) in our Atterbury/Attebery records.

Info on Mary Miller. . . .

Mary Miller (born 8-10-1794 in South Carolina, died 8-12-1862 in Monroe County, Mo.) was the wife of William Atterbury (194). Mary is the writer's great-great grandmother and an ancestor of many of the readers of this Newsletter. As most of you know, we have not, nor to our knowledge has any other researcher, ever uncovered Mary Miller's parents or other ancestors. However, we recently found what we feel to be the best clue yet to Mary's lineage.

In the October, 1981, issue of Silent Foot Steps, a Grayson County, Kentucky, genealogical quarterly published by Mrs. Jean Saunders, we noted the following:

Jacob Miller, age 73, died Jan. 28, 1860
He was born in South Carolina. Parents were David and M. Miller.

Assuming the information to be factual, we are elated about this finding. Jacob is the first Miller we have found (other than Mary) to have lived in South Carolina. Jacob was born about 1787, and could well be Mary's brother or cousin. In the 1810 Census for Grayson Co., Ky., page 242, David Miller, Sr., has a female in his household in the proper age range to be Mary. This appears to be the same family found in the 1790 and 1800 South Carolina Census' for Greenville County. Needless to say, we soon will be doing more research to determine if we have found the link to Mary's ancestry.

Another "Atterbury" book !

Yet another Atterbury book is being advertised by Halberts, a publisher in Bath, Ohio. This one they have titled; The Atterburys in America: from 1790 to 1996. Unless you are just curious about the contents, spend the $34.50 cost on something more worthwhile. We reported on similar books in previous 1996 issues, and suspect this latest to be the same. That is, it is a compilation of information from Census records and current computer telephone programs, tracking only the surname spelling of 'Atterbury'. This will omit the very same people who might of had their name spelled Atterberry, Arterberry, Atteberry, etc. in earlier or later records, thereby reducing its genealogical value. The bulk of its content is probably general in nature, and is published for many different surnames, changing only the specific census and telephone information.

We would appreciate the comments of anyone who purchased this book.

Old Cemeteries. . . .

We have commented before on the plight of old and largely forgotten Cemeteries. Recently, we were pleased to see a feature section article on this problem in the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, the state's largest daily newspaper. The main theme of this article calls attention to the fact that there is a State law that protects bodies, but not the plots they are buried in. Only in perpetual-care facilities does the law apply to the burial grounds.

The article makes note of the fact that small family or community graveyards that are either overgrown, ignored and abandoned, forgotten completely, or destroyed, far out-number well maintained church and municipal Cemeteries.

Since many of our Atterbury /..Attebery ancestors rest in small, forgotten, plots in many States, we are pleased to see that this problem is receiving more publicity. It can only be solved by the interest and action of all of us.

Projected Ancestral Line for William Atterbury, born June 21, 1710.

As stated on Page 3 of this issue, this chart offers a possible line of descent for this William Atterbury. Three items remain to be found to consider this the true ancestral line of William(1), our American progenitor:

- 1). Proof that the William Atterbury, born in 1608 in Great Houghton (parents: Lewis Atterbury and Mary Harvey), is the William who married Joyce Gumbleton.
- 2). Evidence that William Atterbury, the blacksmith, was the son of the William born in 1634 to William and Joyce.
- 3). Final determination that William, born in 1710, is the 1733 English emigrant who became our American progenitor.

News and Views of our Atterbury/.../Attebery Ancestors

December 30, 1996

Vol. 5, No. 5

Welcome to a New Reader. . . .

We are very pleased to add James R. (Jim) Atteberry, of Bellevue, Washington, as one of the readers and contributors of this Newsletter. Jim is a retired Chemical Engineer and has been quite active in his family research. He descends from Charles (13), through Charles' son Isaiah. Jim's address is:

3229 129th Ave. NE

Bellevue, WA 98005

He can also be easily contacted by E-mail at this address: jatteber@sprynet.com

And of most interest, Jim has established an Atteberry "Home Page" on the Internet to be an electronic focal point for anyone doing Atterbury/.../Attebery genealogical research. The Home Page can be accessed at this address: <http://atteberry.home.ml.org>

We feel Jim's action with this Internet site will be a great addition to future Atterbury/.../Attebery family history research.

Jim has sent several informative items of general interest. One identifies all Atterbury/.../Attebery Cemeteries that he has extracted from the USGS (United States Geological Survey) data files. Many of our readers likely know something about one or more of these Cemeteries, but here are the ones Jim has found in the USGS files:

- 1). Atteberry Cemetery Wayne Co., Ill.
- 2). Atteberry Cemetery Wayne Co., Ill.
- 3). Atteberry Cemetery Webster Co., Mo.
- 4). Attebery Cemetery Sumner Co., Kan.
- 5). Attebery-Fort Cem. Crawford Co., Mo.
- 6). Atterberry Cemetery Menard Co., Ill.
- 7). Atterberry Cemetery Callaway Co., Mo.
- 8). Atterberry Cemetery Monroe Co., Mo.

The Mail Bag. . . .

We sincerely appreciate the many Christmas cards and notes we have received in recent weeks. Your expressions of Holiday greetings and encouragement were much more than we deserved. Having too many "irons in the fire", we overlooked our usual expression of thanks to those who have shared so much Atterbury/.../Attebery material with me, and have made this Newsletter possible. So please accept our apology, and a sincere Happy New Year to each and everyone of you !

Wayne Atteberry, the consummate English researcher, has uncovered yet another important document about our William Atterbury(1), the English Emigrant. Wayne has obtained a copy of the Transportation Order and Landing Certificate that authorized that William and some fifty others be sent to the American Colonies. And most significantly, this document also served as the certification that William did arrive in America. A full transcript of this paper is attached to this Newsletter.

As you read the transcript of this document, there are several points to note:

1). The specified term of seven years should remove all doubt as to the length of William's sentence.

2). We find it significant that those being transported are referred to as "people", not prisoners, or felons, or convicts, or some other reference to their status.

3). Jonathan and James Forward were undoubtedly in the business of transporting convicts to the Colonies and probably owned several ships for this express purpose. Darby Lux, also a signator to the Certificate, was the captain of the Patapscoe Merchant, the ship on which William(1) came to America.

4). Will Salt and Geo(rge) Scrivener were, most likely, the men who certified the arrival and accepted the convicts in Maryland.

5). We were surprised to learn that 23 of those included in this document, or 45%, were women. While many women were named in Trial papers of the London Old Bailey Court, the fact that almost half were women sentenced to "Transportation" escaped us. Perhaps this an indication that crimes were committed for the purpose of obtaining transportation to the Colonies.

We sincerely thank Wayne for sharing this important document with us, and allowing the transcript to be published with this Newsletter. We hope he continues to be successful in uncovering new information about William (1).

Another very important piece of information related to our English research was sent to us by Arminta Hope. From the book English Adventurers and Emigrants, 1609-1660, by Peter Wilson Coldham, Arminta sends this entry (p.106): William Atterbury of St. Andrew Undershaft, London, grocer aged 33. He went to Virginia in the America and returned in her to London. This was part of a statement made in regard to litigation over the sale of another ship. The trip to Virginia and return was made in the summer and early fall of the year 1640.

The information in Coldham's book consists of abstracts of original entries in the Examination Books of the High Court of Admiralty. This English Court dealt with all civil and criminal cases affecting ships or the merchandise they carried. Records of this Court survive from the early 1500's.

The significance of this reference to William Atterbury is this: It identifies the William A., born June 7, 1608, in Great Houghton, Northamptonshire, as very likely being the same William A. who married Joyce Gumbolton and lived in the London Parish of St. Andrew Undershaft. The September, 1996, issue of this Newsletter presented a projected Ancestral Line for our William Atterbury (1), the English Emigrant. This reference from the Coldham book provides the proof, we believe, to the first of the three items we posed as needed to establish the true ancestral line of our William (1).

Using this information sent by Arminta, we will attempt to locate the full text of William Atterbury's statement to the High Court of Admiralty. Possibly, additional clues can be uncovered that were not in the brief abstract in the Coldham book.

We are extremely grateful to Arminta Hope for giving us this important bit of information.

In a second letter from Arminta, she sent a reference she found on William Atterbury in Prince George's County, Maryland. Included in a Probate Record listing the debtors to the estate of Waitsill Singleton Church, dated May 27, 1776, is William Arterbory. Could this be our William Atterbury(1) ?

Almost 500 people were named as owing money to this estate, so we assume Church was probably a merchant. If this was our William(1)'s debt, it likely was an old one,

Jim has the exact coordinates of each of these Cemeteries, so if you are interested in precisely locating one of them, please contact Jim or the writer. Personally, we were aware of only three of these Cemeteries: No. 6, in Menard Co., Ill., is the one restored by Bonnie Messett and her family (see Newsletter of July, 1994); No. 5, in Crawford Co., Mo., was found and researched by Linda Carpenter (see Newsletter of November, 1994); and No. 8, which we believe is the Cemetery where Elijah Atterberry, Zepheniah Atterberry, and others are buried (site "E", as identified in the January, 1995, Newsletter).

We would be very pleased to hear from anyone with information about the other five Atteberry-Attebery-Atterberry Cemeteries.

The Atterbury Cemetery (site "D" in the January, 1995, Newsletter) that we have been investigating in Monroe Co., Mo. is not one of those identified in the USGS data files.

for he sold his property in Prince George's County in 1754, was in Loudoun Co., Virginia, by 1758, and is presumed to have died in Loudoun Co. about 1768. However, we cannot overlook the possibility that this William "Arterbory" could be William (12), born c. 1746, the son of William (1).

Leslie Townsend, of Harlow, England, has furnished us with a wide variety of material pertinent to English Atterbury research, enough to more than fill a 2" notebook. As we mentioned in his introduction in the Sept. '96 Newsletter, Leslie descends from Sir Francis Atterbury. Among the papers that Leslie has sent include copies of the original letters between Francis and his daughter, Mary Morice. (Mary, born Oct. 23, 1698, married William Morice May 21, 1715.)

Most of the letters referred to above were written during Francis' exile in France, and at the time (1728-1729) when Mary was in ill and failing health. They were especially poignant because Mary, living in England, wished to see her father one last time before she died. Francis, in exile, could not come to England. Though very ill, Mary made plans to travel to Montpelier, the city in southern France where Francis resided. Enroute to Montpelier, she reached Toulouse and could travel no further. Francis, learning of her condition, hurried to her bedside, and was able to visit with her for a few hours before she died.

Mary died in Toulouse November 8, 1729, and was later buried in Westminster Abbey on February 2, 1730. In the past, we had erroneously assumed that Mary and William Morice had lived in Toulouse, since this was the place of her death. However the letters disclose they lived in London, where William was the High Bailiff of Westminster. One letter also revealed that William Morice sent money to Francis to help pay the expense of living in exile.

Leslie sent us several new (to us) biographical articles on Sir Francis. Hopefully, before too long we can establish the precise relationship of American Atterbury/..Atteberys to the Bishop of Rochester.

Leslie also included detailed maps of St. Giles Cripplegate and St. James Liberty Parishes. Since street names are the same as 300 years ago, these are great research tools.

Leslie, we thank you very much !

Loudoun County, Virginia. . .

The long anticipated book by John T. Phillips II, The Historian's Guide to Loudoun County, Virginia: Volume I, Colonial Laws of Virginia and County Court Orders 1757 - 1766, has finally been published. In general, this book of almost 600 pages is a genealogical gold-mine of information. However, we noted only two references to people who could be our William Atterbury(1):

The first is found in Court Order Book A, page 395, in the book's section containing references to "non-residents" of Loudoun County:

William Artherbury of Prince George's County, a Sawyer, is a Maryland defendant at court in Loudoun County.

Our William Atterbury is believed to be the one on the Loudoun County Tithable (Tax) List for 1758, 1760, and 1761. If this is correct, then the William "Artherberry" in Prince George's County, Maryland, (a prior residence of William(1) and very close to Loudoun County), is not our William.

However, having this William "Artherbury" in the same area and at the same time does confuse the issue. To eliminate any doubt will require some research to properly identify this William. Could this William, for example, be the William "Arterbory" cited in the list of debtors to the estate of Waitsill Church, as mentioned on page 2 of this Newsletter?

The second reference is abstracted from Court Order Book B, page 39;

August 12, 1762 - William Atterberry and John Morris are entered as Securities for the appearance of James Rogers in a case in debt.

At this time, this mention of the person we are confident is William(1) reveals no new insight about our ancestor. We do wonder, however, if the "cosigning" of James Rogers debt somehow led to the forced sale of William's plantation in 1765. This sale was to settle a debt to William Carr Lane.

Included in John Phillips' book is a map, circa July, 1757, of Loudoun County, which includes roads, streams, churches, forts, etc. Someday, hopefully, this map can aid in pinpointing where in the county William Atterbury and his family lived. One must keep in mind, however, that the present-day Washington-Dulles International Airport now occupies a sizable part of what constituted southeast Loudoun County in the 1760 era.

Mr. Phillips book also contains an excellent Bibliography of books and papers that pertain to the history of Loudoun County.

Pat Wallace: wallacep@aztec.asu.edu
Pat descends from Louisa Atterbury, born about 1790 in So. Carolina, wife of Michael Myers. She has not yet found her relationship to William(1). (See March, '95 Newsletter). This year, after much effort, Pat secured her membership in the DAR. Her patriot ancestor was Abraham Myers, the father of Michael. Congratulations, Pat!

Lois Adams: eladams7@juno.com
Lois is not an Atterbury/.Attebery descendant, but is closely related on our mother's side of the family. She has given us considerable detail on several lines of ancestors, which have allowed us to have a much broader perspective of our ancestry.

Atterbury Family History

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

May 5, 1997

Vol. 6, No. 1

Welcome to our New Readers. . . .

With this issue, we are pleased to introduce four "new" cousins to the Newsletter mailing list. All are related to most of us in some way.

First, we welcome Pamela Ash, of Forsyth, Montana. Pamela's husband, Joseph, descends from James Atterbury(19) through James granddaughter, Mary Kessinger, who married Robert Ash. Mary and Robert and many of their descendants lived in Monroe County, Missouri, in the same general area where the writer's Atterbury ancestors lived. Much of the oral history of the James Atterbury line was passed down to us by Mary Kessinger.

Lorriane Matt, of Buffalo Grove, Illinois, is the second new addition we are pleased to have among our readers. Lorraine's grandfather was David Luther Atteberry, whom we believe descends from Richard Atterbury(14), through his son David.

We are also pleased that John E. Stone and his wife, Edith, who lived near Paris, in Monroe County, Missouri, will now receive the Newsletter. Recently, however, they have moved to Florida. John's grandmother was Emily J. (Emma) Atterbury, the sister of our own grandfather, Joseph William Atterbury. Hence, John is our second cousin and descends from James Atterbury (19), through our mutual great grandfather, Daniel.

The fourth addition we welcome to our list of readers is Wanda W. Walters, of Casper, Wyoming. Wanda's grandmother

We regret that this issue of the Newsletter has been delayed weeks beyond our intended publishing date of March 17, 1997. Serious family matters, including the death of the writer's mother, Lillian Hickey Atterbury, and the extended hospitalization of our brother Tom, have considerably reduced both continuing family research and the preparation time for this Newsletter. Hopefully, in the months ahead, we can get back on schedule.

The Mail Bag. . . .

A letter and a phone call from Ruth Atteberry Adams informs us and relatives of a planned Family Reunion for any and all "Atteberry/..Atterbury" descendants. The Reunion will be held in the Senior Citizens Building in Lane, Oklahoma, on June 7, 1997, beginning at 10:00 AM. Bring food and soft drinks sufficient for your family.

Lane, Oklahoma, is south of McAlester, and about 9 miles southeast of Atoka. The Lane Senior Citizens Building is about 1/4 mile north of highway 3, on the road north from "Mr. G's".

Ruth encourages everyone to bring any family information and old pictures they may have. For more information, you may contact Ruth at:

was Martha Elizabeth Arterberry, who descends from Nathan Atterbury(15), through Nathan's son Moses Arterberry. It is evident from her pedigree charts that Wanda has done considerable research for a number of years on her family history, so we are pleased she has joined our list of Newsletter readers and contributors.

last issue of this Newsletter. Wayne had previously visited both Cemeteries and has pictures of many of the headstones. We quote from his letter:

"Atteberry Cemetery (in) Barnhill Twp... is located in the southwest quarter of section 4 in the middle of a field. This is where Richard Atteberry, Jr., son of Richard and Rebecca (Bennett) Atteberry, lived. The graves include Richard Atteberry, Jr. (my gr gr gr gr grandfather), Walker & Sarah Atteberry(gr gr gr grandparents) and William A. Atteberry(gr gr grandfather) and some of his wives. Richard, Jr's. wife, Patsey (Moore) Atteberry, was probably buried there, but there was no stone. The first time I was there (1973), the Cemetery was in good condition but wasn't being cared for. The last time I was there (two or three years ago), the neglect had taken its toll. The stones were broken and laying on the ground. It was really sad."

"Atterberry Cemetery (in) Hickory Hill Twp... is located in the southeast quarter of section 28. The first time I was there, this cemetery was in bad shape. It was badly overgrown with brush and weeds. The stones were hard to find. The last time I visited this cemetery, it had been restored and was in really good condition. The graves include Stout Atteberry (son of Richard & Rebecca) and his wife, Fanny Lavina Crask. The other graves include many members of Stout's family."

"I guess you could call the Barnhill Twp. cemetery the family cemetery of Richard Atteberry, Jr. and the Hickory Hill Twp. cemetery the family cemetery of Stout Atteberry."

"The inscriptions of both of these cemeteries were copied by Doris Bland of Fairfield, Ill. They were included in her book, 'Wayne County, Illinois, Cemetery Inscriptions, Vol. IV'."

We thank Wayne for this information and allowing us to pass it along to the many recipients of this Newsletter.

A letter from Linda Attebery Carpenter informs us of yet another Atterbury/..Atteberry Cemetery to add to the eight we listed in the December, 1996, Newsletter. This Cemetery is the Arterberry Cemetery in Hamilton County, Illinois. (Hamilton County is adjacent to the southern border of Wayne County, location of the two Atteberry Cemeteries described earlier by Wayne.) The Arterberry Cemetery is near the town of Thackery in Hamilton County. We would be pleased to hear from anyone with any details on this cemetery.

Linda is the very active president of the Suncoast Genealogy Society, which covers the St. Petersburg, Florida, area.

Bobbie Phillips, a 1996 addition to the mailing list (see Sept., 1996 Issue), has sent a wealth of material and photographs on London, England. We especially appreciate (cont. on page 4)

WHAT'S IN A NAME . . . ?

A review of the papers of Atterbury./../ Attebery researchers who have investigated the family of our William Atterbury(1), one can conclude that William and his wife, Sarah Mitchell Yaxley, had nine sons. My father, without knowledge of the information compiled by early family historians, believed our American progenitor, William(1), to have had only seven sons. We considered this to be true until we began our own research five years ago. Today, we have little doubt that William and Sarah did have nine sons, and, as generally accepted, in this order of birth: Michael, William, Charles, Richard, Nathan, John, Edward, Thomas, and James. (My father's list of seven sons omitted Richard and Nathan.)

A point in question, however, is this: Why was the first child named Michael? We raise this question because the name "Michael" has not been seen in previous generations of Atterburys in England (the names most frequently seen are William, Richard, and Thomas). And, typically, the first son was named for either his father or paternal grandfather, and in this instance, he would have been named William, not Michael.

In our opinion, a reasonable explanation for this first appearance of a Michael in any Atterbury line is as follows: William(1)'s wife, Sarah, was the daughter of John Mitchell and his wife Elizabeth. John and Elizabeth had six other known children, including Michael Mitchell, born August 12, 1726. Michael's name was not mentioned in his father's Will, dated June 4, 1748, so we assume that he most likely had died prior to the date of the Will. If Michael Mitchell's death occurred just prior to the birth of William and Sarah's first child, probably in 1744, the sadness associated with his passing could have prompted Sarah to want their first child to be named for her deceased brother.

Hence, the foregoing could explain why William and Sarah's oldest child was christened "Michael".

Following tradition, William and Sarah did name their second child "William". The third child, Charles, was likely named after William's one brother of the same name. This assumes, of course, we will eventually prove our William(1) to be the one born June 21, 1710, to William Atterbury and Sarah Rogers, as registered in the London Parish of St. Giles Cripplegate.

London, England, Research. . .

During the past two years, we have summarized our search for the ancestors of our William(1) in several Newsletter reports. A review of the Projected Ancestral Line (page 5, Sept. 1996 Issue) for the William Atterbury born June 21, 1710, notes that another William Atterbury, born August 3, 1634, was one possible ancestor in this line. This last William was the son of yet another William, the Merchant and Ship Captain, and his wife, Joyce.

William and Joyce had two other sons, Thomas and Richard. Thomas died in 1636 at the age of five months. Richard was born June 9, 1640, and could be the Richard Atterbury, whose wife was Ann -?-, and lived in St. Giles Cripplegate in the 1660's and 1670's. He was buried there in February, 1674. Hence, he is also a likely possible father of William Atterbury, the Blacksmith, born c. 1660. It is interesting to note that William, the Blacksmith, named his first daughter Ann, improving the possibility he was the son of Richard and Ann.

The Mail Bag . . . (continued from page 2) the many photographs of St. Giles Cripplegate Parish Church. Readers will recall this to be the area where the William Atterbury most likely to be our William (1) was born and raised. In the next issue, we will try to transfer a scanned copy of one of these photos into the Newsletter.

Bobbie also sent a copy of London's Burning: From Fever to Inferno, London 1665 - 1666. This book gives a detailed account of the Plague of 1665, and the great London Fire of 1666. While many Parish Churches were destroyed or severely damaged by the fire, the most notable being St. Paul's Cathedral, most of the Church records and Parish Registers seem to have survived. But the confusion that must have existed during that period may have lead to errors and omissions in the records. Since we are currently (as time permits) searching the original Birth, Burial, and Marriage Registers of St. Giles Cripplegate for Atterbury information in the 1660's, the Plague and Fire are important considerations.

Bobbie and her husband Bill were in England in January to visit their son who now lives in Warboys, north of London.

Leota King, of Spokane, Washington, and one of our frequent correspondents, has sent us excerpts from the book, Durbin - Logsdon Genealogy and Related Families From Maryland to Kentucky, by Betty Durbin Carson. There are many references to Atterburys that married into the Logsdon family, and historical information on Hardin County and the surrounding area of Kentucky. Especially interesting is additional information about the legendary Joseph (Big Joe) Logsdon, who married Sarah, daughter of Michael Atterbury (11).

Jean Adams Pyle, of Tucson, Arizona, has furnished additional information on Atterbury/./Atteberys, much of it on the Arterberrys of Tennessee and, later, Texas. These were the descendants of Moses Atterbury (Arterberry), son of Nathan Atterbury (15). Jean's niece, Sandra Gorin, also a recipient of this Newsletter, does extensive research in and around Barren County, Kentucky, and keeps Jean supplied with anything she finds in Atterbury/./Attebery material. We believe this particular Arterberry material is of interest to several readers of this Newsletter.

William, the Blacksmith, whose wife was Jane -?-, was the father of eleven children, one of whom was William, the Butcher. Another child, possibly the oldest, was Richard, who died in January, 1698.

We realize the point in the foregoing discussion is difficult to make clear, and some may consider it trivial. But we include it here in an attempt to aid anyone who chooses to research London Atterburys now, or at some future date.

As we have mentioned in previous Newsletters, there are literally thousands of microfilms and microfiche of London genealogical records available through the LDS Library. These are the source for all of the research information uncovered to date on London Atterburys.

We would be pleased to pass along to anyone who is interested the LDS order number of films of original London documents where we have found pertinent Atterbury entries.

Vol. 6 No. 2

New Readers. . . .

We are pleased to add five new readers to the mailing list of this Newsletter. All are cousins to most of the recipients of this publication.

First, we are delighted to introduce Nova A. Lemons, of Dallas, Texas. Nova descends from Bennett Arterberry, who was probably the grandson or great grandson of Nathan Atterbury(15). Nova has done considerable research on her Atterbury-Arterberry line and is the author of Through the Orchard . . ., which includes a great biographical sketch on Bennett Arterberry. Bennett's very interesting Civil War activities, which included service in both the Confederate and Union Armies, are covered in detail.

We are also pleased to add Ted Atterbery of Lake Charles, Louisiana, to the mailing list of this Newsletter. Ted is the nephew of Reva Abbott, a major contributor to our Atterbury/.../Attebery files and very helpful in our family history reasearch. Ted descends from James (19), through his son James, Jr., and is very interested in learning more about his family history.

Paula P. Kelley, of Belleville, Illinois, is a welcome addition to the Newsletter readership. Paula's husband, Kenneth, descends from Nancy Atterbery, who married William Hall October 21, 1821, in Barren County, Kentucky. We have not yet been able to determine from whom Nancy descends, so if anyone can shed light on her ancestry, please contact Paula at her e-mail address, kkelley933@aol.com.

The Mail Bag. . . .

A letter from Arminta Hope, and a subsequent phone call from Ruth Atteberry Adams, reported the large turnout for the Atteberry, et al, Family Reunion held in Lane, Oklahoma, on June 7, 1997. Among the many Atterbury/.../Attebery descendants were Voncille Attebery Winter and Wilma Attebery Mitchell, authors of the book The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant. Needless to say, there were many discussions about the exact relationship of each person to other attendees.

Ruth Adams deserves a lot of credit for organizing this reunion, and every one who attended expects the next one to be even bigger. Those of us deeply involved in research frequently lose sight of the importance of cousins meeting cousins and learning more about their broader living family.

We have just received the summer, 1997, issue of The Family Historian. This publication includes a notice that Ruth is planning a June, 1998, Atteberry/Atterbury Reunion, to again be held in Lane, Oklahoma. More details later.

The May, 1997, issue of this Newsletter included information from Linda Attebery Carpenter noting there was an Arterberry Cemetery, near the town of Thackery, in Hamilton County, Illinois. A recent letter from Wayne Atteberry gave us considerable detail about this Cemetery, which he has personally surveyed. Another frequent correspondent, Shirley Hannaford, added

The fourth new addition to the Newsletter mailing list is Diane R. (Mohnike) French, of Omaha, Nebraska. She descends from Richard Atterbury(14) and Rebecca Bennet through their son Thomas "Jockey Tom". Diane would like to correspond with anyone who also descends from the son of Thomas, William Thomas "Black Tom" Atterbury. Her address is: 12103 Patrick Ave., Omaha, NE 68164.

We noted with interest that Diane and her husband once lived in Moberly, Mo., where the writer was born, and later lived from 1933 to 1944. It's still a small world.

Another new reader, who also descends from Richard Atterbury(14) and Rebecca Bennet, is William R. Atteberry, Jr., of De Ridder, Louisiana. William descends from Richard and Rebecca's grandson, Richard D. Atteberry(1446). William is actively researching his family history, and has identified all of his Atteberry ancestors back to William Atterbury(1).

The latest Atterbury/.../Attebery Family Association Newsletter from Voncille Attebery Winter has an important item of interest to pass along; that is, she still plans a book of Revised Lineage Charts, updating the Lineage Charts in her book The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant. However, the completion date is not yet known. She reports the new charts will require about 300 pages, compared to the current 154 pages. Voncille estimates the cost will be at least $100. If anyone desires a copy when they are available, send no money now but please write her to reserve a copy at:

extensive details about some of those buried in this Cemetery.

Wayne's documentation on this site notes its location in the SE 1/4 of the SE 1/4, Section 4, in Crook Township on road 1500E. Wayne states there are approximately 75 graves in this Cemetery, but only 12 marked headstones. The oldest marked grave was that of a John C. Arterberry, who died September 7, 1854, aged 20 years 6 months 13 days. The only other Arterberry's with headstones are; James, died January 30, 1881, aged 77 years, 2 days; and Allie M., daughter of N.J. and M. Arterberry. Undoubtedly, other Arterberrys are buried in some of the unmarked graves.

Shirley Hannaford's information included page 246 of the Hamilton County Cemeteries and Probate Index, which identifies this graveyard as the "Atteberry" Cemetery. Hence, Shirley has used "Atteberry" in Family Group Sheets for the family information which follows, though other sources and the headstones use the "Arterberry" spelling:

James Atteberry, who died in 1881, was born in South Carolina in 1804. [ed. note: This James is probably the son of Moses Arterberry, who is thought to have had as many as 12 children. These included a James who was born about 1804. Moses, born c.1780, was the son of Nathan Atterbury(15), and was in Tennessee by 1820].

James wife was Jane — (born 1810, in Tenn.). They were the parents of eight children, including John C., who died in 1854. Another son was Newton Jasper who married Mattie J. —. Undoubtedly, they were the parents of Alice M.(Allie), who died in 1877 at the age of 4. Shirley's information notes that Newton Jasper Atteberry is buried in this Cemetery, so he likely has an unmarked headstone, as most likely does his wife, Mattie J.

The first two of James and Jane's children were born in Tennessee, the last six in Illinois, indicating they moved to Illinois about 1835. From Shirley's Family Group Sheet, James and Jane's children in order of birth are: John C., b.1833, James W., b.1835, Susan W., b.1838, William H., b.1840, George W., B.1843, Rachel, b.1847, Newton Jasper, b.1849, and Nancy R., b.1852. Undoubtedly, other children and descendants of James Atteberry/Arterberry are also buried in some of the unmarked graves in this Hamilton County Cemetery.

Cousin Lois Adams, a super "clipper and saver", sent us a review of a 1978 book written by Guy Murchie, The Seven Mysteries of Life. This book delves into the same subject as a paper we published in 1995, Your Ancestors. . . Who . . . and How Many ? In that treatise, we discussed the very large number of ancestors each of us have, and our relationship to all other people who ever lived. Guy Murchie's book covers this material very eloquently, but we do disagree with the arbitrary 50th cousin limitation on a person's most distant relation. The review, by Robert Chenard, is reprinted on page 4 of this issue.

Reva Abbott has sent us a copy of the original marriage license of Green Rufus Pickney Atterbury and Mary Emiline Agee, Jan.2, 1851, in Dekalb County, Mo. Rufus was the son of Greenbury and a grandson of James Atterbury(19), and was the first of the Atterbury clan to migrate to the new Oregon Territory, in 1852. (cont. col .2)

Rufus was the father of 13 children, all born in Oregon. Rufus and Mary were married by Jesse Todd, the gg grandfather of Reva's first husband, Luin lewis Atterbery.

Immigration Information. . .

From two of Peter Wilson Coldham's books on early Emigrants to the American Colonies, we note the following:

First, Emigrants in Bondage, 1614-1775, chapter 2, page 57, has this entry:

William Atterbury. Sentenced to transportation and transported April, 1733 Patapsco Landing Certificate Annapolis November 1733, Middlesex.

This statement is the first evidence we have seen citing Annapolis as the specific place where our William(1) landed in America. The Landing Certificate referred to was uncovered by Wayne Atteberry in 1996, a transcript of which was included in the December, 1996, issue of this Newsletter. The Certificate, however, designated only Maryland and Virginia as the destination of the ship Patapsco Merchant. November, 1733, is probably the date the Certificate was entered into the record in England.

The second interesting entry is on page 262 of Peter Coldham's Complete Book of Emigrants, 1661-1699. Dated 12 February-4 March, 1676, this entry states:

Shippers by the Good Hope, Mr. George Northcott, bound from London for New York: John Hawes, William Antleby, Phillip French, Edward Mann, John Atterbury, Thomas Hart, Robert Woolley, William Depeyster, Benjamin Hewling.

Since no other record of his presence in the Colonies is known, we assume this John Atterbury possibly came to America for business reasons, then returned to London. If any reader has information about this early Atterbury in America, we would be pleased to learn something about him.

WE'RE ALL 50th COUSINS TO EACH OTHER

by Robert Chenard

(taken from the Morning Sentinel, Oct. 3, 1993)

The Seven Mysteries of Life, a book by Guy Murchie, 1978, Houghton, Mifflin Co., sheds much light on the subject of genealogy from the perspective of humanity as a whole- i.e. macro-genealogy. How big is your family tree?

The answer to this question depends on exactly what you mean. Do you mean all of your direct ancestors, i.e. your parents, grandparents, great-grandparents, etc., or do you mean all of your ancestors' descendants, i.e. your cousins, no matter how distant they are related to you?

The type of family tree most people research is called an ascending genealogy which traces parents. The second type, which includes all the descendants of one of more of your ancestors, is called a descending genealogy and lists all your uncles, aunts, great-uncles and aunts, etc. and their children who are your first, second, third, fourth, etc. etc. cousins

Now here is the shocker. Whether you like it or not - your descending family tree contains over 5 billion living people. That's right! It includes all of humanity.

In fact, were it not for physical (oceans, mountains, etc.) and cultural/racial barriers over the centuries, the furthest any two isolated persons now living on this planet could be related would be about 30th cousins.. This means that somewhere in our ancestry, by the 32nd generation, we all have a common pair of ancestors. But because of the barriers of past ages and other factors, this is statistically compensated by extending it 20 additional generations. Thus, the furthest any two living persons can be related is 50th cousin.

This means that anyone has a common pair of ancestors back 1500 years ago - circa the 4th century A.D. This also means the most isolated Australian aborigines and the most isolated tribal African natives are no more than 50th cousins.

If you and that other person with European ancestry could identify every one of your direct ancestors, you would statistically find a common pair of "parents" by the time you reached your 17th generation - roughly 500 years ago - about the time Columbus set sail.

The family trees of all of us, no matter where the origin of trait, meets and merges into one genetic tree of all humanity by the time they have spread into the 50th generation, according to Murchie. The average person has about one million direct ancestors with some thousand surnames in just the last 500 years, and it is impossible to trace most of them that far back due to the early lack of records.

If you don't believe this, then consider this fact. Assume that none of your ancestors are related to each other. This would mean that in your 15th generation back, you have 32,768 individual ancestors - no duplications. In your 10th generation, you had only 1,024. But in your 30th generation (roughly 900 years ago) you'd have over 1,127,000,000 direct ancestors - a period when demographers estimate the entire world population was less than a half-billion. Case closed!

The known descendents of the Mayflower of Plymouth, Massachusetts, were listed in a published book. According to Murchie, they can hardly even begin to track down each and every living person who had direct ancestors on this famous vessel. Due to the increasing homogeneity of people today, the entire world population will be able to claim ancestors on the Mayflower in the next four centuries.

Bottom line: Somewhere we all trace back to a common pair of ancestors.

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

New Readers. . .

We are pleased to introduce several new additions to the mailing list of this Newsletter:

We welcome Marguerite A. Lester, of Brandon, Mississippi, as a new reader of this publication. Marguerite descends from James Atterbury (19), and is the sister of John Aldridge who has been a recipient of this Newsletter since 1993.

Our second new reader is Rebecca Crask, of Springfield, Illinois. She is related to Lanna Lavinia "Fannie" Crask, who married Stout Atteberry, son of Richard Atterbury(14). Rebecca has done considerable research on her family history and is interested in her connection to the Atterbury/..Attebery lines.

Trudy Riddle, of Montgomery City, Mo., has joined those who receive this Newsletter. Trudy's mother is Doris Mae Atteberry, who descends from William Pain Atteberry, the grandson of William Atterbury(12).

We are also pleased to add Margaret Walker, of Memphis, Tennessee, to our mailing list. Margaret's grandfather was John Thompson Atterbury, who descends from James(19), through his son, William.

Another new addition to the mailing list is Jerry (Mrs. Frank D.) Atteberry, of Anderson, Indiana. Jerry's husband descends in two lines from Richard Atterbury (14). Frank's great grandparents were Eli Atteberry, the son of Asa Atteberry, Richard(14)'s youngest son; and Lucy Jane Atteberry, a descendant of Richard Atteberry, Jr., Asa's older brother.

Holiday Greetings. . .

Our very best wishes to each of you for the Holidays, and for all of 1998. May the New Year bring both good health and prosperity for yourself and your loved ones.

James Atterbury (19). . .

Included with this issue of the Newsletter is a biographical sketch summarizing what we know of the life of James Atterbury. As most everyone is aware, relatively few facts are available about this old pioneer who was born almost 240 years ago. We have made several what we believe are logical assumptions about his life, as is apparent from the number of such qualifying words as possible, probable, likely, etc.

We would sincerely appreciate any additions, corrections, or comments about this brief review of the life of James Atterbury.

While preparing this sketch, we reviewed all of our material and files pertaining to James. In the process, we increased our knowledge of James' life, and also found some puzzling questions.

One item in particular is very peculiar. In the October, 1819, Missouri Intelligencer (reportedly the first Newspaper west of St.Louis), this entry is found under Howard County, Mo., divorces: James Atterbury, Sr., petitioned the Legislature for Divorce from Mary Atterbury. (Note that no reference to this petition was made in the biographical sketch.)

This statement raises many questions, including; (1), just which James is this ?, (2), if this is our James(19), what happened

We are also pleased to welcome as a new reader Arlis A. Atteberry, who lives in Larned, Kansas. Arlis descends from James (19), through James' son, Daniel. Arlis is very interested in learning more about his Atterbury/./Attebery ancestry.

Another new recipient of this Newsletter, Tammy D. Jones, of Duncan, Oklahoma, also has a multiple Atterbury/./ Attebery connection in her family tree. Tammy's ggg grandmother was the daughter of Churchwell C. Atteberry and his 2nd cousin, Amanda W. Atterberry. Churchwell's parents were Jesse Atteberry and Levisa Atterbury. Jesse descends from John(16), Amanda descends from Charles (13), and Levisa (Lavica) descends from Thomas(18). Hence, Tammy matches Wilma Mitchell's record of having three of William Atterbury's nine sons as direct ancestors.

Scanned Photograph. . .

Congratulations. . .

. . . to Linda Attebery Carpenter, who now lives in Ft. Myers, Florida. Linda has won the Florida State Genealogy Society's Outstanding Achievement Award for Florida Research. Knowing her thorough approach to research, the award is certainly well deserved.

to his first wife, Dorcas Wilkerson ?, (3), if this James, Sr., is James (19), when did he remarry ?, and (4), was this request for divorce granted ? Any one with information or ideas on this subject is encouraged to help us answer these questions.

While there were many James' in early Atterbury/./Attebery families, a brief review of other James leads us to the conclusion that our James(19) seems to be the most likely one requesting the divorce. He was often referred to (Tax Lists, etc.) as James, Sr., after his son James(192) became of age. We are very puzzled, can you help ?

We believe we have accurately located the 641 acre tract on Smith Creek in Chester County, South Carolina, that James acquired September 4, 1786. (One of our interests in genealogy is to be able to walk the very same land that our ancestors walked). Identifying this tract required comparing the Surveyor's drawing and description made in 1786 with the actual, present day, topography of the land. This tract was described in 1786 by the archaic method, ". . . beginning at a large Black Oak. . . etc". Fortunately, however, the Surveyor provided a good drawing of the tract showing the course of Smith Creek and its branches. In 1995, we thought we had found this property using the County road map, but we were wrong.

Recently, we obtained a set of the topographical maps issued by the U.S. Geological Survey covering this part of Chester County. One area of Smith Creek matches almost exactly the 1786 Surveyor's drawing of James' property. On our next trip to South Carolina, we intend to study this tract as closely as the present-day owners will allow.

St. Giles Cripplegate Parish Church
London, England

Our thanks to Bobbie Phillips of Roodhouse, Illinois, for a number of photos of St. Giles Cripplegate she made on a trip to London early in 1997. The Parish registers of this Church, readers will recall, is the source of a good bit of information on the William Atterbury we believe to be our American progenitor, William(1).

A very brief history of this church is summarized as follows: The church is believed to have been founded c. 1080 and rebuilt in the 14th century. A fire in 1545 necessitated further rebuilding. Much of the present building extends from about 1550. It escaped the Great Fire (in 1666), but was gutted by German bombs in 1940. After the war, the church was completely restored.

St. Giles stood outside Cripplegate, the oldest gate in the London Wall. A "Crepel", Saxon for a covered way, is believed to have run from this gate to the Barbican Watch Tower. This old Church has seen many famous people, including Oliver Cromwell who was married here in 1620.

Atterbury Memorial Library
Madison, Missouri

The Atterbury Memorial Library in Madison, Mo., was built in 1962 by a gift to the city from the estate of Beulah Briscoe Atterbury. Beulah was the wife of J. W. (Jody) Atterbury, son of Isaac Newton Atterbury, the writer's great uncle. The bequest was to be used for a community building, the trustees for which elected to construct and furnish a Library. It is an excellent small-town Library but does not have a significant genealogy collection. It does have some good local history information. Additional Monroe County material can be found at the Paris Public Library, in Paris, 12 miles east of Madison.

Biographical Sketch

1758 - 1843

[Note: We would have preferred to delay a biography of James Atterbury (19) until more facts and information about James' life are available. However, having written biographical sketches on several of his descendants and a narrative about James' father, William (1), an obvious gap exists in the history of this family line. Hence, we deemed it desirable to proceed with this interim sketch, to be rewritten when more information is available. The sketches already written are for James' son, William Atterbury (194); his grandson, Daniel Atterbury (1944); his great grandson, Joseph William Atterbury (19441); and his great-great grandson, John Clay Atterbury, Sr.(194415).]

James Atterbury was born in Loudoun County, Virginia, in about the year 1758. No documentation has yet been found to establish his exact date of birth, but most research with which we are familiar seem to agree on the 1758 date. James was the youngest son of William Atterbury and Sarah Mitchell Yackley, to whom eight sons had previously been born. Prior to his birth, the family had lived in Prince George's and Frederick Counties in Maryland, a few miles down the Potomac River from Loudon County, Virginia.

James' father William had been transported to Annapolis, Maryland, in April, 1733, following his conviction for a theft in London, England. William's sentence of seven years was to be carried out as a laborer on one of "... His Majestyes Plantations in America." James' mother, Sarah, was the daughter of John and Elizabeth Mitchell of Prince George's County, Maryland. Sarah had previously been married to Robert Yackley (Yacksley, Yaxley), by whom she had two children (the fate of Robert and the two children are unknown). William and Sarah were married about 1742, very likely in Prince George's County where they later owned the 50 acre Prince Spring plantation.

James lived in Loudoun County, Virginia, probably until his middle teens. His father died about 1768, and his mother passed away about 1770. Following their death, James, no doubt, was cared for by one or more of his brothers. The entire family was to move to South Carolina, probably in the period 1772 to 1778. Undoubtedly, they moved south on an overland route, probably via the Carolina Road that passed through Loudoun County southwestward through Virginia into the Carolinas.

The first records of Atterburys in South Carolina appear in 1772 and 1773. It seems likely that most, if not all, of the Atterbury brothers were probably in South Carolina before the Revolutionary War. It is possible all of the Atterburys moved en masse to the area that was to become Chester County, South Carolina. However, one brother, William (in the record as 'William Arterbury'), is listed in the "Index of Revolutionary Records in the Virginia State Archives", indicating he may have remained in Virginia for a time before joining his brothers in South Carolina. James and seven of his brothers are later found in the same general area of Chester County. The oldest brother, Michael, was in the Orangeburg District, about 100 miles distant at the time of the 1790 Census.

At the age of 22, James married Dorcas Wilkerson about 1780. Family legend relates that Dorcas was born in England. However, we believe it is more likely she was born in Prince George's Parish, Prince George's County, Maryland, on May 8, 1763, the daughter of John and Elizabeth Wilkerson. There is evidence John Wilkerson and William Atterbury were acquainted, both appearing on a list of debtors to an estate in Frederick County, Maryland. A John Wilkerson is noted with property in 1788 in Chester County, South Carolina. An August, 1800, Chester County Deed documenting James Atterbury's sale of 230 acres notes that the land includes " the Plantations whereon ...James Atteberry and Elizabeth Wilkinson now live." This Dorcas, the daughter of John and Elizabeth, would have been 17 years of age at the time of her marriage to James. (Some reports say James' wife was Dorcas McKinsar; others state Dorcas McKinsar Wilkerson or Dorcas Wilkerson Mckinsar, all indicating she may have been previously married. If his wife did have a prior marriage, then she was probably someone other than the 17 year old daughter of John and Elizabeth. Our family papers refer to her only as Dorcas Wilkerson.)

No official documentation of James Atterbury's service in the Revolutionary War has been found. Family legends, however, tell of his service with General Francis Marion in the swamps of South Carolina. (Most of this action began in the fall of 1780 and continued through 1781, with many of the American soldiers members of local militia units. When a lull in the fighting occurred, men would return home to see their family and tend to their farms. This "temporary" nature of their service could account for the lack of any record of James' military activity.) James is said to have rode two different horses during that action, one named Red Buck, the other Queen Anne. He was present and partook of the noted Sweet Potato Supper, later made famous by a British prisoner who said that a people who could thus subsist and fight were unconquerable.

Suffice to say, we believe James participated in some way in the War of Independence. Some researchers have reported that as many as six of the nine Atterbury brothers saw service in this war.

In 1786, James received a grant for 641 acres of land in the " . . . District of Camden on the Waters of Smith Creek a branch of Brushy Fork", for which he paid the grand sum of 14 pounds 19 shillings 17 pence. This tract of land is in southwest Chester County, approximately eight miles from the town of Chester. This is undoubtedly the location of the James Atterbury family home in South Carolina. Quite likely, James had established a homestead on this land about 1780, before acquiring formal ownership on September 4, 1786. Like 95% of the population in earlier days, James was a farmer. His main cash crop was probably tobacco, as his frequent moves seem to indicate. (Tobacco removes most of the nutrients from the soil, and after four or five years, the land will not produce a worthwhile crop.)

James and Dorcas were the parents of at least nine, and possibly as many as twelve, children. In their accepted order of birth, they are:

- 1). Nancy, born c. 1782, in Chester County, South Carolina
- 2). James, Jr., born c. 1784, " " "
- 3). Agnes, born c. 1786, " " " (Dorcas ?)
- 4). William, born 12-11-1789 " " "
- 5). Daniel, born c. 1790 " " "
- 6). Naomi, born c. 1791 " " "
- 7). Ashford, born c. 1798 " " "

8). Greenberry, born 2-22-1799 in Chester County, South Carolina

9). John, born c. 1802 in Hardin County, Kentucky

[The writer's family record does not include Agnes or Naomi, but lists another daughter, Dorcas. The 1810 Census notes nine children in James' household, but three of his older children were married, indicating as many as twelve.]

As the place of birth of James' sons Greenberry and John suggests, the family was to move from South Carolina to Kentucky about 1800. James is identified as a Head of Household in the 1790 Census for Chester County, South Carolina, and in the 1810 Census for Grayson County, Kentucky. He is not found in any State in the 1800 Census, but the 1800 Census for South Carolina does reveal there are 22 people in the household of Charles Atterbury, one of James' older brothers. The age ranges suggest that there are two families in Charles' home, one of whom could be James Atterbury's family, living here temporarily before moving on to Kentucky.

We believe James himself, accompanied by one or more brothers and older nephews, probably made exploratory trips to Kentucky as early as 1797 or 1798 before moving the entire family in 1800. Their trips north most likely proceeded through the Saluda Gap on the North Carolina border, to Knoxville, Tennessee, and into Kentucky through the Cumberland Gap.

Six of the nine Atterbury brothers (three would die in South Carolina) were to move to Kentucky before 1808, but James is the first on record, since he is found on the Hardin County, Kentucky, Tax list for the year 1801. This general area was the heart of early tobacco farming in Kentucky, so it is likely this was probably one of his primary crops. Even today, 10 acre plots of tobacco and drying barns are much in evidence.

James Atterbury's daughter, Nancy, is recorded as marrying Jon Kessinger in 1800, at Bacon Creek in Hardin County. James is located on Bacon Creek on the 1805 Tax List, so this is likely where he settled after moving from South Carolina.

In 1808, James purchased 285 acres on the west side of the Nolin River, approximately six miles from the Bacon Creek location, in an area of Hardin County that would become Grayson County in 1810. The family is on the Tax Lists in this location for each year from 1808 through 1817.

In 1817, the lure of cheap, virgin land to the west once again prompted James to move his family, to what is now Cooper County, Missouri. They were accompanied by three married children [Nancy (Porter), James, Jr., and William] and their families. James' brother Thomas and family also came to the Cooper/Howard County area at about the same time. Other Atterbury families also moved, some to Missouri, some to Illinois, and still others spread across western Kentucky. About 1820, James moved again, just across the Missouri River, into Howard County.

James is found on the Howard County Tax Rolls in 1822, 1823, and 1824, as are his sons James, Jr., William, Ashford, Greenberry, and John. We believe that James' wife, Dorcas, probably died in Howard County in the 1820's, although several reports assume that she died later in Monroe County.

The disastrous Missouri River floods of 1826 and 1827 were probably the stimulus for the family's moves away from Howard County, beginning in 1827 with William's relocation to Monroe County (then part of Ralls County). During the next few years, James and his other sons all would move elsewhere in Missouri, but Thomas, James' brother, would remain in Howard County and die there after 1840.

Additional research is necessary to clarify where James lived the last ten or twelve years before his death in 1843. We note a James Atterberry on the 1835 Tax List for Monroe County, Missouri, but this James may be one of the sons of Elijah, our James' nephew. Hopefully, in the coming months we will uncover more material about James Atterbury and properly complete the history of this old pioneer.

James Atterbury died in Monroe County in 1843, the exact date unknown. He was about 85 years of age, and, hence, he likely lived with one of his relatives. No will or probate papers have been uncovered. James is buried in the old Cemetery (sometimes referred to as the "Willis Atterbury Cemetery") on the William Atterbury farm, four miles north of Madison, Missouri. The author and his brother, Tom Atterbury, have cleared, probed, and studied what has proved to be a rather large graveyard. However, the passage of time, the elements, large trees, and the affect of past farming activities have prevented us from identifying the exact location of James' grave or his headstone. To date, a loose marble footstone with the initials "J.A." is the only visible indication that James is buried here. But, thankfully, we have the record of a visit to this cemetery by Phil Russell Atterberry in 1960. An excerpt from Phil's letter to the Monroe County Historical Society noted "..... only parts of two stones were found. One had 'James Atterbury' in a curve across the top - but no dates or anything else - because it was broken off. Another similar piece of stone - which did not fit the first one said, 'died in his 79th year'. I saw no evidence of any DAR Revolutionary marker for James Atterbury."

[Comment: Among the records we have of many Atterbury/..Attebery families are several that give James Atterbury's year of birth as 1764, rather than the generally accepted 1758. If the piece of stone cited above "died in his 79th year" was, in fact, part of James' headstone, then the year he was born would be 1764. Hence, this piece of evidence should be considered when attempting to determine James' date of birth. However, being born in 1764 would mean he was only 16 years old when he married in 1780. We are very doubtful that he married at this young age.]

So ends the saga of James Atterbury's life: born in Virginia, raised a large family in South Carolina and Kentucky, sought virgin land in Missouri for he and his sons, moved hundreds of miles each time under very difficult conditions, a true pioneer in the American tradition. This same epic struggle was made by some of his descendants and other Atterbury/..Attebery families as they folowed the promise of a better life into Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Oregon, as well as other states west of the Mississippi River.

News and Views of our Atterbury/..Attebery Ancestors

October 3, 1998

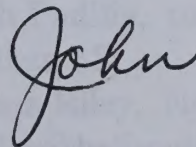

Special Edition

What has happened to the Atterbury/..Attebery Newsletter ? That is the essence of many letters, phone calls, and e-mail messages received in the last several months. We thank you for every single one. The last previous issue of the Newsletter was dated December 12, 1997. Hence, we have not published a new issue for almost 10 months. A new Newsletter was started in March, one we have not yet had time to complete.

We sincerely apologize to both our "old" readers and contributors, as well as the many new ones added to the mailing list in recent months. We especially apologize to those who continue to supply us with new Atterbury/..Attebery material and information. We certainly appreciate your indulgence.

We consider our mutual family history, and the Atterbury Family History Newsletter, to be our primary retirement vocation. Never have we undertaken such a revealing and rewarding task. Finding your place in a long and varied succession of many ancestors with many different surnames is very humbling. But, unfortunately, we have experienced a multitude of other time consuming projects and problems. And very important to us, we have not had time to do any personal research, which has been an integral part of many Newsletter articles. Nevertheless, there is no shortage of good material on hand for several future issues. However, we are facing at least two additional distractions in the not too distant future, so we cannot give you an expected date for the next issue of the Newsletter. Meanwhile, we would appreciate being kept informed about anything you feel is important to the understanding of our Atterbury/..Attebery family history.

Sincerely,

Handwritten text at the top of the page, possibly a header or title, including the word "Memorandum".

Main body of handwritten text, consisting of several paragraphs. The text is written in cursive and is mostly illegible due to fading and blurring.

Continuation of handwritten text, appearing as a separate section or paragraph. The handwriting remains cursive and is largely illegible.

Handwritten signature or initials at the bottom of the page.

Welcome to our New Readers

While the Newsletter itself has been inactive for 22 months, we have corresponded with many "old" and "new" cousins during this period. We have helped several with their research, and supplied clues to others trying to identify one or more of their elusive ancestors. The list of new readers added to the mailing list is long, so we will note only their name, state, and/or e-mail address, and, [in brackets], the son of William 1 from whom they descend, if the son is known:

Up and Running

We regret having a 22 month gap between issues of this Newsletter. Several reasons prevented any concentration on genealogy matters, and most of our time during the last seven months involved relocating to Sherwood, Arkansas (Grandma wanted to be closer to our grandkids; the new address is: 82 Shoshoni Dr., Sherwood, AR 72120.) We sincerely appreciate the many letters, e-mails, and phone calls concerning our well-being, as well as the status of this publication. Material we have received from many of you will form the basis for a number of interesting future Newsletter articles.

William Wallace Atterbury. . .

One of the more frequent inquiries we receive are those asking about Camp Atterbury, Indiana. Most, of course, wish to know for whom it is named, and some of the history related to the selection of this Army Base's name.

Camp Atterbury is named for General William Wallace Atterbury. William Wallace is a descendant of Job Atterbury, possibly the only other progenitor of American Atterbury/Atteberys other than our William(1). An ancestor common to both William(1) and Job, presently unknown, may be as far back as the mid 1500's. For this reason, we have devoted little time to the study and research of this line of Atterburys. Much of what we know of Job and his descendants can be found in the book The Descendants of Job Atterbury, by L. Effingham de Forest published in 1933, of which we have an original copy. The book can be read on L.D.S. microfilm #1033942. (As an aside, Mr. de Forest seems to have completely ignored the many other Atterbury/Atteberys who were already in the United States when Job's family arrived about 1798-1800.)

William Wallace Atterbury, b. Jan.31, 1866, in New Albany, Indiana, was the son of John Guest Atterbury and Catherine J. Larned. After college, he went to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad, progressing to V.P. of Operations by 1912. In August, 1917, William was granted leave of absence to direct the construction and operation of the U.S. Military Railways in France. He was commissioned a Brigadier General in Oct., 1917. After WWI, he returned to the Penn. RR, and became its president in Oct., 1925. He served in this position for many years. William Wallace died after 1933, the exact date unknown. (cont. on next column)

Plans to build Camp Atterbury were announced in 1941, and actual construction began in February, 1942. It opened for operation in June, 1942. There was some debate over the name of the camp, but "Atterbury" won out, probably aided by the fact that General Atterbury was a Indiana native. The Base has served several functions over the years, but it is still in use today, a facility of the Indiana National Guard.

Many older residents of the area probably best remember that Camp Atterbury included a Prisoner-of-War camp during WWII. More than 12,000 German and Italian POWs were held here and in satellite camps in the area. A POW Chapel was built by the Italians in 1943, and still stands today. Sadly, vandals have twice attempted to destroy the Chapel in recent weeks. The structure is intact, but some beautiful art work has been lost.

Less well known today is the fact that there were two Atterbury military installations in this area, near Columbus, Indiana. The second was the Atterbury Army Air Field, opened in Feb., 1943. It was renamed Atterbury Air Force Base after WWII, retaining this name until 1954, when it became Bakalar Air Force Base. Since 1977, it has served as the Columbus, Indiana, municipal airport.

In June of this year, Ruth Atteberry Adams put the writer in contact with Mr. Jim West of Franklin, Indiana. Jim is active in the development of a Museum at Camp Atterbury, and has a web site (www.shelbynet.net/~usaf71stsos) devoted to this facility, to the Atterbury Army Air Field, and to General Atterbury.

We have sent Jim everything we could find on General Atterbury, but if any of our readers has information not covered in the de Forest book you can e-mail him at jimwest@shelbynet.net. He would also welcome any information or stories about either of the two bases.

A "FAMILY" BUSINESS....

The Atterbury Motor Car Co.

Among the several major businesses established by Atterbury/..Atteberys during the last 150 years was the Atterbury Motor Car Co., located in Buffalo, New York. This company was founded by George Washington Atterbury(13771) who was born September 26, 1854, near Litchfield, Illinois. He was the son of Abraham Davis Atterbury and Julia (McFarland) Ogle. George was a great great grandson of William Atterbury(1), the English Emigrant, descending from Charles(13).

After graduating from McKendree College in Lebanon, Illinois, George worked for both G.E. and Westinghouse. For Westinghouse, he went to Buffalo in 1902 to advise the Brunn Carriage Co. on the design of electric cars. George, with great interest in motorized vehicles, founded Auto-Car Equipment Co. in 1903, and almost immediately received an order for 50 electric buses for the St. Louis Worlds Fair. The buses were designed by Atterbury, but largely built by the Brunn Co.

George's company began producing complete vehicles in 1905 and continued to grow. In 1909, the name of the firm was changed to the Atterbury Motor Car Co. The name is a bit misleading in that, during its existence, the firm produced trucks, delivery "wagons", and large passenger carrying vehicles called "Sight-Seeing Cars". An indication of the size of the company is that, by 1914, the factory space had grown to 250,000 sq. ft. While many early vehicles were electric, the company produced gasoline powered trucks for most of the 30+ years of its existence. Though the copies are poor, some examples of the Atterbury trucks are reproduced on page 4 of this Newsletter.

George retired from the company in 1915 and moved to California. He died in Woodland, California, on November 17, 1928. His obituary stated that the company which he founded had the distinction of being the oldest exclusively truck manufacturer in America.

After George's retirement, his son-in-law, James R. Spraker, became president and operated the firm until it was dissolved in about 1936. The Atterbury Motor Car Company, no doubt, suffered due to the depression and the growing competition from larger, growing firms such as General Motors.

George Washington Atterbury married, first, Ellen Grubbs, on March 12, 1882. Their only child, Hazel Atterbury Spraker (born May 29, 1883, died 1966 ?) is known by many Atterbury/..Attebery researchers as an avid genealogist. She also descends from Daniel Boone and wrote a well-known biography of his life. (But I can't recall the title!)

George married, second, Minerva Anderson, about 1892. They were the parents of six children; Mary Minerva, George William, Arthur Donald, Glen Wesley, Robert Bruce, and Virginia. Mary, George, Robert, and Virginia all died at a young age, leaving the descendants of Arthur Donald and Glen Wesley as the only direct descendants of the old Pioneer Truck Builder, George Washington Atterbury. (See "Mail Bag...").

[Much of the information in this article is from the second edition of a booklet compiled and published in 1992 by Mr. Herman Sass. The booklet, George W. Atterbury, Pioneer Truck Builder of Buffalo, New York, is also the source of the repros on page 4. Two recipients of this Newsletter, Ted Attebery of Lake Charles, Louisiana, and Ted's aunt, Reva Abbott, of Enid, Ok. first made me aware of the existence of the Atterbury Motor Car Co. Ted and his son, Ted, Jr., have a truck dealership in Lake Charles.]

ATTEBERRY KIN

In January, 1999, Marguerite Atteberry Emmons launched a new quarterly newsletter Atteberry Kin, dedicated to the descendants of Richard 188 and his father Thomas 18. Marguerite is an especially capable genealogist and the first four issues reflect her desire for accuracy.

Many readers of this Newsletter will find pertinent articles of interest in this new publication. Marguerite welcomes submissions and questions, particularly from those descendants who trace back to Thomas 18.

If you are interested, you can correspond with her at: 9900 Miranda Drive, Raleigh, NC 27613-7659. Marguerite's e-mail address is: emmons@gte.net

London, England, Research

In recent weeks, we have picked up where we left off 18 months ago. Our search of old English records (via microfilms from the LDS Mormon Library) is presently dedicated to two areas of interest: 1) The search for additional information to confirm that the William Atterbury, born June 21, 1710, is the same William transported to Maryland in April, 1733; and, 2) Identify the parents of William Atterbury, the blacksmith and grandfather of the above William (b. 1710). This link is necessary to tie our line into earlier generations of Atterburys in England. Our recent page-by-page search (there is no index) of the 1660-1667 original Parish Registers of St. Giles-Cripplegate uncovered no new information.

ATTERBURY FAMILY

This new family history book, written and compiled by Wayne Atteberry, is the most complete treatise ever published on our Atterbury/./Attebery family. Wayne's contribution deserves the thanks and appreciation of all descendants of our American progenitor, William 1. This book of some 953 pages can be considered a milestone in the on-going research effort to accurately determine the facts about all of our ancestors and their descendants.

The only previous "complete" book on Atterbury/./Attebery family history, The Descendants of William Atterbury, 1733 English Emigrant, itself a milestone, was compiled by Voncille Winter and Wilma Mitchell, and published in 1984. Wayne's book, with the advantage of 14 years of additional research, is an excellent addition to the growing fund of knowledge about our family history.

Wayne recognizes his book, Atterbury Family, likely will have errors, omissions, and incomplete family lines. Never-the-less, the book is a treasure of information for anyone interested in Atterbury/./Attebery family history. The book can be purchased direct from Wayne Atteberry, 1411 South College, Salem, IL 62881. The cost, including shipping, is $89.95. A very slightly defective copy can be purchased for $79.95.

THE MAIL BAG...

A new addition to the Newsletter Mailing list is Benedict Adams. He is not a direct Atterbury/..Attebery descendant, but his grandfather, William Morse Anderson, was a brother of Minerva Anderson, the second wife of George Washington Atterbury (see article on Atterbury Motor Car Co., this issue). Benedict is striving to make contact with any of the descendants of Minerva and George. Hence, we ask that if any reader of this Newsletter has information about the children or grandchildren of the two surviving sons of Minerva and George, please let us know.

The two sons, now deceased, are Arthur Donald Atterbury and Glen Wesley Atterbury. Don's children were Virginia Catherine (b.1933, m. James McElroy), and Sally. Virginia's children were Katherine and Sally McElroy.

Many thanks to Linda Attebery Carpenter, Ruth Atteberry Adams, Marguerite Emmons, Wayne Atteberry, Jim Atteberry, and many others for the continuing flow of Atterbury/..Attebery information. While we still receive several letters by regular mail each week, more of our correspondence now comes by e-mail. Never-the-less, each bit of info adds to the overall knowledge of our extended family history.

Simon Atterbury, of Ilford, County Essex, England, mentioned in an e-mail message ".....in the early Tudor period in England, many Atterburys changed their name to Townsend". This information was given to Simon's father about ten years ago by Leslie Townsend. We will ask Leslie to comment on this point in our next letter to him. The "early Tudor period" would be the early 1500's, during (cont. next column) the reigns of Henry VII (1485-1509) and Henry VIII (1509-1547). The name change may have been a result of the Monarchy's concerted effort to stamp out the spread of Protestantism in the 1520-1540 period. While this point does not appear to affect our current 1600-1700's English research, it will need to be considered when and if research reaches the early to mid 1500's. This will be especially true if some who changed their name to "Townsend" to escape persecution later reverted back to "Atterbury".

To all of which we can only add; "ain't family research hard enough already !!"

Jay Atteberry, one of our new readers, first contacted the writer by telephone in February of this year. In addition to his pedigree, Jay also provided a detailed biography of Sir Francis Atterbury, and an excellent original photograph of a portrait of Sir Frances, neither of which we had seen before.

Jay is trying to determine when his great grandfather, Francis Marion Atteberry, came to Texas. Francis M. was born June 22, 1843, in Illinois, and died May 10, 1907, in Westminster, Collin County, Texas.

Another new reader, Barbara Attebury Bowman, needs help to identify her Attebery family line. Her known ancestors are:

Father- Wilburn Carroll, born in Oklahoma Grandfather- William Clifford, b. 11-12-1899 in Indian Territory (maybe Cartersville or Iron Bridge), married Tressie McClellan Great grandfather- Thomas Franklin, b. Ark.
 Great-great grandfather- Thomas Jefferson, married Laura Irvin, lived in Arkansas.
 Thomas' father was Moses.

If any of our readers have knowledge or info. about this family, let us know or contact Barbara by e-mail at BASWEDY@aol.com

The Mail (and e-mail) Bag

Linda Attebery Carpenter has extracted all of the key genealogical data in the book The Descendants of Job Atterbury, published in 1933 by L. Effingham de Forest. Linda's work is an excellent supplement to the original publication, since it readily shows the relationship between all of Job's descendants (up to 1933).

To my knowledge, none of the recipients of this Newsletter descend from Job. So you might well ask, why should we have any interest in Job, de Forest's book, or Linda's supplement? Here is why: First, today the descendants of Job Atterbury live nationwide, intermixed with the descendants of our William (1). Second, there are a number of readers and others who have not yet made a connection to William (1). Lastly, William Benjamin, believed to be one of Job's sons, lived in Hopkinsville, Kentucky in the 1820's, where two or more of his children were born. Hopkinsville, in Christian County, is in the same general area of Kentucky where many Atterbury/..Attebery families lived. We know of no mix-up or confusion because of this close proximity, but the possibility does exist.

Linda's "Job" extraction is in a GedCom format, and can be found at www.Ancestry.com, or you may contact her via e-mail at crpntr@earthlink.net.

In Arizona Senator (and presidential candidate) John McCain's autobiography, Faith of my Fathers, Linda notes that McCain mentions a fellow prisoner, Ed Atterbury, who was tortured and died in captivity. To what family line does Ed Atterbury belong? Anyone know?

An Editorial

Genealogy, the Internet, and Computers

There is no doubt the Internet has sparked the latent interest many people have in their ancestry. Generally, many seem to be folks who, before computers, attempted little or no actual research on their family history. But, it is evident some newcomers to family history work have been lured by the mistaken impression that by owning a computer and securing access to the Internet, they can easily learn "everything" about their ancestors.

Yes, there are literally thousands of places ("web sites") where information can be found and studied, or reveal clues about one's ancestors. But among these sites, in the form of family trees, queries, record "transcripts", and other types of information (even Newsletters!), we note a great amount of incorrect and often misleading information. While some sites may include some original documentation, generally, primary source material can only be found in the same old places - County Courthouses, local, state, and national archives, Cemeteries, and filmed records of original documents available through LDS Family History Centers.

True, a few individuals may be lucky enough to find an accurate extensive pedigree and history of their family posted on the web. But it will only be trustworthy because the author-compiler spent hundreds of hours in serious research at those Courthouses, etc., and like most genealogists, chose to share that research with his(her) extended family.

With the expanding interest in the Internet, and at the speed it is growing, no doubt we will see a fairly rapid increase in the amount of factual genealogical records available "online". In the meantime, however, we are concerned about incorrect and undocumented data being propagated through the Internet,

Marguerite Emmons, an avid researcher and publisher of a fine Newsletter, Atteberry Kin, has prepared an extensive, eight page, study "A Tale of Four Thomas's". As most Atterbury/./Attebery researchers know, there is some confusion between the several early Thomas's in our family. Marguerite is striving to correctly identify each Thomas and place him in the proper family line. Marguerite reports, however, some do not agree with her conclusions. Even so, the considerable amount of documentation Marguerite compiled for this study must be considered by anyone researching these Atterbury/./Attebery lines.

If Marguerite agrees, we will attempt to summarize "...Four Thomas's" in the next issue.

and assumed to be factual by newcomers to family history work.

Not to be overlooked, if you do own a computer, several of the genealogy programs have CD's available with a huge amount of genealogical data. The program Family Tree Maker, for example, offers more than 100 CD's with census, marriage, land, immigration, and other records, all extracted from original documents. They also offer CD's with their "World Family Tree" information. These are family tree "charts" submitted by individuals, many of which are filled with erroneous information.

In summary, a computer and the Internet can be good genealogical tools. But, together, they are only one of many tools a family historian must use to research and document the history of his or her family.

Many can attest that we attempt to help "new" cousins who inquire almost daily via the e-mail. Our "favorite" e-mail message reads as follows: "Please send me a complete history of my grandfather and his ancestors". (The grandfather was not named!).

Beyond A Reasonable Doubt . . .

Once again, we are preparing a list of our genealogical goals for the new year. This year's lengthy initial list led us into a review of the information we know to be a documented fact, as well as some of the many items we, and others, can only assume to be true. Most of these assumptions have a good, logical foundation, but nevertheless, they are assumptions.

In genealogy matters, you either consider an event to be a "fact", or only assume it to be "probable", based on the type of evidence available. If that evidence stems, for example, from an entry in the original Marriage Register at a County Courthouse, you can normally accept the marriage and the date it occurred as a documented fact. At times, however, one piece of evidence alone falls far short of proving something to be true. It may require several bits of circumstantial evidence to permit one to even assume that a particular event is probably true.

Some examples of important items in our Atterbury/Attebery lineage that do not, as yet, have firm documentation, but we currently assume to be true, are:

1). The William Atterbury, born in London, St. Giles-Cripplegate Parish, June 21, 1710, is the same William, noted as a laborer in the Parish of St. James, that committed the theft of 5 yards of linsey-woolsey and was transported to Maryland in April, 1733, aboard the ship Patapscoe Merchant.

2). The William Atterbury, arriving in Maryland in April, 1733, to serve a 7 year sentence "...on one of His Majestyes Plantations in America" is the same William who married Sarah Mitchell Yacksley c.1742.

Our Argentina Cousins

We get so engrossed in our study and research of our English ancestors that we overlook the fact Atterburys did emigrate to other places in the world besides America. A very interesting example is Charles Fraser Norton Atterbury. Though born in Australia and reared in England, he lived most of his life as a citizen of Argentina.

Charles is the great-grandfather of Eugenia Atterbury of Buenos Aires, Argentina, who we introduced on page 1 as one of our new readers. We became acquainted with Eugenia via e-mail through Ruth Adams and Jim Atteberry. Eugenia has compiled a very good summary of her Atterbury ancestry, which we believe you will find interesting.

Charles F. N. Atterbury was born April 2, 1886, in Sydney, Australia. His parents were Basil John Atterbury and Elenora Poole. Basil was an English Engineer on extended assignment in Australia. The family returned to England where Charles grew up and studied engineering like his father.

Charles came to Argentina in 1913 to do engineering work for a new railroad, but remained in Argentina and married Amandea Lopez. They were the parents of 6 children, including Carlos Jose Atterbury, Eugenia's grandfather. Carlos Jose, a Doctor of Medicine, married Maria Chambeau and were also the parents of 6 children, including Carlos Alberto Atterbury, who is retired from the Argentina Military service and the father of Eugenia.

Carlos Alberto married Marie del Pilar Cosci, and were the parents of four daughters, Eugenia being the second eldest.

Eugenia has done considerable research on her family, but has several obstacles in that she finds, in addition to her English Atterburys, she also has French, Spanish, and Italian ancestors. A formidable task, indeed !

The descendants of Charles Fraser Norton Atterbury have accredited themselves nicely in the economic and social structure of their country. Among Charles' descendants are doctors, dentists, lawyers, engineers, chemists and accountants. Eugenia herself is a fashion designer.

As noted in the introduction of Eugenia Atterbury on page one, this Argentine line of Atterburys possibly descends from Sir Frances Atterbury, but no connection has yet been made.

Beyond a Reasonable Doubt (from p. 3)

No documented evidence of their marriage has been found. (It has been my opinion for years that Sarah was probably ostracized by her father, John Mitchell, for marrying a man convicted, sentenced, and then served a seven year term for theft. John's Will of 1748 does note a token gift to Sarah, but directs a much larger inheritance to Elizabeth "Yaxley", Sarah's daughter by her first marriage. Sarah and William's first three sons, all likely born before 1748, were not cited in the will.) Hence , the marriage was likely a civil event, and not in the St. Barnabas Church in Leeland, Maryland, where many of the Mitchell family events are recorded.

3). As with the Thomas's (see The Mail Bag, page 2), there is an equal amount of confusion among the many early James in Atterbury/./Attebery families. For several years it has been our intent to attempt to properly align each James in his correct family line. After James, the son of William (1), there are at least 12 James in the next two generations. This, then, represents a huge research task, one we have barely begun.

So, in Family History research, there is never a shortage of things to do.

First William (1) . . .

. . . Then Job . . .

. . . Now George . (? ?)

Until recently, we knew of no male progenitors of today's American Atterbury/./Atteberys other than our William(1), and his distant cousin, Job. As we know, William came in 1733, and Job and his family arrived about 1800. [This does not overlook other Atterburys documented to have been in the Colonies, but who left no known descendants. Also, we know of one female, Sarah Ann Atterbury, born in England in 1843 and came to America as the wife of William Vie.]

Reviewing a new set of World Family Tree CDs (Vol.37, No.1249), we stumbled upon a George Atterbury, who was noted as born in England in 1863 and said to have emigrated to the United States in 1880. George and his known descendants were included in Tree 1249, the primary family line for which is "Smith". We have corresponded with the person submitting this tree, but we are still not clear on many of the details. This article is written in the event someone wishes to explore this line in greater depth.

George was noted as the son of William Atterbury, his mother's name not given. Later, however, the submitter said on the above George's death certificate, his father's name was George, and his mother Harriet. The younger George's parents did not come to America.

George married Susan T. McMillian Jan. 22, 1883, in Mass. They were the parents of 12 children, six sons and six daughters. No offspring were shown for any of the sons. The married surnames for the daughters were Leach, Dowd, McNaughton, and Vanasse.

You Have a Cousin in the Business . . .

We appreciate the favorable comments received on the Atterbury Motor Car Co. article in the October, 1999, issue of this Newsletter. During the last eight years, we have accumulated information on several other Atterbury/./Attebery companies, including:

Atterbury Glass Co.

Atterbury Brothers Circus

Arterberry Winery

We also know of a number of local or regional firms that were founded and are (or were) operated by Atterbury/./Attebery cousins. Some of them are:

Atteberry Hotel, Clarendon, Texas

Attebury Grain Elevator Co.,

Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico

Atteberry Truck Sales, Inc.,

Lake Charles, Louisiana

Atteberry Construction Co.,

Kimberling City, Missouri

Atteberry Construction Co., Dallas, Texas

Attebury Forestry Consultants,

Oregon and Washington

Attebery Printing, Inc.,

Logansport, Indiana

Attebery Welding and Crane Service,

Laramie, Wyoming

Atteberry Machine And Tool Co.,

Mt. Erie, Illinois

We realize there are very likely many companies under other names and owned by Atterbury/./Atteberys, as well as Atterbury/./Attebery descendants with other surnames who own and operate a business.

Readers who know of Atterbury/./Attebery businesses are encouraged to let us know about them. We are especially interested in those that existed before 1900, and any that are unique in the product or service they offer.

Atterbury Glass Company

During the last several years, we have accumulated information on the history of the Atterbury Glass Co., of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Much of our material has come from long-time contributors Reva Abbott, Linda Carpenter, Bernice Ehlers, and my nephew, Bill Atterbury.

First, just what is "Atterbury Glass" ? The glassware produced by this company was primarily fancy tableware in the form of plates, saucers, cups, glasses, bowls, and a variety of covered dishes. The other major line was kerosene lamp parts, consisting of chimneys and globes. As the company grew, much of their product line became more ornate, including many so-called "milk glass" items. Hence, they were used more and more for decorative purposes. Today, surviving Atterbury Glass tableware pieces are collectors items and highly sought after.

The firm that would become the Atterbury Glass Co. was founded in 1860 in Pittsburgh by James Seaman Atterbury (b. Feb.3, 1827, in New York City) and his brother Thomas Bakewell Atterbury (b. Mar.2, 1831, in Pittsburgh). James and Thomas were the sons of Benjamin Bakewell Atterbury, and the grandsons of Job Atterbury. As you know, Job came to America about 1800, and is very likely a distant cousin of our William (1). (Hence, James and Thomas are not descendants of William Atterbury, our 1733 Emigrant.)

Beginning at an early age, James learned the glass trade at Bakewell, Pierce & Co., glass manufacturer in Pittsburgh. (Apparently, Bakewell Glass products are also collectors' items.) Benjamin Bakewell was his great uncle, who likely was in the glass business in England before coming to America.

Thomas Atterbury's business career began with the firm Warwick, Atterbury & Co., a Pittsburgh manufacturer of builders' hardware. He left this firm in 1860 to join with his brother, James, to start the Glass company.

Their new company was first known as Hale & Atterbury, James and Thomas being joined in the venture by their brother-in-law, James Hale. Hale was an expert glass blower, but left the company after two years.

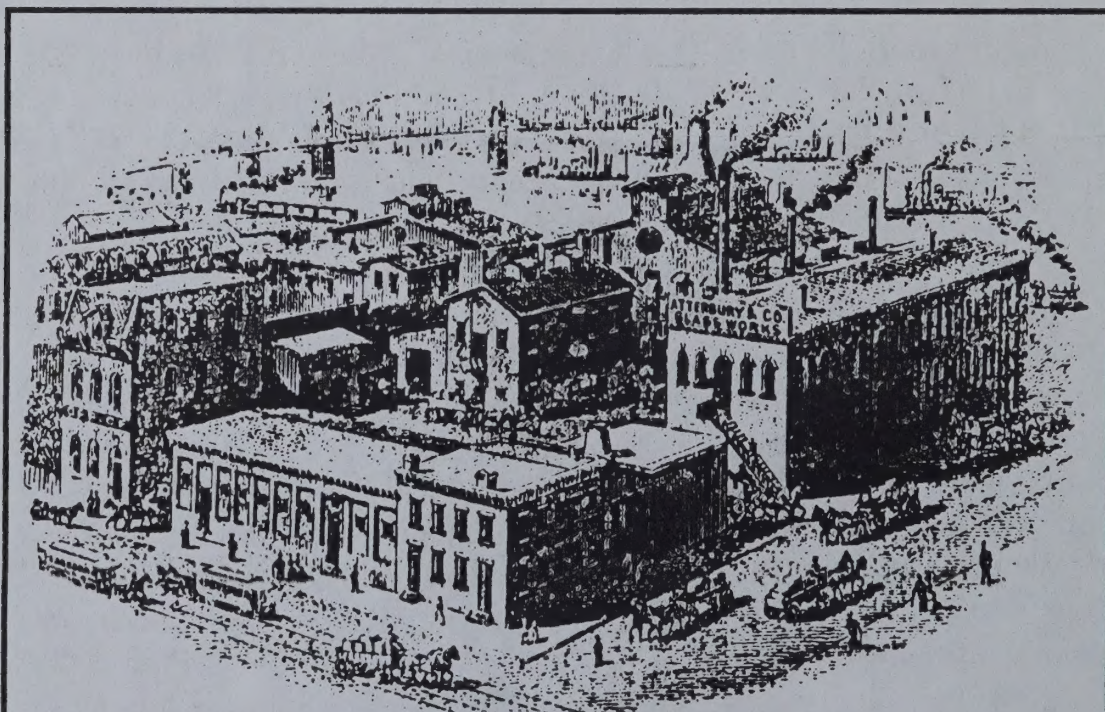

Their new company grew steadily, and James and Thomas were recognized as being among the industrial leaders of Pittsburgh. Eventually, the glass products of the Atterbury Glass Co. were sold both nationwide and overseas.

James and Thomas were awarded over 100 patents, most of these for new methods of manufacturing glass products. In 1876, at Philadelphia's Centennial Exhibition, the firm won an award for its lamp chimneys and globes. Atterbury covered dishes, made of opal or milk glass featured animal designs—rabbits, ducks, chicks, bulls, and boars heads. Other items for which the firm is known include pressed glassware that incorporates a figure on the bottom that could be painted to resemble a cameo.

James Atterbury died March 11, 1894. His brother, Thomas, died May 29, 1895. The Atterbury Glass Co. continued with that name until 1903, when it merged with another company (name unknown to the writer). We believe, however, the new firm continued the line of Atterbury Glass for a number of years.

Reva Abbott, a charter member among contributors to this Newsletter, once had an extensive collection of Atterbury Glass. She has since given it to her children and grandchildren, so the glassware does remain in her family. We attempted to reproduce photographs we have of her collection, but our copier refuses to convey the inherent beauty of these exquisite pieces. When reasonable reproductions of these photos can be made, we will include them in a future issue.

REUNION TIME is almost here! Is your calendar marked for June 17th? Will you join your relatives for a day of fun at Red Rock Canyon?

The Association Directors met on March 12th to make plans for this year's reunion. Briefly, here are their decisions:

- This year's reunion will be at Red Rock Canyon, where we already have a reservation (map is shown at end of newsletter), but a new location will be found for 1990.
- Following tradition, the directors will furnish the drinks. Wanda & Jay Chase will bring their ice machine and microwave oven. From our general fund, the general supply needs of plates, forks & spoons, cups, etc. will be supplied. (actually Arlie did such a good job last year that little needs to be purchased.) Bring your covered dishes and enjoy food prepared by someone else.
- Some games will be enjoyed this year. Lisa Quesada is in charge of games. If you have musical talent, please call Lisa.
- Our financial condition is not good (see the report in this newsletter). If dues do not come in at a better rate, the newsletter may need to be discontinued. You will recall that dues are $5 per household per year. If everyone paid dues, we would be in excellent financial condition. Unfortunately, less than 30 households paid dues in 1988-89. The newsletter goes to approximately 175 households.

FROM THE MAILBAG

From Ella Robertson 165558, comes news of the death of her sister, Amanda Attebery Simmons, last July 31, 1988. Amanda was 89 years of age and, until recently, enjoyed good health. Before the death of Amanda, Ella had sold her home and moved into Amanda's. Please change your records of Ella's address to: 210 W. Francis, Madill, OK 73446. Ella also wrote that she hoped to attend the reunion this year. If so, you senior citizens best watch out, she may take the prize for being the eldest relative present. Ella & her immediate line have a special place in the hearts of Voncille & Wilma. They are the closest relatives located when the book was being written. She is a second cousin once removed (she and our fathers were second cousins).

A newspaper article listing the death of Gwendolyn F. Arterberry, 61, of Sherman, Grayson County, Texas, a retired technical communications instructor, was received. Services were March 14, 1989. Can anyone identify her?

From Nora Bishop Fleming, 1812 Castleton Dr., Troy, Michigan 48083, a request for a copy of the book. Unfortunately, there are no more copies of the second printing. A list is being prepared for a third printing, but orders of 50 or more will be needed before we can go to press. Nora is a granddaughter of Lucy Jane Atteberry, shown in the book on page 289 as Lucy B. (Lute) Atteberry 14x14x35. She corrects some of the information we had. She writes "My grandmother was Lucy Jane Atteberry, daughter of William Reason Atteberry. She married a man with the surname Anglin and, after his death, married Wellington Eugene (Will) Bishop. Born in Barnhill, December 21, 1875, she was a resident of Tulsa (at my parents' home) when she died in her mid-nineties. Most of my family are still in the Tulsa area -- one brother lives in Moore, working as a x-ray technician at Children's Hospital, and I am the lone out-of-stater here in Michigan. Grandma has two surviving children, Vivian Anglin Gray in California and Betty Bishop Brown (Daisy Tryphena) in Tulsa."

From Rita Hill Pullum, a new address of 4902 Sierra Madre, San Antonio, TX 78233, comes with an interesting update of her research on the Hill line. You will recall that John 16 was married to Sally Hill, and that Robert Watts Atteberry 16546 was reared by a Hill identified to his descendants only as "an uncle." Nathan 1654, the father of Robert Watts, was buried in cemetery with many Hills. To date we have not made the connection between the South Carolina Hills and the Texas Hills. Rita has been very generous in sharing her information, so we may yet make the correct association. Thanks, Rita.

From the Oklahoma League for the Blind, a financial summary that reports 1988 workshop contracts of $3,378,593. Of that $2,989,089 was spent on wages and benefits. How proud Oliver Rue Atteberry 1654621 would have been! Oliver was blind and "made it" as a doctor. He and a few other professional individuals who were also blind organized the League in the late '40s. Oliver devoted many hours to the project, with the philosophy that everyone - regardless of handicap - had the right to the dignity of earning their own living. Please remember Oliver as you allocate your charitable contributions each year.

Frm Dr. Robert A. Atterbury, Oak Park, Illinois, comes a note about a sales pitch from Halbert's, Inc. for a book called "The New World Atterburys -- A Complete Registry." As Robert suspected, this is a listing from the telephone books of the major cities in the United State. If you are really into research, you might get some leads from the book, but the book itself reports no research nor the relationship of the names listed. Be careful what you buy - there are many con artists out there.

From Mildred Cole, comes an invitation to a reunion of the R. J. Atteberry Family Reunion on July 9, 1989, at the KYCC Building in Kingston, Oklahoma. This group has a nice reunion - Wilma, Nolan, Bill & Voncille attended last year.

From Wilma Mitchell, a note about the marriage of Mark Leroy Gray 16546593 on 4 March 1989 to Julia Nadrichal, whose birthdate is 29 July 1959. Julia has a son, David Wayne Nadrichal, who was born 26 September 1986.

Also from Wilma Mitchell, sad news of the death of Steven Robert Martin 16546411. He was the only son of R. J. & Harvine Martin. Our thoughts and prayers are with them.

Wanda & Nolan Mitchell had the pleasure of two trips to "the coast" (one to each coast) last Fall & Winter. In November, they accompanied Jay & Wanda Chase to the wedding of their son, Kenneth Jay Chase 16546561, in San Jose CA. Details of the wedding will be given later. There is a possibility that Ken will bring his new bride, Christina, to the reunion.

They stopped in Bakersfield CA to visit an uncle, Richard "Dick" Martin 142374x11, their eldest living uncle. The wedding was a reunion for their immediate family. Bob & Bette Attebery were there with their new granddaughter, Jennifer Anna King 165465411, and her parents, Marilyn & Robert King; Lyn Attebery 1654757 and his daughter, Kimberly; Joleen Crowe Steele 16546551 with husband Brent & four children; Tony Crowe 16546552 with wife Susan & two children; Sarah Jayne Reynaud Walters 165465331 with husband Jeff; and Clint Bragg, Jr. 165465323 with his father, Clint.

In January, the Mitchells were off again to the other coast with their granddaughter, Michelle Jarke 165465322, to pick up her car at the Naval Station, Norfolk VA. You will recall that Michelle had served a tour of duty with the U.S. Air Force in Germany. They took the backroads and toured the countryside. Be sure to ask Wilma about the trip.

On the way home, Wilma & Nolan visited Phil Attebery 1654675 & wife Joyce at Ashland TN. They met Phil's two eldest sons, and submit the following information for your lineage chart:

- 16546752 Wesley Carl Attebery, b 8 Nov 1957, m Linda Jane Head 15 April 1983
at Mt. Carmel United Methodist Church, Clarksville TN
- 165467521 Lindsey Jane Attebery, b 21 Sept 1983
- 165467522 Casey Nicole Attebery, b 2 April 1987
- 16546753 David Lee Attebery, b 4 Aug 1961, m Tracie Fichtner 10 Mar 1984 at St. Paul Catholic Church, Houston TX
- 165467531 Cody Lee Attebery, b 23 Aug 1988, Cypress TX

Phil & Joyce operate a pig farm, with cattle, hay, corn, wheat & grass, as well as tobacco. A true "planter" who returned to the land!

From Rosanne Stelting Foote 1315x13x555, comes news that Bernice Attebery, wife of Ned Atteberry 1315x13x32, is recuperating from back surgery. She also reported that Ruby Pace, a sister of Ned, Opal & Lena, died of a heart attack on April 1, 1989.

From Mary Stelting 1315x13x55, comes news that she met a Patricia Atteberry at a workshop recently. Patricia lives in Blackwell and is married to Winton C. Atteberry. Mary has no further details. Can you identify this family?

NOTES FROM THE EDITOR:

Writing your newsletter for the past five years has been fun! I feel that I know many of you much better, for which I am grateful. Since I love people, increased contacts are great. As with most good things, there have been some frustrations. Shortage of news is a major problem. Shortage of funds is another.

I ask you now - Is it time to discontinue the newsletter? I don't want to spend the time & effort to prepare one if it is not enjoyed at least by a majority of the recipients. Let me know your wishes.

Second questions - should we discontinue sending it to those who pay no dues? A projected financial statement is shown on p 4 for your consideration.

REUNION 1989 was great! The monsoon season cooperated and gave us a lovely day of sunshine and cool breezes. The food was delicious, with the noon meal lasting until almost 4 pm, when everyone loaded up to head home with pleasant memories and anticipation for 1990. Much visiting took place with everyone talking at once, & enjoying every minute of it. Entertainment involved swimming, horseshoes & ball. But, the highlight of the entertainment were some musical skits presented by young girls under the leadership of Rosanne Swiney 1315x13x555. The girls were: Brandy Kelly, 12, Kristina Swiney, 10, and Kelli Kay January, about 10-12, with a young mascot, Natasha Swiney, 1½, who stole the show. Baby pictures of those present provided additional entertainment for an "Identify the Baby" game.

During the short business meeting, it was decided to find another location for REUNION 1990. The Association Directors were reelected and instructed to locate another meeting place. Please let your representative, or any of the Directors, know your preference.

(NOTE to the Association Directors: Please plan to meet on September 17, 1989, at the Winter home for a 1990 Planning Session. Please investigate all suggested possibilities and come with some concrete proposals (costs, etc.) to help the group make a good decision.)

A special surprise guest at this year's reunion was Sharon Atteberry from Newberg, Oregon, accompanied by her brother, Larry Atteberry. Sharon is a genealogist, who has actively been researching the Atteberry line for some years. Some of her work is in the book published in 1984.

Sharon comes from the line of Nathan Atterbury 15, Moses Atterbury 152 listed on 1820 Census in Tennessee, George Washington Arterberry 1523, James Oliver Arterberry 15236, who was born in Jackson Co TN and died near Idabel OK, John Valentine Atteberry 152363, of Elkland MO, Fern Atteberry 1523633 of Elkland MO, John Andrew Atteberry 15236335, who was born in Elkland MO and migrated to Newberg OR. Sharon's number is 152363352. Her story is the typical migratory story of the clan. From Nathan in South Carolina in 1790, through Tennessee, Missouri & on to Oregon. The ancestor who died in Idabel OK was visiting a son. Apparently, Charles Washington Attebery 152364 migrated to Southeastern Oklahoma. His wife was Rosie and his children were: Herbert, Sarah, Hershel, & Hallie. We may have confused him with the line of another Charles 1383, who lived in the Northeast Texas area. The line of Nathan 138 has not been identified to the satisfaction of Voncille & Wilma.

As an aside, there are 13 Atterbury families found in the London, England, phone book. No deviations of any type. We Americans should be so true to our heritage!

FROM THE MAILBAG

FROM CLARA BROCK 1315x13x11 comes the news that she is unable to attend this year's reunion for health reasons. She fell & broke her left arm on May 13th. Clara sent a clipping from the Guthrie Daily Leader, April 1936, which you may enjoy:

PIONEER WAS DUBIOUS ABOUT SOIL'S WORTH - LARGE TURNIPS CONVINCED SUSANNA
REMINGTON OF FERTILITY OF GROUND

Although she was nearing the centurn mark, Susanna Remington, 92, who resides at 1211 East Harrison Ave., Guthrie, vividly recalls her trip to Oklahoma shortly after the famous opening in 1889. Here is her story:

"On coming to Oklahoma in the year of 1891, my husband, N.M. Remington, bought and settled on the A.O. Farquharson place which is now known as the Price Billings farm, two and one-half miles Northwest of Laurie.

"My husband chartered a car (editor's note: this was railroad car) from Swanton, Nebraska, bringing our livestock, implements, household goods and our provisions.

Was Discouraged

"My four girls and I stopped off at the little town of Mulhall and stayed at the hotele there for four days until my husband and a neighbor man that came with the livestock, moved our household goods to the new home.

"I was so discouraged on coming. Seeing this country, I thought from the way the soil looked we would not be able to raise anything.

"The man at the hotel said he would show me what could be raised in this soil. The next day he brought in some of the finest turnips and cabbage I had ever seen.

"There was no school house at all, and Mrs. Dan Bennett held Sunday School in her house until a school house was built.

Had Happy Days

"The school house was called the 4-B house, and it is called that yet, because 4-B's stood for the four corners where it was built.

"There were hard but happy days, as everyone was on the equal. I never dreamed of seeing paved roads, cars, airplanes and oil wells. There certainly is a contrast from the way things were then as to the way ther are now."

Mrs. Remington's fingers are almost as busy as they were in pioneer days. She pieces quilts and embroiders.

Thanks, Clara, for an excellent reminder of the past. Please get well soon.

FROM E. D. RAYBURN comes word that he is looking forward to retirement in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area and will attend the reunions after his retirement. As you will recall, E.D. (Dave) is in Kenya. He has sent information on his family line, and we look forward to some good travel reports from him.

FROM NADINE JOHANSEN comes word of a Johansen-Atteberry Family Reunion at the lake on the West side of Sebago La, ME. They are on Rt. 114, 6½ miles North of Sebago Lake Village. Phone number is 207/787-3661. All Atteberrys who might be in the East during the weekend of July 15-16 are invited. You will recall that Nadine & her husband Harold attended the 1986 Reunion at Red Rock Canyon and did a video tape, which was shown in 1987. They had 10 children and Nadine has submitted some info on her family line, with more to come. Nine of the 10 are still alive, and there are now 23 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

FROM NED & BERNICE ATTEBERRY comes word of lung surgery for Bernice. She promises to get well soon and they plan to attend the 1990 reunion.

MAILBAG (continued)

FROM ALVIN ARTERBURY comes word that he missed the reunion for a visit to Arizona to see his son. You missed a good one, Alvin, but that relationship with children must be nurtured also.

DALTON ATTEBERY called to say he would miss the reunion because he would be out of state visiting relatives. His R.J. Attebery 16555 line had a reunion in Kingston on July 9, 1989. Someone, please send a report for the newsletter.

FROM MARGUERITE HANNA GREGORY 1366373 comes word that she and her husband now have a mobile home just 6 or 7 miles from the area where Thomas Atterbury 121 lived and died - the Southeast side of "Bald Knob", now known as "Pruitt's Knob" in Barren County, KY. She visited the old Buford's Mill, where Thomas took his grain to be ground. She has pictures and copies of marriage licenses for several of her children, which she will be glad to share with any of his descendants. Her address is: 134 S. 11th Avenue, Beech Grove, IN 46107.

FROM BRIDGET & PHILLIP ANDERSON 16546742 comes word of their first child -
165457421 Christina LeAnn Anderson, b 26 April 1989 6 lb 9 oz
Welcome to our family, Christina!

FROM BUSTER & KATHY BASS 16546233 comes word of a lovely trip to Washington D.C. with their two daughters, Rachael & Kelli. Excellent educational experience for our young combined with family fun time together!

FROM BARBARA ATTEBERY SCOTT 13213232 comes word about a trip to Lake Tahoe where her husband John will present a paper at the Western Economics meeting. They will also have a visit with daughter Anne & her husband Loarn Robertson. The Robertsons will soon be moving to Bakersfield CA where some other members of the clan are located. Hope they can get together. Barbara's line held a reunion at Hillsboro, Illinois in Late July. Wouldn't it be great if we could have all these reunions together?

FROM SHARON ATTEBERY in Paola KS comes word that weddings in her family have kept her from attending reunions for the last three years. Send details, Sharon, for the newsletter. She also reaffirmed her promise to do research on Michael Arterberry b ca 1834 in Davidson Co Tennessee.

FROM EDNA ATTEBERRY WALTERS, granddaughter of Delbert Atteberry 14x13x13, comes word that her father Frank, age 84, is in a nursing home doing quite well. Edna has a pacemaker and now enjoys good health. She is working on extending her line. Keep up the good work, Edna, and send in what you have.

FROM CARLTON BROOKS comes word that ANNA MAE ATTEBERY BROOKS 165468 is not doing well with her heart condition. Mae Brooks is the matriarch of the 16546 line and will turn 85 on August 5. Let's all give her a shower of birthday and get-well cards! We love you, Aunt Mae!

If you want to be assured that a special relative, a child, an elderly relative or anyone else will continue to receive the newsletter, you may pay dues for them.

You will recall that dues are $5 annually per household. Previously, dues paying has been on an honor system with no individual records maintained. Effective with the '89-'90 year, the records will indicate which individuals have paid dues.

Voncille Winter 1654626

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: This newsletter was scheduled to be published in early December! I have been so negligent in my duties that I have fully expected to be "relieved of duty" before now. I would certainly hate to lose this job since the pay is so good! You are entitled to an explanation for the delay.

Thanksgiving was a great time for the 165462 Attebery Clan as we all gathered in Southeast Oklahoma for five lovely days. Afterwards, I had to catch up with my paying job and get ready for Christmas. On December 22nd, my mother-in-law fell and broke a leg. It has been downhill for her since then and her problems have occupied most of Bill's and my time. Of course, Rose State College and the taxpayers of the State of Oklahoma have expected their full 40+ hours each week also.

This newsletter is being written at our country home located in McGee Valley in Atoka County in lovely Southeast Oklahoma. The plum bushes and pear trees are in full bloom, the elm, hickory and maple are budding out, and the oak are losing last year's leaves in preparation for this year's foliage. In this serene atmosphere, with Bill and his out-of-state relatives gone to visit his mother (she is now unable to move either leg and has been moved to a nursing home - 88 years of age), I will concentrate on the Attebery family.

Our agrarian ancestors had some advantages over us, even if they didn't have all of our nice industrialized conveniences such as refrigerators, freezers, washers and dryers, TVs, automobiles, tractors, etc. Their closeness to nature had to have been good for their mental health and they surely felt closer to God through their closeness to nature.

REUNION 1990 will soon be here! We have three months to prepare for another great time. You will recall that the Association Directors were directed to locate a new site for the 1990 reunion. They met in early October and chose the Arbuckle Wilderness as the site for 1990. Here are the details:

LOCATION: ¼ mile East of Interstate 35 - Exit 51/Turner Falls near Davis OK and follow the guide signs to Arbuckle Wilderness.
Park in the parking lot and gather at the gift shop by 12:30 p.m.

TIME: Hayride will begin at 1:00 p.m. promptly! The hamburger cookout, with beans, chips, cookies and marshmallows, & drinks (All you can eat!) will be ready about 2:30 p.m. By 4:00 p.m., we will be at the walk-through petting zoo, where rides, picnic tables & concession stands will also be available. By 5:30 or so, most people will be ready to head for home with many pleasant memories.

COST: $14 per person includes the guided hayride, the hamburger cookout, food for the animals, and admission to the walk-through zoo and playground.

This year's reunion format differs somewhat from the unstructured get-togethers of the past few years. We hope you will like the change and feel that it is worth the money. Remember, everything will be furnished. You need not spend three days cooking, packing and transporting the food, tables, chairs, etc. Just bring yourself and the family for a relaxing and enjoyable day of visiting.

The hayride will be in a converted schoolbus with a roof, open sides, and haybales for seats. The cost of the hayride alone is $10, so the cookout is only costing $4. The 12:30 time was chosen to allow travel time for everyone without requiring an overnight stay for in-state family members. Out-of-state family will want to come a day or so before the big date, which is June 23. You may want to have an extra large breakfast or a mid-morning snack, remembering that we will eat about 2:30 p.m.

The reservation for June 23 has been made and our deposit must be paid by May 15. Please send your reservation and deposit to the secretary-treasurer/editor by the first of May to allow processing time (remember that she is slow!). A form for that purpose is given at the end of the newsletter. A minimum deposit of $5 is required; however, you may send the full $14 fee if you want and eliminate the confusion of having to pay the day of the reunion.

IMPORTANT NOTE: If reservations for at least 40 people have not been received by May 15, the outing at Arbuckle Wilderness will be cancelled and the reunion will be held at Red Rock Canyon.

Either way, the important date is June 23! Mark your calendar!

FROM THE MAILBAG

FROM E.D. (Dave) RAYBURN comes the news that he is back in the good old U.S.A. to stay and that he will be attending this year's reunion. After 39½ years with Amoco Corporation (most recently in Kenya), he has retired and settled at the west edge of Fort. Worth, Texas. Their address is 4240 Lost Creek Boulevard, Aledo, TX 76008, phone 817-560-0542. Let's all welcome them home! Dave plans to pursue his hobbies of travel, hunting, fishing and genealogy research. Maybe he can uncover some of those Texas secrets we have been searching for the last 8-10 years.

JANET O. JONES, 117 Meadow Rd., Santa Cruz CA 95060 is searching for more information on her gr-gr-grandmother, Sarah Atterberry, b 1833. Wilma Mitchell identified Sarah as 137x10 for Janet and sent her lineage chart information. If you have more, please contact Janet or Wilma.

OPAL STEWART sent a copy of her check for $10 dated February 3, 1989, to show payment of dues for 1989, since her name was not listed in Newsletter 89-3. No offense, Opal - the list only included those who paid at or after the reunion. Traditionally, we have considered a "year" as that period of time from one year's reunion to the next - or from June to June. Certainly, you have always paid your share and more! The listing has prompted many to send in their dues, however, so it is worth printing. A favorite cousin from southern Oklahoma, Gladys Martin Carroll 1654667, said it was like having your name printed in the paper for getting a parking ticket - so she promptly paid up all her back dues! She has a great sense of humor and we all love her dearly.

MARY C. WATERS, 3038 Calvin Boulevard, Fort Myers, Florida 33901, is still searching for the connection to her William Arturberry (b ca 1780-85) & wife Mary (?), whose daughter Mary Arturberry (b 1805) married William Mitchum (b 1790) 18 Dec 1820 in Upson County, Georgia. Can anyone help her? Mary, we know that some of John's (16) line migrated through Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and on into Texas, Probably with the Hill line. Another unsolved mystery.

RITA HILL PULLUM of San Antonio TX is still working hard on the Hill line, but cannot make a connection between the William Hill of Chester County, S.C. and the Hills of Cooke County TX. Robert Watts Attebery 16546 was reared by a Hill and his father, Nathan 1654, was buried near many Hills. Proving a connection will take time!

From LUELLA CRAVENS, 210 Brown St., Brighton, IL 62012, comes news of a very busy 1989. At 81 years of age, she suffered through a broken hip, a pinched nerve in the spine, and then enjoyed a trip to Geneva, Switzerland, to celebrate the 10th graduating class of Webster College, St. Louis, Mo, which she had helped establish in 1978. Life should be so interesting for all of us! Her family branch held a reunion on July 23rd.

From BARBARA SCOTT, a cousin to Luella, came a Christmas newsletter which reported a very active and busy family. Barbara also lives life to its fullest.

MARGUERITE HANNA GREGORY 1376373 wrote to correct Newsletter 89-3, which listed her number incorrectly. She asks to be placed on the mailing list for the reunion at Hillsboro, IL. Barbara or Luella, will you take care of this, please?

From VIRGINIA ALBAN comes a request for a book and information about her lineage. Virginia's paternal grandmother was Emma Caroline Atteberry 1315x10, who married Albert Barr. The lineage chart reports five children for Emma Caroline - Earnest, Mabel, Jessie, Gladys & Ray - but no further information. If anyone can help Virginia, please contact her at 5118 N. Brooklyn, Kansas City, MO 64118, ph 453-2370.

A new genealogist, GLENNA DEAN MARTIN MOSER 14237427, discovered the book from friends who were actually relatives, descendants of Elias 16x11. If you can help Glenna, her address is 108 N. "F" Street, Duncan OK. Glenna, please come to the reunion & bring your relatives.

NORA BISHOP FLEMING, 1812 Castleton Dr., Troy, Michigan 48083, ph 313-689-2137, wrote for a copy of the book and information about her lineage. She is the gr-granddaughter of William Reason Atteberry 14x14x3. Can anyone help her?

NOLA J. CALHOUN, 129 Lincoln Dr., Port Clinton, Ohio 43452-1248, also requested a book and sent information on her lineage chart, as did ROBERT ANKENBAUER, 1105 - 9th Ave. West, # 2, Seattle, WA 98119.

EDITOR'S NOTE: There are no more books available nor any plans to publish another edition until after 1993. In the meantime, all material submitted is being entered in the work copy of the lineage chart. It is impossible to list all corrections and additions in the newsletter.

LORENE TAYLOR 1522933 sent a newspaper clipping which quoted a Coast Guard Petty Officer Ron Atteberry in Corpus Christi. Your editor had a call from Ron last summer and he has requested a book for himself and one for his father, who is retired military. They are not from the William Atterbury, 1733 emigrant, line, but want a copy of the book anyway. Thanks, Lorene.

REUNION 1990 is on at Arbuckle Wilderness! The details are given on the last page of this newsletter as a convenient "tear-off", in case you keep your newsletters. Your editor was negligent in not preparing the registration form in that fashion. Sorry.

Over 40 reservations have been received and the deposit and firm reservation at Arbuckle Wilderness has been made. Late reservations can be taken until June 10th by sending $14 per person to the Treasurer. If you did not get your reservation in on time, don't delay any longer - come join the family for a day of fun. JUNE 23, 1990.

The usual prizes will be given out and an election of officers will be held after the hayride. They have assured us there will be plenty of space for visiting, etc.

Some family groups are making a week-end outing of the reunion and are camping at Turner Falls. There are 350 campsites there, for those who are interested.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: Newsletter 90-1 described some of the problems happening in my personal life, so I will give you an update. We lost Bill's mother on April 18, and suffered through disastrous flooding in Southeast Oklahoma during that time. Mom was 88 years of age, had enjoyed a good life and was ready to go be with her Lord; however, we are never ready to give up our loved ones. I came down with a bad case of bronchitis and was sick for about three weeks. Bill has diabetic retinopathy and is having laser surgery on his eyes. Surgery on the first eye went well and we are assuming that the second surgery will go as well, although it is the worst eye. We are expecting the rest of 1990 to be better than the first part of the year has been. We trust your year is going well.

FROM THE MAILBAG -

from MINNIE RICHBURG 138967 - reservations for the reunion and news that Minnie's sister, Marjorie Conner 138965, will be joining us this year. Marjorie was very helpful in the material-gathering phase of writing the book, and we all look forward to meeting her. Marjorie is coming for a niece's anniversary, but the name was not included. Minnie has had surgery, but is better and is looking forward to the reunion.

from BERNICE EHLERS, sister of Edna Walters, of Watseka, ILL - dues and an expressed interest in genealogy. She has recently retired as an LPN from Shapiro Developmental Center in Kankakee after 24 years. Edna, who lives in Fairbury, IL, and Bernice are granddaughters of Delbert Benjamin Atteberry, 14x13x13, and neither are listed in the book. Their father, Frank, is 85 and lives in the Magnolia Wood Health Care Center in Watseka. Hopefully, they can get their line together while he is still alive to help. Information given us while writing the book did not include a listing of the children of Delbert Benjamin Atteberry. Let's correct that!

from MARK GRAY 16546593 comes a report that he is back from Okinawa, Japan, and his tour with the Marine Corp overseas is completed. He reports an uneventful tour except for December when they were put on alert for the Phillippines! (Editor's note: My husband, Bill, and many others in the family well remember fighting for those same Phillippines during WWII! How much must we give?) Mark now lives, with his wife Julie and son DAvid, at 304 Nortre Dame Rd., Claremont, CA 91711 from BONNIE BAUMGARDNER MARTIN of Family Limb Lines comes a letter and dues. She has been a researcher for 37 years and has volunteered 3,800 hours at their regional library in Neosho in the genealogy room. Bonnie descends from David Atterbury 1315 shown on p 221 of the family book. She has much information on the Garton line.

from MITZI WALKER 165462322 comes a post card from London, England, where she spent the Spring 1990 semester of her junior year in college, describing a wonderful experience. She had already found Atteberry Street on her own on a trip to the Tate Gallery. Hopefully, she will get more information about the street than your editor was able to do. We'll keep you informed.

from MARGUERITE GREGORY 1376373 (not in book yet) comes pictures of grave sites in Grayson County KY near Peonia Christian Church and an interesting map of Grayson Co. Marguerite's husband is not well, but she has promised to help with some research in Grayson County. Marguerite, a personal letter is coming.

from Glenn Attebery 1655572 comes a few corrections for the lineage chart.

from Steven E. Attebery 16546571 comes the announcement of his engagement to Kathryn Dacre with the wedding tentatively planned for March 1991 in NORWICH, ENGLAND. Perhaps we can plan a special tour of our ancestral land and attend his wedding. How nice, Steven - we congratulate you! Send us more information about your bride & Dacre.

from Edna Walters comes the following enquiry:

Does anyone have any knowledge of: Ora Mae Martin, born August 1866 at Cotton Gin, TX, died July 15, 1915, married to Edward T. Cox at Corsicana TX. Both buried at Haileyville OK?

REUNION 1990 at Arbuckle Wilderness was a great success! The area was everything we were promised. The animals were exotic - and friendly. The hayride was taken on an old converted school bus (The engineers in our group would never venture a guess as to the age, but a minority group decided it was definitely pre-WWII - or more than 50 years old. Apparently, two bodies had been welded together.), which was really packed with our group of 55. An interesting experience occurred when the bus stalled trying to climb a very steep hill. We climbed the hill on foot and created a unique group of "animals" for the other tourists! Most of them waved and a few stopped to chat, but our favorite was the kind lady with two small children who stopped and handed out cold pop! She was a jewel, and we were ever so grateful - the mountain-top was hot and we were all beginning to turn a slightly pinkish shade.

The cookout was waiting for us when we arrived. It was an all-you-can-eat fare of hamburgers, beans, potato chips, cookies, & soft drinks. After eating, horseshoes, basketballs and frisbees were available. A group of small deer came up to play with the smaller children. All of the animals are accustomed to people and are very friendly.

After the trip back to the main area, there were rides, paddleboats, a walk-through zoo, a petting zoo, go-carts, and stage entertainment. After more visiting, the group headed for home about 7:00p.m. with many memories and plans for next year.

Prizes were given to: Clinton Bragg, who traveled the farthest to come (from the San Francisco area); Karley Williams, four, for being the youngest family member present; Marjorie Conners, for being the eldest (she also traveled from California); and Minnie Richburg, for being the runner-up eldest.

Those attending Reunion 1990 were:

NOTE FROM TREASURER: Dues for 1990-91 are now due. Please remember that dues are paid on an honor system. No billings are sent and no individual records are kept. The dues are $5 per year per household. Many people pay more and some pay $20-$25 every few years. So far, we have been able to continue the newsletters to about 160 households and plan to issue four for 1990. Please help keep the mailing list up-to-date and remind your relatives it is time to pay 1990-91 dues.

FROM THE MAILBAG * * * *

FROM BECKER's BOOKSELF, 1314 Prospect Avenue, Norfolk, Nebraska 68701, comes an offer to rent genealogy books. For $2.50, they will send their booklist. You may choose your book to be rented for 5 weeks at variable rates. The $2.50 is deducted from the first order. If you use this service, please report your satisfaction & knowledge gained to us.

FROM MRS. BONNIE BAUMGARDNER MARTIN, Rt. 2, Box 312, Neosho, MO 64850, comes an inquiry about a possible book purchase. Mrs. Martin writes a weekly genealogy column for a newspaper in Southwest City, MO. She sent a Family Group Sheet on David Atteberry and Amanda Jane Garton of Tazewell Co., ILL. See p 221 of your book for this family. She lists a William b 1857, who does not appear on our list. Bonnie descends from Amanda's line through a daughter, Margaret Ayres, and is not an Attebery. She paid dues and will be added to our mailing list.

FROM MARGUERITE GREGORY #1376373, 134 So. 11th, Beech Grove, IN 46107, comes word of a fulfilling visit to Montgomery Co., Il., where she found the death date of her gr-grandfather, George M. Atterbury #1376; however, she did not share the date. She sent a lovely picture of what appears to have been the train depot in Litchfield. Thanks, Marguerite.

FROM BERNICE ATTEBERRY EHLERS, Watseka, Il 60970, comes information about James Atterbury b ca 1758, intended to help your editor join the Daughters of the American Revolution. Thanks for your concern, Bernice. Unfortunately, your editor descends from the lines of John 16 and Thomas 18. Strangely enough, in searching for a line to claim eligibility on, no record was found of anyone who joined the DAR based on lineage from James. No one in the family seems as interested in the DAR as Voncille. If something was missed, please let us know. Do we have any readers who are members of the DAR?

FROM RUTH ATTEBERY DUNN 1654627, who is employed by the Methodist Church and is instrumental in putting together their annual convention packets, comes word of a Ruth Atterberry, 410 W. Enterprise, Sayre, OK. Does anyone know this Ruth?

FROM BERT & DENISE MERRITT, 6501 West Lincoln Avenue, Yakima, WA 98908-1232, comes an Atterbury Family REunion Newsletter - First Annual Issue. A picnic is to be held on Sunday, July 15, 1990, at Stewart Park on the American Legion Field, in Roseburg, Oregon. This reunion is being organized by Denise Merritt, the oldest granddaughter of Maxine Atterbury Landreth. Neither name appears in our lineage chart. Could they be descendants of Green Rufus Pickney Atterbury 1983, who emigrated from Missouri to Oregon 25 Sept 1852 with his wife Mary Emeline Agee. Both are buried in the Oak Creek Cemetery ca 10 miles East of Roseburg Oregon? Please identify your line and give us a report on your reunion. How your editor would love to be there!

The Missouri reunion is usually held the 4th Sunday in July at Hillsboro Il at the Challecomb House. Information about the Texas Reunion has not been received. Enjoy those family times together! They are precious!

FROM p 2 of The Saint Jo (Texas) Tribune, Friday, June 15, 1990, shared by Jewell Davis

FOR ALL OF US BORN BEFORE 1945
submitted to the Tribune by Wynona Riddles

We are survivors - witnesses to tremendous, unbelievable change!

We were born before television, penicillin, polio shots, frozen food, contact lenses - even frisbies. We'd never heard of the pill. Main roads were dirt roads and night times were quiet.

We were born before radar, credit cards, split atoms, lazer beams and ballpoint pens. We were even born before pantyhose, dishwashers, clothes dryers, electric blankets, air conditioners and drip-dry permanent press clothing. Man only walked on the moon in comic books. Farms were without electricity and no one ever heard of a Real Estate agent. Everyone's water was fit to drink. Fast food was yesterday's meat between two slices of home-baked bread, without butter. A "meaningful relationship" meant getting on well with the relatives on both sides of the family.

Born before 1945, we never heard of FM radios, tape decks, electric typewriters, artificial hearts, heart by-pass operations, word processors or yogurt. Time sharing meant togetherness--not condos. A "chip" meant a piece of wood and hardware really meant hardware. Software wasn't even a word.

Grass was mowed and coke was a drink. Pot was something you cooked in. "Making out" referred to your school work and who ever heard of pizzas, McDonands or instant coffee?

We hit the scene when there were 5 to 10 cent stores where you bought things for 5 and 10 cents. For a nickel you could buy a soda, cigar, attend a circus, make a phone call, and buy enough stamps to mail a letter or five one-cent postcards. You could buy a new Chevy or Ford coupe for $600. Gas was 11 cents a gallon.

Us folks born before 1945 were the very last generation that was dumb enough to think you needed a husband to have a baby. No wonder we sometimes are so confused and there's such a large generation gap.

But we survived! And here we are! What better reason to celebrate? What better reason to enjoy?

REUNION 1991 site was established as Turner Falls by your Association Directors at their meeting on October 14, 1990. The date was set for Saturday, JUNE 22, 1991.

This is a return to the site of our first two reunions in 1982 & 1984. Reunion 1991 will differ somewhat in that we want to make this a true "get-acquainted" reunion. We want to utilize as many campsites as possible, as close together as possible, do as much visiting as possible, get to know everyone as well as possible, and stay as long as possible. Hiking, swimming, fishing, picnicing & visiting will be the primary activities. The banquet/dining room will be rented from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on the 22nd (cost of $60 to be paid from our Association dues), and the main dinner will be held at noon as our usual covered dish dinner. Other meals will be on your own, shared as you want with others.

Admission fees (be sure to identify yourself as part of the Attebery Reunion group) are $2.50 for adults and children over six. There is an additional charge for camping. Campsites are available with and without hookups, and are allocated on a first-come, first-serve basis. We suggest you plan to arrive on Thursday or Friday, at least, if not earlier. Your editor will serve as a clearinghouse for those who plan to camp, so let her know if you plan to do so and when you plan to arrive.

The following info may be helpful as you make your plans:

Camping - Turner Falls Park, Davis, OK 73030 I-35 & Hwy 7 (405)369-2917 or 369-2988

Motels - Turner Falls Inn (1000' from entrance) I-35 exit # 51 (405)369-2944

Sundown Motel Hwy 7 & 77 South, Davis (405)369-2384

S & H Motel 4 blks N of Stoplight, Hwy 77, Davis (405)369-2869

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: 1990 was not a good year! It ended as badly as it started, and I for one am truly glad to see it go. My husband, Bill, was hospitalized for two weeks with bleeding ulcers and complications from diabetes. We are now trying to help him adjust to a renal diet (the most difficult to follow) in the hopes of postponing the day he has to go on dialysis. As you could expect, I have had very little time to devote to genealogy.

So, if you have written me and received no answer, please forgive me. I do not mean to ignore anyone and will eventually respond. Some responses are given in the newsletter, particularly if others might be interested. Otherwise, I'll write you a personal note. If you don't hear from me, please write again or call me at (405)733-1294 in the evenings or week-ends.

To those of you who have requested information about a revised edition of the book, I have to say that there are no plans at this time. That is a time-consuming project requiring at least two years, and I cannot commit two years of my life to any project at this time. I am truly sorry that there are no more books available. About 20 people have requested a copy. The cost for such a small run would be at least $100-$125 per book. I doubt that anyone would be willing to pay the price.

In the meanwhile, Wilma or I will be glad to copy parts of the book for you @ 10¢ per page plus postage. Preparation of the book was a labor of love for both of us and we are still interested in genealogical research. An interesting (and confusing) publication would be copies of our letters for 1982-84 as we tried to sort out this family line and prove our own line. I have two notebooks of letters from her and she has the same from me. Of course, only a true researcher would appreciate such a publication - so maybe it isn't such a good idea after all!

Both Wilma and I maintain a "work copy" of the lineage chart from the published book. We encourage you to send additional information for the chart, including corrections, extensions, births & deaths. If time permits, a revision may be done within a few years. If someone else wants to undertake the project, I would be glad to hear from him/her. While the book is copyrighted, we do want to help any serious researcher and make information available to all who need it.

FROM THE MAILBAG * * * * *

from OPAL ATTEBERRY STEWART 1315x13x3 comes word that she hopes to come to Reunion 1991. Her husband is in poor health, but she copes well with some extra help. Her therapy is gardening in sunny California.

from MINNIE RICHBURG 138967 comes word that her daughter Betty is now living with her and that her sister MARJORIE CONNER 138965 is selling her home in California and will be moving back to Texas. Those of you who attended Reunion 1990 will remember that Minnie lost her husband Bill just before the reunion. We all missed him at the reunion - he was always so pleasant and friendly. God bless you, Minnie.

from BONNIE MESSETT of Petersburg, Illinois, a descendent of Greenberry Atterbery comes a request for information about the newsletter, revised book and dues. As customary, she will be placed on the mailing list and she is hereby requested to send dues of $5. Bonnie, will you please submit copies of the material you have on Greenberry. We do not have all of the greenberrys straight in the lineage charts.

from DENISE MERRITT of Yakima WA, a descendent of Green Rufus Pickney Atterbury 1983, who emigrated from Missouri to Oregon in 1852. She sent details of her lineage chart, some of which we did not have. Denise, do you have details of all of Green R. P.'s line? Her family had a good reunion in July, but she did not get a count. Denise is expecting her first child in March and hopes to have some time to do research afterwards. Denise, both you and your grandmother have been added to the newsletter mailing list. Annual dues are $5 per household.

from BETTE & BOB ATTEBERY comes a short note with their dues. They are always faithful about sending dues - usually the first received. Thanks, Bette & Bob 1654654 from Pat & Larry Atteberry, P. O. Box177, Parkersburg, Iowa 50665, ph (319) 346-1849, comes a request for more information on their line, which is James P. & Elizabeth (Bernard) Atteberry (Arterbury) 1214. They would like to have a book and ask if anyone has one to sell. Pat & Larry, a copy of the book is in the Missouri Historical Library, compliments of the editors. Yes, the reference to "John 16" and "Thomas 18" refer to lineage chart numbers. The numbers are used for ease of reference for those with a book. Each digit in a number represents a generation and the value of the digit represents the individual's place in the family. There are no duplicate numbers - each person has his/her own number! We assign numbers to all newborns when their birth is reported. To the best knowledge of your editor, no one is actively researching your line.

from Luella Attebery Cravens 1321337 comes news that the Attebery Reunion in Hillsboro IL was a great success. This group of Atteberys descend from Wm Melchizedek Attebery 13213, but they invite all Atteberys to join in the reunion. Luella's son, Thomas Donald Cravens, is now teaching at the University of Wisconsin where he is the Director of Undergraduate Italian Division. He spent three weeks in Italy during the summer of 1990 doing linguistics research.

Luella received the prize for being the oldest (82) at their reunion. Wouldn't it be great to have a national reunion with everyone present?

from Rita Wilson Beine comes a new address and an inquiry about newsletters, etc. Rita, you are back on the mailing list. Yes, we would like to have your corrections and additions, following the format of the lineage chart in the book.

from VERNON CHARTIER comes a clipping from The Fort Morgan Times with a Boulder CO newslane about a David Arterberry who plays football for Colorado. More details on David or a number? Vernon also sent clippings about his nephew Kerry Poe, son of Peggy Flaherty 144441423, and his friend Chris Bittner, who love sailing. Poe & Bittner, Portland State University juniors and Lake Oswego natives, were to be the fourth-ranked U.S. team at the 470-Class World Championships in Medemblik, Holland. Their focus is on the Olympic Trials in May 1992, which they hope will win them a trip to the 1992 Summer Olympic Games in Barcelona, Spain. Follow up report, Vernon?? Vernon also sent a clipping about the death of Benjamin Franklin Atteberry 15236333 of Vancouver, Washington.

from BARBARA BASS WALKER 16546232, a temporary Californian, comes news of a mini-reunion. Her brother, H. D. "Buster" Bass 16546233, took his wife & daughters, Kathy, Rachel & Kelli, on an extended vacation to the West this year. They live in Slidell LA. In true Attebery Family style, Barbara called in all the California cousins to celebrate. These "kids" have had 40+ years of training in doing family reunions. Have they learned well or what? Their Aunt Voncille is very proud of them. Aunt Voncille is also very proud of Barbara's daughter, Mitzi 1654622, a senior at Mississippi College. Arrowhead, the literary publication of Mississippi College, carried the following poem written by Mitzi:

Locked Out by Mitzi Walker

I sat on the rusty tin bucket that amplified the rain, slurping warm, dark, sweet milk.
He told me loud enough to hear himself what he would do with the garden, if not for the pain
in his legs.
I sat and waited,
ready to run at the first glimpse of sunlight on chrome.

Explanation:

Mitzi had forgotten her house key and was waiting at her grandfather's for her parents to come home.
Grandfather Ernest Bass was a true farmer from the 'old school' with a green thumb that could make anything grow. He was a native Oklahoman who went to Mississippi late in life to be near his children. His grandchildren's lives were enriched by his presence. Everyone should have the opportunity for quality time with their grandparents (and great-grandparents).

from BONNIE & KANARDY TAYLOR 195543? comes a Christmas card & letter. They are back in Florida for the winter. During the summer they line in Silver Spring MD, where they celebrated their 55th anniversary and their 80th birthdays this year as well as 25th anniversaries for their children Alan & Vicki and Pete & Kay. They also celebrated the 7th anniversary of having two adopted grandchildren from Korea (Kendra 11 and Lisa 9, who were adopted by their children, Bill & Barbara).

from DOROTHY KETTER 14236293 comes a news clipping, apparently from The Dallas Morning News. It is a guest column, written by Ann Atterberry, who is identified as an assistant news editor at The Dallas Morning News. The article concerns the attempt of Yankees to seize control of the national dish of Texas (chili) and gives much information about chili. You may enjoy the following from-scratch recipe for real chili, compliments of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, widow of LBJ, who on occasion had real Texas chili flown to the White House:

| | |
|---|-------------------------------|
| PEDERNALES RIVER CHILI (for the uninitiated, that's pronounced "perdenallice"): | |
| 4 pounds chili meat | Directions: Place meat, |
| 1 large onion, chopped | onions and garlic in large, |
| 2 cloves garlic | heavy skillet or Dutch oven. |
| 1 teaspoon ground oregano | Cook until light colored. |
| 1 teaspoon cumin seeds | Add oregano, cumin seed, |
| 6 teaspoons chili powder (more, if desired) | chili powder, tomatoes, hot |
| 1½ cups canned whole tomatoes | pepper sauce, salt and water. |
| 2 to 3 generous dashes liquid hot pepper sauce | Bring to boil, lower heat & |
| Salt to taste | simmer about 1 hour. Skim |
| 2 cups hot water | off fat during cooking. Makes |
| | 8 servings. |

Can anyone identify Ann Atterberry?

from JOHN & JAN COSGROVE 16546591 comes a Christmas card with a new address. They are now in Madison SD, where John coaches football. They enjoyed their best season since 1982! Hope they both enjoy cold weather. Have you noticed the temperatures for South Dakota given on the TV weather reports?

from NED & MARJORIE DU VIVIER comes a belated 1989 Christmas newsletter. They were in the San Francisco earthquake during the fall of 1989 and made a trip to Ireland (Maynooth) to see a new grandchild.

from newspaper clippings, we know that TERRY ATTEBERY 16555x11x4 played the part of Mr. Dobitch in the musical "Promises, Promises" performed by the Lyric Theatre in Oklahoma City during its 1990 season. The play is based on the 1960 film "The Apartment." Terry is part of the R.J. ATTEBERY Family 16555, which holds a reunion in Kingston in July of each year. R. J. Attebery, who reared his family in the Kingston & North Texas area, and R. W. Attebery 16546, who reared his family in Jefferson County (Waurika) OK, were first cousins. They spent their lives within 100 miles of each other and, to the best of anyone's knowledge, did not even know each other. Their grandchildren, who are third cousins, have renewed the family ties.

from BARBARA ATTEBERY SCOTT 13213232 comes her 1990 Christmas newsletter. They have a new granddaughter, MAIRI ALEXANDRA ROBERTSON. Need more details, Barbara, such as date of birth and lineage number? They lost John's mother this year and helped Aunt Minnie Peterson celebrate her 100th birthday in Sept. She introduced Barbara & John over 39 years ago. Barbara, is she in the lineage chart? Also from Barbara was The Attebery Family News for Fall 1989, which included statements from those who attended the Hillsboro IL reunion at the Challacombe House. Included were words of the early settlers who peopled the Woodsboro neighborhood and built the Clear Springs Church located southwest of Hillsboro IL:

Agreed: "All souls are the same in the Sight of God."

"Sister --- may read the Bible when there are no men present who can read."

"Persons must help new persons and the sick or they must leave the settlement."

"Brother --- will chop -- cords of wood if Brother --- will teach him to read the Bible."

How charming! How simple the rules of life can be, if we want them to be so. Please send the date of the 1991 Reunion in Hillsboro.

from IVA SMITH comes an inquiry for information on David and Sarah (Sally) Moore Atterberry, who were married 6th April 1809 in Ohio Co, KY & buried in Macon Co IL.

She is particularly interested in pictures of their tombstones. Her address is 505 N.W. 7th St, Fairfield IL 62837. She does research for people in Wayne County and the surrounding counties.

from BERNICE EHLERS of Watseka IL comes an inquiry for information concerning Thomas F. Atteberry & sons, Hiram and Henry. Thomas was the son of Nathan & Mariah Atteberry and was living in Chico, Butte County, CALifornia after 1870. Bernice's address is Watseka, Illinois 60970.

from ANN ATTEBERY WILKERSON 16546521 comes a Christmas 1990 newsletter indicating a full life involving family, church & work. Her sister Carol & family now live in San Diego. Ann & Jack are expecting their tenth grandchild in February. They gave their granddaughter TANIEL HANKINS 165462121 a birthday party on July 13th (she was two) while she visited them from Missouri. Four generations were present: Gr-grandmother Vi Hines, Grandmother Ann Attebery Wilkerson, Mother Jenny Hankins & the honoree Taniel! Ann lost a brother this year - see details below.

from WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL 1654653 comes much news. As you will recall, Wilma is the co-author of our family book. A close relationship developed between she & Voncille during 1982-84 under the intensive task of putting that book together. When you can work together for 15-20 hours a day, you know you have a relationship that will endure! Wilma continues to be a source of inspiration & love!

Wilma has joined The Descendants of Mexican War Veterans on the eligibility of our gr-grandfather NATHAN ATTEBERY 1654. (if Voncille ever finishes this newsletter, she is going to join also) If you are a descendant of 1654 and would like to join this organization, please contact Wilma or Voncille for forms. While Voncille appreciates Wilma's efforts in completing all the forms, she really wants to belong to the DAR! Do we have any DAR members out there?

Wilma sent a clipping from the Walters OK newspaper about a reunion of the Martin Family, the descendants of the late James and Bethel (Attebery 165466) Martin, on June 3, 1990. This is a large family of thirteen children, all of whom are still alive. Wilma and her siblings are double cousins to this group of Martins. They all descend from three Attebery lines - John 16, Thomas 18, and Richard 14.

Wilma reports that Roy Allen Martin, son of ROY MARTIN 142374x16, a Lt. Col. in the Reserves with 44th Hospital Evacuation Unit was to leave Ft. Sill on 19 Dec for Saudia Arabia. Wonder how many relatives we have over there?

Wilma & her husband, Nolan, were recently at Vance AFB Clinic (he is retired military) and met a young man named Adam B. Attebury, whose grandfather is Thomas Franklin Attebury, Jr., Austin TX (512)892-0715. Can anyone identify Thomas Franklin? Adam's address is PSC Box 4226, Vance AFB, Enid OK 73702-5360 (405)237-7232. Of course, he may also be in Saudia Arabia by now.

Wilma shared some photos and a news clipping about Brent Steele, husband of Joleen Crowe Steele 16546551 (Wilma's niece), who took part in the filming of "Dancing With Wolves" in South Dakota during the summer of 1989. Brent is a member of the National Civil War Association. They are an active organization with full dress uniforms, and reenact battles and scenes from the Civil War. Brent and his organization spent seven days in heat and dust filming. "Dances With Wolves" tells the story of a young soldier in 1862 who goes west after making a name for himself in the war. Finding his frontier post deserted, he befriends a local Indian tribe and discovers romance with a young maiden. Watch for it at your local theatre. In private life, Brent is a lineman for Pacific Gas & Electric Company of Calif. He and Joleen are rebuilding their home after it was almost completely destroyed by the earthquake of 1989.

Wilma sent a change of address for Joyce & Phil Attebery 1654675 - Rt 5 1050 Attebery Road, Ashland City, TN 37015. She & Nolan visited them a few years ago.

Wilma reports the marriage of her granddaughter, LISA MEANS 165465321, to Michael Lee McCoy on 27 July 1990.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR - this is absolutely the last page of this newsletter!! More than three sheets of paper will cost another 25¢ stamp and we can't afford that. If the end of the page comes in mid-sentence, please expect it to be continued next time.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION -

LOUIE W. ATTEBERY from Caldwell ID sent updated material on his line, but your editor is confused about the numbering. She will write him directly.

Luella Cravens sent the inscription on the tomb of Sir Francis Atterbury in Westminster Abbey. It was given in full in a previous newsletter, so is not repeated herein. However, she also sent an article entitled "Coffins Without Corpses." The source or accuracy of this article has not been verified, but the information is interesting:

"In the 18th century, coffins arriving in England from Europe often contained not Englishmen who had died abroad but rather yards of fancy lace being smuggled past customs. After the coffins were buried, the smugglers would dig them up to retrieve the loot. In the Bishop of Rochester's coffin, shipped from France in 1732, were found 100 pounds of lace worth about $27,000...."

from a Cotton County Genealogical Society newsletter, courtesy of Wilma Mitchell:

THE FAMILY TREE

I think that I shall never see
The finish of a family tree.
As it forever seems to grow
From records that started oh, so slow
Away back in ancient history times
In foreign lands and distant climes
From them grew trunk and branching limb
That dated back to time so dim.

One seldom knows exactly when
The parents met and married then.
But soon the twigs began to grow
With odd-named children, row on row.
Though a verse like this is made by me
And the end's in sight, as you can see,
'Tis not the same with Family Trees
That grow and g-r-o-w through centuries.

You should leave there knowing everyone's name, their place in the lineage chart, family, hobbies, etc. Let's make a real effort this year.

When you arrive at the park (map on back), be sure to identify yourself as part of the Attebery Reunion group in order to receive the lower admission fee of $2.50 for adults and children over six. There is an additional charge for camping and campsites are available with or without hookups. Campsites are allocated on a first-come first-serve basis. If you arrive early, please try to hold nearby sites for late arrivees. Let's have a great reunion this year!

The banquet/dining room will be rented from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday, the 22nd (cost of $60 to be paid from our Association dues), and the main dinner will be held at noon as our usual covered dish dinner. FROM THE MAILBAG * * * * * from TED G. ATTEBURY of Soda Springs, Idaho, comes a letter of appreciation for the book. He says "our line of Atteburys seemed to end in mid-air. We were able to bring it all together, thanks to your book." Ted descends from two lines - 19 James and 18 Thomas. 192 James, Jr. married 184 Eleanor. Previous correspondents had identified Ted's father as being 1922x11x4 Joseph R. John Atterbury. The birth dates agree, but the dates and site of death do not agree. Ted reports his father's name as John Joseph. Ted, while there are no books available, we are trying to keep a work copy of the lineage chart. Following the chart, please send an extension of your line. Ted's address is 218 Donahue, Soda Springs, Idaho 83276.

from ARLINE V. RICKABAUGH, 4014 So. 26th Street, Omaha, Nebraska 68107, comes an inquiry about Atterberrys who may have married into a Watkins line. Her interest is Rev. William Watkins, who married 1 Oct 1805 Hardin Co KY a Mary B. Atterberry 145. She would like the address of any of the descendents of Mary & William Watkins. Arline, can you submit proof of an Attebery (any spelling) who served in the Revolutionary War? Even the DAR members have been unable to help us find proof.

from DORTHY KETTER 14236293 of Duncanville TX comes an obituary notice of a W.L. "Dub" Atteberry, who died 16 April 1991. Survivors are: wife, Mary Helen; sons, William L. Dennis & Brad; daughter Shirley. Can anyone identify this family?

from JEANNE D. BUSSELL, 920 E. Sixth Street, Cookeville, TN 38501, comes a query about Mary Emeline Atteberry who married Solomon Mulkey 21 Dec 1845? Who was she? She is also interested in knowing where 1984 Chasteen William Atterbury and 19832 Tilmon Chasteen Atterbury got the name 'Chasteen', as she is a Chastain descendant and a member of the Chastain Family Association. She is also interested in documenting Sarah Elizabeth as being a daughter of James 19. If you can help Jeanne, please write to her. When you have it all straight, we'll print it in the newsletter!

from PATRICIA G. ATTEBERRY, P.O.Box 177, Parkersburg, IA 50665, comes an offer to up-date the lineage chart. She hasn't seen the work copies that Wilma & Voncille have been maintaining for seven years and she may change her mind when she sees the task of retyping it, but she has a computer and seems eager to work. What more can we ask for?

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: If you have been postponing sending an update of your lineage chart, please complete it now and forward as soon as possible. Follow the numbering in the book and be as thorough as possible - don't leave out your brothers and sisters. There is much, much work to do before Patricia can start.

from PENNIE HENNESSY, Star Route, Box 71684, Pahrump, NV 89041, comes a request for more information on 19542 Nancy Atterbury, b 1845 and 19546 Charles Atterbury, b 1859. If you can help, please write to Pennie. Sorry, Pennie, no one has submitted information on these individuals since the book was printed.

from GEORGE WYLDER, 207 Cedar Drive, Clinton, IL 61727, comes NEW NEWS! He recently purchased Vol 2nd Calendar of Wills 1748-1753 (apparently from Maryland). On p 234, Prince George's County, is the will of John Mitchel, Sr. dated 4 June 1742, probated 25 Aug 1752. Children listed are: sons John & David; daughters, Mary Lee, SARAH ATTERBARY, & Elizabeth. In Prince George's Co., MD Index of Church Registers 1626-1885, Queen Anne's Parish, pp 184-185, George found:

David Mitchell b 14 Feb 1722/3 son John & Eliz
Elizabeth Mitchell b 10 Jan 1731 dau John & Eliz
George Mitchell b 7 Feb 1728/9 son John & Eliz
John Mitchell b 23 Feb 1717 son of John & Eliz
Michael Mitchell b 12 Aug 1726 son John & Eliz
SARAH MITCHELL b 31 Aug 1720 dau John & Eliz
Sarah Mitchell m Robert Yockley 3 June 1735

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: This is revealing NEW information, and has given us leads for extending the line back. Apparently SARAH MITCHELL, daughter of John & Elizabeth Mitchell married the emigrant from London - 1 William Atterbury! No where before has anyone reported Sarah's maiden name. Was this her second marriage? Was she married first at the age of 15 to Robert Yockley (sp ??)? What happened to Robert? Were there any children by that marriage? Will 1654653 Wilma Attebery Mitchell now work on the Mitchel(Mitchell) line??

from REVA L. ABBOTT, 336 W. 2nd, Cherryvale, KS 67335, comes information about the death of her sister-in-law Stella M. McDaniel, b 8 Sept 1918 Douglas OK, d 6 Jan 1990 in Liberal KS. Reva sent the clipping and a note to say that Stella's husband Howard was a nephew of Durwood McDaniel. Howard was injured in the accident where Durwood lost his eyesight.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: What a small, small world we live in! Durwood McDaniel and Oliver Attebery 1654622 were very close friends. They were founders (with two others) of the Oklahoma League For The Blind in the late 40s & early 50s. Both blind, Durwood was an attorney and Oliver was a doctor, they felt an obligation to help the blind who hadn't been able to "make it" quite as well as they had done. I met Durwood several times and remember him as a quiet, kind, pleasant man. I tried to reach him when we lost Oliver and was told that he was working in Washington DC. Martha, I do not know your cousin, Martha Mae Sevitzer and she is not listed in the Midwest City phone book.

from DENISE MERRITT, 6501 West Lincoln Ave, Yakima WA 98908-1232, comes a clipping from the Yakima Herald-Republic about a Central Washington University sophomore named James Atterberry who won a $1,000 Boise Cascade Scholarship earmarked for relatives of Boise Cascade employees. He is the son of Glen & Sally Atterberry and a 1989 graduate of West Valley High School. Can anyone identify this family?

from MARY ELLEN ATTEBERY STELTING 1315x13x55 comes an article from The Sooner Catholic about Mary's work with the Little Flower Catholic Church. Mary is president of the Parish Council and deeply involved in social ministries and evangelization as well. She works with the undocumented in the Amnesty program, with drivers' education for Hispanics, with English as a Second Language (ESL), the food shelf, cleaning the church and many other parish activities. Mary says "I talk to God many, many times a day. I think if I had lived when Jesus did, I'd be like Martha. That story fits me to a T. At church for example, I know where everything is, where the cups are and the plates. I can jump right in and do a breakfast. It's no trouble at all. But I'm working at being a Mary."

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: If you don't know Mary, be sure to get acquainted at the REUNION 1991 event. She is a caring, loving person who will brighten your day.

from MARJORIE ATTEBERY DuVIVIER comes a letter about the travels she and her husband Ned have enjoyed since he retired from his pediatric practice. She sent a picture of the two of them on a camel (where?) and a picture of herself at Atterberry Park in Atlanta MO. In Atlanta & LaPlata, they visited several cemeteries. She promised more details later. (Marjorie - what is your lineage number? VW) from WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL 1654653 comes much information. She sent a clipping from The Walters Herald on Looking Back! 20, 40, and 60 years ago, dated Feb 19. On Thurs, Feb 19, 1931, it was reported from Emerson that Nelson Tabbytossa spent Sunday with Hanson Martin (1654662). Nelson died a number of years ago and Hanson now lives in Martinez CA. In the same article, is a note from West Cache that Mr. & Mrs. Glenn English had a fine baby girl, Carla Yvonne English, born Tuesday February 17, who tipped the scales at eight pounds.

also from Wilma comes information about the review of a book donated to the Cotton County Genealogical Society entitled American Loyalist Claims. No Attebery of any spelling, one Collett, two Chamberlains, & seven Barnes. Wilma isn't doing too well with her assignment of getting Voncille into the DAR. How could we have so many lines that go back before the Revolutionary War and not be able to document that any of them actually served or signed loyalty oaths?? Looks as if Voncille will have to work on another line if she ever makes it into the DAR.

Wilma did do well in another area, however, and both she and Voncille are now members of the Descendants of Mexican War Veterans. Nathan Attebery 1654 served in the Mexican War. Any of the 1654 line can now join the DMWV by writing to them at 1114 Pacific, Richardson, Texas 75081. Nathan has been proven to be a veteran of the war and you can prove your relationship and membership eligibility by describing your relationship. Documentation is not required at this time. Other lines with a Mexican War Veteran may also want to join the DMWV.

Wilma also sent a clipping about a Brian Attebery 16555x11x41 who was one of five youths to receive a 1991 Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge Youth Leadership Award. Congratulations, Brian.

Wilma Mitchell 1654653 and Voncille Winter 1654626 enjoyed a genealogical research trip to Salt Lake City in early March. Much more data was collected, but still no proof for DAR membership. The trip was interesting and fun, and both are ready to go back again. The Mormons certainly know how to put a library together.

137637342 William H. Gregory, Jr. with the U.S. Navy was sent to Honolulu

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: The war in the Middle East sorta slipped in between news-

REUNION 1991 was another great success! The weatherman cooperated beautifully! The sun shined all day and the swimming was excellent! For the "older" crowd, the air-conditioned banquet room felt very good. For those of us who grew up in Southern Oklahoma, the day brought back many memories of hot summers in Jefferson and Cotton Counties.

Most families came only for the day, but some stayed overnight in nearby motels or camped out in the park. The family of Nell Attebery King 165462x11 camped out for four days hoping others would join them. A lovely sign at their campsite read "Attebery Reunion," but no one joined them for camping. Some of their sissy relatives (better known as sisters), Voncille & Bill Winter and Edna & Arlen Ward, joined them for two evening meals. When the downpour came on Saturday night, those Texan Kings packed up and went home! Who could blame them - we may never see them in Oklahoma again! We understand, however, that Teresa (165462x11x2) and Dale Schubert took their three children camping again the next week. They come from hardy stock!

She is shown on the 1850 Census in Shelby County IL as Mariah, married to Preston Denton. Please contact her if you can help.

Editor's Note: We found no Atterburys in Barren Co KY after 1830. In 1830, the families of Thomas and his son James were there. No Mariah or Marcia Ann were identified for those families.

CLARA BROCK writes to report an error in the May 1991 newsletter. Correction - Nelda Lou Brock Moore was born 2 September 1936 in Texhoma OK and died 14 March 1991. She was married 19 December 1954 to Billy Braddock Moore in Guymon OK.

Editor's Note: The 1900 Census shown in the book includes only a part of Texas and Indian Territory. Sorry, there are no more books available. The cost of a copy (unbound) on bond paper runs about $80.

the R. J. ATTEBERY FAMILY REUNION was held on Sunday, July 14, 1991, 10-4, in Kingston, OK at the KYCC Building. No report has yet been received.

PATRICIA ATTEBERRY wrote in May 1991 that she is still interested in retyping the lineage chart; however, her mother-in-law is not doing well and the project may take a while to complete.

WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL reports that she IS NOT researching the Mitchell line, even with the exciting news about Sarah being identified as William's wife. Don't give up, cousins, Wilma is easily hooked. Had we had that information when we were in Salt Lake City, who knows what we might have found!

Wilma wonders if anyone can identify the Pete Atteberry of Armington IL, who was mentioned in a newspaper article of May 12, 1991, as an individual with many memories of a Little Red School located about 35 miles Southeast of Peoria in rural Tazewell County.

DENISE MERRITT 198325611 sent information for the Greene Rufus Pickney Atterbury line. She has a new baby girl, which she is enjoying.

LORRAINE MATT, 61 Portwine, Roselle, IL 60172, writes for information about her grandfather David L. Atteberry, who was born July 14, 1851 at Macon, and lived just North of Watseka. Please write Lorraine if you can help her.

PENNIE ATTEBERRY HENNESSY writes for information on how to submit her lineage chart. For her, and others with the same question, instructions are given herein:

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USING THE LINEAGE CHART:

The numbering system is based on the popular Register Plan, as adapted to meet the needs of an on-going growth chart.

Each digit in an individual's number represents a generation and the family position of the individual in that generation. For example, Robert Watts Attebery 16546 was the sixth child of Nathan 1654, who was the fourth child of Jesse 165, who was the fifth child of John, who was the sixth child of William the progenitor.

The relationship of individuals can be identified from the numbering system. First, identify a common ancestor, numbering from the left. The next digit to the right indicates a sibling relationship, the second digit indicates a first-cousin relationship, the third a second-cousin, etc. If individuals do not have the same number of digits in their numbers, they are not of the same generation. In such cases, the last cousin relationship is established and the additional digit(s) represent the degree of removal. For example, Voncille 1654626 and Wilma 1654653 are first cousins (daughters of brothers). Voncille is a first cousin once-removed to Wilma's daughter Janet 16546532 and a first cousin twice-removed to Janet's daughter Lisa 165465321, etc.

In submitting information to extend a line, please carefully identify the line you are extending and follow the numbering system. If you do not know the position of a person in a family, the entire numbering system will be thrown off. It isn't easy, but certainly nice when all the information comes together!

A TRIP TO BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS
by Joleen Crowe Steele 16546551
edited by Voncille Attebery Winter 1654626

Brent and I had a wonderful seven-day trip to Boston, Mass. this spring. His company sent him to Pittsburgh, Penn. for a seminar. I flew to Boston and he met me at the airport. We stayed 39 miles from Boston in a little town called Duxbury. We stayed four nights in a Christian Bed and Breakfast home, which was built in 1708 by a grandson of one of the Pilgrims. The Pilgrims settled Duxbury, which is where they originally did their planting and farming. They lived across the bay in Plymouth. Eventually quite a few Pilgrims moved to Duxbury. Miles Standish and John Alden built homes there and are buried in Duxbury.

We toured some historic homes in Duxbury, saw Plymouth Rock and the Mayflower (a replica of a type of ship of the era). We visited "Plimoth Plantation" which is a living history replica of Plymouth set in 1627. The staff dress and act as if they were there and it really was 1627. We talked to Miles Standish, Priscilla Alden, the indentured servant of Elder Brewster, etc. I had recently read "Letters written by the Pilgrims, their friends and their enemies," which gave me a good background for this visit! I could ask the characters "first person" about their lives! Brent loves antique guns and enjoyed talking to Miles Standish about his weapons and flintlocks. I had a lot of fun asking questions about their religious beliefs and why they came to America. Also, about how they cooked - one interesting thing was that they had white sugar but it came in a hard solid stone-like block and they used a sharp knife to shave off the amount they wanted to use.

Then we drove to Newport, Rhode Island (2-hr drive), where we knew Brent's ancestors had settled when they came from England. We hoped to find an old cemetery and find some of his ancestors' headstones. Well, we had no idea that Newport was so large. It has been a very popular resort town for about 200 years. Around the turn of the century, millionaires built huge homes on the waterfront, each trying to outdo the next one in opulence. The homes are now owned by the Historic and Preservation Society and are open for tours. We asked for the oldest cemetery and found out there were three of them. We went to the closest one and looked with dismay at the acres of old headstones dating from the 1600s. After wandering for about 1½ hours, we gave up and were leaving the cemetery. As we walked along the sidewalk to our car, I glanced back at the cemetery and lo and behold, there was a Coggeshall section of headstones. We didn't find any of Brent's direct line, but we took pictures anyway! We found a Coggeshall Street and took pictures there. As we were leaving town, we found the library. What a find! They had a whole genealogical room! We asked for information about Coggeshall, and the librarian said "Oh yes, that is a very famous name around here." Then, she handed us a huge book on John Coggeshall and his descendants. John Coggeshall was Brent's ancestor who came from England. Were we ever excited! We had brought our chart, but it only had the barest of information - names, births, death dates and places. This book gave us stories about these people. Some of them were very prominent in the history of the time.

Brent's ancestor, John Coggeshall, came to Boston 12 years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. Because he was one of the people who defended Anne Hutchinson, he was banished from the colony when she and 75 of her followers were thrown out. John Coggeshall and 16 others went to Rhode Island and founded Providence and the next year moved and founded Newport. Anne Hutchinson was a "Separatist" as the Pilgrims called themselves. The word "Pilgrims" was invented in the early 1800s by the "Victorians"! They were rebels against the Anglican Church of England. They were very upset over the excesses of the church at that time, so they began their own church. They were radical, legalistic and moralistic and very harsh towards those who did not follow their way of doctrine. Anne Hutchinson was an educated woman (rare in those days) who began to teach Bible studies in her home for women. Soon, the men would stand outside her open windows and listen. She began to teach that you could come to salvation in Christ by an act of grace and not just by good works. This "sacrilegious" teaching was what got her thrown out of the colony. That was harsh treatment because without banding together in settlements, they were not only prey to Indian attack but also had to have a charter from the King to stay in "New England." Now, we can apply our information on Brent's ancestor to what we have been reading about in the history books.

The copy of John Coggeshall's will was very interesting because it told us what was important for him to pass on to his children - silver buttons, good iron kettle, etc. Another of Brent's direct line became a Quaker (Pilgrims hated Quakers) who dared set foot in the colony instead of staying put in Rhode Island (where they were very liberal and open to other religions). He went to Boston, where he was thrown in jail for being a Quaker. They sold his horse and eventually released him and sent him away. Another Quaker ancestor was a loyalist in the Revolutionary War and escaped to Nova Scotia. Out of 12 children, two were loyalists and had to flee to Canada. Just like the Civil War, the Revolutionary War divided families!

The next day, we toured the beautiful and exciting city of Boston. We walked the Freedom Trail and saw old churches, Paul Revere's home, and the USS Constitution. We took a water ferry in the bay, saw Faneuil Hall (a historic open air marketplace and buildings), ate at an Italian restaurant in the North End (the Italian section of town with tiny, winding brick streets which looked like it were somewhere in Europe). The next day, we drove to Concord, Mass., where another ancestor was buried. In the library, we were fortunate enough to find a book on Capt. Samuel Dakin, who had immigrated from England. The book included 16 generations and even went so far down as Brent's mother and her sisters. After copying down lots of interesting family facts, we toured Louisa May Alcott's home (Orchard House), which is where she wrote Little Women.

After Concord, we drove to Kennebunk, Maine and spent one night in another Christian bed and breakfast place called Waldo Emerson Inn. It was built in 1783 by a ship builder who was the son-in-law of Emerson. It was a 3-story home with 9 bedrooms (6 have fireplaces). Every bed had a handmade quilt on it and antiques in every room. A teddy bear collection was displayed in the livingroom. We drove over to Kennebunkport and saw President Bush's summer home. It is all by itself on a peninsula and isn't that impressive. You can easily see it from the road and lots of people were stopping and taking pictures of it. I guess the road is blocked off when he is there and only local residents of the street are allowed through. They get their cars searched regularly. Needless to say, that isn't too popular with the locals.

Then, we drove back to Boston for our last night. We stayed at a fancy hotel in the financial district which is a nice area. Lennox Hotel is an old historic and newly refurbished hotel. We ate our last lobster meal there. Lobster is so inexpensive there! We ate it almost every night.

It was a wonderful second honeymoon, and Brent make me promise (as if I would object) that we will do something together alone like this every year!

Editor's Note: I am green with envy! Imagine walking into a library and being HANDED your family history. Compare that with the efforts of putting the Attebery line together! Thanks, Joleen, for sharing your experiences with us.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: I am happy to report that my husband is feeling much better. He had a rough January, but has done much better since then. He even did some mowing and tree trimming at our country home a couple of weeks ago. We enjoyed a trip to South Texas in March and will be going to Kentucky & Georgia in May. Traveling is different now that we operate at a slower pace, but still enjoyable. As for me, retirement is not what it is cracked up to be! The Peter Principle is true - any task can be extended to encompass the time allocated to it. I have practiced being old and poor - and found that I do not like being in either category. Yet, I am not yet ready to take on an advocacy role for either group. Perhaps I expected to be able to structure a retirement life, and it hasn't worked out that way. The job of supervising Bill is impossible! He loves the companionship, but doesn't take kindly to being supervised. Lest you think that I'm doing absolutely nothing, let me report that I am still active in the following organizations/committees: Central Oklahoma Economic Development Association, Cultural Diversity and Economic Development Advisory Committee (advisory to the Oklahoma State Legislature), Midwest City Industrial Development and Redevelopment Authority, Literacy Link, Eastern Oklahoma County Coalition of Chambers of Commerce, Midwest City Chamber of Commerce (chairing committees of Certified Cities & Navy Task Force), Zonta (an international executive women's organization), and (last but not least) Midwest Blvd. Christian Church. Let me add that I have adjusted nicely to sleeping in until 6:30 or 7 o'clock each morning, spending extra time with the daily newspaper, having extra coffee while I watch CNN, reading as long as I want whenever I want, leisurely lunches or dinners out with my husband, etc. Maybe retirement life is better than I thought!

REITA SPARROWK, 6073 Lanterman Drive, Bethalto IL 62010, a gr-gr-gr-granddaughter of Wiley Coleman Arterberry and Mariah Plumlee Arterberry from Jackson Co Tenn., is trying to locate parents, siblings & ancestors of Wiley Coleman Arterberry. She is willing to share her Arterberry information. (NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: Much conflicting information has been submitted on this line for the lineage chart. Additional work is no doubt needed. If, after working through the discrepancies, the lineage chart needs to be changed, please advise.)

GEORGIA WHEELER BYINGTON, 425 E. 900 So. #444, St. George, Utah 84770, reports that she now has proof of her gr-grandfather's birth. He is James Eden Atteberry, born 18 Nov 1837 to John Warren Atteberry and Mary Hall in Wayne Co IL. Her grandmother, Mary Drucilla Atteberry was born 21 October 1877 in St. Clair Co. MO. Georgia would now like to identify the parents of John Warren Atteberry. If you can help, please contact her.

JESS L. ATTERBERRY, 508-260 Stoney Lane, Susanville CA 96130, writes in response to your editor's question of his daughter, Donna Atterberry Steerilring, about her lineage. (NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: When a subscription comes in from someone unidentified, I usually send a note asking about their lineage.) Jess reports that his grandfather is the James Atterberry, age 41, shown in the 1880 Census of Washington County, Arkansas, on page 408 of the book.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: Welcome to our family, Jess & Donna. We are always excited to find new relatives not previously identified. Yes, we will appreciate a copy of your family tree, particularly if it identifies James. The Census records have revealed many individuals in Arkansas whom we have not been able to identify. James is one of those. Having been born in Missouri in 1839, could he be a son of the James who migrated to Texas with Jesse? With a child aged 13 and one aged 8, both born in Missouri, he should appear on the 1870 Census, but we didn't find him there. How interesting that he has a grandson named Jess. Jesse 165 (see p 313), who migrated from KY to MO ca 1833-35 and to TX ca 1843-44, was the first to carry this name. It shows up later in other lines. We of the 16 lineage always try to make a connection. The fascination of genealogy is the unanswered questions!

EDWARD L. HAMILTON, R.R.#1, Box 275, DuQuoin IL 62832, writes for information about the 1992 Reunion. (see first paragraph of newsletter) Edward descends from Wiley Coleman Arterberry also. (Editor's note: Are you related to Reita? If not, the two of you should get together. Let us know what you discover.)

VERDA I. LORIMER, 2565 Rainbow Drive, Casper WY 82604, writes regarding a copy of the book and submits an extension of your lineage chart. How nice to hear from a descendant of John 16! Verda is a fourth cousin of the editors, descending from Elias 16x11. If she were in the lineage chart, her number would be 16x11x1555. Verda, a personal letter will follow.

MYRNA ATTEBERY BARRY 1654659 of Denver CO reports that she has a new job with the University of Colorado at Boulder (Business Affairs). Her daughter, Kerry Lou Gray 16546592, has been quite ill this winter and spring with acute pancreatitis. Please remember her in your prayers.

ANNA MAE ATTEBERY BROOKS 165468 is also in poor health, reports her husband Carlton. She has been in a nursing home since June 1991 and is receiving excellent care. Her husband visits her daily to help with her meals, etc. "Aunt Mae" has always been a favorite to the 16546 line. In addition to her husband and two sons with families, she has over 35 nieces and nephews who love her dearly. They have not been able to attend a reunion in several years, but have always been with us in spirit. Aunt Mae & Uncle Carlton - we miss you and will be praying for you.

HOWARD MARTIN 1654669 has also had problems with poor health. Please remember Howard in your prayers.

WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL 1654653 reports that she and her husband, Nolan, will be enjoying a trip to Branson MO April 20-25 with the Senior Citizens from their church. A detailed report will be in Newsletter 92-3.

WILMA also sends a "60 Years Ago" article from The Walters Herald. The article, dated Thursday, January 14, 1932, reported: "....Dick Martin and Bill Bruton, two wellknown and popular Walters mechanics announce the opening of a new garage and tractor repair shop in the old Woodson building on East Colorado...." Dick Martin now lives CA. He is shown in the lineage chart as 142374x11 (Wilma's uncle), and Bill Bruton was his uncle (Wilma's greatuncle).

WILMA ATTEBERY MITCHELL 1654653 and VONCILLE ATTEBERY WINTER 1654626 enjoyed a workshop on "Research in North Carolina" conducted by author Jo White Linn of Salisbury, N. C., at the Oklahoma Genealogical Society on November 16, 1991. While it was very interesting, no new leads were discovered for the Attebery line. Some work needs to be done there on the Barnes line, which is a common line for all 16546 cousins.

RACHEL BASS 165462333, age 16, will spend two months in Australia this summer as part of the American Field Services Foreign Exchange, having received a corporate scholarship from Mobil Oil, where her father is employed. Mobil gives 4 or 5 such scholarships each year, based on grades, extracurricular activities and interviews. This is an excellent opportunity for Rachel - imagine two months outdoors in Australia! The American Field Services Foreign Exchange program was set up originally to train ambulance drivers during WWI and WWII (Ernest Hemingway was involved during WWII). The program proved to be very successful and many lives were saved as a result of having excellent ambulance service. After WWII, 50,000 such drivers migrated to the United States and formed the nucleus for the emergency health care we take for granted today. Travel is no novelty, however, for Rachel. Her father, HAROLD DEAN BASS (Buster), plans their annual vacation with care and each year is a historical educational experience. Most of the first three years of her life were spent in Iran, with the family leaving in November 1978 bringing only the clothes on their back. The 165462 Clan gave them a special "Welcome Home" that Thanksgiving! Rachel, keep a journal and give us a report next fall. We are proud of you.

REUNION 1993 was an "experience" not to be soon forgotten by the participants! The very first time that an outdoor picnic is planned without shelter - guess what? It rained - and it rained - and it rained! At ten o'clock, your editor was pleading with the zoo director to please find a place indoors for us. Absolutely not possible - the Aquatics Center is under renovation! Finally, they found a small make-shift shelter for us near a souvenir shop. It leaked in spots, but we were so thankful to be out of the sporadic downpours we hardly noticed the drips. Nor did that interfere with our enjoyment of an excellent meal - everything was good and everyone ate all they could hold! Spirits were good and much visiting took place. A short business meeting was held before the group dispersed to enjoy the zoo and make a path for the Dolphin Show at 2:00 p.m.. The Dolphin Show was great and was enjoyed by all. Afterwards, the group began to say their goodbyes and split up. Some headed for home soon thereafter and others stayed at the zoo until dark.

Gifts were given to: Eldest - Marjorie Conner (85 years young) from Texas Youngest - Tyler Stephen McCoy, born 2 Dec 1992 at 2 lbs. 1 oz
 It has been a hard haul for Tyler, but he is making it and looks great!
 Fartherest Distance Traveled - Ken Chase from San Jose CA
 Youngest Grandparent - Ann Attebery Wilkerson from Duncan OK

Next Year's reunion was the primary topic of discussion during the business meeting. The final decision was reached to hold the reunion at Waurika OK.

Waurika is in Jefferson County OK near Red River. Robert Watts Attebery 16546 homesteaded land 4½ miles Southwest of Waurika - about 2 miles from Red River. His descendants will serve as hosts for this reunion. Details of the reunion and a schedule will be worked out by the directors at a meeting sometime this fall. Please let your representative know what you would like and when you want the reunion. A suggestion has been made that the reunion be scheduled during the annual "Snake Hunt" at Waurika. The Snake Hunt is the largest tourist event in Jefferson County, usually held in the Spring. If you have never been to one, this might enhance the Reunion for you. On the "con" side, however, many people do not like snake hunts and there are some California relatives who can only come in June. Again, please let your representatives know what you want!

Included in the schedule will be a tour of the Chisholm Trail Museum and the farm area where Robert Watts Attebery brought his young family in 1901. He was a founding member of the Presbyterian Church and helped build Rocky Knob School. His granddaughter, Voncille Attebery Winter, was the last Attebery to graduate from the rural grade school in 1945. A catfish dinner certainly seems to be a natural part of the festivities. Trips to Duncan (25 miles to the North) and/or Wichita Falls TX (25-30 miles to the Southwest) can also be planned. Let your representatives know what you want!

JANET JENSEN of Phoenix AZ sends a letter of inquiry about our Newsletter.

JOSIE ARTERBURY DENISON, Box 364, Monticello MS 39654 sent a crochet piece of WINTER and her appreciation of our newsletter. She is a newly discovered relative descending from 16x11 Elias Arterbury - a brother of Jesse Atterberry 165 from whom so many of our Association members descend. Josie has a gift shop and does crocheting by order. If you have need for certain pieces, you might write to her.

VERDA I. LORIMER 16x11x1555 writes to report that her brother Hy Ipson 16x11x1558 and his wife Sammy Jean have been called to serve a mission for their church in Nauvoo, Illinois. Verda & Hy have submitted information extending their lineage chart for the book. They purchased a Xerox copy of the book and are actively working on the research of their line.

HY IPSON 16x11x1558 wrote ALVIN ARTERBURY 16x11x356 on June 10th and Alvin shared the letter at the Family Reunion on June 26th. Hy sends information on Leonidas Arterbury a son of John Francis Marion 16x11x4. Leonidas Arterbury 16x11x4? served in the Spanish War as a Private in Co. D, 5 Reg't U.S. Voluntary Infantry from July 2, 1898, until January 14, 1899, when he died in Santiago, Cuba, in the Post Hospital of Typhoid Fever contracted in the line of duty. Apparently, Leonidas suffered much during the short term of his service. He is described as being 5'10" with dark complexion, brown eyes and brown hair, a farmer by trade, and 24 years 2 months old when he enlisted at Hesterville, Mississippi, where he was born. He is reported to have been buried January 15, 1899 in Santiago, Cuba; however, Hy was told by his family that he was buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Hy also reports that he and his wife are serving as LDS missionaries as guides to some of the old homes in Nauvoo IL. His great-grandmother, Sarah Ann Arterbury Church lived there in 1845-46 and he is looking for information on her as he has spare time. He also reports that Nathan & Patty's daughter Elizabeth Atterbury Lay 154 was there about the same time. He may have more interesting things to report soon. Thanks, Hy!

STEVE ATTEBERY 16546571 writes that he has moved to Atlanta GA with his wife Kathryn and son Ben in order for Kathryn to be closer to her parents. They are expecting a second child this November. That's OK, Steve. All the smart people are leaving California before it slides off into the ocean. (That's a joke!)

BONNIE BAUMGARDNER MARTIN of Goodman MO sends a newspaper article about Georgia Atterbury of Duquesne MO who spent 47 years of her life teaching school. Georgia is 86 and says that if she could pitch her aluminum walker and step back into the classroom, she would do it in a minute. All you educators out there can appreciate that. Teaching has to be the most rewarding profession in the world! Bonnie, can you give us the lineage number for Georgia?

WILMA MITCHELL 1654653 reports that she and her husband Nolan accompanied the Leedey Seniors on a chartered bus trip to Texas - through a flood (8-11 inches) at San Antonio and another at Oklahoma City. They visited: The Admiral Nimitz Museum, LBJ Ranch near Johnson City, the SAS shoe factory, a ride on the space needle (750 feet high), toured the Alamo, the Lone Star Buckhorn Museum, a visit to Japanese Sunken Garden, boatride on San Antonio River, Sea World of Texas, and the Marine Life Show Place. They enjoyed it very much.

PERRY A. LORENTZEN writes for information about our newsletter and reports using our book, which he found at the Santa Clara Public Library. The authors did not make a donation to the Santa Clara library, so someone else did. Remember this if you want to give your book away - many people can then use it. Thanks, whomever you were!

JOHN A. ATTERBURY, author of the Atterbury Family History newsletter, sends a copy of a land grant to James Arterbury of 641 acres on the fourth of September, 1786. He makes the assumption that this is James 19 and wonders if the David Mitchell who owns the adjacent property may be an uncle and a brother of Sarah Mitchell Atterberry. We wish you well on this project, John, and hope you will be able to find some proof that will help sort out the James of Camden District, South Carolina. The authors of the book were unable to confirm that a James served in the Revolutionary War.

John also reports an ATTERBURY BROS. CIRCUS run by Robert Lee Atterbury of Paris MO. Robert also lived in Petersburg IL, but traveled with circuses for 28 years before starting his own in 1911. He died in 1941 at the age of 75.

OTHER NEWS OF THE DAY -

MICHELLE JARKE 165465322 of Oklahoma City has had as her guests during the past week two friends from Germany, Dagmar Hettgen and Marita Herges. Michelle met the girls, who are from Bernkastel-Kues (northwest of Frankfurt), Germany, when she was stationed in Germany several years ago. In addition to taking her friends to visit her grandparents, Wilma & Nolan Mitchell, and her mother, Janet Mitchell of Lawton, Michelle took them to Dallas. In Dallas, the friends were particularly interested in visiting South Fork Ranch. The TV show, Dallas, was and is very popular overseas.

DANIEL MCGUIRE 165465621, son of Konnie Chase Jackson, had an unfortunate accident just a few days before Reunion 1993. On an oil rig (a new job of about 3 weeks), Daniel was involved in an accident wherein he lost the two middle fingers of his left hand. Daniel had already enlisted for service in the Army, and was to leave in July. Of course, his service career is over now, but he is doing well physically and hopes to return to work within a few weeks.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR -

If you are working on other lines and are interested in their reunions, you might like to subscribe to Family Reunions, P. O. Box 281, Middletown OH 45062.

Wilma and I plan to attend the 5th Annual Meeting of the Descendants of Mexican War Veterans in Dallas on September 18th, given that our husbands are both well enough for us to be away from home. We have a special interest in this organization because of OUR NATHAN who served in the Mexican War. When Wilma first asked me to help her prove our line in 1982, she knew that our great-grandfather was Nathan. We located nine Nathans who could have been - but which one really was our line? We searched and read and wrote and called! A trip to the Dallas County Court House identified several property owners by the name of Attebery (various spellings). Finally on a hunch (and the knowledge that deeds are sometimes incompletely indexed), I ordered a copy of a deed from Mary Jane Atterbery and Churchwell Atterberry to Jesse Atterberry. Sure enough - there it was! The deed was actually from Mary Jane, Churchwell and Nathan to Jesse conveying their interest in their mother's (Levisa, daughter of Thomas - whose number was 186) estate to their father, Jesse 165. Bingo! Our line is now proven back to William the Emigrant of 1733! Wilma has loved me every since! Others thought it was nice and were very glad that we had done the research and put a book together - but no one will ever have the special feeling for Nathan that we have. He died when our grandfather was about six months old. Our grandfather, Robert Watts Attebery, also lost his mother when he was twelve. He knew very little about his family line and died in 1921 at the age of 60, before either of us were even born. We will have more information about Robert Watts, Nathan and Jesse to share with you at REUNION 1994.

A special "Thank You" to all of you for your good wishes and prayers for my husband Bill. The kidney failure (uremia) and congestive heart failure continue to get worse. He is very anemic and frail now, and the retinopathy has progressed to the point that he can no longer drive. I am now the "designated driver." He is no longer able to travel more than three hours (which does permit trips to our country home), so there will be no more long vacations. We are settling in for the hot, hot Oklahoma Summer.

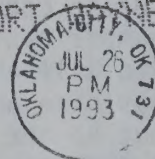

Please share your news with us for the newsletter. Be sure to report the weddings, births, deaths, special honors and anniversaries, and trips you have have taken. We are interested and a note in the Newsletter can spread the word to so many others. Reading about the travels of others is almost as good as traveling oneself. In my old age, I'll probably be happy with a good atlas and road map!

Voncille Winter

A HAPPY and PROSPEROUS 1993 to everyone! May you each find that missing link or links that tie(s) your line back to William and our English ancestors. We will probably never be able to "prove" our line before the 1500s in Northampton, although we can dream. Your editor is now reading The Bible as History by Werner Keller and finds it fascinating, although it doesn't hold any secrets to our English line. One has to wonder a little about the genealogical lines reported in the Bible when reflecting on the difficulties we have in trying to report an accurate line more than three generations long.

Speaking of accuracy, last issue's comments about James 151 brought some response, but no answers per se. There are several researchers out there working on the mystery of James, which pleases your editor very much. For those of you who may have forgotten the issues involved, please review the narrative portion of the book particularly pp 29-47. The authors were unable to verify that the James who died in 1843 in Monroe County MO was one of the nine brothers found in South Carolina in 1790. They did rule out that he could have been born in 1758 in South Carolina. The family was still in Virginia in 1758 and are found there as late as 1771.

Someone wrote recently asking if Jesse James was related to our line, since the name James shows up so much. No connection with a James family is found until a marriage in 1936. However, a James family is found in some of the records in Virginia and Missouri, so the family friendship may be long-standing. Proof of it is not found until 1846. On the first tax rolls of the state of Texas, page 4 of the Dallas County Tax Roll lists first a Nathan Attebery followed by a William James. Their sons were close lifelong friends who migrated to Jefferson County OK, but did not know when the family friendship may have begun. The great-granddaughter of Nathan, Nadine Attebery 1654623, married the great-grandson of William James, Earnest Bass, in 1936. It is the editor's opinion that the James name shows up so much because of the strong English heritage.

Another James who has not yet been identified is the one who migrated to Texas with the Peters Colony. See page 88 of the book for more details. The Atterberrys listed were: James and family, Stephen C. and family, Jesse and family, Nathan & Churchhill, single men. Actually Stephen Clement 1426 came as a single man after the Mexican War, and married his bride, Isabella Rawlings, in Texas. She had migrated with her family. Nathan and Churchwell (incorrectly reported as Churchhill) were sons of Nathan 165. James has not been identified, however, we know he stayed around for some time. He signed the survey of Churchwell's (165) land in 1855. Could he have been James 187, a brother of Jesse's wife, Levisa 186? A James was in Missouri by 1823, with Edward and Michael, who were probably his brothers 181 & 185. Their father, Thomas 18, probably migrated to Missouri with his daughter Levisa and son-in-law Jesse 165. There has been much erroneous information published on Thomas also. One family sheet sent to Salt Lake City lists Jesse as his son - an easy mistake since Jesse was a son-in-law, but a difficult area when one is a new researcher to the line. It took some time to verify that Jesse really belonged to John instead of Thomas.

The uncertainty your editor has about all the different James is reflected in the family book. Was James 123 really the James who died in Chester County SC in 1796? Or, could it have been James 19, James 151, or James 187?

Jeanne D. Bussell, 920 E. Sixth Street, Cookeville TN 38501, is working on James 151, whom she believes to have been the father of her Sarah Elizabeth Atterbury, who married Adam C. Hamilton.

Donna Atterberry Steerilring, 65980 Clerie Falls Rd., Bered, Oregon 97701, also descends from a James, who died 25 Dec 1903, and was married to a Permelia Jane Dennis. She was told that James operated a ferryboat in Indian Territory and that he may have had only one leg. Can anyone identify her James?

A new Atterbury researcher, John C. Atterbury, 214 Burning Tree Rd., Greens Ferry, Arkansas 72067, has started an Atterbury Family History newsletter and hopes to uncover some new information about the nine brothers and related family lines. We all wish him well, particularly the authors Winter & Mitchell! If someone has a copy of the family book they would like to sell, he would like to buy one.

Regarding copies of the book - no third edition is planned at this time. However, copies can be made on an individual basis at a cost of approximately $80-$85. Simply send your request and check to Voncille Winter and she will take care of it. The copying will be on 100% cotton paper, which will last for years without turning yellow.

The lineage chart portion of the family book is under constant updating and revision. A special thank-you goes out to those who have submitted updates in the format of the book using the same numbering system. You are truly appreciated! Your editor recently spent 10 days entering such data and trying to resolve conflicting data submitted from different individuals.

Another genealogy researcher, although not new to research, recently sent information on his line (following the book numbering system perfectly). His number is 16x11x1558. He is Hyrum B. Ipson and his address is Box B., Monroe UT 84754-0108. Hyrum is a 3rd cousin to Alvin J. Arterbury 16x11x3563, who has done an excellent job on researching his line. Another from the Elias 16x11 line is Verda I. Ipson Lorimer 16x11x1555, 2565 Rainbow Dr., Casper WY 82601. Hyrum, Alvin & Verda are all fourth cousins of the authors Winter & Mitchell. How nice to have them with us. We've had Alvin for some time (he submitted data for the book), but where were Hyrum and Verda when we needed them? We're glad to have them now, though, and look forward to receiving new info.

Bonnie Atterberry Messett, in response to a request in the newsletter of Jan 1991, sent a picture of the headstone of Greenberry Atterberry 1955 (1825-1897). He is buried in an old Atterberry family cemetery between Petersburg and Atterberry, IL. Bonnie, her husband and two brothers have completely restored the cemetery, finding 51 markers which they have restored, straightened, reset and sometimes placed a new foundation therefor. How nice! That is truly a labor of love!

So much information is lost when we do not take care of our cemeteries. An example is the cemetery in Cooke Co TX where Nathan Attebery 1654 is buried. It was on private property and received very little care. The local genealogical society undertook to index it, but did nothing about restoring it - and indexed it as Osborne Cemetery. A check with the Cooke County Clerk shows that the property was dedicated as the Ozment Cemetery! What a coincident! Nathan's Aunt Sarah, who migrated to Mississippi Territory with her mother's Hill family while her brother Jesse (Nathan's father) migrated to Kentucky with his father's Atterbury family, married a Leven Osment or Ozment in 1820. Were Sarah & Jesse reunited in Texas?

FROM THE MAILBAG -

VIVIAN MILLER, 1421 David Dr., Metairie LA 70003, wrote asking to be placed on the mailing list for the newsletter. Vivian's mother is listed in the lineage chart as 14x10x551, but there is no extension beyond her. Vivian's number is 14x10x551x10, as she is the 10th child. Vivian also sent dues for a daughter, Virginia Holtgrene, but didn't give details of her family. Vivian, we would welcome your full line for the lineage chart - but, please, be careful in submitting it and follow the book format for your numbering.

VIVA ATTERBERRY SUTHERLAND 1446256 sent a notice that her grandson, Keith Routh, had graduated from Texas A&M College of Medicine. Keith & his wife Lisa, who also graduated from Texas A&M, will do their residencies at Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Keith, your pioneer ancestors would have been proud of you - as we all are!

DR. ROBERT A. ATTERBURY, retired, sent a copy of an article he wrote for the Chicago Dental Society Review. He was an oral & maxillofacial surgeon and the article is on Preoperative Evaluation of the Dental Patient. Also enclosed was his business card with the following notes in the four corners: No Business; No Appointment; No Money; No Credit. The retirees of our family love it! Robert does not descend from William the English emigrant. His family came to America in the late 1800s and he can identify his English cousins. We are related, but will have to go back to Northampton to prove it. If enough people were interested, your editor would plan the trip!

NED & MARJORIE DuVIVIERS sent a Christmas newsletter describing their trips to London, Paris, California, & Mexico. After 41 years, they are moving to a smaller home and sent their new address: 3212 Morket Drive, Godfrey IL 62035-1821.

LUELLA CRAVENS 1321337, who celebrated her 84th birthday last July, sent a note about the beautiful fall they had in Illinois and enclosed an article about the eagle population. Certainly sounds nice during the winter, doesn't it?

DAVE RAYBURN 14265146 sent a picture of a headstone in the Ralls Cemetery in Crosby Co., TX. It is a double stone with the following names: ATTERBERRY; Louie C. (1901-1951); Jessie L. (1901-1939). Can anyone identify these family members?

VERNON CHARTIER 144441422 writes to say that his nephew, Kerry Poe, did not make it to the Olympics. After being ranked # 1 all year in the USA, Chris & Kerry finished 4th in the Olympic Trials. Only the first place boat got to go to the Olympics in Barcelona. The team that won the Trials and represented the U.S. did win the Silver Medal. Better luck next time, Kerry.

PATT ATTEBERY, w/1654624, sent a newspaper article about sculptress Betty Butts being honored in Anadarko OK for her fifth bronze bust, which was of the Sioux Chief Sitting Bull. Other bronze busts for the National Hall of Fame for Famous American Indians at Anadarko, sculptured by Betty include: Massassoit, Victoria, Louis Tewanima and Cochise. Both Betty and Patt live in Lucerne Valley CA. Congratulations, Betty!

BARBARA SCOTT 13213232 sent her 1992 Christmas newsletter. The family appears to all be well and happy. John continues to teach on a part time basis and Barbara continues in the real estate business.

JUANITA ATTERBURY 1315x13x52 sends a listing of all the Atterburys (any spelling) in the Kansas City telephone directory. Thanks, Juanita.

VIRGINIA ALBAN, a granddaughter of Emma Caroline Atteberry 1315x10 (see p 225) writes for help in the family numbering system so that she can extend her own family line. Since this is a common request and the answer may help other readers, the request will be dealt with in the newsletter. She also asks about library copies of the family book. Copies of the book can be found in the state historical society libraries of Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina, Arkansas, and in the Latter Day Saints' Library in Salt Lake City (where microfilm copies are also available).

Virginia, the numbering system used in the family lineage chart is based on the popular Register Plan, as adapted to meet the needs of an on-going growth chart. Each digit in an individual's number represents a generation and the value of that digit represents the individual's position in the family. It is really quite simple and easy to use once one becomes accustomed to it; however, until you understand it (and some people have not been able to do so) it can seem difficult. Example: Your Emma Atteberry is shown as 1315x10 on p 225 of the family book. 1 = William, 3 = Charles (the third son of William), next 1 = Isaiah (first son of Charles), 5 = David (fifth son of Isaiah), (the x simply separates double digits), and 10 = Emma (10th child of David). Okay?? Not quite - we have a problem! Since the book was printed, we have information that reports 15 children for David instead of 14, indicating that the 10th child was William born 1857 and that Emma is actually the 11th child. First, check this out and verify Emma's position in the family. Then proceed with an extension of the line as described above. For the sake of an example, let's assume you are the 3rd child of Mabel Barr - your number would be 1315x10x23. If you have questions or need more help, please write or call.

LINEAGE CHART ADDITIONS/CHANGES

1654653212 TYLER STEPHEN McCOY, born 2 December 1992 to Lisa & Mike McCoy, weighed in at 2 lbs 1 oz and was 14" long. He is doing well, but still hospitalized.

1315x13x31 OPAL ATTEBERRY STEWART, age 79, passed away in September 1992. She was preceded in death by her husband, John, who had been in poor health for many years. Opal attended one of the reunions a few years ago. She was a lovely person and those of us who came to know her loved her. Our condolences to her immediate family. Opal purchased five of the family books, apparently for the family she loved so much.

142374x11x1 GENEVA MAXINE MARTIN HOLLIS, born 12 April 1930 Walters OK, died Oct 1992 in Bakersfield CA

CLEMA ARTERBERRY, age 94, Mangum OK, died 21 November 1992. Can anyone identify her family relationship?

1654669 HOWARD EUGENE MARTIN, born 10 Oct 1930, died 22 April 1992 and was buried in Collinsville OK. Howard was survived by his wife, Shirley, son Robert, stepson Mick Mason and two stepdaughters Marilyn Dirickson & Charlotte Benn. Howard was a first cousin to Vencille and a double cousin to Wilma Attebery Martin 1654653, co-authors of the family book. Howard descended from three of the nine Atterbury brothers found in SC in 1790 - John, Thomas & Richard. He was one of 14 children and the first one to pass away. We will all miss him and extend our condolences to his immediate family.

JAMES L. ATTEBERRY, 66, Pierce City, MO, born 18 June 1926, died 18 October 1992. He was buried in the Pierce City Cemetery. Can anyone identify his family relationship?

ROBERT LEE ATEBEARY, born 25 Oct 1865, died 16 May 1942 and is buried in Brumfield Cemetery near Seiling in Dewey Co OK, according to Wilma Mitchell 1654653 from Camargo. This is indeed a variant spelling, but he is no doubt related. Can anyone identify his relationship?

REVIEW OF DATA - Remember Newsletter 91-2 p 2 wherein it was reported that William I apparently married a Sarah Mitchell? Of course, we knew already that his wife's name was Sarah, but her maiden name was not known. Some concern has been expressed that the new data reported by George Wylder may involve some confusion with the Sarah Mitchell who was married to Charles 13. Could be, but your editor would like to review the information reported in Newsletter 91-2:

"...from George Wylder...recently purchased Vol 2nd Calendar of Wills 1748-1753...

On p 234, Prince George's County, is the will of John Mitchel, Sr., dated 4 June 1742, probated 25 Aug 1752. Children listed are: sons John & David; daughters, Mary Lee, Sarah Atterbury, & Elizabeth. In Prince George's Co., MD Index of Church Registers 1626-1885, Queen Anne's Parish, pp 184-185, George found: ...Sarah Mitchell b 31 Aug 1720 dau John & Eliz....Sarah Mitchell m Robert Yockley 3 June 1735..."

Please note that John made his will in 1742 - only 9 years after William arrived in America. William & Sarah certainly could not have met, married and produced a son old enough to have a wife within 9 years, which rules out her being the wife of Charles. No other Atterbury is found in America in that time frame (see pp 17-23 of the family book) that could have been Sarah's husband, except William. The fly in the ointment is the marriage to Robert Yockley at the age of 15. Did Robert die and Sarah remarry William prior to 1742? This seems most logical, but could bear more research.

LATE NOTICE - As this newsletter was being written, word came of the death of Lou Ella K. Williamson, wife of Lelon Wood 1654631, on 31 January 1993 in Lawton OK. Our condolences to the immediate family. Lou Ella was a special person, beloved by all who knew her. She and Lelon enjoyed 55+ years together.

REUNION 1993 has been scheduled for June 26, 1993, at the Oklahoma City Zoo, 50th & Martin Luther King Blvd. (formerly Eastern). Lunch will be catered by the Zoo - all you care to eat of fried chicken or brisket, potato salad and cole slaw, chips, tea or lemonade, etc. We can gather by 9 or 10 for visiting, eat at 11:30 or 12, enjoy the dolphin show at 2:00 p.m., and tour the zoo or visit for the rest of the day. The cost for adults will be $15 each, and children 3-11 will be $11 each. Under 3 is free. The details will be given in Newsletter 93-2 in April. We must have a minimum of 30 and our last chance to cancel is May 1 - so be making your plans now.

In addition to the one-day get-together at the zoo, get-togethers will be planned for Friday and Saturday nights - probably a meal (each buying their own) at a local restaurant or cafeteria with a meeting room where we can have time and space for visiting. Newsletter 93-2 will have more details, a map, and recommended motels.

(NOTE TO THE DIRECTORS: I apologize for being unable to have you all together this year for a planning session. Rather than skip a reunion all together, I put this together after visiting with Wilma & Wanda. If the response is inadequate, we can wait a few years before trying again. Voncille)

FROM THE EDITOR: Please send in your news. Others would like to know about the new grandchildren, the marriages, deaths, awards, educational & professional achievements of your family. If you are planning a family reunion, please send that info also - your attendance may increase! Let us hear from you.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR: It has been six months since the last newsletter was published - a very difficult six months for me. I lost MY Bill on December 27, 1993. Although I had known that it was coming for three years, I was not prepared nor was I ready to give him up. I don't think we are ever ready.

In December 1990, Bill was hospitalized with bleeding ulcers. During his stay in the hospital, he was diagnosed as having chronic renal (kidney) failure. We had known since August 1988 that he had diabetes. What a devastating disease! From then on, it was downhill all the way. He developed diabetic retinopathy, a "stiff" heart, peripheral neuropathy, anemia, and all the various symptoms and side effects of kidney failure such as cellulitis and constant itching. Those of you who saw him at the last two reunions knew how much he was failing.

I retired in 1991 to spend more time with him and care for him. I prayed for one good year and God answered that prayer. 1992 found us traveling (Bill preferred to travel by automobile) and spending a lot of quality time together. Whatever he wanted to do, we did. Early 1993 was also fairly good, although he was becoming frail and tired easily. Our last trip was made in June to Louisville to see his brother.

Steroid shots were started in June on a weekly basis in an attempt to offset the anemia. They did not work although they were continued to the end. In September, he entered the hospital for blood transfusions and a surgical procedure to prepare him for dialysis (from the beginning, he had said he would not take dialysis; however, after three years of my harassment, he agreed to try it). While in the hospital his right eye hemorrhaged, setting off all sorts of alarms. After several days of further testing and a prognosis that promised little time and much pain, Bill decided once again to forego dialysis. I had finally decided that it should be his decision and I promised support of that decision, whatever it might be. It was a difficult promise to keep. He never waived with his decision.

The last three months of Bill's life were very difficult. The anemia and neuropathy seemed to grow worse by the day and he lost his appetite completely. He wanted to stay at home and I was able to keep him until December 15th. He reentered the hospital then and passed away on December 27th.

On Christmas Day, we had a party in his hospital room. His 84-year-old brother, sister-in-law (also 84), nephew, nephew's wife, and three teenage grandnephews and grandniece came 150 miles to spend the day with him. He was too weak to say much, but enjoyed listening and watching so very much. The next day, he slept most of the day and at 2:00 a.m. on the morning of December 27th, he quietly slipped away.

I am thankful for the 46+ years we had together, for the fact that he remained rational to the end (with a BUN count of 205, the doctor said he should have been completely out of his mind the last two weeks) and did not have convulsions. He and our only child are now together.

FROM THE MAILBAG -

MARGUERITE ATTEBERRY EMMONS 18831461 writes that she is continuing her research in Hart County KY of the line of Thomas 18. We eagerly await her findings and will share such in the newsletter (condensed version of course).

VIVIAN V. MILLER 14x10x551x10 writes that she would like ANY INFORMATION on her mother's brother, LLOYD CALVIN ATTERBERRY 14x10x552, whom they never met although he was her mother's only sibling. Can anyone help? His parents were from Jefferson County Illinois.

MARJORIE DuVIVIER, gr-grandaughter of Zepheniah E. Attebery 1216, writes that she has found a deed to property purchased by Zepheniah in 1849, in an 1884 "History of Randolph and Macon Counties in Missouri." She also reports on the Great Flood of 1993. Alton was without water of about 5 days and boiled their drinking water for a month. Marjorie & her husband, Ned, live in Godfrey (a small town to the north of Alton). Their older downtown area of about 8 square blocks was badly damaged. How many other relatives in Illinois and Missouri suffered damage?

JANET & KEN BROOKS 1654681 write that they are still enjoying being back in Oklahoma. They "returned" home from New York to Pawhuska, where Janet grew up, three years ago. Ken is the son of Mae Attebery Brooks 165468 to whom the family book was dedicated. Their son Mike is in California working for 3-M. (Editor's note: Is it time to call all those California relatives home??) They report that the Pawhuska telephone book lists three Atterberrys - Duke, John & Brian. Can anyone identify this line?

GLEN DOUGLAS ATTEBERY 1655572 sends additional information for the lineage chart, expanding on the 16553 line of Allen Thomas Attebery. Thanks, Glen, we appreciate all information.

Dr. LOUIS W. ATTEBERY 1428614 writes (last July) that he was extended Visiting Fellow status at Harvard for the fall semester. He intended, and surely did, to do research on Emily Dickinson and Barbara was to continue her study of the organ.

HY IPSON 16x11x1558 writes from his new assignment in Navaroo IL sending more information about the Mexican War. His great-grandfather Haden Wells Church (husband of Sarah Ann Arterbury 16x11x1) was in Company B of the Mormon Battalion. They made the longest infantry march in history - Ft. Leavenworth KS to San Diego CA during the war. He left a wife and 4-month-old baby to participate in the war. They met a year later in Salt Lake City.

Hy also sent a copy of the book "John Mitchell of Mitchellville, Prince George's County, Maryland" and some 22 pages from "Hill & Hill-Moberly Connections of Fairfield County SC," both of which your editor has read but not yet digested. She still holds to the belief that the Atteberys and Hills of Cook County TX of the 1860-1890 era may have been relatives reunited from the South Carolina days. The Mitchell material deserves some detailed study, as it is probably the only new research material since the book was published. More on this later.

KANARDY & BONNIE TAYLOR 195543?, who live in Silver Spring MD, write regarding Leonardas Arterberry's place of burial. You will recall that Leonardas is mentioned in the last newsletter, but there was a question about his place of burial. Kanardy was able to verify that Leonardas is buried in the Arlington National Cemetery in Section 22, Grave 14922, and the record showed him to have been in Co. D., 5th Regiment, as earlier reported. For possible further help, Kanardy gives the following address:

Registry Office, Arlington National Cemetery,
Arlington, VA 22211 phone 703/692-0931 hrs 8am-5pm best time to call is early morning

LUELLA ATTEBERRY CRAVENS 1321337 also wrote about the Great Flood of '93. She is served by the Alton Water Company also. That note came 8/2/93 and she reported that she had just been dismissed from the hospital after having suffered from a heart attack. Apparently, she is recuperating nicely. She sent a condolence letter recently and has always been supportive of our research efforts. Thanks, Luella.

VERNON CHARTIER 144441422 reports on a trip to Paris in September 1992 where he met Alain Chartier who had organized a Chartier Family Association in France. Alain could not speak English and Vernon could not speak French. Fortunately, Alain has a son Laurent who was an exchange student in Riverton, Wyoming several years ago and was able to translate for them. The Chartier Family Association of North America has published five volumes on the Chartiers in North America. On another note, he and his son were at the Portland Zoo where a group called Atteberry Associates was to be catered. Betty or Wayne - was this your group? Do you want to share the details with us?

VERDA I. LORIMER 16x11x1555 wrote in August that her husband Lee was still on crutches and would be for perhaps another year. They were to fly to Salt Lake City in Sept to see about the possibility of trying to replace the hip for the third time. We hope all went well and we will keep you in our prayers, Verda.

GEORGIA WHEELER BYINGTON (why don't we know your number, Georgia?) writes about meeting a William Candlish Atteberry. As a result, she sent an extension of the line of ALVIN RALPH ATTEBERRY 131612. Thanks, Georgia.

CAROL BRADLEY 14633442 writes to join our Family Association. She found our book in the library and was able to extend her line back from it. Previously, she had only gotten back to her great-grandfather John E. Atteberry 14633.

(Editor's note: I am concerned that Carol did not find the addresses and phone numbers of the authors in the book. Could that page now be missing? I will have to check. For those of you who rely on it, however, please note that my address will not be changing to Stringtown as indicated.)

RONALD D. ATTEBERRY of San Luis Obispo CA purchased a copy of the book in September for himself and an aunt who are both heavily into research. We hope to hear more from him.

JOSIE ARTERBURY DENISON sends more information on the line of John Francis Marion Arterbury 16x11x4 and cemetery listings from Attala County Mississippi. She and Alvin Arterbury and Hyrum Ipson should have a good lineage chart put together soon.

EDNA WALTERS 14x13x13x61 sent a page from the John Mitchell book with her Christmas card and offered to copy it for me. Thanks, Edna, but Hyrum Ipson has already sent a copy to me. I am looking forward to the digestion process of reading it carefully.

Another note from BONNIE & KANARDY TAYLOR at Christmas reports that they both enjoyed their 83rd birthdays and their 58th anniversary during 1993. Congratulations!

The Christmas letter from JOHN and BARBARA SCOTT 13213232 reports that they celebrated their 40th anniversary in 1993. John completed work for his MAI appraisal designation (for those of you who don't know, this is the TOP appraisal designation in the field). He is retired, but teaches, researches and writes extensively.

JANET JENSEN is a new member of our Family Association. She descends from Thomas & Luraney by way of SARAH ATTEBURY 183 who married Nathan Jagers. She is a fourth cousin of the editors of the book, Voncille & Wilma, who descend from Sarah's sister Levisa. Levisa married her cousin, Jesse Attebury 165, and the family is numbered from Jesse 165.

The following poem was written by Dalton Attebery 16555x11 on his 81st birthday (in 1993). Dalton's wife Edith is in very bad health and Dalton is the care-giver of the family now. He read the poem to his family when they surprised him with a party on his 81st birthday.

US

In Thirty-Three
There was Edith and me
In Thirty-Four a little girl
And then we were three

In Nineteen-Forty Along comes another
In Forty-Three
Each girl has a brother

In Nineteen-Forty-Nine another son, and I thought to myself "This is Fun."

Then Edith said,
"He's the last of the litter."
"Oh, come on Edith, don't be a quitter."

Thru gritted teeth
she said, "There will be no more,
and for that smart remark, you can sleep on the floor."

To these four were added eight and then nine more she calls our great.

So where there were two
There is now twenty-three, and that's quite a bunch for Edith and me.

If you add in-laws and out-laws and keep score inning by inning you'll find quite a crowd for such a small beginning.

So let's drink a toast
To Edith
a pretty good gal
my sweetheart, my wife, my friend, my pal.

You say we are old
Well, that's no lie-
But you tell us
Life passed us by,
You say there are no more babies to love and adore?
Why Heck No!
I still sleep on the floor.

I'm not saying this happened all for the best;
Just relating this story of the great Southwest.

I put this story together without any fuss.
And for want of a better name,
I called it US.

And US it shall be,
Forever and Ever.
And I'll read this poem
When we all get together.

Thanks, Dalton, we know Edith and your entire family must feel very loved.

Many of you are receiving the Atterbury Family History newsletter put out by John C. Atterbury of Greens Ferry AR. John is a relatively new family researcher, having started in 1992. He has a copy of our family book and uses the numbering system. He descends from James 19 and his research concentrates on that line. If anyone is researching a particular line, please share your area of interest with us. John sent a plot of the Willis H. Atterbury Cemetery, which he prefers to think of as the William Atterbury (194) Cemetery. He is to be commended for his cemetery research. Much information can be obtained there. Most cemeteries can be identified in the County Clerk's office. If lots are owned individually, title records are also found in the County Clerk's office. This source of information is often overlooked.

BEWARE OF OPPORTUNITIES TO PURCHASE A "FAMILY BOOK"

Robert Atterbury, DDS, wrote in September about an offer he received from Halberts in Bath OH to purchase "The World Book of Atterburys." (Editor's Note: Robert, if you didn't receive a handwritten note of reply, please accept my apology.) Such books all follow the same format - certainly those put out by Halbert's. The family listing is compiled from the telephone books in major cities of the United States and give only a name and address - no relationships of any kind. The "World Book" portion of the title would indicate they may have gone outside the United States. Such books have value only to a research, and only limited value thereto. Your editor has a few such books, purchased by generous relatives when we were writing the family book. Do not confuse such book offers with a legitimately researched book.

RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES

A catalog was recently received from Mountain Press, P.O. Box 400, Signal Mountain, TN 37377-0400, phone 1-615-886-6369. The offerings in the catalog are mostly books and maps of the Southeastern part of the U.S. They maintain a large private collection of materials for southwest Virginia and eastern Tennessee and will do private research for $15 per hour with a $45 deposit required. If you want research done, this seems to be a reasonable fee. Be very specific in your request and give as much information as you can. Your editor assumes NO responsibility!

COMPUTERS FOR GENEALOGICAL USE

Are they helpful? Necessary? How are they used? Which one is best? What equipment is needed? How much does it cost?

Your editor does not have a computer, which everyone seems to think is very odd. Well, you understand that she is an academican who always had a secretary to do the computer work. She vaguely understands how they work, but is awed by the constant changes in technology. In addition, she has never seen a software package she liked.

If she should decide to beg, borrow or steal enough to purchase computer equipment, what should she purchase? Please share your expertise.

Frankly, she is of the opinion that a microfilm reader and a copier might be of more value to her than a computer. However, a computer would be good for the lineage chart update, given that a good programmer can be found to set it up.

Your help and advice, please.

HISTORICAL EVENTS recognized

The movie Gettysburg is highly recommended as well worth the investment of time - 4 hours and 8 minutes. It is based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, "The Killer Angels," by Michael Shaara. The movie is the story of the Battle of Gettysburg, a three-day contest of wills that both Confederate and Federal troops thought would decide the War Between the States. 4,000 unpaid re-enactors helped make the scenes well-staged and authentic. See it if you have an opportunity. Brent James Steele h/1654655 is one of the re-enactors.

The OREGON TRAIL was memorialized in 1993 when the Historic Trails Wagon Train, headed by Wagon Master Morris Carter, drove their wagons from Independence MO to Independence OR. It was a six month trip with stops along the way at most towns. Six states were crossed in rain, hail, snow, tornadoes, and dust on the 2,300 mile trip. Wanda Walters of Casper WY shared newspaper clipping of the trip with us. Thanks so very much, Wanda. The articles were great. A summary of the event is included with this newsletter. See page 10.

Cemeteries and their care are important to those interested in genealogy (and to others also), and damage to such grieves us all. The Great Flood of 1993 did damage to cemeteries as well as damage to homes and businesses. Juanita Attebery shared an article from the Carrollton MO newspaper. How sad! Please read the article on page 11.

Tiny Mills College in Oakland CA, more than 1,500 miles from Oklahoma, has provided a liberal arts education for over 80 Oklahoma women since ANNA ATTERBURY KELLAM of Woodward left Oklahoma in 1913 to attend the school. Oklahoma alumnae & supporters have created a $100,000 endowment for the school to fund Oklahoma scholarships. There has been a resurgence of financial and emotional support for women-only colleges in the 1990s after perilous times in the 1970s and 1980s. At one time there were more than 300 such schools; now there are only 83. Mills President Janet Holmgren McKay reports that women's colleges have retained value because they can best prepare "women as learners and women as leaders." Anna Atterbury Kellam is believed to be of the Charles N. Atterbury line.

by a nephew, Harold Dean "Buster" Bass

Bill Winter was a man who loved life. He believed life to be a gift from God - to be enjoyed to the fullest. Quality of life was very important to him.

He had a strong faith in God and an appreciation of the universe God created for us. He always said he felt closest to God when he was in the great outdoors. He loved nature and had an excellent understanding of the natural cycles of life for all living creatures and plants. He hunted and fished, but never wasted his harvest - always respecting the laws of nature and God.

Uncle Bill had a strong Code of Ethics and his moral values served as a guide for his life and the lives of others who were touched by him. He was a devoted family man and "family" to him extended far beyond his immediate family. Many nephews and nieces were the beneficiaries of his family love, affection and teaching. I am one of those nephews.

Some of the most pleasant memories of my childhood are of visits from Uncle Bill Winter. These memories will extend for a lifetime for me. Over the past twenty years, our visits were mainly at the annual Thanksgiving Reunion here in McGee Valley. These have been special times that will always be among the very best memories in my life. When I was younger, Uncle Bill used to fish with my Dad whenever they had a chance and the fun that we had at meals whenever Uncle Bill was around was anticipated by everyone for days before his arrival. Occasionally, we would journey to Oklahoma City and spend the night, which was also a very special experience for me. It was a warm home with lots of love and good food.

Uncle Bill was the world's best "good example" for me. He had distinguished himself in World War II, having fought through the early days in the Pacific Theater and eventually participating in the liberation of the Philippines, one of the most important battles of World War II. The fact that he was a twice wounded war hero made quite an impression on me as a youngster; an impression that was even more meaningful after my own service in Vietnam. It was equally important to me that he was faithful not only to his country in its' time of need, but also to his God, his family and his community. He always stopped to lend a helping hand wherever it was needed.

Hard working, God fearing men who are nice to little kids and fun to be around will always be sorely missed when they are gone. My Uncle Bill Winter was such a man and I will always miss him very much.

Wagons reach end of Oregon Trail

By CANDY MOULTON
Star-Tribune correspondent

INDEPENDENCE, Ore. — Historic Trails Wagon Train reached the end of the trail when the wagons reached Independence Thursday. After a short stop in the city park, the wagons rolled through town and delivered mail carried since the beginning of the trip May 2.

Wagon Master Morris Carter's train left from Independence, Mo., and traveled 2,300 miles through six states in rain, hail, snow, tornadoes, and dust to reach Independence, Ore.

Carter's four daughters — Oneta, Ivy, Airian, and Katrena — and Ben Kern drove the four Historic Trails wagons that made the entire journey. Also joining them for the trip was Casper videographer Bobby Lee and a wagon from Aurora, Ore., driven by Earl Leggett.

Along the route Carter lost three animals, and a lot of help. A mule died in Nebraska, a saddle horse died in eastern Idaho, and a draft horse died in western Idaho. But when the wagons pulled up to stop in Independence, they were drawn by the same teams they started the trip with. The animals that died were relief stock.

Those on the train also became ill with colds and flu and more than once Carter took his daughters to a doctor or a hospital for medical attention for those same reasons.

Support crew workers — the people who set up camp, cook, and help with the chores — came and went and none of those who started the trip finished. But the train slowly kept moving west, "We never missed one campsite that was of importance to a community," Carter said.

The train was a commercial venture for which Carter sold seats.

They stuck to a schedule developed months ago: As an example, the train last May received an invitation to punch and cookies at a school in The Dalles, Ore. "We had planned to be there at 11:15 and got there at 11:45," Carter said of the school celebration. At schools, the Carter girls, who range in age from 14 to 19, often visited with students. Driving Mike and Fritz to Independence, Katrena Carter had a message for her schoolmates at Dean Morgan

Junior High School in Casper: "Of all the junior high schools I've been to along this 2,300 mile trip, I've found Dean Morgan to be one of the best schools in education and academics."

Katrena is anxious to get back to school, she said, because she wants to play basketball.

No matter where the wagon train stops, the emotional end of the trail was at Oregon City, Ore.

For the people who have made the entire nearly six-month-long trip, Oregon City was a "very emotional day," Leggett said.

"When we got to Oregon City we were all crying," Airian Carter said. "Dad was actually wiping his eyes."

Airian Carter said when they left Missouri, "we did not realize we were going to embark on one of the greatest adventures of our life."

Riding his zebra dun mule the last few miles into Independence, Morris Carter said that even though the wagons will continue next week toward Astoria, Ore., reaching Independence is significant.

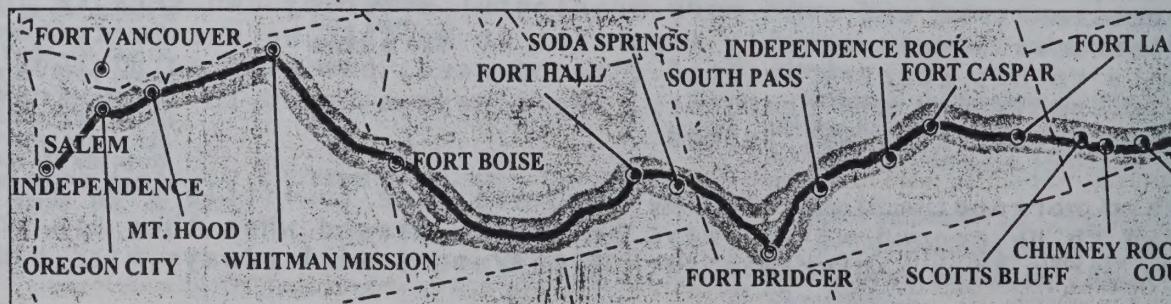

"It's pretty much the end. It's good-bye to the trail, good-bye to the trail people ... and the communities that helped us along," Carter said.

Waiting her turn to hand cancel some of the mail carried from Independence, Mo., Ivy Carter said she had no emotion at being in Independence, but canceling the mail "is really neat. It makes you realize how long it's been since we did it" in Missouri as they left.

For Ben Kern of Evansville, reaching Independence brought up deep feelings even though he said earlier in the week that much of the joy of traveling by wagon ended once they completed their journey around Mount Hood on the Barlow Road. "That was wagon training," he said of the rough, narrow track through the forest. Since reaching Oregon City, the train has traveled on highways with police escorts.

Traveling the Oregon Trail by wagon train was Kern's lifelong dream. Fording the Green River in Wyoming was one high point in the crossing for Kern. "It was something that was real ... we had an awful lot of bad weather, but that was realistic."

Having taken six months to travel the route, Kern said he realizes now, "It's better to go a slower pace."

Buried Grief Reawakened As Graves Are Swept Away

By ISABEL WILKERSON
The New York Times

HARDIN, Mo. — When the Missouri River barreled through town like white-water rapids this summer and grain bins and City Hall, and the Assembly of God church and houses and barns gave way and there were no telephones or electricity or running water, people in this tiny farm town thought they knew all about the power of nature.

Then the unthinkable happened. The river washed away the cemetery where just about anybody who ever lived and died here was buried.

The river carved out a crater 50 feet deep where the cemetery used to be. It took cottonwood trees and the brick entryway and carried close to 900 caskets and burial vaults downstream toward St. Louis and the Mississippi.

The remains of whole families floated away, their two-ton burial vaults coming to rest in tree limbs, on highways, along railroad tracks and in beanfields two and three towns away.

"You cannot accept the magnitude of it until you're standing in it," said Dean Snow, the Ray County coroner.

He said it may take years to find all the remains.

Now people who lost everything else to the flood are left to weep for the parents they mourned decades ago, the stillborn children they never saw grow up, the husbands taken from them in farm accidents, the mothers who died in childbirth. It is as if the people have died all over again and the survivors must grieve anew.

Every day they show up at the Ray County fairgrounds to get word of their lost loved ones, gathering at a bulletin board with the names of the dead who have been recovered and identified.

"People are just heartsick," said Ed Wolfe, who had five generations of relatives in the cemetery. "It's a trying, a testing time to have to go through this all over again."

About 1,500 people were buried at the Hardin Cemetery, once a pristine landscape nine acres across and now a muddy lake where minnows and snapping turtles live alongside broken headstones and toppled graves.

The disaster was all the more astonishing because Hardin is not even a river town. It is some five miles north of the Missouri.

Since it was founded in 1810, the cemetery had survived tornadoes, floods and the Civil War. No other cemetery in the country has been uprooted like this, officials of the American Cemetery Association say. Local people see the occurrence as near-biblical.

"It makes you think, 'What is God saying to us?'" said Bess Meador, a retired nurse with two late husbands in the cemetery. "What is it we're doing that we shouldn't be doing? You look at that cemetery and you feel so helpless."

So far, the remains of about 200 people have been found, stored in open barns and refrigerated trucks at the county fairgrounds. About 90 have been identified.

The ordeal has forced Carrie Lee Young to relive the day she learned that her husband, Roy, died when a tractor-mower fell on him five years ago.

"He was out mowing by the road," she said, her eyes welling with tears. "And he didn't come in for supper. I couldn't go out looking for him. He had the car. People went out looking for him. They found him late that night. We were getting ready for our 55th wedding anniversary. It would be our 60th this year."

Every Memorial Day, she would carry peonies from her garden to place on the grave he had picked out for himself. Now she fears he is floating somewhere in the Missouri.

"I don't know where my husband is," said the 81-year-old widow. "It is just pitiful."

To this town of 598 people, the cemetery was more than a place to bury people. It was an archive, a genealogical museum, a family album without pictures. People could trace their family trees by just walking among the tombstones.

He soberly toured the cemetery recently, introducing people he knew as if he were at a reunion. "That's Grandma and Grandpa Bandy," he said of one set of tombstones.

"Those were neighbors of ours," Wolfe said, pointing to the headstones of a mother, father and daughter.

Joined by Snow, he came upon the grave of a World War II veteran. "That's Della's husband," he said.

"Yeah, Bob's dad," Snow said. "He was working on his car and it fell on him."

County officials have been hauling in caskets at a rate of about eight a day, as farmers and other civilians report sightings. Clara Heil, a farmer eight miles east of Hardin, awoke one morning to find 10 vaults in her yard.

The cemetery itself has attracted tourists from Illinois and Kansas and as far away as Vermont, who drive past police barricades and ignore the "keep out" signs to take pictures.

But these are hallowed grounds to people like Wolfe. When Snow waved him onto the site, he anxiously paced the cemetery in search of his father and stillborn son.

He got to the edge of the cliff and saw the earth carved out in the spot where they should be.

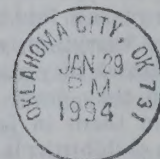

"My baby and my dad are gone," Wolfe said, his eyes red and watery.

"We've been hoping for five weeks they were safe. The way things are broken up down there, I don't know if they'll ever be recovered."

He wiped his eyes and headed back to the road, walking over dead corn shucks and wheat stubble, to break the news to his wife.

REUNION 1994 will be held on June 24, 1994, in Waurika OK as recommended and voted on at Reunion 1993. We apologize for the short notice and hope you understand that this has not been an easy year for the 16546 family. Detailed plans were not finalized until last week. Please mark your calendar and send in your reservation. A schedule of activities and a reservation form are to be found on the last page of the newsletter.

That is the good news! The bad news is that we have lost another of our family's major supporters. Nolan Mitchell, husband of Wilma Attebery Mitchell 1654653, passed away on April 12, 1994, after suffering several months from a brain tumor. A copy of his obituary is shown near the end of the newsletter. Nolan will be missed by the Attebery family, as well as by his Mitchell family and many friends. His funeral was held in the Christian Church in Camargo, although he was a Baptist, so that his friends in Camargo could attend. He and Wilma chose to retire in the small town of Carmargo 19 years ago and became part of the close-knit community family. Camargo has no Baptist Church, so they became members of the First Baptist Church in Leedey.

Nolan is the one who hand-carved our "Attebery Reunion" sign and always saw to it that the sign was hung. He always provided extra chairs and tables, some of which were hand-made. Your editor will always cherish the table made for the Winters. It was carefully measured to fit in the back of the Blazer. Caring & giving was a part of Nolan's personality and the Atteberys certainly benefited from those traits. He and Jay Chase were close friends as well as brothers-in-law, and did many projects together. He and Bill Winter became good friends during the writing of "the book." Both of them were self-sufficient men who loved to cook. Not only did they spend many week-ends in the country together, but they spent a lot of time running errands for Wilma and Voncille as well as feeding them. Both of them will be missed very much!

OTHER NEWS - -

The stockholders in Temple's Farmers Elevator, Inc. voted February 15 to turn over the elevator to First Bank of Oklahoma, thus ending 67 years as a county cooperative. The vote was 276 to 7. First Bank in turn sold the elevator to Attebury Grain Inc. of Amarillo TX, who took over operations February 16. Attebury Elevator operates 33 other grain elevators including Wichita Falls, Burkburnett, Byers and Thornberry in Texas and Devol, Randlett and now Temple in Oklahoma. There are no plans for any major changes in the operation of the elevator.

Caren Atteberry of Atoka has been named a Certified Fraud Examiner by the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. The CFE designation is awarded to select professionals responsible for detecting, deterring, and investigating fraude. Mrs. Atteberry is the wife of Carl Atteberry, vocational agriculture instructor at Atoka High School. They have three children: Chad, 9; Colen, 6; and Cayla, 1.

REUNION 1994 will be held at Waurika OK on June 25, 1994, and will be hosted by the descendants of ROBERT WATTS ATTEBERY 16546. The reunion will be held in his memory.

Robert Watts Attebery was born 11 June 1861 to Nancy Ann & Nathan Attebery in Cooke County TX. His father, Nathan 1654, died on 20 Feb 1862, when Robert Watts was only eight months old.

Robert's mother later married a man named Bolin, and she died when Robert was only 12 years old. He told his children that he had been reared by an uncle. He had two brothers and a sister.

During his late teens and early 20s, Bob (as he was known to his friends) worked as a cowhand, spending many long days and nights alone in Northern Texas and Southern Oklahoma.

On 8 December 1886, at the age of twenty-five, Bob was married to a neighbor girl, Sarah Elizabeth (Lizzie) Barnes. The young couple settled near Bulcher in Montague County near the Red River Crossing Station, which was a major crossing leading to Indian Territory (later known as Highway 81).

Two children were born in Montague County - Willie (b 2 Aug 1888 - d 8 Aug 1888) and Claude (b 18 May 1890). Sometime during 1891, the family crossed into Indian Territory and settled near Fleetwood. Four children were born here: Dovie, b 19 April 1892; Maude, b 10 May 1895; Robert William, b 22 Mar 1898; and Bethel, b 4 August 1900.

The chance to become a landowner came with the government's decision to open Western Oklahoma for settlement. The Comanche, Kiowa and Apache land opening was held by lottery from June 9 to August 6, 1901. The lottery was held at Fort Sill and Bob traveled there to place his name in the lottery. Geronimo was being held captive at the fort at the time.

Bob's number was not drawn at the lottery; however, he purchased a homestead right from a lucky party for $200. This homestead right was exercised in an area to become Jefferson County.

A half-dugout was promptly prepared for his family and the work of "improving a homestead" began. A house was built the next year. Two more children were born at the new homestead: Jesse Jewell, b 26 February 1903 and Anna Mae, b 4 August 1904.

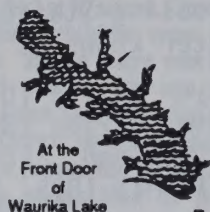

Bob and Lizzie promptly settled into the religious life of the community as charter members of the Presbyterian Church of Waurika. Bob served as a member of the school board of Rocky Knob School (a one-room independent school district for K-8) until his death. The school was two miles from the family home and all his children attended school there.

Bob died of a heart attack on Christmas Day 1921. He left his children and grandchildren a legacy of honesty, integrity, religious faith, and a strong belief in the Protestant Ethics of agrarian America.

More than 20 years have passed since there was an Attebery family in Waurika. Your editor graduated from High School in Waurika in May 1945 and went to the Oklahoma College for Women in September. She has not lived there since then, but it is still home!

On April 21, your editor met her youngest sister, Edna 165462x12 and Edna's husband, Arlen Ward in Waurika to firm up plans for REUNION 1994. Arlen met Edna in Waurika while he was stationed at Sheppard Field near Wichita TX (he grew up in Minnesota). They fell in love and married in 1957 (three months before Edna's 15th birthday). Needless to say, Claude Attebery was not too happy about a Yankee son-in-law marrying his 14-year-old daughter. Predictions were that the marriage would never last. Thirty-seven years later, they are still together and the family has come to love Arlen. He loves Waurika and will make an excellent guide at the reunion!

Many of the family will be arriving on Friday evening, June 24th, and many will be staying over Saturday night, June 25th. There is only one motel in Waurika, so early reservation would be wise. However, two motels were identified in Duncan, which is about 25 miles to the north. Cards, with rates for our group, are shown below:

Our noon meal will be catered by Darwin's Southern Kitchen, with a choice of three meats, vegetables and salads, plus drinks. We will meet in the Rock Island Depot for registration at 9:00 a.m., then go to the Presbyterian Church for fellowship and a historical service. A bus will be available for the trip. Afterwards (probably from 11 to 12:30), a tour of the area will be conducted by bus. After a stop at the Chisholm Trail Museum, the bus will take us back to the Depot for lunch. After lunch, there will be much visiting and swimming is available at Waurika Lake (guides will be there). The J.C. park with rides for small children is within a block of the depot. Teen-agers may enjoy the Recreation Center downtown (about 2 blocks from depot) where pool and game machines are available. There should be something for everyone. Entertainment will also be found for those staying over Saturday night.

A reservation form is shown below. Please complete and return by June 15th. The cost is $10 for adults and $5 for children under 12. Children under 2 who eat from their parents' plate are free.

No tickets will be mailed or used. Admittance will be checked against the registration listings, so be sure to list all those you are bringing. The cost for guests is the same as that for family members.

Let's make REUNION 1994 another great one to remember. Mark June 25th on your calender and send your reservations in by June 15th. If you have any questions, please write or call your editor at 405/733-1294.

DIRECTIONS: Waurika is located in South Central Oklahoma at the intersection of Highways 81 and 70. The motel, Darwin's Southern Kitchen, and the Chisholm Trail Motel are located at the intersection. Traveling West on Hwy 70 almost a mile leads you to the South end of Main Street. On that mile's journey, a look to the North (your right) will reveal the Rock Island Depot. (Editor's Note: Of course, they have street names in Waurika, but many of them have been torn down and they are never used by the natives. If you can't find the Depot, just ask! See you there!)

POSTSCRIPT: The Chisolm Trail Historical Association is sponsoring the compiling of a new History Book on Jefferson County. The book will consist of family household histories, plus many topics on the communities, townships, churches, schools, organizations and much more! Your editor will be submitting a family history for the Robert Watts Attebery family and the Claude Attebery family. The Pre-Sale price of this limited edition book is $45 plus $5 for postage and handling. Send your check or money order to Jefferson County History, P. O. Box 74, Waurika OK 73573.

REUNION 1994 was another success. Although the attendance was small, the comradery was great. Registration was at the Rock Island Depot and then the group boarded a local school bus for the Presbyterian Church. After a short service at the church which Robert Watts Attebery 16546 helped found in 1905, the group was treated to drinks at the nearby drug store and boarded the bus again for a tour of the surrounding rural area. Not a single drop of ice was wasted by anyone as the temperature continued to rise (before the day was over it reached 109 in Waurika). The group toured the homestead of Robert Watts Attebery 16546, & the site of the local school he helped build (your editor was the last Attebery graduate of the little white one-room grade school on a hill in 1941). The school building was converted to a home in the late '40s and was destroyed by a tornado in the mid-'70s. The tour also included nearby (2 miles) Red River and the Waurika Lake. Then, it was back to the Depot for an excellent meal prepared by Darwin's Country Kitchen (which lost its Duncan location in a wind-storm the night before) in spite of their problems. The Depot is air-conditioned and the afternoon was spent visiting for the most part. Two or three groups went to the lake for swimming. Family friends were invited in for the afternoon visiting. By 5 p.m., everyone except the Claude Attebery 165462 families were gone. Your editor and her sisters enjoyed a nice catfish dinner out by the lake and continued their visiting. A report of the reunion from the Waurika News-Democrat is shown on page 5.

1994 has not been a good year for the 16546 line. After losing her husband on December 27, 1993, your editor has lost three cousins and a dear cousin-in-law during the past four months. Wilma Mitchell 1654653, the co-author of our family book lost her husband on April 12 (Nolan is the dear cousin-in-law mentioned above), a cousin and a brother. The siblings of Voncille and Wilma can list almost the same loses. Wilma's brother, Lyndel Attebery, died August 19, 1994, after having heart surgery. Many of you will remember Lyndel from the reunions. He has been good about coming, particularly the last three years since he has been back in Woodward.

Lyndel's children, Steven Edward Attebery 16546571 and Kimberly Ann Attebery Montalvo 16546572, have our deepest sympathy. Both of them arrived at Lyndel's bedside before he died, Steven from Georgia and Kimberly from California. Some of Steven's memories of his father are given on page 6.

The term "Black Dutch" is familiar to most of us, but undefineable by many. A recent article in The Daily Oklahoman by Sharon Burns lists some of the theories of the term. The publication, "What Did They Mean By That?: a Dictionary of Historical Terms for Genealogists," by Paul Drake, defines "Black Dutch" as Sephardic Jews from Spain who married Dutch Protestants to escape an inquisition during the Middle Ages. "Black" referred to their dark hair and complexions.

According to Mary Lynn Spijkerman Parker, president of the Dutch Family Heritage Society, reports on an article, "Were The 'Black Dutch' in America Really Jews?" by Raymond G. Matthews. According to Matthews, one theory speculates the term referred to Spanish soldiers interbreeding with fair-skinned Dutch during the 1500s when the Netherlands were controlled by Spain. Another theory discussed by Matthews agrees with Drake's definition. To avoid persecution, the Jews living in Spain and Portugal moved into countries such as Belgium, The Netherlands and England. They attempted to blend into society and intermarried with natives of the region. Descendants became Catholic in terms of religion, later becoming members of the Reformed Dutch Church. Later generations immigrated to America and other colonies after 1740.

Matthews indicates this definition may not be accurate. Jewish historians and genealogists have also indicated they are unfamiliar with the term.

A third theory proposed by Jared Suess of the Family History Library, Salt Lake City, indicates the term may be derived from the Schwarzwald or Black Forest of Germany. The Schwarzwald is in Baden-Wurttemberg and along Switzerland's northern border.

The term "Black Dutch" may be a corruption of the word "Deutsch," referring to persons from the Black Forest region. During this period, mercenaries from this region were hired by the Dutch, thus a migration to America via The Netherlands could have occurred.

Other genealogists refer to the term as a regional expression without historical roots. Until family traditions indicating ancestors of "Black Dutch" heritage can be documented by research, these theories are just that, theories.

Your editor brings this information to you because she frequently is told that someone is "Black Dutch" and she has never been able to trace the term to its roots. Certainly, the William Atterbury who was our progenitor was not Black Dutch! When you hear the term now, please ask the speaker to explain it to you and report your findings to the family.

MARGUERITE A. EMMONS 18831461 (Congratulations, Marguerite! A Gold Star for you for remembering your number while your goods are all in storage.) writes to give us her new address: 4141-107 Lake Lynn DC, Raleigh, NC 17613. They plan to buy a house soon, but are currently in an apartment in the school district in which they plan to buy. Marguerite and her family are engaging in "reverse migration" by returning to the East rather than continuing to "head west." Several of our family are doing this, including Steven Attebery 16546571 of Georgia. Won't genealogists of 2100 have fun?

Marguerite reports a Tom Atteberry of 206 Whisperwood Ct, Carey, in her phone book. He is not on our mailing list. Can anyone identify him?

Marguerite is working on the 1883 line for an addition to the book. If you can help her, please write to her. She also offers to check documents, etc. for others since Raleigh is the North Carolina state capital and nearby Burham has an LDS library. (Request from your editor - Please see if you can find any Loyalty Oath records)

Editor's Note: Thank you, Marguerite, for your kind words for Wilma and me. The thoughts and prayers of our friends and relatives have certainly helped. The only Luraney we found in Hart County was married to Thomas 18, but "who knows?" There is still so much unknown.

LOUELLA CRAVENS 1321337 wrote about the reunion, which she was unable to attend. She celebrated her 86th birthday on July 16th! We should all live so long. Congratulations, Louella!

DANNY MARTS of Owensboro KY writes to be placed on the newsletter mailing list. Danny's address is 2937 Daviess St., Owensboro KY 42303. (Editor's Note: Welcome to our family group, Danny!. The dues are $5 annually per family. You will be receiving several back issues also.)

JOSIE ARTERBERRY DENISON, from the line of 16x11 Elias, sends a newspaper article from Woolmarket MS about the Woolmarket Elementary School having five sets of identical twins and a pair of fraternal twins. The article quotes a Janna Atterbury, a registered nurse in the maternal fetal medicine division at the University of South Alabama Medical Center in Mobile, who says that one in every 250 births results in an identical twin. Therefore, the school could expect three sets of twins - but, six??

The family journeyed to the Presbyterian Church at 9 a.m. for a short service and picture taking session. A tour of the homestead and the surrounding area was conducted before lunch. Following lunch, some went to Waurika Lake for a swim while others visited with family members and friends that joined the group.

Those attending the reunion were:

Wilma Mitchell, Camargo; Wanda and Kyle Chase, Lyn Attebery, Donna Mitchell, Woodward; Michelle Jarke, Oklahoma City; Ruth and Max Dunn, Del City; Voncille Winter, Midwest City;

Memories

I have had the distinct privilege to know, respect and love a special man for all of my thirty-one years.

This man clothed me, fed me, cared for and comforted me, he was always there. He was a very generous person, who went to great pains to see that our families needs were met, and yes I'll admit that both my sister and I were a bit spoiled on occasion by this wonderful individual.

His generosity knew no boundaries, he was particularly giving of his time. One of my fondest memories is when he would sketch-out a car or a motorcycle for me to detail with my crayons, while we watched cartoons together, this was a Saturday morning ritual I so looked forward to.

I remember all of those trips to and from baseball, football and track practice. Not once did he ever complain of the time constraints this put on him, even though he put in long hard days at work. That's because he thoroughly enjoyed spending quality time with his family, wherever that may be.

He had a subtle sense of humor about him, once in a while he would tease my sister and I, bursting us all into laughter in the process. I can vividly picture this gentle persons unique laugh and bright smile.

He was gentle indeed, very seldom did he ever raise his voice or get angry at me, on the few occasions that I can recall him being angry, rest assured it was deserved.

I can only hope to be able to discipline my own two boys with the same grace and tactfulness that he used, all the while instilling desirable characteristics in their lives, such as the ones he instilled in mine.

I hope that I can nurture, encourage and praise my boys the way he did to me.

He set a good example for me to follow, one of commitment to family and to that of providing for ones family. He was a man of integrity a man of great fortitude, a man of character.

Who is this man that I hold in such high regard, a man that I love and adore so, a man that I am so very proud of, why he is my very own Father.

My Daddy went to be with the Lord Jesus Christ on August Nineteenth, Nineteen-Ninetyfour. He was laid to rest in the state of which he was born, the state he was so proud of, Oklahoma.

I'm thankful that I had the opportunity to spend the last of his hours with him by his side. I was able to tell him what a wonderful man, husband, father, provider, confidant, teacher and human being that he truly was.

I still can't quite believe that he is gone, It's our loss and Heavens gain, he will sorely be missed !

The last words that I whispered into my Fathers ear were the words, " I'll see you in Heaven", indeed one day I will.

Are you listening Dad, I love you... Steve.

NOTES FROM THE EDITOR:

Wilma Mitchell and I will travel to San Antonio on 22nd or 23rd for a meeting of the Descendants of Mexican War Veterans on September 24th. This will be primarily a fun trip, since we do not expect to learn any new information nor will be anywhere that research can be done. We will stop in Waco to tour the Texas Ranger Museum. You will recall that our great-grandfather, Nathan 1654, served in the Mexican War with the Texas Rangers under Captain Preston Witt.

Stephen Clement Atteberry 1426 also served in the Mexican War coming from Illinois. After the war was over, he declined free transportation home and made his way to Texas where his fiancée had settled with her family. While most of Richard's 14 line stayed in Illinois or traveled to Missouri, a few of Stephen's relatives also made their way to Texas, but most returned home.

Another trip planned by Wilma and me is one to Salt Lake City for some true research. You will recall that we made that trip in March 1991. We found very little new material; however, there are several new lines we want to pursue. I want to work on my Booth and Prince lines and we both want to work on our Barnes line.

I am embarrassed to tell anyone that I have a line proven back to 1733 and have three other lines dating back about as far, and still I'm not eligible for membership in the DAR! Our Atteberry ancestors almost have to have been in Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina or South Carolina during the Revolution. Everyone who lived then had to sign a Loyalty Oath or be considered "the enemy." Loyalty Oath records were apparently kept in the local County records. Have any of you come across such records?

Perhaps you will enjoy the following prayer. It was a favorite of the late Cary Grant who died in 1986 at the age of 82.

PRAYER FOR THE AGED

"Lord, Thou knowest better than I know myself that I am growing older, and will someday be old.

"Keep me from getting talkative, and particularly from the fatal habit of thinking I must

"With my vast store of wisdom, it seems a pity not to use it all — but Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end."

— Prayer for the Aged say something on every occasion.

"Release me from craving to try to straighten out everybody's affairs.

"Keep my mind free from the recital of endless details — give me wings to get to the point.

"I ask for grace enough to listen to the tales of others' pains. Help me to endure them with patience.

"But seal my lips on my own aches and pains — they are increasing, and my love of rehearsing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by.

"Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally it is possible that I may be mistaken.

"Keep me reasonably sweet; I do not want to be a saint — some of them are so hard to live with — but a sour old person is one of the crowning works of the devil.

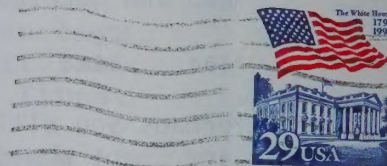

"Make me thoughtful, but not moody; helpful, but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom, it seems a pity not to use it all — but Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end."

A HAPPY & PROSPEROUS 1995 to all of our clan everywhere. We trust you had a good holiday season (from the cards and letters received in the mailbag, to be reviewed later, everyone must have had a good 1994), Groundhog Day and a good Valentine's Day. The official Groundhog, who is Punxsutawney Phil and resides on Gobbler's Knob in Punxsutawney, Pa., did not see his shadow. So, for most of the nation, we can expect an early Spring; however, the cold blast of last week would not lead one to think so.

A Revised Lineage Chart is being planned for 1996! Yes, your editor is finally making the commitment. Pat Attebery has agreed to type it and is now working to get the current issue on her computer.

Here are the tentative plans and timelines:

| | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------|
| New Information submission deadline | December 31, 1995 |
| Order deadline | March 1, 1996 |
| Payment due | May 1, 1996 |
| Delivery of Revised Lineage Chart | July 1, 1996 |
| Cost (including postage & shipping) | apprx $40-50 |

Note that this is to be a revised lineage chart, not a revised family book. Any book revision would require two volumes. There will be approximately 300 pages in the revised lineage chart. It will be printed on 100% bond for preservation purposes and we hope to have it hardbound. If there are insufficient orders, the project will be scrapped and any payments received will be returned. The master copy of the 1984 book is still intact and copies can be made in soft binding on bond paper for $85. We remind you that it is copyrighted.

All submission of new information must follow the format of the family book published in 1984. We cannot do this project from information arranged otherwise. There will be enough human errors anyway - let's not add to that by submitting unidentified names with no numbers or ancestors. There are about 60-70 pages of submissions that have not been entered yet because of the difficulty in understanding the submissions.

Hopefully, someone in the different lines (for our purposes, consider a line as the descendants of one of the nine brothers found in South Carolina in 1790) will write a history of their own line to further extend the book. The editor wrote the narrative of the book and will be glad to may wish to publish material. Feel free to write her at the address given above or call her at 405/733-1294.

The annual meeting of the Descendants of Mexican War Veterans on Saturday, September 24, 1994, was a successful and enjoyable event. The business meeting was held at Alamo Hall, in the library of The Daughters of the Republic of Texas - located adjacent to the world-famous Alamo shrine, in San Antonio, Texas. Lunch was at the Rivercenter Mall, after which members were treated to an afternoon bus tour of historic sites related to the history of the Mexican War, including the Alamo and the grave of Mexican War hero Capt. Samuel Walker. DMWV President Steven Butler was the tour guide. That evening, members gathered at the Rio Rio Cantina, near the world-famous Paseo del Rio, for dinner.

Voncille Attebery Winter 1654626 and Wilma Attebery Mitchell 1654653 attended the meeting. Wilma came from Camargo to Voncille's home on Thursday and they drove to San Antonio on Friday. The meeting was an all-day affair on Saturday. They were surprised and pleased to find copies of Nathan Attebery 1654's service record and discharge used in the handouts at the meeting. On Sunday, they drove to Beeville and Corpus Christi to welcome a new member of the clan. Kaitlyn Marie Hudson 165462x11x33 was born September 19, 1994, weighing in at 7 lbs 15 ozs. She is the daughter of Tonya 165462x11x3 and Darrel Hudson, the granddaughter of Nell 165462x11 and O. E. King and the grandniece of your editor. (Editor's Note: Please note the term "grandniece." This is seldom used, although it is the proper term. Common usage is "greatniece.") On Monday the 26th, Voncille & Wilma returned to Oklahoma City by way of Fort Worth where they stopped to visit one of Wilma's friends.

Wilma spent Monday night with her granddaughter Lisa McCoy in Norman OK, drove to Lawton the next day and then on home to Carmargo. Three days later she was hospitalized in Woodward with the same problems she had last year. She is doing better now and is planning to move to Woodward in April. The stress of the trip probably brought on the episode and Voncille feels guilty about that. It does point out, however, that Wilma will not be actively involved in the production of the Revised Lineage Chart. She may be involved to some extent in a limited fashion. You might let Wilma hear from you - she would enjoy that.

GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH

Genealogical researchers, particularly new ones, are often confused by terms and abbreviations found in old records. For example, SUR is frequently found in court records including marriage records. It is an abbreviation for "surety," which refers to an individual who, through a pledge of money or other object of value, guaranteed the appearance of himself or another.

Two dictionaries have recently been published which you may have purchased or are considering purchasing. They are: "The New A to Zax, a Comprehensive Genealogical Dictionary for Genealogists and historians" by Barbara Jan Evans and "What Did They Mean By That? A Dictionary of Historical Terms for Genealogists" by Paul Drake, J.D.. Lloyd Bockstruck recently wrote an article about Drake's dictionary, which is worth reprinting for you. See page 3. Lloyd Bockstruck is highly regarded in genealogical circles. If you ever have an opportunity to hear him speak, don't miss the treat.

There are now more than 200 genealogy computer programs to aid in the organization of records and publication of family histories. The Personal Ancestral File computer software program, which contains three unique programs (Family Records, Research Date Filer and Genealogical Information Exchange), can be purchased for $35 from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints, Salt Lake Distribution Center, 1999 W 1700 South, Salt Lake City, Utah 84104 (phone (800) 537-5950. (Editor's Note: How is that for a computer illiterate?)

Genealogical dictionary is useful — if accurate

LLOYD BOCKSTRUCK
FAMILY TREE

As genealogists pore over the records of yesterday, they find that our incredibly rich English language has been growing and changing. Today's definitions simply will not fit the context. The danger is that the definition has changed so abruptly over the decades that our modern meaning will lead to a disastrous genealogical conclusion.

If an ancestor in 1778 referred to his nephew in his will, an untrained genealogist might presume that "nephew" was used to designate his sibling's son. But this is not always true. Well into the 18th century the word "nephew" was genderless. It applied equally to males and females, and it meant a grandchild.

If your ancestor appears in the 1870 census with the occupation of grocer, he was actually selling liquor, unless he was in Georgia, where he would have been the county clerk.

A freeman in Alabama might have been a person of African descent who was not in slavery. In Colonial New England, the term designated a man who had membership in the church and had been admitted to the cherished and exclusive category of a citizen with the right to vote.

In Pennsylvania, a freeman was a man "free of a woman" — that is, a bachelor.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said it best: "A word is not a crystal, transparent and unchanging. It is, rather, the skin of a living thought, and its meaning may vary greatly with the time and the context in which it is found."

Accordingly, it is absolutely necessary to remain alert in interpreting historical records. A genealogical dictionary would seem to be the answer.

Paul Drake, J.D., set out to compile such a work. What Did They Mean by That? A Dictionary of Historical Terms for Genealogists is the result, with more than 3,000 entries.

His goal was admirable. A lexicographer, however, he is not. His errors of commission and omission are disappointing. He indicates that the prefix "O," as in O'Donnell, is Scottish and means "sons of" when in fact it is Irish and means "grandson of."

He has the Republic of Texas ending in 1845 when every Texas schoolchild knows (or ought to know) that Anson Jones presided over the lowering of the Lone Star Flag ending the Republic of Texas on Feb. 19, 1846.

He states that the Emancipation Proclamation of President Lincoln applied to the United States when it applied only to the Southern states in rebellion.

He has the Regulator War taking place in South Carolina rather than in North Carolina in the 1770s.

The entries under "Pilgrim" and "Puritan" in no way leave the reader with any idea of just how far apart these two terms are by definition. He does not differentiate between New Netherland and New Sweden.

His dictionary provides many examples, but he does not provide sources of his definitions.

This 240-page paperback sells for $23 plus $3 handling from Heritage Books Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Place, Suite 300, Bowie, Md. 20716.

The picture shown above is the best view of the Atterbury Street sign in London, England, of all the pictures submitted for the newsletter in the last 12 years. On two trips to London, your editor failed to come home with one this good. The young man in the picture is Craiton B. Cooper 165462121, the grandnephew of the editor, and the son of Linda Attebery Cooper 16546212 and Eldon Cooper. The picture was taken July 3, 1994, while Craiton (age 16) was on a trip of Europe with the Oologah OK International Club. Members of the club earned the money for their trip.

Note below the street name the words "City of Westminster" and to the right of the picture the sign "Tate Gallery." This building is a mile or so South of Westminster Abbey where Sir Francis Atterbury is buried. The building faces East onto a park area beside the Thames River. Craiton is standing at the SW corner of the building. Immediately West of the building is a nice small private garden. A private garden in London is just that - privately owned. Only owners have keys to the gate leading into the garden filled with lovely trees, shrubbery and flowers (everything is lush in London). Inside are benches and "manicured" flower beds. Non-owners can only look in through the wrought-iron fence. Further West is a residential area of formerly nice homes.

The city officials of London were unable to tell your editor when or for whom the street was named. We can assume it was named for Sir Francis Atterbury. The Tate Gallery personnel reported that a major battle took place at the street (damage to the South side of the building - apparently small cannon fire - is still visible) and the small street has been kept open for historical purposes. If you make a trip to London, you must visit Atterbury Street and Westminster Abbey. Sir Francis's tomb is near the entrance of the Abbey.

JOHN C. ATTERBURY of Greers Ferry, Arkansas, is our most active researcher at the present time. He has made a great discovery! A London genealogist, whom John employed, has found a William Atterberry, baptized on June 25, 1710, on the parish register of St. Giles Church, Cripplegate, in the city of London. He was the son of William and Sarah Atterberry. John hopes to prove this William to be our American progenitor. Although our William was using the spelling of Atterbury, this is very likely to be our William - the dates are right. Congratulations, John! You have found information that at least 6 or 7 others (including the editor) have missed.

John is also researching a notice in the Maryland Gazette, August 26, 1756, which stated: "William Atterbury has a stray mare at his plantation near Rock Creek Chapel in Frederick County." This statement has been checked before but no one has found anything concrete. Maybe John will do so.

The maternal grandparents of our John Mitchell, Sr. is another area of John's research. He has discovered Colonel William Burgess, born 1622 in Truro, Wales, who is John Mitchell, Sr.'s maternal grandfather. (Note to John: Wilma Mitchell may have more on this. She found some material while we were in Salt Lake in 1991. I don't seem to have copies of it. When she is feeling better, I'll check with her.)

John has done other interesting research, but your editor turned absolutely green with envy when he wrote that his wife is now a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution! How proud she must be! That status continues to elude your editor. Congratulations, John! And congratulations to Zelma West Atterbury (National No. 0760384)!

Editor's Note to John Atterbury: If convenient, please review the material on Thomas Atterbury, c. 1660-1707. Several other researchers finally reached the conclusion that "John" was a son-in-law, husband of Winnifred, rather than a son. See page 21 of the family book. Of course, "John" could have been the unborn child of Martha, but the inventory of the estate of a Martha Sheredine listing the 'next of kin' as John Booth and Thomas Arterbury lends crediability to the theory that "John" was the son-in-law. Referring to a son-in-law as a son was not all that uncommon in the early 1700s. Your comments after another review will be appreciated.

As John and other researchers spend time on their James 19 line, your editor continues to hope for proof that the James buried in the Willis Atterbury Cemetery about 4 miles north of Madison MO is James 19. She has always felt uncertain about this. Perhaps he is really James 123. The old Chester County SC records do not make this clear. And then there are all those old rumors about seven brothers instead of nine. Then, there's still the question of who the James is that went to Texas with Jesse 165? The fear the authors of the book had - and still have - is that once it is in print it becomes gospel. Old mistakes continue to surface, and we should all be cautious about proof.

FROM THE MAILBAG

KARLEN BREINER BAIN, a descendant of the Elias 14x13x4 line, sends a packet of old letters. She recently discovered the family book in the Dallas library and has shared much of the information with her immediate line. Hopefully, she can review, correct, and extend the lineage chart as it relates to her line. Thanks, Karlen!

LAURA LEIGH SCHUBERT 165462x11x21, a sophomore in Skidmore High School, Skidmore TX, recently made the National Honor Society. Laura, who will turn 16 in April, is 6' tall and an excellent basketball player. How neat to mix brains and sports. Congratulations, Laura!

EDWINNA ATTEBERRY WITTMANN of the 1448 line reports that the death date of Simeon Buchanon Atteberry was 17 June 1910, not the "ca 1880s" reported in the family book. Thanks, Edwinna. (Editor's note: Are you preparing your lineage chart to be added in the reprint of the book?)

MAE FRANCES ARTERBURY PINKSTON, 1268 Cottage Dr., Greenville MS 38703, writes that she is still searching for information on her great-grandfather, John Francis Marion Arterbury 16x11x4. Can anyone help? (Editor's Note: Have you written for his Civil War records? You might get some leads there.)

MARGUERITE EMMONS 18831461 writes that she has found a Oath of Loyalty for John Mitchel, Sr. and John Mitchell in Prince George's Co MD. She promises more later. (Editor's Note: This is great news for your editor and may be her passport into the DAR! Send more information when you can, please.) She also has found that Nancy J. Atterbury 1885 married Jordan Logsdon, son of Dennis and Luvisa Self Logsdon. Luvisa was a sister to Marguerita's Self relatives. (Editor's Note: No, Marguerita, I have not yet purchased a computer. Lack of space is my current excuse. After 25 years of maintaining two homes, I sold the country place in December. I now live with wall-to-wall furniture, boxes, etc. Does this sound familiar "If I ever see ____ again, I will ____?")

NADINE JOHANSEN of Reeds Spring MO, writes to say they lost her 37-year-old daughter, Jayne, on July 5, 1994. Jayne lost a long hard battle with cancer, and finally left behind her a large family including her parents, 8 brothers and sisters, and two young daughters. The daughters, Tela 13 and Meredith 11, will be cared for by Jayne's oldest sister Donna. Nadine's father, Arthur Atteberry, is now 93 years old and still enjoys family, visitors, television, and the shows in Branson, as well as dinner at the Cracker Barrel. Nadine is one of the few Mormoms in our family line and promises to submit her lineage chart soon.

VERNON CHARTIER 144441422 writes that he has won one of the major awards of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (the largest engineering organization in the world with over 300,000 members) and will receive the award in Portland in July. Vernon travels a lot with his work and will be going to Korea in March or April and to Brazil in May. His nephew, Kevin Poe and his wife Nicole Cuevas have been performing in "Cats" in Switzerland for over a year now. Kevin is Mr. Mistofelees which is the same part he played on Broadway in New York.

DIANE HABBERSHAW THRASH writes to extend the line of James Robert Thrash 138615. Thank you, Diane.

HY IPSON 16x11x1558 writes to say they have returned to Monroe UT and he will continue researching his family line.

MARGUERITE GREGORY 1376373 would like more information on George Taylor Atterbury 13766. Can anyone help her? She also asks about an Illinois Association that concentrates on the Charles Atterbury 13 line? Unfortunately, your editor does not know of one. This line probably had more "old data" than any other line and they were very generous in supplying information for the book. You will remember that Paris Louckes, one of our first researchers, came from this line. If you have checked the family book carefully, you know that the names of his children were never "proven." Nathan Atterbury 138 sold his father's land in Grayson Co KY and your authors had great hopes of finding the names of Charles' children in the land records. A personal trip by your editor was very disappointing. You guessed it! The courthouse burned!

DALE OLSON writes for the address of Polly Turner, who is related to Thomas Benton Atteberry. Sorry, we do not have the address.

EXCERPTS FROM CHRISTMAS LETTERS:

WANDA WALTERS of Casper WY writes that 1994 held many happy times for the Walters family; however, she has suffered with a bout of the shingles.

BARBARA ATTEBERRY SCOTT 13213232 writes that they have a new grandson - John Ramsden Scott born April 7, 1994, to John and Molly Scott. He weighed in at 9 lbs. 5ozs., and was 23 inches long. She refers to Attebery and Blackwood reunions. May we have more information, please?

JILL ATTEBERRY STEBBINS 16546252 writes that 1994 has been a good year for both girls, Jessica and Brittny, and husband John who has had a promotion and continues to run the 10K races. Jill has also had a promotion to Member Relations Director and now plans fun parties, trips and special events.

HY IPSON 16x11x1558 writes that they are happy to be "home" and with their family. He is still have problems with the shingles, but is much better. The dermatologist discovered a skin cancer on his face and removed it early.

KANARDY TAYLOR of the 195543 line writes that they came home from Florida early in March 1994 so he could consult with his cardiologist. He is doing better and he and Bonnie are enjoying being close to the family.

MARJORIE DuVIVIER of the 1216 line writes that her family is doing well, but they lost two members this year:

Ned's brother, David, in Princeton NJ 2/10/11 - 5/7/94

Marjorie's cousin, Katharine Horner, in Alton 8/29/09 - 7/17/94

JOHN ATTERBURY of the 19 line and his wife Zelma write that they now have two computers with which to catalog their genealogical information. Their family is well, except for Zelma who has had her right knee replaced.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR - You are certainly a kind and loving family! You have tolerated a lot of neglect by your editor this year. When I got out the material to do a newsletter, I could hardly believe that the last newsletter was dated February 20. Over six months ago!

What can I say? This has not been a good year for me - but, then, I haven't had a good year in over five years. This year, I worked as the acting controller at Rose State College for about 4½ months. I tried to blame my chronic fatigue on that, but apparently it was more than that. In late May, two of my sisters, Edna Attebery Ward 165462x12 and Nell Attebery King 165462x11, and I took a tour of Alaska (see the end of the newsletter for a report on the trip). I ended up in the hospital in Fairbanks with what my two nurse sisters thought was congestive heart failure. I was allowed to complete the trip on the condition that I not carry any bags nor climb any stairs. The sisters carried the extra load and took excellent care of me. They also insisted that I see a cardiologist when I arrived back home.

Well, to make a long story short, it seems that my heart is functioning okay although I do have atrial fibrillation (which I have had for several years) - but, I have asthma. Surprise! An inhalant was prescribed and it has helped. I am feeling better. The chronic fatigue and depression are better and I am sleeping better at night. I expect to feel even better when this horrible heat wave with its high humidity is over.

During the twenty months of my widowhood, I have seriously considered relocating to a more desirable climate. My final decision is to stay here in Midwest City America. So, I have purchased a lot and will build a new home for my sunset years. This means a very busy time for me as I will act as my own general contractor.

For you, this means a delay in the publication of a Revised Lineage Chart. The good news is that I promise to buy a computer after I am settled in the new home.

A letter from Wilma helped motivate me to get this newsletter out. It was the type letter she used to write back when we were so actively researching our Attebery line. You open the envelope and out falls several scraps of paper along with a letter written on notebook paper. Each little scrap carries its own little message and is usually unrelated to all other scraps and the letter itself. Reading a letter from Wilma is a real delight.

Wilma and I have carried on a very intensive and extensive correspondence since 1982 when we first committed ourselves to publish a family book - maybe a 100 pages or so. Ha! We each keep the other's letters (mostly written on notebook paper and easily filed) and I have been tempted to publish them. Most readers would be terribly confused, but the true researchers would find them interesting. The first year was involved primarily with "good 'ole Nathan." It got to the point that our husbands, Bill & Nolan, ran when we mentioned "Nathan." We knew that our great-grandfather was Nathan Attebery. Which Nathan? We identified NINE Nathans who could have been him and then proceeded to systematically eliminate those we felt were not him. Final proof? My real estate background came into the action. I ordered a copy of a deed on a hunch - Jesse was the grantee and grantors were indexed as Churchwell and Mary Jane. Bingo! The deed instrument itself was signed by Churchwell, Mary Jane AND NATHAN! The three children were conveying their interest in their mother's estate to their father, Jesse. The Registrar of Deeds had simply failed to index Nathan! He was the son of Jesse, son of John, son of William, and our line was proven back to 1733. Although our letters have continued to be filled with 'what if', 'maybe', 'could this be', 'perhaps', etc., no search has been as intensive as the one of "ole Nathan." Bill and Nolan would say "Boy, are we glad we found him."

Wilma is doing better. She has moved into Woodward where one of her sisters and one of her daughters live. She has gotten involved in the Baptist Church and is volunteering at the hospital. She is forbidden (by family) to travel alone, so she stays pretty close to home although she has a good car and can move around Woodward quite freely. If all goes well, she and I may make a few more trips - Salt Lake City, Dallas, Missouri & Kentucky. She is really interested in our Barnes line and I have a Booth and a Prince line that need researching.

If you would like to send a card or note to Wilma, her new address is: 1305 Second Street, Woodward OK 73801. She will be glad to hear from anyone. I do ask, however, that you route any questions or additional information to me. She just isn't up to genealogical work yet.

Publication of a Revised Lineage Chart is still on the planning board; however, the time lines will have to be changed. Remember they were identified as tentative in Newsletter 95-1. The New Information submission deadline can be changed to March 31, 1996. Delivery date will be late 1996 at best.

Please do not send any money at this time. It is too early to identify the cost. The funds received to date are being returned. As soon as the cost can be determined, it will be given in a newsletter.

The revised lineage chart will be printed on 100% bond for preservation purposes. It will probably be soft bound with a spiral stem, although the final decision on this will depend on cost and the interest therein.

Again, please be reminded that all submissions for addition to the lineage chart must follow the format of the family book published in 1984. Otherwise, the material will be useless. Your editor is not knowledgeable enough to be able to do it for you. At the present time, there are about 600 pages of material which must be reviewed to "glean" information for the revision.

FROM THE MAILBAG

HYRUM B. IPSON 16x11x1558 submitted material for the lineage chart of his GG-Grandfather Elias Arterbury 16x11 (brother of Jesse referred to above). He reports that his own brothers and sisters have a total of 31 children, 100 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. What a family! Unfortunately, he has been unable to get much help in doing all of their lines. Sound familiar? Everyone isn't interested in genealogy, we're sorry to say.

VIRGINIA ALBAN 1315x10x52 also submitted material for the lineage chart on her line and ordered a copy of the 1984 book. She and her husband have traveled most of the year.

REVA ABBOTT of 2808 Waller, Enid OK 73703-4015 would like the address of Mrs. Troy Radford, Fort Worth TX - listed as Carolyn Oco Ford-Radford 14236341 on p 262 of the family book. If anyone has the address, please send it to Reva.

MARGUERITE A. EMMONS sends an extensive update of her 188 Richard J. Atteberry line. Marguerite's daughter Helen Kathryn 188314611 was married in June. (Editor's Note: Please send the details for inclusion in the Addition to Lineage Chart section.) Marguerite reports that she can now prove descent from a second Atteberry line - Michael 11 through his daughter Sally 115 who married Joseph Logsdon 11 Dec 1804. Their daughter Martha Jane Logsdon married Green McClelland (GMC) Self on 26 Aug 1841. These are her paternal grandmother's maternal gr-grandparents. (Editor's Note: Yes, Marguerite, the payment for civil service to Michael 11 during the Revolutionary War, counts for membership in the DAR. Prove the rest of your lineage from Michael 11 and you are "in like Flynn" as the old saying goes and your editor will be absolutely green with envy. You will also be the first Atteberry (of any spelling) in the DAR!"

Marguerite also reports that her husband is a descendant of the same William Burgess, born 1622 Truro County, Cornwall, Wales, who was the father of Susanna Burgess and the grandfather of John Mitchell (father-in-law of our William). A quote from her letter follows, and raises concern:

"My research found Susanna, daughter of William and Ursula Burgis marrying Jno. Mitchell in All Hallows Parish, Anne Arundel, MD on 14 Jul 1700. Now it is certainly possible for her to have born our John Mitchell and he to have married and his wife had Sarah by 21 Aug 1720. But is it likely? After all, Sarah had an older brother, also named John, who was christened 28 Feb 1717. Again, it is possible, but likely? It seems to me that this could use additional research."

Marguerite would appreciate some help in researching this. Anyone?

BETTE & ROBERT ATTEBERY 1654654 send their dues and report that Bette has had cataract surgery on her eyes. She now has an implant in the left one and will have one in the right eye soon (maybe by this time).

CLINTON ALAN BRAGG, JR. 165465323 graduated from Castro Valley High School in Castro Valley CA on 15 June 1995. All 320 graduates and their families were soaked as a cold rain fell during the ceremony in the football field. Clinton's mother, Janet Sue Mitchell, and her new husband, Michael DeRee, made the trip from Oklahoma for the graduation services. A family reception was held afterwards at Clint's father's apartment. Clint entered the U.S. Air Force at Lackland AFB, TX on August 1 and will soon finish his basic training. He doesn't know where he will be stationed.

MAE FRANCES ARTERBURY PINKSTON writes to send her new address and to ask about a family book. She is from the line of Elias 16x11 and has been in contact with Hy Ipson who is also from that line.

DR. ROBERT A. ATTERBURY of Elmwood Park IL writes for information on the Illinois Association that concentrates on the Charles Atterbury 13 line. Robert also sends his "Kooky Atterbury Theory of the Origin of Man" and his spoof of his Atterbury Lineage. Neither will be printed in the newsletter for fear that someone might take them seriously. (Editor's Note: Your editor is not aware of such an association; however, Dale Olson sends a listing from a Directory of Family Associations which includes "Atterbury Family Organization, 2112 East Johns Avenue, Decatur IL 62521 - Wanda Wood". Your editor fears that this is not an active organization; however, one might try it. For a copy of the family book published in 1984, just send a check for $85. Do not send funds for the revised lineage chart at this time.)

KARLEN BRUNER (not Briener as given in 95-1) BAIN of 7102 Claren Court, Dallas TX 75252 sends funds for the lineage revision book (the funds are being returned) and requests information on Elias 14x13. Perhaps someone from the 14x13 line can help her. (Editor's Note: You seem to have the concept of the numbering system - almost. I believe your number would be 14x13x41131. The x is used to separate numbers with two digits. Remember families with more than 9 children were not uncommon years ago. The dues for the family association are $5 per year per household.)

EDNA WALTERS 14x13x13x61 writes for the return of some material she wants to update. She and her ^{husband} both have serious health problems but are doing well at the present time and have been out doing genealogical research this year. (Editor's Note: Good luck on your search for burial records in Pittsburg Co OK. They are practically non-existent; however, they do have a nice historical society which maintains a small library in a building near the Court House. Could you share your Mitchell-Burgess material with us?)

VIVIAN M. ATTEBERRY of Fairbury IL, a relative and neighbor of Edna Walters above, sends a check for three new subscriptions to the newsletter.

ROBERT G. ALLEN, 155 St. Francis Court, Bloomingdale IL 60108-1112, phone (708) 582-0678, writes to inquire about others working on the line of Michael Atterbury 137. He was particularly interested in reaching Marguerite Gregory 1376373. Marguerite's address is: 134 S. 11th Ave., Beech Grove IN 46107, phone (317) 787-1653. Hopefully, Robert & Marguerite will submit an updated record for the line of Michael 137. Your editor certainly does not have one. Anyone else interested in this line should contact Robert or Marguerite.

DORIS VIRGINIA LEWIS CHASE 1389614 sends updates of the family of Louis Washington Brummett 13896. She offered to send a floppy with an ASCII file, but needed to know the size disk. (Editor's Note: Thanks, Virginia, but No Thanks! You are still dealing with a computer illiterate editor! It does appear that I will have to correct that situation, however, or give up trying to maintain a lineage chart and publish a newsletter. After all, 11 years is a pretty good record for a newsletter - it may be time to give it up.)

I.J. DOBSON, 1610 2nd St., Galena Park TX 77547-3212, writes to promise an update on his grandfather's line, that of George Marshall Atterbury 144622. Can anyone help him?

JOHN C. ATTERBURY, 214 Burning Tree Rd., Greers Ferry AR 72067, who publishes the Atterbury Family History newsletter, writes to give credit for the work on the Mitchell and Burgess families in Colonial Maryland to Shirley Hannaford, not himself. (Editor's Note: Congratulations, Shirley.) John also identifies three of his projects, which are given herein in case anyone would like to actively help him:

1. Trying to sort out and reduce some of the confusion among the many James' in the family (at least 17 in the three generations after William I.)
2. Is the father of Elijah 129, William 12 or Thomas 18? Many descendants of Elijah believe his father was Thomas.
3. Identifying the parents and older ancestors of William I in England.

(Editor's Note: Any one of these is a major project and concerns that the family researchers have had for many years. The confusion about Elijah 129 probably arises from an old "family record" report of Thomas sent to the Mormon Library many, many years ago. The report supposedly covered the family of Jockey Tom and really has the children mixed up. Not only is Elijah listed as a son, but so is Jesse (Jefse) as a son. It took much time and effort to determine that Jesse was really a son-in-law, having married Thomas' daughter Luraney. Apparently, Thomas traveled to Missouri with his daughter Luraney and son-in-law Jesse sometime before 1840 and died there before the family moved on to Texas as part of the Peters' Colony. Jesse and his son Nathan both signed the first tax rolls in the state of Texas in 1846. Elijah is listed in the family book as a son of William 12 based on the will of William 12, which lists him as a son. Let us know if you prove otherwise. Thank you for your many kind words.)

JAMES E. BATES, 16 Woodland Way, Greenbelt Maryland 20770, submits additional lineage information for the line of James H. Atterbury 1313. James and his wife are volunteers at the National Archives in Washington D.C. helping people do genealogical research in the microfilm reading room. He wants to correspond with those doing research on the descendants of Isiah. See next item. (Editor's Note: Thanks for your Internet Address; however, you can see that I am a very long way from being able to use it. Your comments about your genealogy programs are very discouraging to me. I need a program that will take the lineage chart in its present format and allow updates thereto. The other fancy programs are nice for detailed family records, but not for publication purposes. I will probably have to have a program written (or write one myself - heaven forbid). This leads me to restate once again - submission items for the revised lineage chart must follow the format of the book.)

DONNA KAY RITTER RILEY, Rt 5, Box 89, TAN-TAR-A, Stillwater OK 74074, writes to submit additional information for the lineage chart. Donna is from the line of Isiah. She and James Bates should get in touch. If anyone else is working on Isiah's line, please make contact also.

MINNIE RICHBURG 138967 writes to send her dues and express sorrow about the Oklahoma City bombing. (Editor's Note: Thank you for the kind words, Minnie. It was a traumatic event for all of us and we are still suffering and grieving over it. I was within 5 blocks of the site some 20 minutes before the bomb went off, attending the annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast. Over 1,200 people were there, including the Mayor, Governor, Lt. Governor, most of our Congressional Delegation and the CEOs of the major businesses in Oklahoma City. At my table were the President and all four Vice-Presidents of Rose State College. When the bomb went off, we were in the car on the way back to campus, traveling Southeast away from downtown. We neither heard or felt anything, but the campus was buzzing when we arrived.)

HELEN ATTEBERY, P. O. Box 113 - 22 Attebery St., Happy Camp CA 96039, phone (919) 493-2357, sends a copy of her book using the LDS computer program for Mac computers. Helen has been working on the Isiah 1314 line. James and Donna should both contact her. (Editor's Note: Helen, your book is lovely and I enjoyed the pictures. I'm sure those in your immediate line have really appreciated it. Please get together with James Bates and Donna Riley and rewrite your composite line in the format used for the family book. You will have time before we go to press.)

ADELE ATTEBERY MARTIN 16546211 sends an obituary of David L. Attebery from a Dallas newspaper. David was 58 years of age and was an associate at JPJ Architects. Adele remembers meeting a W. L. Attebery at one of our reunions several years ago and that he gave her a business card with "David and Earline" written on the back. (Editor's Note: W. L. is still on the newsletter mailing list - perhaps he will write and give us his lineage. I think he is from the line of Stephen Clement Atteberry, who was a son of Thomas (Jockey Tom), son of Richard 14. Stephen Clement Atteberry 1426 settled in Lancaster Tx at the end of the Mexican War (about 1849), shortly after your immediate line of Jesse 165 and Nathan 1654 settled in the Peters Colony near Garland TX. Stephen comes from the line in which Wilma's and Robert's gr-grandmother married a Martin.)

|--------------------------|------|-----------------|------|
| Robert Atterbury | $10 | Minnie Richburg | $10 |
| Edna & Lewis Walters | 10 | Harold D. Bass | 20 |
| Charles Richard Attebery | 15 | Donna K. Riley | 5 |

Please remember that dues are paid on the honor system. No individual bills will be sent. The dues for 1995-96 are now due and payable - they run from July through June. Dues are $5 per household per year. Many send more, as you can tell from above, and they are sent at various times of the year. Originally, the dues were to be collected at the annual reunion - thus the July to June timeframe. So far, money has not been a serious problem. We now have $430.19 in the savings account. Each newsletter costs approximately $150. We have enough funds for this letter #95-2 and probably 2 more. If we run out of funds, we can stop the newsletters.

There was no reunion this year. Hardly anyone noticed! Very few inquiries were made. We'll wait a few years and see how the interest develops.

A TRIP TO ALASKA - May 29 to June 13, 1995
by Voncille Attebery Winter 1654626, Nell Attebery
King 165462x11, & Edna Attebery Ward 165462x12

This was a long-awaited and planned-for trip by three sisters. In high school, Voncille had dreamed of going to Alaska as a frontiers-type school teacher. Needless to say, that didn't happen. Alaska, however, still remains as one of the last areas where we have a frontier. There are approximately 500,000 people in Alaska and 250,000 of them live in Anchorage. Land-area-wise, Alaska is larger than two states of Texas and one of the small New England states. The trip taken by the Attebery sisters was an escorted tour (#33) by Holland America Line-Westours:

Monday, May 29 - We were picked up at Voncille's home at 7:45 a.m. After stops in Salt Lake City and Seattle, we arrived in Anchorage about 9 p.m. where we were met and taken to the Captain Cook Hotel at 5th & K Streets where we were booked into Room 666. 10:30 p.m. found us downstairs eating a late snack, after which we went shopping. The shops in the hotel were still open and it was light outside. The hotel was beautiful and elegant.

Tuesday, May 30 - Some more time for shopping and sight-seeing in the morning. Soon after noon, we were picked up to head back to the airport. We took only an overnight bag, leaving the rest of our baggage at the hotel. From Anchorage, we flew to Kotzebue, where we spent the night in Room 228 of the Nullagvik Hotel. Kotzebue is North of the Arctic Circle and we felt as if we had come to the end of the world. Huge chunks of ice were floating in the bay across the street from our hotel. Kotzebue is the largest Eskimo village in Alaska and they have developed the Museum of the Arctic, where they also demonstrated the Blanket Toss (developed to help hunters scout for game on the flat terrain). All houses and buildings are on stilts due to the permafrost. Metal heat dissipators surround all buildings, so buildings do not thaw out ground and cause shifting.

Wednesday, May 31 - A little twilight last evening, but no nighttime darkness. After more touring of the Kotzebue Sound and the surrounding tundra, we flew to Nome. Nome was a boomtown with infamous white settlers during the early gold rush days. We had lunch at Fat Freddie's, panned for gold and watched a dog sledding demonstration. The world-famous Iditarod (sled-dog race) is held here. From Nome, we flew back to Anchorage and spent another night at Captain Cook's (this time in Room 663).

Thursday, June 1 - Motorcoach tour of Anchorage and surrounding area today. We visited Portage Lake, which was full of icebergs caused by an earthquake about a week previously. Our scheduled cruise across Portage Lake to the face of Portage Glacier was cancelled because of the icebergs. We visited a chocolate factory with a real "chocolate fountain" and had a nice Bar-B-Que evening meal at the Sourdough Mining Co.

Friday, June 2 - We were taken to the Alaska Railroad Depot where we boarded the McKinley Explorer for an 8-hour 234 mile trip through spectacular scenery (highest elevation 2337 ft) to Denali National Park. A lovely lunch was served in the dining car of the train (1920s style luxury). We saw the Northern lights presentation (some took a float trip) and had fresh baked salmon for dinner.

Saturday, June 3 - A motorcoach Wildlife Tour was the highlight of this day. We saw caribou, moose, bear, Dall sheep, and the incomparable Mt. McKinley. Only 20% of the visitors to Denali get to see Mt. McKinley because of the clouds. The motorcoach tour of the park lasted about 8 hours.

Saturday, June 3 (cont) - We boarded the McKinley Explorer to travel from Denali National Park to Fairbanks. Dinner was served in the elegant dining room as we traveled through more beautiful mountains (122 miles/highest elevation 1700 ft) for four hours. We were met at the Alaska Railroad Depot by a motorcoach and toured the city of Fairbanks before being taken to the Westmark Fairbanks hotel (room 133) on Noble Street. We arrived in our room about 10 p.m. after a 17 hour day. By 10:30 p.m., Nell & Edna took Voncille to the Fairbanks Memorial Hospital with what they thought was congestive heart failure (after tests in August, this was confirmed as asthma). Voncille was allowed to continue the trip provided she did not carry any heavy bags or climb steps. Nell & Edna carried her load and took excellent care of her.

Sunday, June 4 - A steamboat trip on the Discovery III was enjoyed by the tour group (about 35), while Voncille slept in. Nell & Edna went shopping & did some sightseeing. In the afternoon, we traveled by motorcoach along the famed Alaska Highway (formerly known as the Alcan Highway) through the Delta Junction (an important agricultural area) to TOK, the dog-mushing capital of Alaska. 5.5 hour tour covering 207 miles (highest elevation 1600 ft.). In TOK, we spent the night at Westmark TOK and were served halibut for dinner.

Monday, June 5 - This day, we traveled over the scenic Taylor Highway to Eagle, the Interior Region's first city. The 174 mile (highest elevation 3650 ft.) trip took 8 hours. We boarded the Yukon Queen for a cruise on the Yukon River to Dawson City, Yukon Territory, Canada. The boat trip of 108 nautical miles took another 6 hours. The border between the U.S. and Canada is a 670 mile 20' wide swath through the mountains. The Yukon Queen was a lovely boat and the scenery on the Yukon River is beautiful. Just before we arrived in Eagle, we stopped in a little town named Chicken - the setting for the true story of Tisha, a young teacher in the Alaskan wilderness. Entering Canada was easy - we simply showed identification. We spent the night at the Westmark Inn Dawson.

Tuesday, June 6 - We slept 11 hours! Great! Toured the city on our own and then took a bus tour in the afternoon. Sites included "Author's Row" where the former homes of Jack London and Robert Service are located, the Klondike Gold Fields, Guggieville, Discovery Claim, and the massive Gold Dredge #4. We panned for gold and had our "find" encased in a locket to wear around our necks. We were served barbeque again and were never told why it is so popular in Alaska. Dawson City was considered the "Paris of the North" at the turn of the century. The evening's entertainment was at Diamond Tooth Gertie's. We spent another night in Dawson.

Wednesday, June 7 - We boarded the luxurious Alaska-Yukon Explorer to continue our journey through Yukon River country. We followed the route of the old "Overland Trail" and saw sights such as Five Finger Rapids. Our trip of 335 miles (highest elevation 2500 ft) took 9 hours. The Alaska-Yukon is a luxury 60 ft 2-unit bus. We crossed the Yukon (there are only three bridges across the Yukon, which is 1200 ft long. The river flows North and West. The distance from Dawson, Yukon to Vancouver, B.C. is 1982 miles. We saw some volcanic ash in the sides of mountains that is 7,000 years old. We spent the night at Westmark Whitehorse (room 282) in Whitehorse, Yukon. A boisterous Frantic Follies Show was the evening's entertainment.

Thursday, June 8 - By motorcoach, we had a 90 mile ride to Fraser, B.C. where we boarded the White Pass and Yukon Railroad at the summit of the legendary White Pass. The train ride paralleled the treacherous "trail of '98" followed under extreme conditions by over 30,000 hopeful gold miner stampeder. We spent the night at Westmark Inn Skagway (room 134) in Skagway, Alaska.

Friday, June 9 - We cruised along the Lynn Canal in the MV Fairweather, viewing marine life, rugged forests, waterfalls, and glaciers of the Chilkoot and Chilkat Ranges. We saw lots of sea lions and two whales. We saw the Mendenhall Glacier (a drive-up-to glacier) on our transfer to Juneau, where we boarded the lovely Statendam for sailing at midnight. Pure luxury everywhere on the boat. Live entertainment every night, movies in the afternoon, casino, slot machines, shops, etc.

Saturday, June 10 - We continue to see lots of glaciers. It takes 100' of snow compressed to 1' to make glacial ice. They are blue because the compressed ice will not absorb this color of the spectrum and reflects it back at you.

Sunday, June 11 - A port stop at Sitka was the highlight of today. Sitka was an early Russian settlement. The historic transfer of Alaska in 1867 from Russia to the United States took place here. James Michener wrote his book "Alaska" here. We toured St. Michael's Cathedral and Sitka National Historical Park, as well as the Alaska Raptor Rehabilitation Center where we saw native birds of prey. Sitka is the world capitol for Eagles. We saw several flocks of 25-30 bald eagles.

Monday, June 12 - The ship is pure luxury and they continue to force feed us at least five times a day. We shopped, went to the movies, and sat out on the deck with coats on. The ship cruises through the famous Inside Passage today.

Tuesday, June 13 - After sailing under the Lion's Gate Bridge, our memorable cruise came to an end in lovely green Vancouver, B.C. We were able to check our luggage for Oklahoma City at dockside! From the Vancouver International Airport, we flew to Seattle, then Denver (where we were delayed two hours), then on to Oklahoma City. The shuttle bus deposited us at Voncille's front door at 11:45 p.m. - three very tired, but happy, gals!

We strongly recommend the trip to everyone!

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR - This may well be the last newsletter you will receive from this editor. The mailing list is to be cut drastically. If you want to remain on the list, please complete the form on the last page and return it to the editor.

This newsletter was started in 1984 as a way to keep those who purchased a book updated and informed about changes and additions. For thirteen years, it has served its purpose - actually thirteen years is quite a long time for a family newsletter to survive. It will continue on a very limited basis. If new evidence is discovered, it will be shared via a newsletter. So, if you want to remain on the mailing list, be sure to complete the form and send it to the editor!

Actually, it has come to the attention of the editor that many people do not even read the newsletter in its present format. They won't even miss it!

Since the book is in several libraries, it is still being "discovered" by individuals seeking information about their family. Calls from unknown family members continue to come in. Although your editor has moved, the phone number remains the same - 405/733-1294.

My promise to buy a computer still stands. There are several other lines I am eager to explore, particularly Barnes, Booth & Prince. I would like to get the information on those lines on a computer from the beginning.

Publication of a Revised Lineage Chart is still on the planning board, although I hesitate to estimate the time. So many deadlines have come and gone that it appears I may never get it done. I still have a stack of material about six inches high to go through. A cursory review of the material brings up several issues which must be resolved before publication of a revision:

1. Many of the submissions do not follow the format of the family book published in 1984. Must I try to straighten these out?
It is difficult with first-hand knowledge. Without that knowledge, it's almost impossible.
2. Some lines do not list all siblings - simply one's gr-grandparents, grandparents, parents, themselves, their children & grandchildren. This makes for inaccuracies in the book. Is this the way to list?
3. How many generations should we list after the loss of the Attebery name?

Your opinions and recommendations on these issues are certainly welcome.

A Revised Lineage Chart will probably cost at least $100. There will be 250-300 pages (the lineage chart in the book is 154 pages long). How many will buy one at that price? So far, only about 20-25 have expressed a true interest in purchasing the revision. What to do??

On a more personal note, I am now settled in my new home. It "feels" like home and I continue to enjoy it. Everything I own in the way of personal property is now under one roof.

Building my new home was an interesting and enjoyable experience. I would do it again tomorrow, but there are so many other things I want to do and so few years left in which to do it all.

I would like to make another trip to Salt Lake City and would also like trips to South Carolina & Mississippi. I did have an opportunity to visit Howard County MO last summer. I found very little; however, I did get to review the Probate File for the Estate of Thomas Atterbury (spelt several different ways in the file). In the book, we identified this Thomas as the eighth son of William the progenitor and the father of Levisa, who married her cousin Jesse 165, who was the son of John 16. This Thomas, whom we identified as 18, is frequently listed in other lines.

Actually, I still feel good about the published book - recognizing there are some inaccuracies in the later generations. Based on the source material we had to work with, the end result is quite good. I have hoped someone would pick up and do some additional research. To date, John C. Atteberry is the only one who has reported any research. Keep your eye on him, he is doing an excellent job.

FROM THE MAILBAG....

LI ANN LEE, 3726 S. 2025 W., Roy UT 84067 (phone 801/731-3296), granddaughter of George Henry Hobbs, writes to offer her expertise in helping others get started in doing genealogical research. George Henry Hobbs and Judge Attebury of Litchfield IL wrote the first book of the Attebury family line that is in the Salt Lake City Family History Center. Li Ann writes "PLEASE ENCOURAGE PEOPLE THAT RUN ACROSS GRANDPA'S BOOK TO RESEARCH EACH DATE AND PLACE FOR ACCURACY. DO NOT, I REPEAT, DO NOT TAKE HIS WORD ON IT." Li Ann has been a Family History researcher and teacher for over 25 years and worked in the Family History Library in Salt Lake City. She has written a book on beginning research.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Please take heed of this warning! It reflects one of my greatest fears. When I look back to 1982-84, I do not know how we had the "nerve" to prepare a Lineage Chart based on hearsay. But we did - please understand that it is not completely accurate.

Li Ann reaffirms our belief that Sir Francis is not a direct ancestor. He had only one son named Oscar and there is no evidence that Oscar produced any children.

JAMES W. CAVE, 22 Cedar Point Drive, Palm Coast FL 32164, writes looking for leads on the families of Sarah 183 and Lydia 117. If you can help him or have more information on the Cotterell line in Hart County KY, please contact him.

KAY MILLION sends information about the Elijah Atterburn (b 1783) line.

NOVA A. LEMONS writes to submit some possible lines for Moses Arterberry (p 300 - 152). She bemoans the burning of the courthouse in Jackson Co TN prior to 1850. This continues to be a frustration for many genealogical researchers. One redeeming feature, however, is that many deeds, marriage certificates, etc. were re-recorded if the original were brought to the courthouse.

LUELLA CRAVENS sends a list (10 - no less!) of her ancestors which she used for qualification for the DAR.

Editor's Note: I am green with envy. Membership in the DAR has been one of my ambitions for years. I did so want to qualify on my Attebery line, but it appears that is not to be.

MARJORIE CONNER wrote to reserve two copies of the Revised Lineage Chart.

CAROL BRADLEY 14633642 wrote promising new information for the Revised Lineage Chart. Since this will involve some changes of numbers for the children and grandchildren of John E. Atteberry 14633, we are eager to receive the revision.

SOMEONE (???) submitted a birth certificate for Dave Blackman Atteberry, born June 13, 1895, in Collin County, Texas, to Charles Beacher Atteberry and Sarah Ann Benton. A Blazon of Arms was also enclosed (in color).

PEGGY CAREY writes to inquire about JANE ATTERBURY 12931 on p 212 of the book. Answer: All the information we have is that Jane married a Taylor. Sorry.

CHRISTINA BLANTON from Tucson Arizona writes to inquire about marriage licenses for some of her ancestors in Texas. Answer: Many counties in Texas have copies of the marriage licenses issued in their county, while others have only an index. Many even have the originals. To obtain such, contact the county where the marriage took place. You may have to try the surrounding counties. Apparently, the popular thing to do was to go over into another county for one's marriage. This was the only "trip" many couples ever had.

MARGUERITE EMMONS 18831461 writes to say that she has finally received the Attebery family bible. Yes, Marguerite, I would like a copy. If others have questions about this line, please write to Marguerite. She has been doing some interesting work on her line. Keep up the good work.

HY IPSON wrote to send some dues and report that he is recovering from an accident. He hopes to do some research this winter.

WILMA MITCHELL 1654653 sends much information for the newsletter. The information reported herein may not be in chronological order. You will remember that Wilma was the driving force in getting all of the census records for the book. That was very tedious work! And, very valuable.

Wilma reports that her grandson Clint Bragg, Jr. left for Saudi Arabia on 4 Aug to be gone about 10 months. Clint is only 19 or 20 and Saudi Arabia is a long ways from home.

Her granddaughter Michelle was married on May 1 to Lance Moritz in Florida. He was transferred to Rhode Island. Michelle and Lance's father sailed Lance's sail boat up the coast to Rhode Island. Interesting trip!

Tommie Whitehead has had a mild heart attack, but is doing well. Keep her in your prayers.

Tommie's sister, Shirley Martin Foster was killed in an automobile accident earlier this year. Only the second member to be lost from that large Martin family. The Martins enjoy a reunion each June.

In July, another Martin family - R. A. & Katy Martin family - enjoyed a reunion at the Union Valley Baptist Church in Cookietown.

Wilma also reports the passing of Noel Mitchell, the twin brother of her husband, Nolan. He was the last of his family to go. Everyone who attended our reunions in the '80s and early '90s will remember Nolan. He made our "Attebery" sign and tables for many of us and was always there when anything was needed. Nolan died in April 1994 after my husband, Bill Winter, died in December 1993. They were good buddies and spent much time together as Wilma and I put the family book together. We are both still trying to adjust to widowhood.

1997 is the Golden Anniversary for many events in Oklahoma and in my personal life. On April 10, 1947, Oklahoma's deadliest tornado struck Woodward, killing 116 people. Jay Chase was in the theatre at the time (of course, he was only a small kid). Bill Attebery 1655465 brought his family to Woodward where he worked in helping rebuild the town. The family stayed and Jay married Wanda Attebery (Bill's daughter). Jay & Wanda own and operate Chase's Appliances in Woodward.

On May 10, 1947, Bill Winter and Voncille Attebery were married in Chickasha OK. During the summer, Voncille's brother Oley was married and on October 24, her sister Ruth was married to Max Dunn. It was a busy year for the 165462 Atteberys.

Another widow in our 16546 line is Nita Vance, who lost her husband, Jack, who died July 23, 1996. She and her daughter Dola visited her other daughter, Jan, in Westborough, Mass. (near Boston) in July.

On June 7, 1997, Wilma and Voncille attended a family reunion at Lane OK, billed as a "Atteberry/..Atterbury Reunion." This was organized by Ruth Atteberry Adams 6125 Kentucky, Raytown MO 64133-3747, phone 816/356-4244. This group has traced their lineage to a William in Stoddard County MO. So far, I have been unable to identify their lineage any further back. Can anyone help?
